Fully three times as many people will be paying income tax this year as ever before. New taxpayers, as well as the old ones, already are wondering about 1942 taxes. They ask three main questions. (1) Will I be expected to pay last year's taxes at the same time I am paying this year's taxes? (2) Will we skip 1942 and, if so, will the government lose a year's revenue? (3) Will the 1942 taxes be suspended now and dropped on our necks right after the war when, most likely, we will be having a spell of hard times?

Matter-of-fact statements of some plain facts will answer two of those questions: The average American who earned anything last year is not able this year to pay taxes at current rates on two years of income. Especially is this true of a typical farmer. His last year's earnings are gone, because he had operated at a loss for several previous years, and obligations that were hanging over took his 1942 profits. Two years' taxes in one year will not leave him a living.

Postponement Is Worse

Suspending the 1942 taxes temporarily, and perhaps spreading them out over several future years, is a sorry suggestion. If the taxpayer, especially the farmer, is not able to pay two years' taxes in 1943 when he is earning something, certainly he can't lift such a burden in a post-war depression. Farmers were hit harder than any other group of citizens after the last war and they have every reason to expect the same thing to happen after World War II.

Question No. 2, above, is double-barrelled. The answer to the first half of it is "Yes." If the vast majority of people can't pay 1942's income taxes this year, nor in several post-war years, we should skip 1942 for them. It is the only sensible thing to do because it can be proved absolutely that skipping 1942 will not cost the government one penny in revenue. Let me start the proof with a homespun illustration:

1942 Is Only a Date

My first experience with income taxes came in 1931. The rules exempted me that year but I had a friend who paid a small amount. Old form 1040-A called it a tax on his 1930 income but that was really a misnomer. My friend, like nearly everybody else, had spent all he earned in 1930 and whatever tax he paid in 1931 came right out of his 1931 earnings. He knew it was his 1931 income that was "taxed" and that 1930 was nothing but a place to start figuring.

That plan is no longer suitable. Tax rolls are larger now, people earn more, rates are higher and exemptions are lower. Incomes are higher even than they were a year ago, and for that reason a pay-as-you-go plan will yield the Treasury more revenue in 1943 than could be raised by the old system. Under a pay-as-you-go plan, taxes will be paid this year just as in previous years. We will not skip a year of paying. We will only discard 1942 as a basis of figuring.

Every year since 1914 when Americans started paying income taxes we have pretended to pay on earnings of the year before. Thus every taxpayer has stayed technically in debt to the government for a year or more of taxes. Millions of people never did pay the debt, of course. Every year a certain number have died or suffered from illness or drouth or fires. These have quit earning incomes and failed to pay tax on the previous year.

Now, to Catch Up

A good pay-as-you-go plan will save the government these paper losses and lift a technical debt from the taxpayers. This is important because after the war all taxpayers and especially farmers have a depression to face. Depressions are calamities, like fires and sickness and drouth. They mean years when (under the present plan) we would be asked to pay taxes on a by-gone year of good income and have little or nothing to pay with.

Some types of workers might escape back taxes if they had no money but a farmer can't escape. He has land that can be levied upon. It was wisdom that led the National Grange and the American Farm Bureau Federation both to go on record recently in favor of pay-as-you-go income taxes.

Holt School Notes

Grades 3, 4, 5

We are finishing and reviewing our books this week. Next week we will have many tests.

Melba Nygaard is visiting school this week.

My Train

I have a train that goes toot-toot
And scares me, oh, so much.
All trains are not such.

But when it starts out,
It spurts and spurts again
And flies right through the air,
Without a single care.

And when it stops,
I put it in a box.
And then I go to sleep
And wish it were a jeep.

The following had 100 in spelling last week: Robert Johnson, Arthur Peterson, Dorothy Sagstuen, Dorothy Bottem, Betty Ness, Beth Weaver, Vernon and Clifford Reierson and Evelyn Wegge.

Upper Grades

Our school program "Music-Time", drew a fine crowd of people to our school house last Friday evening. We wish to take this means of thanking the public for it's interest in our school.

Donald Fluke was absent Monday forenoon.

The Seventh Grade Geography class is working hard in order to complete their work books on North America this week.

The Sixth Grade History class is reviewing their work for the year on Ancient Civilizations.

The eighth grade boys took their radio parts home last Friday. They are both planning to continue experimenting at home.

Glamour for Victory

Glamour—the word which Webster defines as "magic" or "charm" is usually associated with femininity. Today glamour is at work on the farm helping produce food for victory. Wives, daughters and sweethearts of men in the armed forces are driving tractors and cultivating crops. If it weren't for electricity, many of these women, who are filling men's shoes, would be tied down to tasks in the farmhouse. Electricity has helped eliminate drudgery on the farm, and today electric service is so dependable that it is taken for granted.

The war is bringing out the real glamour behind your electric switch. In this war emergency, electricity is the mainspring that turns the wheels of war production. The remarkable progress, since Pearl Harbor, by private industry is one of the most glorious pages in American history. It is the story of rapid production to fill shortages of airplanes, machine tools, ships, copper, steel and other supplies.

The electric industry was ready for the war—ready to furnish plenty of electricity for manufacturing implements of war.

Electric companies have been able to accomplish this the American Way . . . by good business management. By careful planning for the future, your electric company was ready so that there is plenty of electricity in this area for war work and the Home Front, too.

The next time you flick your light switch, remember there is glamour behind that switch that is helping bring victory to this nation.

County Gets Road Allotment

Allotment of $4,590,000 of State Aid funds to Minnesota's 87 counties for local highway improvements on state aid and county aid roads, was announced by the State Board of Allotment.

The funds allocated are from the counties' one-third share of the collected and anticipated receipts from the 4-cent gas tax. They consist of $1,240,000 for use in State Aid roads and $3,350,000 for work on County Aid roads, including special allotments, four of which are Federal Aid Secondary county projects which it is anticipated will not be undertaken until after the relaxation of war-time restrictions on road-building. Reflecting the decrease in travel and the consequent reduction in gas tax revenues, the funds available for county allotments this year are $670,000 less than those for 1942 and $2,610,000 less than the record breaking allotments of $7,200,000 made in 1941.

Out of the state-aid funds apportioned, Marshall county will receive a total of $62,700, which is made up of $12,400 for State Aid Roads and $50,800 for the County Aid Roads.

Wool Clip Taken By Gov't

Under the new wool purchase program now in effect, the government takes over the entire domestic wool clip at the ceiling prices through the Commodity Credit Corporation, County Agent R. A. Reierson announced. All wool dealers and handlers must be licensed and approved by the Commodity Credit Corporation and must sell to the government. All lots of wool over 1,000 pounds must be sold or consigned to the government. Only lots of less than 1,000 lbs. are not affected by this program and may be sold for cash to anyone who wishes to buy such lots for local use. All 1943 wool must be sold by December 1, 1943.

The top ceiling price on choice Minnesota wool is about 52 to 53 cents per pound on a grease basis.

Mrs. E. W. Sundquist and Mrs. Mrs. Esther Johnston of Tacoma Mrs. John Haglund and son Albert, daughter Christine and grandson Clinton Castle motored to Roseau on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fricker and family went to Waskish over the week end to fish.

Farm Bureau Shows June 5

At Newfolddn Saturday night

Andrew E. Strandquist, president of the Marshall County Farm Bureau, announces that the services of W. A. Dickenson, safety director of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation has been secured to hold a series of free (sound) motion pictures in Marshall county which commenced on Tuesday this week.

The meetings opened at Stephen on Tuesday evening and have since been held at many places in the county with one at Alvarado this evening. The last meeting of the series will be held at the School Auditorium at Newfolden on Sturday evening, June 5 at 8:30 p. m.

Each show includes a talk by Mr. Dickinson, the safety director of the State Farm Bureau. Mr. Dickinson is a fluent speaker and has the reputation of holding the closest attention of his audiences in his dramatic presentation of the highway accident situation and some things that may be done about it.

The pictures are the best obtainable and are educational as well as highly entertaining. No one interested in farmer's organization or accident prevention on the highways can afford to miss them. In one picture you will see the international road races at Indianapolis and how your car is tested on the "proving grounds." "The Oregon Trail" is one of the most beautiful pictures in color ever produced. "You and Your Neighbor" is a brand now film, the scenario of which was written by Leland Melrose, editor of the Farm Bureau News, and depicts in most grafic manner the activities of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation and the Farm Bureau units. Farm Bureau folks are likely to see a lot of their friends in action in this picture. The show closes with a mirth provoking feature film which is actually a whole Farm Bureau unit program in itself. It deals with the experience of one "Mr. Silas Scott" on the highway and the trouble he had in getting home from the 'meetin'."

The show is free and the general public is cordially invited.

Newfolden, Saturday night, June 5th at 8:30 p. m.

Lt. and Mrs. Joe Moline arrived here Friday evening to visit with friends and relatives here and in Crookston. They will return to Fort Mammouth, New Jersey, where Lt. Moline is receiving special training in Signal Intelligence.

Russel Sanoden arrived home Tuesday from Concordia College Moorhead, where he has been a student the past year.

Commencement Exercises

The local school held its commencement exercises on Wednesday evening. A large crowd attended. The commencement speaker was Hon. Judge Oscar R. Knutson of Warren. The Salutatory address was given by Irvin G. Larson and the the Valedictory by Doreen B. Christensen.

Those who graduated from the Eighth Grade are: Donald V. Fluke and Irvin G. Larson.

Cream Days Changed Here

Starting yesterday the local creamery has changed cream days and will now take cream on Tuesday, Thursday any Saturday instead of the old time schedule of Monday, Wednesday and Friday. This chahge was made because of the buttermilk situation. The buttermilk from here is sold at Fertile to the drying plant and in order for them to take it they had to take have it on certain days and so the change was made. It amounts to several hundred dollars to the creamery here in a year.

Mrs. E. W. Sundquist and Mrs. Esther Johntson of Tacoma, Wash., daughters of Mrs. John Haglund, arrived here last week to visit a few weeks.

A. W. Carlson is having a new chicken house built on his farm south of town. The new building will be 100 x 30 feet and will house 2000 chickens that Mr. Carlson is raising this season.

Those in charge of the cemetery and those who have friends and relatives buried there, did a fine job in cleaning up and decorating the graves and lots for Memorial Day.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Moline of Crookston and Sgt. and Mrs. Roy Moline visited relatives here Monday.

SATURDAY CREAM DAY

This bank regrets the necessity of the change of the Friday cream day of our creamery to Saturday of each week.

After 20 years of service to the Friday cream patrons we regret to advice you that we will continue to remain closed on Saturday afternoon. In order that there will be no misunderstanding in this matter we wish to make our position clear.

This bank is subject to the Federal Wage and Hour Law and which limits the hours of our employees to 40 hours per week. In order to keep within this limit, we found it advisable to change our banking hours from 9:00 A. M. to 3:00 P. M. for five days per week and from 9:00 A. M. to 12:00 Noon on Saturday. We must confirm with the law or pay over-time which we feel would not be advisable at this time.

In order to take care of our Saturday forenoon customers from Gatzke, Middle River and Newfolden, we ask that the merchants and people of the village of Holt do all their banking on Fridays. If this is done, we hope to be able to take care of the Saturday forenoon rush.

We also wish to advise that the following non-banking transactions will be discontinued on Saturday forenoon:

I SAID GOOD-BYE TO CONSTIPATION

Harsh, medicinal laxatives only griped me—and never really stopped my constipation. It always came back.

Then I found out why. I just wasn't taking on enough "bulk"-forming foods. So—I started eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly and drinking plenty of water. And—I "Joined the Regulars!"

That's because KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN gets at the cause of constipation like mine and corrects it—by helping to form a soft, bulky mass in the intestines.

If your trouble is what mine was, why not try KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN? It's made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek and tastes swell.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Considering cost of oil, gas, tires and upkeep, it is estimated that the cost of driving the average car for 1000 miles at 45 miles per hour is $22.03. At 25 mph the cost is cut to $14.28 and at 35 mph it is held to $17.88.

Malaya and the Netherlands Indies were the only sources of natural rubber in the world which had been successfully exploited to an important extent prior to the present war.

Rubber and gas rationing did not drastically cut motortruck operations last year. Official figures show that during 1942 trucks hauled an estimated 46 billion ton miles of freight on main rural highways, compared with 46.7 billion in the more normal 1940.

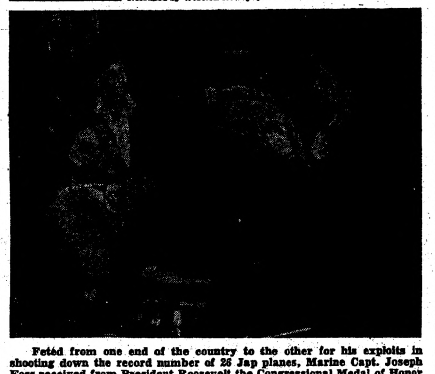
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Attu Victory Brings U. S. Nearer Tokyo; Flood Damage Menaces Food Production; Labor Stirred by Lewis Bid to AFL; Churchill: 'Bomb Jap Cities to Ashes'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news-analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



Feted from one end of the country to the other for his exploits in shooting down the record number of 26 Jap planes, Marine Capt. Joseph Foss received from President Roosevelt the Congressional Medal of Honor for "outstanding heroism and courage above and beyond the call of duty." Photo shows, left to right: President Roosevelt; Mrs. Mary Foss, mother of the air hero; Captain Foss and his wife, June, adjusting the medal around his neck.

ALEUTIANS:

Tokyo Gets Nearer

The Japanese government had prepared the civilian population of Nippon for the fall of Attu through the medium of a report indicating that the last defenders of the Aleutian Islands outpost were making a death stand against attacking American troops.

While the Japs were singing their Attu swan song, reports from Washington had disclosed the strategic moves that had succeeded in bottling the enemy up. Two American columns, landed on opposite sides of the island, had joined and trapped the Japs on a narrow front on the northwestern end of Attu.

Japs Warn Reds

As American air power thus moved closer to Tokyo, the Japs showed their unrest. Apparently the success of Allied bombings of Germany had stirred the Japanese government to the dangers ahead should the United Nations be permitted by Russia to use Siberian bases.

The result was a Tokyo broadcast reported by the British warning Russia that "if in the future she ever put her Siberian bases at the disposal of the United States, the Japanese army will resort to a blitzkrieg and will deal upon her the heaviest blows Russia has ever known."

AFL TO LEWIS:

'Come Back Home'

Unpredictable John L. Lewis knocked at the door of the American Federation of Labor carrying in his hand an application for the readmission of his United Mine Workers. Just eight years before he had torn the parent union asunder in the greatest labor schism in history.

That the door would be opened wide to the errant Mine Workers was evident from AFL President William Green's announcement that the federation's executive council was considering Lewis' application in an "orderly and sympathetic way." Green said he personally welcomed the miners and reminded the public that for seven or eight years he had said the latch string was out and he wanted the miners "to come back home."

What effect Lewis' move would have on the present peace negotiations between the AFL and the CIO which Lewis founded and later quit, was not immediately evident.

EUROPE:

Air Blasts Continue

In the wake of ebbing flood waters that had swept disastrously through Germany's industrial Ruhr valleys from the Eder and Moehne dams, shattered by RAF bombs, American Flying Fortresses inflicted further punishment on the Nazis in attacks on submarine and shipbuilding yards at Kiel and Flensburg, 40 miles away.

Air Force communiques said the unescorted bombers had left both targets in flames and shot down many enemy fighter planes that had tried to ward them off.

FLOODS:

Peril Farm Output

Ruined crops, inundated cities, damaged homes and casualties from drownings resulted from the disastrous flood that started in Midwestern farm states and spilled south from rivers and streams flowing into the Mississippi river.

As emergency crews and troops had toiled to check the rise of flood waters and hold down damage from breaks in Mississippi river levees protecting rich farm lands and war plants, weather bureau officials attributed the flood to unprecedented May rains.

In Illinois alone the continuous rains had destroyed 100,000 acres of corn, wheat and oats. Other states reporting serious crop destruction were: Indiana, Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas and Oklahoma. The flood losses represented a critical threat to the nation's epochal wartime food production crusade. The damage resulted not only from crops already in, but from serious delays in planting corn and other vital cereal crops.

CLOTHES:

May Avoid Rationing

Rationing of clothing and other textiles may be avoided as a result of plans worked out between officials of the War Production board and retail clothing dealers, it was announced in Washington.

Under the new plan the WPB will make possible increased production of more essential types of clothing and textiles. At the same time retailers have promised to revise certain practices and develop new methods designed to relieve pressure on the industry.

"We believe we can avoid clothes rationing and other textiles this winter and perhaps indefinitely, if we get adequate support from the public," said an official statement.

CHURCHILL:

'Hitler First; Japs Next'

War to the death on Japan, but defeat of Hitler first was the recipe for complete United Nations' victory prescribed by Prime Minister Winston Churchill in his historic speech before congress.

Answering congressional critics who predicted that Britain would leave the burden of defeating Japan to America, Mr. Churchill pledged the empire to war side by side with the United States "while there is still breath in our bodies and while blood flows through our veins." He promised, further, that British air power will join with American to bomb Jap cities and war industries, adding: "In ashes they must surely lie before peace comes to the world."

He defended present United Nations strategy founded on the judgment of President Roosevelt, himself and their military advisers that "while defeat of Japan would not mean the defeat of Germany, the defeat of Germany would infallibly mean the ruin of Japan."

Greater aid for both China and Russia were promised by Churchill.

GAS CRISIS:

Middle West Next?

As the gasoline supply crisis mounted along the Atlantic seaboard, Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown decreed a complete ban on pleasure driving in 12 eastern states, part of another and in the District of Columbia.

The states affected by the ruling were Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. In addition eight eastern counties in West Virginia were affected.

Previously the OPA had sought to curb nonessential driving through a voluntary "honor system."

That additional restrictions loomed ahead was indicated by Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes, who said that the East would have to cut its gasoline consumption still further and that new restrictions may be put into effect in the Middle West so that some gasoline may be diverted from there to the seaboard area.

FOOD CONFERENCE:

Postwar Goals Outlined

Continuance of food rationing after the war, the creation of a global agricultural commission and the assurance that the people of the world will be better fed in the postwar period were among goals agreed upon by delegates representing the "big four" of the United Nations—the United States, Great Britain, China and Soviet Russia—attending the food conference at Hot Springs, Va.

In addition the delegates were said to be in agreement on declarations advocating continued agricultural expansion throughout the period of post-war relief, on a statement favoring the reduction of world tariffs and on educational measures to promote better nutritional goals.

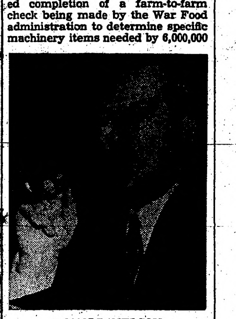
Although no binding agreements linked the delegates, Paul H. Appleby, undersecretary of agriculture and acting chairman of the American delegation, said that representatives of 44 governments attending the conference had come forward with offers of co-operation.

FARM IMPLEMENTS:

Bigger Output Ahead

Production of farm machinery in 1944 at an estimated rate of 80 per cent of the average annual output in the 1940-41 period, and unlimited production of repair parts was approved by the War Production board.

Release of the official order awaited completion of a farm-to-farm check being made by the War Food administration to determine specific machinery items needed by 6,000,000 farmers, Paul Henry, head of the WFA's production equipment branch, revealed.



DONALD NELSON
... Concentration a "dead duck."

Concentration of the farm equipment industry previously ordered in a WPB directive, is to be eliminated. Donald Nelson, WPB chairman, announced that "concentration is a dead duck." Thus large farm equipment manufacturers whose sales are over $10,000,000 are permitted to come back into production.

RUSSIANS:

Reds Press Hard

Even as former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies was engaged in conferences with Russ Premier Joseph Stalin in furtherance of his second and historic mission to Moscow, Red armies were reported by the Germans to have launched major attacks on four points along a 1,100-mile section of the Eastern front from the Volkhov sector to the Kuban valley in the Caucasus.

In the Caucasus campaign Red army troops shattered two Nazi attacks, according to a Soviet report, and blasted 14 boatloads of Nazis attempting to retreat over the Kuban river.

In the vicinity of Novorossisk, last remaining Axis bridgehead in the Caucasus, Russian forces continued their pressure, breaking up Nazi tank assaults and tightening their offensive ring around the key city.

CANNED FOODS:

More for Civilians

Civilian supplies of canned fruits and vegetables will be increased by approximately 30,000,000 cases from the 1943 pack because of reduced military demands for these commodities, the War Food administration announced.

Whether the new allocation would result in a lowering of point values for canned goods was not known. Officials said this would depend on the size of the 1943 fruit and vegetable pack.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

CRABS: For the first time in history the giant king crab of the Bering sea will be canned commercially by Americans, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes announced.

GASOLINE: No extra gasoline will be available for vacation trips this year, according to an OPA ruling. Holders of B and C cards must not use them for holiday trips, the ruling stated CASUALTIES: Axis losses in Tunisia totaled 324,000 according to estimates of the Allied high command. The losses included 267,000 prisoners, 30,000 killed and 27,000 wounded.

BOMBERS: Production schedules at Henry Ford's Willow Run bomber plant in Detroit are being exceeded, Edward L. Cushman, local director of the War Manpower Commission, reported.

SEW-ON covers of chintz or other smart cottons are always neat and trim and, since the pieces are all sewn to the old upholstery of the chair with rather long stitches, it is not difficult to remove the cover for washing or cleaning. If washed at home it is much easier to handle separate pieces than an entire slip cover.

A sew-on cover should be pin-fitted with a 4-inch tuck-in around the spring seat and 1-inch seam allowances. Use tailor's chalk to mark stitching lines and indicate pieces to have welting stitched to edges. Here, welting is used for the side seams of the inside center back section; across the front of the seat; for the top and bottom of the outside; and all around the front of the arm sections. The sketch shows how welted and unwelted pieces are sewn in place. The welting hides the stitches if you use heavy duty thread matching the cord covering.

Do not throw away used wax jelly tumbler covers. Wash in cold water and dry them and place in an empty tin can. When the can is filled, they should be melted together to form a cake and covered. Thus, they will be kept fresh and as good as ever for next season's jars.

What is the most welcome gift you can send to a man in the service? Well, surveys among service men themselves show that one of the favorite packages from home are cigarettes. And first choice among men in all the services is Camel, based on the actual sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. Kidneys Must Work Well-
For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Assembly Line in Southwestern Pacific

Mechanically minded American soldiers are taking their mass production assembly line methods with them to the Southwest Pacific. Here troops take parts of trucks, jeeps and ambulances as they come from the ships and put them through the line. One improvement on the assembly line system is their "Change-over." When the boys tire of one operation, a command switches all members of the line to a new position and a new job. Left, rear running gear of a two-ton truck is assembled. Right, a cab is added to the truck and soon it will be ready for duty in a battle zone.

Maltese Tribute to Stalingrad

A stone shelter on Malta, most bombed spot on the earth, bears the name "Stalingrad." It is a tribute from Malta to the Russian city which also rocked under Nazi mass raids, yet held out grimly to victory. Beneath Malta a great system of subterranean workshops hewn from solid rock were the battle stations of thousands of workers who made British tools of war even as Axis bombs exploded above them.

Ingredients of Kindness Are Several in Number

Mother was a completely kind person. The annual visit from the old piano tuner was dreaded, for he stammered pitifully, and he invariably stayed for a meal. My mother had told us five children that we must never laugh, no matter how much Mr. M. stuttered. We had every intention of doing as she instructed, but the air grew more and more tense each time he hesitated on a syllable. Sensing that the giggling strings were about at the snapping point when Mr. M. asked for the "v-v-v-v-v" (it never did get to be "vinegar"), my mother came to our rescue with this exclamation: "Look, children! Just look what I've done. I've put sugar on Richard's hash!"

Laughter fairly exploded from five small persons. She taught us then and there that the ingredients of kindness are not only a warm glowing feeling but ingenuity and imagination used quickly. —Emory Howes in Tit-Bits, London.

Even Cupid Is Living Up To the Rules These Days

Being of a very kindly nature, the foreman of the munition plant took a great interest in the love affair of one of his pretty "munitionettes."

Then one day he was surprised to hear that it was broken off. But that very evening he was even more surprised to see the young lady in question out with the newly discarded young man.

"Why, Doris," he said chidingly, "I thought you had finished with that young man. And here you are out with him."

"That's right, I have," was the reply from Doris; "but I had to give him seven days' notice, didn't I?"

WE ARE AMERICANS

Our United States is a government by all, conceived and dedicated by and with the consent of the governed. It constantly promotes individual dignity, worth and opportunity; guarantees to every citizen freedom of religion, speech, assembly, press and petition; safeguards private property; maintains equal justice before the law; provides free schools for all, and constantly seeks social and economic security and the blessings of liberty for young and old.

This is our country. Individuals or groups may have fallen short or failed in their duty, but we, the people, press on to our destiny. We, the people, love and cherish our Republic. We pledge support for its institutions with our lives and sacred honor.

Glamour for Victory

Glamour—the word which Webster defines as "magic" or "charm" is usually associated with femininity. Today glamour is at work on the farm helping produce food for victory. Wives, daughters and sweethearts of men in the armed forces are driving tractors and cultivating crops. If it weren't for electricity, many of these women, who are filling men's shoes, would be tied down to tasks in the farmhouse. Electricity has helped eliminate drudgery on the farm, and today electric service is so dependable that it is taken for granted.

The war is bringing out the real glamour behind your electric switch. In this war emergency, electricity is the mainspring that turns the wheels of war production. The remarkable progress, since Pearl Harbor, by private industry is one of the most glorious pages in American history. It is the story of rapid production to fill shortages of airplanes, machine tools, ships, copper, steel and other supplies.

The electric industry was ready for the war—ready to furnish plenty of electricity for manufacturing implements of war.

Electric companies have been able to accomplish this the American Way . . . by good business management. By careful planning for the future, your electric company was ready so that there is plenty of electricity in this area for war work and the Home Front, too.

The next time you flick your light switch, remember there is glamour behind that switch that is helping bring victory to this nation.

LOOKING AHEAD

Lop-Sided Growth

Everybody old enough to vote has witnessed Earth's years of highest scientific achievement. Even now, unnatural needs of war are speeding up this already dominant trend in human progress. Engineering feats keep the nation agog. Those who stand on the sidelines of scientific activity marvel at today's wonders and speculate on those of tomorrow. A now familiar quotation is: "It takes some time to do hard things; the impossible takes a little longer."

Government is the only field in which the human race currently is making a failure. If we are to believe most of what we read, humanity's drive toward good government is in reverse. The world is more despot-ruled now than it was at the dawn of history, and the day seems far away when peoples shall manage their mutual affairs with intelligence and kindness. Our progress has been lop-sided.

No Ordinary Year

But the year 1943 is no ordinary time, no more than was 1776. The United States is the only sizable stronghold of human freedom left, not shell-shocked with war or pock-marked by dictatorship. Even here, with the nation's enormous strength massed in self defense, people of small capacity sometimes show symptoms of power intoxication, but not all the signs are discouraging. A new and wholesome interest in national affairs has spread across the country in the last three months, and it is most heartening.

There have been isolated years of great governmental achievement in the past; high peaks of history. These have not been occasions when tyrants followed in the wake of famine, compelling hungry people to swap freedom for bread. They have not been campaigns when brute force was subduing one and then another inoffensive nation. They have not been times when power was being centralized. This year could be another big year.

Years of Progress

Great days of governmental achievement have been times when power was twisted from the fists of a few and put in the hands of many, where it belonged. The occasions have been cited so often in high school orations that there is no reason to catalog them here, but this is worth remembering: The United States became a world power in record time because it was free. Mundane authority has always been in the right place; in the people.

It has been charged by some that the recent great concentration of power in the New Deal's bureaucratic organization has led to the abuse of authority. If true, it is a blessing in disguise, for nothing could ever demonstrate the evils of over-centralized power so plainly and so quickly as the abuse of authority. It is the nature of men, when they acquire great power, to abuse it. Trying to remedy the evils of bureaucracy is useless, like perfuming a skunk. The only remedy for a nuisance is disposal. The more indignation the better at puppet rule anywhere.

It is clearly time for government to start decentralizing again. Nations are like men: Relieved of the necessity of thinking and working, they unmistakably drift back toward the primitive. Even the ability of people to govern themselves can be destroyed, simply by doing it for them. Nothing better could happen to America than to watch the stagnant bureaucratic power in Washington quietly drawn off and permitted to flow back to the state, county and township whence it came.

Why has the age in which we live developed unevenly? Why have the achievements of engineering been superb, the failures of government so abject? These are fair questions which can be answered nationally.

Rule of Procedure

There is wisdom greater than any man possesses. There are fixed laws that limit human discretion and determine sound judgment. Men can succeed only as they discover these laws and harmonize their own deeds with them. Men of science have succeeded because with test tube and micrometer, they have studied God's laws and followed along. Men of government have not.

Representative Hatton Sumners of Texas, head of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives, in an informal talk recently declared, "It can be proved as before a jury that it's God's will for government to emanate from those who are governed." I believe it, and suggest no evidence here except that a jurist of Mr. Sumner's stature says it can be proved.

An alarm-clock is a horrid thing sometimes, but it serves a useful purpose. Such are the stupid mandates from an assembly of miscellaneous misfits. Americans hate being bossed for no useful purpose, and now their sweet dreams of peace beneath the sheltering wings of an alphabetical brain-trust have been disturbed. They are waking up to do something about it. Congress has sensed a change in public temper, and has named a committee to investigate the use by bureaus of unauthorized authority, and their wasted man-power. Congress is to be commended. The people have representatives.

HOLT WEEKLY NEWS

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor

Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, June 11, 1943.

Number 6

Annual Creameries Picnic Sun.

Marshall County producers of dairy products will gather at the Middle River State Park on Sunday, June 13, for the 16th Annual Marshall County Creameries Picnic, plans for which have been completed, according to G. A. Sustad, Viking, secretary of the Creameries Picnic association.

Arrangements for the picnic were completed at a recent meeting held at Newfolden, when creamery officials decided to go ahead with the annual event as an aid to the War production effort. Normally the picnic attracts a crowd upwards of 5,000 people.

John Brandt, president of the Land O'Lakes Creameries, Inc., the outstanding cooperative organization executive in the United States, will be the principal speaker. Mr. Brandt has been called to Washington on numerous occasions during the past year to confer with officials regarding food production programs. He will discuss his reactions to these government meetings in his address to the Marshall county residents attending the picnic.

Chairmen of the various Marshall County War activity committees will also discuss briefly the activities they are furthering in the county and explain their organization set-ups. Among these are Judge N. M. Engen, Civilian Defense; F. C. Larson, War Price and Rationing Board; Olive M. Mattson, War Finance committee; Victor M. Edman, Selective Service, and Chas. N. Kranz, War Food Production,

The invocation will be given by Rev. Franklin Duerre, pastor of the Mission church at Viking. Several musical numbers will be presented during the afternoon.

Several refreshment stands and the state refectory will be operated during the day to provide refreshments for those in attendance. The Park Swimming Pool will be patrolled by the Holt Boy Scout Troop.

Special Services Sunday Eve.

Rev. Reubin Smith will hold services at the Free Mission church on Sunday evening at 8:30 p. m. Special music and song Everybody welcome.

Joe Nelson arrived here this week from Tacoma, Wash., to get his car and family and to move back there. They expect to leave in about two weeks.

PROCLAMATION

Whereas, there is dire need to further the gathering of Scrap Iron and other Waste Material to further the War Effort of the United States, and

Whereas, the Holt Merchants and Business men have volunteered to set aside Monday afternoon, June 14th to make a thorough canvas of the farms of our community for the gathering of scrap,

Therefore, I, Olaf T. Ness, Acting President of the Council of the Village of HOLT, do hereby Proclaim and Declare a Legal Half Holiday on Monday, June 14, commencing at 12:00 o'clock Noon, and request that all business activities in Holt be suspended at that time, and

Further Requests that all Able-bodied men in the Village of Holt join the Merchants and Business Men in this War Vital Campaign.

I have hereunto ordered placed the Seal of the Village of Holt this Ninth Day of June, 1943.

Olaf T. Ness, Acting President of the Council of the Village of Holt.

(Seal)
Attest: Geo. Fricker,
Village Clerk.

City Mail Service Speeded Up

The new method of speeding up mail deliveries, through addition of a branch post office number to the address on mail for delivery in large cities, is being placed in operation rapidly. Reports from many cities indicate that it has been received enthusiastically by the press, postmasters, business concerns and the public.

Within a few days after initiation of the plan, under instructions of Postmaster General Frank Walker, nearly all the postmasters in the large cities affected had assigned postal unit numbers to their branch offices, millions of residents had been advised of the number to be added to their addresses.

Rapid increase in volume of mail and the loss of some thirty thousand postal employees to the armed forces made it necessary to adopt the plan.

An example of the new type of address is:

John C. Smith
222 Mattapan Ave.
Boston 8
Massachusetts

The number after the name of the city indicating the branch postoffice.

Holt Scrap Iron Day June 14

The business places of Holt will close their doors on Monday afternoon, June 14th and all men will help canvass for more scrap iron in the gigantic drive now on all over. Go out and help get some farm canvassed for whatever scrap there can be found to be brought in here during the next week. This has been done all over in other villages in the county and we don't want to be lagging behind in this patriotic work here. Get the Scrap in the Scrap.

At the meeting of circle 5 on Tuesday at the W. Larson home Mrs. O. J. Backlund was elected vice-president to take the place of Mrs. Karvonen and Mrs. Sjurseth was elected to take the place of Mrs. Sanoden who was secretary-treasurer of the circle.

Mrs. Ole Christenson arrived home Tuesday from Everette, Wash. where she has visited relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Rude Christenson motored to Grand Forks to meet her.

Word has been received that Sgt. Sigfred Nygard has recently gotten a promotion and is now Staff Sergeant St. Sgt. and Mrs. Nygard (Fern Peterson) are at Camp Clark, Missouri. Mrs. Nygard has a Civil Service job at headquarters there.

A. W. Carlson and Rude Christenson spent Thursday and Friday of last week at Waskish fishing. They were accompanied by Arvid Carlson and Albin Anderson of Middle River. The Pike bit good and they got several Northerns weighing 14 pounds.

Mrs. O. T. Ness, Mrs. G. Sjurseth, Mrs. O. Backlund, Caroline Aspelin, Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson, Mrs. Hartley Peterson, Mrs. A. Hjelle and Mrs. G. Sanoden spent Tuesday evening with Mrs. Geo. Fricker helping her celebrate her birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Ness and David and Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Ness and Gladys spent the week end fishing at Clementson.

Several ladies gave Mrs. Wm. Davis a birthday party at her home Monday afternoon.

Theodor Gusa Is War Prisoner

The best news we have received in a long time, was given us on Monday afternoon when Mr. Gusa of Middle River brought us the following telegram.

Washington, D. C.
June 6, 1943

Geo. A. Gusa,
Middle River, Minn.

Report just receivrd that your Son Theodor G. Gusa, is a Prisoner of War through the International Red Cross and is held by the German government. A letter of information to follow.

From Provit General,
Ulio.
The Adjusting General

Theodor was reported missing in action in North Africa, February 14. We are all happy to get this report he is still alive.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been so bad that we have a notion not to even mention it. Rain all the time. The soaker we had Tuesday evening really put the kibosh on late seeding and many fields will not be put in now. What has helped is the fact that it has been so cool, cold and damp.

Praise the Lord!

Praise the Lord,
And get your scrap a-scappin';
Praise the Lord,
For anything can happen;
Praise the Lord,
And get your scrap a-scrappin'
And we'll all be free.

Praise the Lord, the iron and steel is needed;
Praise the Lord, and let the call be heeded;
Praise the Lord, the iron and steel is needed
From you and me.

So go through the basement

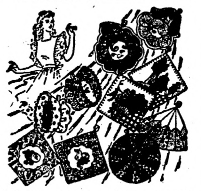
THINGS for You TO MAKE



NOW, aren't you glad you saved those tiny scraps of muslin, prints and plain colors? Just see what an exciting array of gay panholders can be fashioned from these bits of material. Whether you prefer the vegetables, fruit motifs, flower faces, sunbonnet babies or pieced designs, your scrap bag can surely supply the "makings"—and those odds and ends of floss will do the rest.

• • •

You may indulge your preference in stitch, too, for embroidery, applique and piecing are all employed here. Hot iron transfer Z9542, 15 cents, brings motifs for this entire group of panholders. Send your order to:

'Once Bitten, Twice Shy'—So Goes the Old Adage

Getting ready to perform his final and greatest feat, the local amateur magician stepped out to the edge of the platform and said:

"For the purpose of my next trick, which I assure you will be a good one, will some gentleman in the audience kindly lend me his hat? Will you, sir?" he added persuasively to a man in the front row.

But the man in question clutched his hat firmly with both hands and shook his head.

"I will not," he retorted indignantly, "not until you return the lawnmower you borrowed last summer."

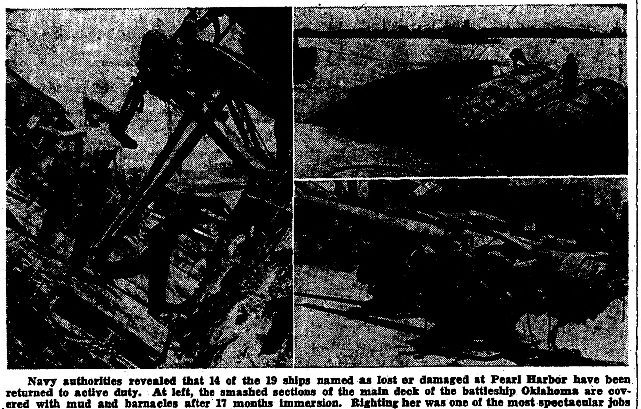
You Can't Keep a Good Ship Down



Navy authorities revealed that 14 of the 19 ships named as lost or damaged at Pearl Harbor have been returned to active duty. At left, the smashed sections of the main deck of the battleship Oklahoma are covered with mud and barnacles after 17 months immersion. Righting her was one of the most spectacular jobs of salvage done in the harbor. The battleship had capsized at an angle of 151½ degrees—leaving her practically upside down. Upper right: A side of the hull of the capsized mine ship Ogala is shown before she was salvaged. Lower right: Two barnacled guns of the Arizona are shown after removal from the ship.

Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

SPORT, being a large part of a large section of the human race, may need a number of changes and improvements. So does the human race. But one thing sport doesn't need is a sport co-ordinator or any set of sport co-ordinators working in or from Washington.

Grantland Rice

Sport can take its share of punishment—but there is still a limit.

Sport, left under its present guidance and direction will be far better off than it could ever hope to be under government direction.

Considering the amateur and professional side, sport still has such experienced administrators as Judge Landis, Ford Frick and William Harridge for baseball—Herbert Bayard Swope for racing—Major Griffiths of the Western conference and Asa Bushnell of the Eastern conference in college athletics—George Blossom and his USGA committee in golf—Elmer Layden for pro football—good men in tennis, bowling and basketball—including the AAU.

There is no perfect human being in this long list. But it should be remembered that there is no part of a perfect human being in the world we know today.

The Main Idea

Sport would be far better off, for the game itself and everyone concerned which includes many, many millions, if Washington would let it work out its own destiny with the war effort, naturally, the predominant point.

If those now in charge of various sports, with their long experience, can't handle the problems that wait ahead, then sport hasn't a chance.

Many of these have made mistakes. But those criticizing them might have made even bigger mistakes.

This is no world in which to seek perfection and it is my belief that most of those directing sport have turned in a pretty fair job. Not a masterpiece, just a pretty good job.

It seems to us that the government in Washington already has its full share of problems in trying to handle the workings of the army, the navy, the marines, the air force, the coast guard, the gasoline and rubber situation, the food tangle prices, the tax bill, inflation, the unions, the coal miners and ten or twenty other matters, without attempting to pile on another headache. There have been various rumors around that many of these problems have not yet been settled to the complete satisfaction of the nation at large.

There have even been rumors that many of these important matters have been somewhat muddled.

It is difficult to understand where any good could come from the addition of a new snarl.

The Other Side

There are many who believe that there is a strong organized influence against competitive sport, and professional sport in general, on the side of mass, muscle-making development, devoted largely to such matters as calisthenics and noncompetitive training.

It can't believe the country has moved into any such state of complete insanity.

Competitive sport has been one of the major factors in the development of this country, and it is more needed today than it ever was before.

We need this—not against the war effort—but as a vital part of the war effort.

It is my belief that most of the leaders in Washington know this to be true.

It might be that some ambassador of sport might help a trifle in making his plea at court.

I doubt it. For I believe most of those in charge at Washington understand the benefits that can come from a sporting program handled entirely as a war-effort benefit.

Philadelphia Story

The true "Philadelphia Story" is wrapped around the astonishing Phillies of 1943.

When Bill Cox took over this habitual inhabitant of the cellar a short while back and brought in Bucky Harris to handle the remains, the general opinion was that it would take about two years in which to remove the winding sheet.

But when the Phillies lately played to over 50,000 spectators in two games, there was something new to think about in a baseball way.

The season, which started darkly, is still young. And yet in this morbid beginning the Phillies have already drawn out greater crowds than 1940, 1941 or 1942 knew in midseason.

They have a hustling young club under a smart, hustling leader—the type of ball club that probably won't finish in the first division, but will no longer be the doormat for the rest of the league.

The main answer is that the Phillies are almost certain to break their attendance record for many years, wherever they finish.

Guerrilla Girl In Serbia

By Ruth Mitchell

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with The American Magazine.)

During my 3½ years in the Balkans, I came to know that part of the world as no American woman has before.

The Italian occupation of Albania drove me out of that country into Jugoslavia. There I met the Serbs. I liked their way of living and their principles. And because I found them most perfectly expressed in a Serbian organization of guerrilla fighters called the Chetniks, I eventually joined them and became, myself, a Chetnik.

But not at once. There were many months of adventurous travel, during which I was often hounded by Axis agents and accused of being a spy. I witnessed the growing menace of domination by greedy, swaggering, war-mad Nazis and Fascists. I became involved in the struggle of the Serbs to maintain their freedom.

Joins Chetniks.

So it was that I found myself one day in the presence of that old Chetnik leader, Voivoida Perchanatz. It was March 3, 1941, in Belgrade, where I had been living for nearly a year. I had come to join the Chetniks.

Some months before, my name had been entered in the big, well-worn book of candidates, sponsored by a noted member of the organization. I had been trained in the code of Chetnik fighting and taught how to use dagger and revolver. Now I was ready. I stood before the venerable leader, with my right hand on the crossed dagger and pistol, repeating after him the oath:

"Do Smrti za srbiju—tako mi bog pomogao." It means, "Till death for Serbia, by the help of God."

Name Crossed Out When Joining.

That was all. Then Perchanatz took the big, old book and solemnly drew a line through my name. "Your life," he said, "is no longer your own. It is given to Serbia."

This is the only organization in the world, I think, in which your name is not put down, but crossed out when you join. You must regard yourself as good as dead. How proud I was that day! There are many women Chetniks, but I was the only woman of foreign birth and nationality ever to be admitted.

I was a Chetnik! And through my mind went the great marching song of Serbia: "Ready, now ready, Chetnik brothers, mighty the coming battle, and on our glorious victory will rise the sun of Liberty!"

Since I was to do intelligence work, my joining was to be kept secret at that time. Many of the leading men of Serbia—politicians, judges, professors — are Chetniks, their membership a dead secret. I was given the customary poison, which I sewed in the collar of my coat, where it could be chewed if my hands were bound.

Serbs Were Stunned.

Soon after I became a Chetnik, events in the Balkans moved to a swift climax. Bulgaria joined the Nazis, and on the morning of March 25 the news was flashed: "Jugoslavia has signed the Axis pact." The Serbs were stunned at the incredible sell-out of their government. In Belgrade there was a death-like calm for two days. No Serb showed his face on the streets, but behind closed doors a momentous determination was gathering.

It broke on March 27. On that fateful day, for the first time a small nation of Europe declared war on Germany before it was itself attacked. Little Serbia had decided to battle the monster. And from that day onward, and because of that decision, everything went wrong for Germany.

It was the Serbs, whom Germany expected to brush off like a troublesome mosquito, who spoiled her aim, destroyed her timing. I believe their courageous action saved the British empire and—yes—America, from slavery to Europe, as once before, in 1389, the Serbs' heroic stand saved Europe from slavery to Asia.

The Nazis had intended to attack Russia in March—my information told me March 16. Hitler had expected to have Jugoslavia in hand and thoroughly "co-ordinated" by then. Instead, he had to fight.

He had to detach an army intended for Russia and send it down into the Balkans to secure his rear—an army of not less than half a million troops. It took him three months to do what he had expected would be done by routine penetration and terrorization, in no time at all.

There can be no question that if Germany had had those three spring months in which to concentrate her full force on Russia, she would have taken Moscow and that life stream of the Soviet, the Volga, and Russia would have been out of the war—a serious situation for the Allies.

The Baku oil fields, Turkey, the Near East, Egypt and the Suez would have fallen next. Then the Far East and India.

In what sort of position would America and England find themselves today, but for the Serbs?

By declaring war, Serbia regained her soul and saved the free world, at a cost of virtual extinction to herself.

Shipbuilding Stepped Up Some Since Early 1800s

Mr. Henry Kaiser's achievements in ship production make an interesting contrast with the building of British warships a century ago.

A 74-gun ship named Boscawen was laid down at Woolwich Dockyard in 1811 but not launched until 1844. The 50-gun Worcester was started at Deptford in 1816, reached the christening period in 1831, but remained on the ways until 1843.

Two ships named Royal Sovereign were also in the slow-motion class. The first began at Portsmouth in 1833, and had her name altered to Royal Frederick six years later. Another 20 years went by, with very little work done, before she was renamed again, this time Frederick William. Finally, as a screw ship, she took the water in 1860.

The other Royal Sovereign was started in the same dockyard in 1844. Three years later the Admiralty decided to cancel the work altogether, but they soon changed their minds, and 1857 saw the ship afloat at last.

A 20-gun ship named Valorous was in hand at Pembroke Dockyard for nearly 40 years before she was re-designed as a paddle frigate and launched in 1851.

Uncle Phil Says:

WE'D rather see conceited people who at least occasionally do something to justify their conceit, than the timid inferiority complex kind forever shrinking in corners and calling it "modesty."

"Do right and people will commend you in time"—but not likely in your time.

We do not seek the disapproval of our friends. We have enough of that in our own consciousness.

A brave man trembles before the bugle blows; a coward afterward.

Many of us do "our best," but we are careful not to be fatigued by doing it.

To say nothing of your enemies implies what you think of them.

Martyrs ought to be good-looking, but they hardly ever have been.

A General Quiz

The Questions

1. The right of the state to take property for public use is called what?
2. What is another name for the gladiolus?
3. Whose motto was: "Better to live a day as a lion than 100 years as a sheep?
4. What was the first of President Wilson's 14 points?
5. For what country did John Paul Jones serve as a rear admiral after the Revolutionary war?
6. Where is bilge water found?
7. What name is given to a company whose main business is the owning of stocks or securities of other companies?
8. Does England receive any taxes or other kind of tribute from her dominions?

The Answers

1. Eminent domain.
2. Sword lily.
3. Mussolini.
4. Open covenants openly arrived at.
5. Russia.
6. At the bottom of boats.
7. Holding company.
8. England does not receive any taxes or any kind of tribute from the 150-odd dominions, colonies, protectorates, dependencies and mandated territories that constitute the British Commonwealth of Nations.

MANY a bride today is doing her furniture shopping in second hand stores where she finds a choice selection of the over-elaborate discards. These are not antiques and it takes a discerning eye to see any possibilities of beauty in them. The trick is in figuring out good proportions and modern comfort.

Chintz covers will hide padding over woodwork and carving. Legs may be cut off to give a low seat and if the back legs are cut a little shorter than the front, the backs of chairs and settees are given a comfortable tilt. Here, a loosely stuffed seat cushion fills in the edges of the rounded spring seat. Narrow cotton fringe trims the flowered cover and the resulting piece is full of informal charm.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
Improper brake adjustment is a rubber-waster. Have your brakes checked regularly. If one wheel "takes hold" before the others, its rubber carries the full brunt of stopping the car, with resultant excessive rubber wear.
In their search for rubber substitutes, scientists are now probing myrcene, a turpentine derivative discovered about fifty years ago. The list of rubber "sources" is growing almost daily.
It is expected that the 1943 harvest of crude rubber in the United States will total 600 tons, all guayule. Normally this country consumed about 600,000 tons of rubber a year.

What About This Stuff, Dad?

Don't get me wrong, Dad. Getting home for a spell and finding things pretty much the way I left them is the greatest sight in the world. I've been in some strange places in the last year, but as far as I'm concerned there isn't a spot in the whole South Pacific that can hold a candle to the patch of God's green earth I'm standing on right now.

There's just one thing I didn't expect to see, Dad. It's this old scrap pile. Back in New Guinea when a new ack-ack gun or field piece rolled into position I used to think, Maybe Ma's old cast iron laundry stove is in that baby. Or my old music stand—the one you tossed out when you saw I wasn't cut out to be the world's greatest violinist!

Up town they tell me the Government has sent out another S.O.S. for more scrap. They say it's going to take every stray pound of scrap metal to fill the quota, and that's going to mean looking for it in every barn, tool shed, cellar, attic and kitchen cupboard in the country. Why, there's enough in this one pile alone to make mincemeat out of a dozen Zeros and couple of subs to boot!

I know you're swamped, Dad, with no help and working every acre of the farm this year, but if you'd been where I've been and knew how badly this scrap is needed, you'd find some way to get it to town.

Do it pronto, Dad, before harvesting comes along, or bad weather sets in. Better yet, let's load this stuff today, Dad, and I'll drive it to town for you. We can sell it to the junk man, or donate it to the U.S.O., Red Cross, or one of the other organizations enlisted in the second scrap round-up.

My furlough's nearly up, Dad. Next week I'll be shipping out again . . . somewhere. Wherever it is I'll feel a lot better if I know part of my own backyard is following me across, backing me up with ammunition from this old scrap.

It's Everybody's Tax

Being a farmer myself and a farmer's son with more than 40 years of close acquaintance with farm problems, my writing last week on the pay-as-you-go plan for collecting income tax was almost entirely a farmer's view of it. But it is not a one-industry tax. Just about everybody who earns a living this year will pay an income tax. Moreover there is a lot to say in favor of skipping 1942 and figuring this year's payments on this year's earnings, besides convenience to us farmers.

Consider our floating workmen, for example. There are literally thousands of them in the country. Many are only farmers who are handy with tools; our own neighbors, moving as the war work moves from one war-boom settlement to another. Most of these men have higher living costs than they ever paid before. Many are paying off debts on property and maintaining families back home. Income tax is a real problem with them.

The Money Gets Away.

Wandering workers as a class are not saving any actual money. Those with a sense of responsibility are paying debts or investing perhaps, but others are going in extensively for cross-roads chicken dinners, gaining introduction to juke-box society. Wayside night clubs have become a problem in many defense communities. I am not shifting into a moral lecture. I am merely citing evidence that a large and well-paid class of potential income tax payers made no plans last year to have cash they will need for taxes next March 15.

It has been said that swarms of wandering workers draw pay by a different name at each new job, that no record anywhere will prove they earn $500 a year and that they will probably never pay any income tax. Obviously they would pay one under a pay-day deduction plan. But the really big class are the spenders, about to beat their income taxes accidentally. Unless they pay tax on a good year's income while they are getting it, it will be folly to seek payment after the war when most of them may be jobless.

Revenue Needed Now

Under the existing tax system, to whatever extent defense workers earned incomes last year that cannot be checked now, to that extent they will escape paying any income tax in 1943. A plan of pay-as-you-go, figured against their current earnings, would bring revenue from them immediately. And, in addition, to this gain for the Treasury, there is another one too big to ignore. Incomes generally are larger now than they were a year ago and taxes computed on 1943 earnings will be larger than those based on 1942.

Students agree that 1943 will be the hard year of the war. Our country's greatest need is now. It seems positively unpatriotic to stay in debt to Uncle Sam for this year's taxes until 1944, especially those new wage earners who are paying nothing for 1942. Reckless spending certainly is unpatriotic for it creates inflation. Revenue collected from spenders now will mean less money spent and thus safeguard fair prices.

Who Will Oppose It

It has been estimated that 90 per cent of America's income tax payers are not ready to meet one-fourth of their 1942 tax next March 15. The year after the war, when jobs are scarce and salaries low, many of them will be in a worse dilemma still. Pay-as-you-go will help them, so who will oppose it? The answer is too obvious. It will be opposed by pawn brokers and salary loan banks, among others.

People who argue that the Treasury ought somehow to collect income taxes for 1942 and 1943 both, while shifting to a pay-as-you-go plan, have lifted the usual cry against rich people. They forget that income taxes do not apply on property; only on incomes. And, as for men who draw huge salaries, the more they earn the bigger the share taken by income tax. Any man who has a taxable income above $50,000 a year could not possibly pay tax on two years' income at once because one year's tax at present rates takes more than half of it.

A Little Figuring

Now there remains one sensible question that is often asked and may need answering:

"If I must figure my 1943 taxes on my 1943 income, how am I to know, say in January, what my year's earnings will be?"

The answer is easy! One very reasonable plan would be to estimate your 1943 income by your present rate of pay; or by last year's earnings if you prefer. You would pay your taxes on the estimated income and adjust the errors after the year is over. This could be done whether you pay taxes quarterly, monthly, or weekly.

When a man's earnings exceeded his estimate, he would owe the government tax on the difference at the year's end. If he earned less than he estimated, he would have a tax rebate coming to him, deductible from his tax the following year. It will require some figuring but it's a very small effort, to gain all the other advantages in a year of crisis for the best government the world has ever known.

Bible Camp Opens Next Week

The annual Lake of the Woods Bible Camp of the Thief River Falls and Crookston Circuits of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America will be held next week. The Camp opens with inspiration services on Monday evening at 8:15. The faculty for this year consists of the Rev. Selmer A. Berge of Fargo, N. D. who will teach Old Testement characters. The Rev. A. S. Tanner of Madison, S. D., will teach the New Testement. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson, who represents the local faculty, will present a series of lectures on The Stewardship Life. The evening inspirationals will be shared by Rev. Berge of Fargo and Rev. Tanner of Madison.

While recreation is enjoyed by all in Camp, it is primarily and essentially a Bible Camp with emphasis on the Bible. In these days when the leaders of the ecclesiastical and civic life of the nation are apprehesive as they view the declining standards of morals among the youth of our nation, the Bible Camp should play a strong part in fortifying the character and morals of our youth against these temptations and serious conditions. The only norm and standards of character and morals must not rest upon the relative value of men's opinions and philosophies but upon the absolutes of God as revealed in the Bible. The results of men depending upon their own standards of human life and conduct is clearly exemplified in itself in the tragic conditions in which Europe finds itself in. The work of the Bible Camp will do much to augment the work of the church in formulating the lives of our young people so that they can make this land of ours a better Amerca in the future.

A life guard will be on duty during swimming hours and all the safety rules of swimming are strictly enforced. A nurse is on duty at all times and in case of illness of more serious nature, a physician in Baudette is at hand. There are telephone and telegraph connections direct to Camp and all mail to be addressed in care of Lake of the Woods Bible Camp, Baudette. Automobiles will be on hand at the Bus and Railroad Depots to meet all those coming by bus or train, if the local pastor is notified about the time of arrival. The cost for the entire week is only $6.00. Early indications report there will be a largr delegation again from the Nazareth Luther League. The Luther League is sponsoring a noon dinner on Sunday following services for the benefit of financial assistance to those who are going to Camp. We hope that all who have been asked to contribute a food item will do so and that there will be a generous response to this very worthy enterprise of our young people.

PROCLAMATION

Whereas, these is dire need to further the gathering of Scrap Iron and other Waste Material to further the War Effort of the United States, and

Whereas, the Holt Merchants and Business men have volunteered to set aside Monday afternoon, June 21ts to make a thorough canvas of the farms of our community for the gathering of scrap,

Therefore, I, Olaf T. Ness, Acting President of the Council of the Village of HOLT, do hereby Proclaim and Declare a Legal Half Holiday on Monday, June 21, commencing at 12:00 o'clock Noon, and request that all business activities in Holt be suspended at that time, and

Further Requests that all Able-bodied men in the Village of Holt join the Merchants and Business Men in this War Vital Campaign,

I have hereunto ordered placed the Seal of the Village of Holt this Ninth Day of June, 1943.

Olaf T. Ness, Acting President of the Council of the Village of Holt.

(Seal)
Attest: Geo. Fricker,
Village Clerk.

Appointed Farm Help Director

W. A. Holbrook of Warren, has been appointed Emergency Farm Help director for Marshall County. As such he will direct the recruitment and placement of local farm help. He will work under the supervision of the County Extension Agent who is directly responsible for the farm help program.

His duties will be to assist and coordinate the work of 12 placement offices which have been set up in the county and he will work with the county and local Farm help Committees in developing an organization and make plans under which everything possible will be done to furnish farmers with labor when it is needed.

D. C. Dvoracek of the University of Minnesota has been assigned to this county to assist in developing this program. Mr. Dvoracek and C. M. Kelehan, State Supervisor, will meet with Mr. Holbrook and the county agent on Thursday to set up the program.

It will be necessary to make a county wide survey on labor needs. In order to get this completed as quickly as possible Mr. Holbrook will be contacting the local Farm Help Committees, Victory Aides and neighborhood leaders and will solicit their cooperation in completing this very important job.

Mr. Holbrook is well known in this county, having been employed in State Bank of Warren since 1918. He comes well qualified to handle this appointment.

Geraldine Larson of Badger, and Dorothy Hanson left Monday for Portland, Oregon, where they will be employed. They will also visit the Lorentson family who have been there the past year. Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hanson and Mrs. T. J. Lillevold drove to Grand Forks to see them off on the Empire Builder.

Harry Engen and son Harley left Saturday for Oakland, Calif. where the former will return to his work after a visit with his family.

The Weather

Rain all last week end we had a shower that sent down about an inch of water. The entire county is soaked to the limit and late seeding now seems to be a lost cause.

Holt Scrap Iron Day June 21

The business places of Holt will close their doors on Monday afternoon, June 21st and all men will help canvass for more scrap iron in the gigantic drive now on all over. Go out and help get some farm canvassed for whatever scrap there can be found to be brought in here during the next week. This has been done all over in other villages in the county and we don't want to be lagging behind in this patriotic work here. Get the Scrap in the Scrap.

Monday, June 21 was chosen as the day to take the place of Monday of last week when the drive had to be postponed on account of rain and bad roads.

Feed Loans Must Be Paid

The statute of limitations does not apply in cases where people have borrowed money from any Government Agency.

That, in brief, was the finding of Judge M. M. Joyce in Federal Court here yesterday in the case of United States vs. Albert J. Christenson, a farmer living near Benson.

Christenson, according to the records, borrowed about $500 from the Federal Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office back in 1934. He refused to pay it back on the ground that it had been outlawed under the statute of limitations. Christenson was reported in court to be financially responsible at the time.

The court's decision was given during the course of a hearing on motion for order allowing and substituting proposed answer in lieu in place of answer heretofore served. Wm. Murphy appeared in behalf of the Government and Ozro Yackey appeared in behalf of the plaintiff.

This is the first case of its kind to come up for trial in the State of Minnesota, and the decision will effect thousands of similar borrowers throughout the State. —Reprint from the Fergus Falls Daily Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. Marlan Augustine, who have spent some time at Minneapolis where the former has taken a special radio course, spent last week here with relatives. Marlan left Monday for an Army camp in California. Mrs. Augustine will remain here for a short time with relatives.

Attended Farmers Union Camp

Several county people returned last Friday from Farmers Union camp for Juniors and Leaders conducted by the Minnesota Farmers Union at Mari-Mac Court near Detroit Lakes. The registration of 107 made this the largest Camp ever conducted by the Farmers Union in Minnesota. It is the first Camp held under the newly Chartered State Union, previous Camps being conducted by the National Union. Fifty-one Locals in twenty-one counties were represented.

Those from Marshall County attending were: Mrs. C. Meendink and Ervin Reimnitx from Stephen; Mrs. V. F. Kruta, Miss Mildred Kruta and Miss Ruth Morrissey of Gatzke.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Sanoden and son Russel left Friday for Portland, Oregon, where they will be employed. They expect to return here after the war is over.

Miss Kathleen Gordon was chosen Sheep Day Queen at the Sheep Day festival held at Green bush on June 12. Miss Gordon was the primary grades teacher here this past school year.

Shopkeeper Took Next Best Thing Offered Him

Wishing to dispose of his dog, a man who was moving into the city went to the local pet shopkeeper.

"Do you think you can sell this dog for $200?" he asked of the man.

"But, sir, that type of dog is not worth that much," was the reply of the astonished agent.

But the other insisted, and left. Some weeks later he returned and, asking about his dog, was told that it had been sold.

"Do you really mean to tell me that you got the $200 that I asked?" he inquired.

"Well, not exactly," said the shopkeeper. "You see, I exchanged it for two $100 cats."

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

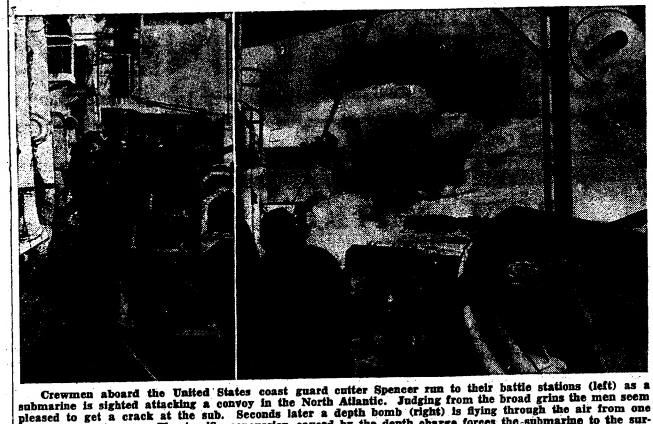
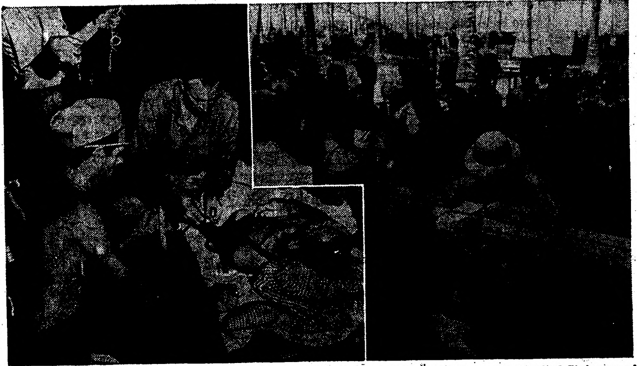
Coast Guard Cutter Blasts an Undersea Killer



Crewmen aboard the United States coast guard cutter Spencer run to their battle stations (left) as a submarine is sighted attacking a convoy in the North Atlantic. Judging from the broad grins the men seem pleased to get a crack at the sub. Seconds later a depth bomb (right) is flying through the air from one of the Spencer's guns. The terrific concussion caused by the depth charge forces the submarine to the surface where the Spencer's guns are poised to deliver a final barrage which will send the undersea raider to its end.

On the Hard-Won Guadalcanal Battlefront



At the site of some of the bitterest fighting of the war, a senior medical officer of the United States naval construction battalion is shown, at left, giving a blood transfusion to a Seabee in a foxhole on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons. At right, several husky natives line up to receive their pay as stevedores. The Seabees—men of the naval construction battalion—are making a base of this island which was wrested from the Japanese after a long battle in which both sides suffered heavy losses in planes, ships, and men.

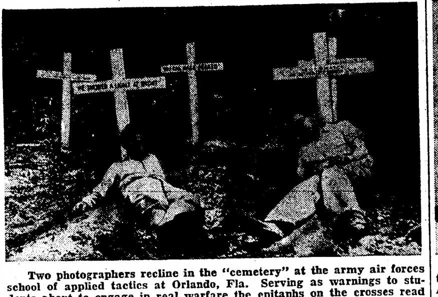
Macabre Epitaphs Teach Fliers Care



Two photographers recline in the "cemetery" at the army air forces school of applied tactics at Orlando, Fla. Serving as warnings to students about to engage in real warfare the epitaphs on the crosses read as follows: "He showed light at night." "His gas mask leaked." "He lit a match on board a convoy ship." This school gives the final polish to army fliers by putting them under actual combat conditions.

All Dolled Up

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

ON COLUMBIA'S "Appointment in Berlin" set: George Sanders, pretending to be a traitor for his country's sake, is under arrest: the bit player charged with handcuffing him bursts through a door and tries to wrap the steel bracelets around Sanders' wrists. Tries again and again and can't get them to clasp. "You're not putting mittens on a baby!" Director Al Green cries at last. "You act as if you were afraid of hurting Mr. Sanders." The bit player looks sheepish, and Sanders pulls his sleeves back from his bruised and bleeding wrists. "Really, you're being a bit hard on the fellow," says he. "He has tried it the other way, you know."

Claire Trevor scored in radio on the "Big Town" series with Edward G. Robinson several years ago, thereby giving her screen career a boost. Now she's a radio regular again, on the "Mayor of the Town" series Wednesday nights with Lionel Barrymore.

Two ex-choir singers kept the set of Paramount's "True to Life" filled with music. They were Mary Martin and Dick Powell, both of whom began their musical careers singing hymns in the home-town church. They sang in their dressing rooms and on the set; just couldn't seem to stop. When they weren't singing the music written for the picture they were rehearsing songs for their radio shows. The tunes for the picture were written by Johnny Mercer and Hogy Carmichael; no wonder the stars couldn't stop singing!

Looks as if Zasu Pitts is making a swell comeback in "Let's Face It," after concluding her run in her play, "Her First Murder." Zasu deserves a good picture, after working in the lamentable one called "Tish."

George Reeves spent four years struggling through small roles in big pictures, hoping for the break that would boost him to the top. He got it, opposite Claudette Colbert in "So Proudly We Hail"—and was inducted into the army when the picture was finished.

Way, way back Universal decided to follow its hilarious "My Man Godfrey" with "My Girl Godfrey," with Carole Lombard in the title role. Now it's scheduled again, with Deanna Durbin starring, along with Franchot Tone and Pat O'Brien.

You'll have to see "Stars in the Service" if you yearn to see what your favorite movie heroes are up to in the armed forces. It will be the first release of the 23rd year of Columbia's "Screen Snapshots," and will present virtually every male star and featured player who is in uniform. It was made by Ralph Staub—it's the 565th short he's produced, directed and photographed.

Ray Noble, of the Edgar Bergen-Charlie McCarthy air show, is excited over the announcement that Warner Bros. will produce a picture named for Ray's tune, "The Very Thought of You"; he wrote it in 1934, and it's still popular. It will be spotted in the same manner as "As Time Goes By" was spotlighted so successfully in "Casablanca."

The Andrews Sisters will return to radio on June 30, when they will be guest stars on Morton Gould's Carnival over CBS. Having finished the Hollywood chore for Universal—which they didn't want to do—they're glad to be coming back, even though they've made so much money already this year that they'll have to give their radio salaries right back to Uncle Sam!

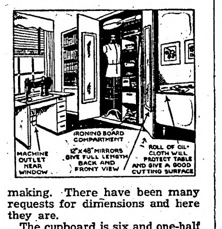
MANY women who have learned to sew for the Red Cross are also sewing for themselves. They are thinking of sewing as a craft and taking pride in their tools. Many who do not have space for a sewing room are planning efficient closets to house equipment. Here is a model sewing cupboard from my new book Better Dressmaking. There have been many requests for dimensions and here they are.



IRONING BOARD COMPARTMENT
MACHINE OUTLET NEAR WINDOW
12"X48" MIRRORS GIVE FULL LENGTH BACK AND FRONT VIEW
ROLL OF OIL-CLOTH WILL PROTECT TABLE AND GIVE A GOOD CUTTING SURFACE

The cupboard is six and one-half feet high; four feet wide and twenty inches deep. The dress form compartment is five feet six inches high and twenty-four inches wide. The ironing board compartment is four feet ten inches high and eight inches wide. This leaves ample space for shelves for the pressing cushions shown at the top; the sleeve board; iron; water pan and sponge; stout slide-in boxes for findings; notions and patterns; and a lower shelf for fabrics. The construction throughout is of half-inch plywood.

TASTY, NO-SUGAR ALL-BRAN MUFFINS ARE EASILY MADE!
Serve your family these delicious muffins soon! Their tempting texture and flavor come from crisp, delicious KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Here's the recipe in a wartime version, using no sugar. Try ALL-BRAN Muffins for breakfast tomorrow!
Kellogg's All-Bran Muffins
2 tablespoons shortening
½ cup corn syrup
1 egg
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
⅜ cup milk
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder
Cream shortening and corn syrup thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk, let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 8 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2¼ inches in diameter.

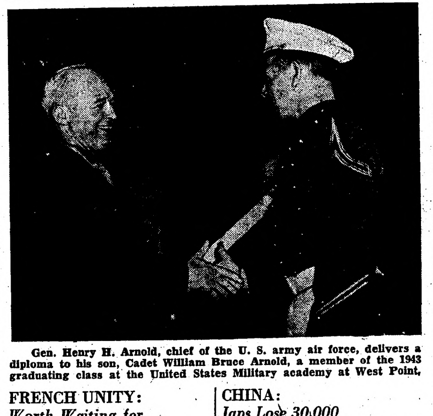
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

French Unity Speeds Victory Plans; Mediterranean Under Heavy Attack by Allied Naval and Air Concentrations; Chinese Crush Jap Yangtze Offensive

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the U. S. army air force, delivers a diploma to his son, Cadet William Bruce Arnold, a member of the 1943 graduating class at the United States Military academy at West Point.

FRENCH UNITY:
Worth Waiting for

Although General Giraud and General DeGaulle at first could not agree any better at close range in Algiers than they had at long range between Africa and London, Allied leaders were confident that factional gulfs would be hurdled and long-hoped-for French unity would be consummated.

This optimistic view was justified when a "French committee of national liberation," headed jointly by Generals De Gaulle and Giraud, was formally established to "pursue the war at the side of the Allies until total victory over the enemy powers."

Comprising a seven-man group which eventually will be expanded to nine, the new liberation committee will direct the French war effort until France is freed and able to elect its own government. In addition to the co-presidents, Giraud and DeGaulle, the committee includes Gen. Alphonse George and Jean Monnet, named by Giraud; Rene Massigli and Andre Philip, appointed by DeGaulle; and Gen. Georges Catroux, designated by both presidents.

That the new committee meant business was immediately apparent by personnel replacements that eliminated French-African officials with former Vichy ties.

COAL:
WLB Sustained

When President Roosevelt, acting as commander-in-chief, tersely ordered the 500,000 striking mine workers back to work after a 30-day truce had been ended by another walkout, he had left the next move squarely up to mine union chief John L. Lewis.

In his brief statement the President did not consider the possibility that his order might be ignored. But measures of a stern and effective nature were open to him and the force of public opinion was marshaled overwhelmingly behind him—in the event of continued mine work stoppage.

The President's order had completely supported the War Labor board which Mr. Lewis and his United Mine Workers had defied, setting forth plainly that "Just as soon as the miners return to work, the disposition of the dispute . . . will forthwith proceed under the jurisdiction of the War Labor board."

ARGENTINA:
Neutrality at Stake?

While close censorship had veiled early reports of the "military movement" in Argentina, observers were confident that it concerned the course of the nation's future international policy—whether the government would pursue its trend of benevolent neutrality toward the Axis, or would follow the rest of South America in breaking with the Axis.

The military reaction gained added significance, coming as it did on the eve of the Conservative party's national convention preceding the Presidential elections. For this convention had been scheduled to proclaim Senate President Robustiano Patron Costas as its candidate. Costas had been endorsed by "neutrality-minded" President Ramon Castillo.

CHINA:
Japs Lose 30,000

As Chinese forces had continued to press back the Jap invaders in the middle Yangtze valley, a report from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's headquarters disclosed that the drive in Central China toward Chungking had cost the enemy more than 30,000 casualties in a two-week period.

The Tokyo radio admitted the reverses in a report announcing that the Jap invasion forces had retired to previously prepared positions. Principal theater of Chinese gains was the Yangtze river in southern Hupeh province and northern Hunan. Here General Chiang's forces wiped out encircled enemy units and seized huge stocks of supplies and equipment, a communique said. As a first step in the recapture of strategic Ichang, the Chinese had regained possession of all points around Changyang, strongly held "doorway" to Ichang.

MEDITERRANEAN:
Mussolini at Bay

Mussolini's defenses at sea had been no more impressive than in the air when Allied forces struck at the island approaches to the "soft underbelly" of Italy.

Target of the first assaults was the island of Pantelleria, closest of Italy's Mediterranean outposts to Africa. Here Allied warships made heavy bombardments that were unopposed. The Italian fleet that had been reported on the alert had made no effort to come out and fight for Pantelleria which already had been shaken by Allied bombers. In none of the attacks did the Allied fleet units suffer casualties. The only resistance offered was from the ineffective Italian shore batteries.

Only 45 miles from the tip of Tunisia's Cap Bon peninsula, Pantelleria was an easily reached target for Allied air forces. As wave after wave of bombers swept over the island blowing up port facilities, other Allied planes kept up a damaging series of forays against Sicily and Sardinia.

The extent to which the Mediterranean was becoming an Allied lake was indicated by a report announcing that the Allied destroyers had sunk two merchant vessels and an escorting torpedo boat and driven a burning Italian destroyer ashore.

TRADE PACTS:
Two Years More

Final approval by the senate of President Roosevelt's reciprocal trade agreements program came after administration supporters, aided by some Republicans, defeated five amendments that would have restricted the President's authority. The house had previously voted favorably.

The President had originally asked for a three-year extension. But because this would throw the policy into the next presidential administration for more than a year, both house and senate measures cut it to two years. The senate's action, however, meant that members of the United Nations could be assured that this government's present trade policy would be continued until June 12, 1945, or nearly five months after the next presidential inauguration.

Hibernating Animals

When animals are in a state of hibernation they are only a step or two from death. Their heart beat is very slow, their body temperature falls way below normal, and their breathing is not perceptible by ordinary means. If you dig up a ground squirrel in hibernation, you can shake it, pinch it, drop it on the table, even stick it with pins, and it will remain as limp as though dead. Only fairly long exposure to warmth will revive the rodent.

In the Navy a floor is a "deck," doors are "bulkheads," downstairs is "below," and a cigarette is a "Camel." At least, Camel is the favorite cigarette among Navy men, as it is among men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And a carton of Camels is a favorite gift. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. LOOKING AHEAD

BY GEORGE S. BENSON
President—Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

Endowed Inertia

Approximately 2,000,000 men have left the farms of the United States to enter war and war industries since the Pearl Harbor raid. The only thing that can replace the consequent shortage of manpower is power equipment. This statement was made in middle January by Rep. Leslie C. Arends of Illinois on the floor of the House of Representatives in Washington. The shortage of farm machinery is well known to every farmer.

On a farm regularly using horses, one man might do nearly two men's work with a tractor, but the few new tractors being built will never replace the worn-out tractors this year, not to mention farm teams. Farm hands are being imported to the United States from Latin America. Every farm worker is a real help but not all imported laborers are suitable for all kinds of farm work.

Busy Keeping Idle

Nothing seems more apparent to a serious observer than that literally thousands of government employees in admittedly essential industries are having a hard time trying to justify the existence of their highfalutin jobs. Read this recent utterance by Rep. Forest A. Harness of Indiana on the floor of the House.

"There is hardly a Federal agency, emergency or regular, where the pruning knife cannot be used to great advantage . . . We have one civilian employee for every three men in fighting uniform. . . . I am sure we can weed out upward of a million Federal Employees who can go into the essential private fields now crying for help."

An enterprising planner in the National Capital recently got up some cardboard signs to be used in overcrowded rooming houses for the protection of night workers who sleep in daytime. The sign read:

"Quiet Please—A war worker is resting here."

But the signs found an unexpected use. Just for horse-play, some joker took the signs to certain big alphabetical agencies and posed them around on desks of bureaucrats who seemed to have nothing to do. Banter on this subject goes on in Washington endlessly. Just the same, it is a vitally serious matter.

There is a government bureau in Washington whose job it is to select occasionally some item of food that appears to be an especially good bargain, and recommend its immediate use by housewives. The selection of any product implies that its supply exceeds the demand, that the price is right and that eating it up is a patriotic act.

There is another bureau in Washington whose duty it is to keep a look-out for food scarcity. It pays attention to specific items in which a shortage seems to be developing and urges that farmers increase their production of such things to improve their profit per acre, also as an act of patriotism.

Dry Edible Beans

The whole thing looks pretty good on paper but in practice (to coin a phrase) it shows human fallibility. For instance, on January 16 newspapers announced a new "Victory Food Special" to American housewives, namely, dry edible beans. The hint was broad—too many beans on hand. Specialists wrote blurbs of praise about the food value of beans. Experts in cooking published formulas for making beans taste good. Wives and mothers, bent on service to home and country, sallied forth to buy beans.

The next day, January 17, an official press release by the U. S. Department of Agriculture began urging farmers far and near to increase their acreage of dry edible beans; 500,000 acres more this year than last, a gain of about 17.5 per cent from 2.8 million to 3.3 million acres. A bonus per acre to farmers planting above a certain minimum was announced. At the same time a 25c increase in the "support price" was proclaimed for new No. 1 beans at country points.

Not Hard to Keep

This is a sample of planned economy. One planner sees a shortage coming, another one sees a surplus. If beans were things that would not keep, like bananas or cantaloupes, you could admit that the planners, after all, might be seeing eye-to-eye. But beans will keep indefinitely in a clean dry place. If there is to be a shortage; if the Army is going to need beans in a few weeks to win the war, there is no point to choking the immediately available supply down the necks of the civilian population.

This is not a preachment against beans. They are good food. I am offering no protest against setting up inducements and making arbitrary price bids to stimulate production of any military necessity. My protest is only against buncombe. A Washington correspondent I know, remarked bitterly, "It looks like the planners will have to have a co-ordinator to keep them from playing both ends against the middle."

Will Congressman Harness' suggestion come to anything? Can we thin out the idle minds and bodies in Washington and send back a million people to the food producing farms?

Life Of Glenn Carlson

Several people from Holt motored to Argyle on Saturday to attend the funeral of Glenn Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Carlson. Services were conducted from the Presbyterian church with Rev. Merrill R. Nelson officiating. A very large floral offering was made by friends and relatives and many memorials were also given. Burial was made in the Woodlawn cemetery near Argyle.

Glenn Carlson was born at Holt October 11, 1920. Here he attended grade school and was one of the charter members of the Holt Boy Scout Troop No. 112. He graduated from the Argyle High School in 1938 and attended the University of North Dakota for four years, graduating from there in 1942. He was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and its president there and was also an active member of the Madrigal Club. The past year he had attended the University of Minnesota where he studied to be a doctor.

He was taken suddenly ill at Minneapolis as he was preparing to come home for the summer and his parents and sister were called there and were with him when he passed away at 1:30 a. m., Tuesday, June 15.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Calrson, one brother, Reuben and one sister, Donna Mae.

The funeral arrangements were handled by the Carlson Funeral Service with Arvid Carlson of Middle River in charge.

Pallbearears were: Roger Roy, St. Hilaire, Richard Daniels of Argyly, Ole Johnson, of Moorhead, Alton Carlson, of Holt, and E. J. Filiatrault and Bertil Sollom of Grand Forks.

Those from here who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Holst, Mrs. Oscar Fosholm, Mrs. Lawrence Lubitz, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Voth and daughter Doris, Mrs. Robert Nyval and son Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pricker, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hanson, Mrs. Louis Wegge, Chas Skoglund and son Roger, J. P. Augustine, Mrs. Ole Lunke Mrs. Arthur Moe and Mrs. Edwin Anderson.

Relatives from here were: Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Carlson and daughter Karen, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Sollom and family and Misses Olava and Gundild Sollom.

Plant Alfalfa In July

It is not too late for Marshall county farmers to increase their acreage of Alfalfa. According to County Agent R. A. Reierson, alfalfa sown on fairly level land in July without a companion crop will produce a satisfactory stand. Later plantings are not recommended for Minnesota.

Seed for the July planting should be obtained now, Mr. Reierson advices. If the seed germinates 85 per cent, including the hard seeds, seven to eight pounds of seed per acre are sufficient either alone or in mixtures with grasses, provided the seedbed is well prepared and the seed is sown properly.

The type of mixture to use will depend on how long the field is to remain in hay or pasture. A mixture of six to eight pounds of alfalfa and four pound of timothy is satisfactory if the stand is expected to last two to three years, says A. C. Arny, University Farm agronomist. If the field is to stand four years or longer, a mixture of six to eight pounds of alfalfa and six to eight pounds of brome grass may be used.

Land cultivated at intervals from early spring will be weed free and in good condition for seeding. A firm seedbed is best for alfalfa, since plantings will be to deep in a loose seedbed. A cultipacker may be used to make the seedbed firm before planting and afterward to cover the seed lightly. If a cultipacker is not available, use a smoothing harrow with the teeth slanting backward at an acute angle.

Broadcasting the seed is preferable to drilling, since it eliminates too deep planting. One-half inch or less is the best depth to plant, Arny says. More than half the seeds planted at a depth of one inch never produce any seedlings.

July sown alfalfa should not be cut for hay or pastured off. The last week in October, vigorous stands of alfalfa may be pastured lightly but considerable growth should be left to catch the snow for winter protection.

Life of Mrs. Augusta Werner

Rev. S. S. Olafsson conducted services for Mrs. Augusta Werher, who passed away Monday, June 14, at a local hospital. Burial was made at the Greenwood cemetery following the rites which were held on Wednesday, June 16th at 4:00 p. m. in the Community church.

Mrs. Werner, who was 87 years old at the time of her death, is survived by five daughter, Mrs. Tillie Montgomery of San Francisco, Calif., Mrs. Augusta Proper of San Antonio, Texas, Mrs. Clara Jordan of Superior, Wisc., Mrs. Mary Rupprecht of Minneapolis, and Mrs. E. W. Johnson of Thief River Falls; four sons, William of Pontiac, Mich., Harry of Hibbing, Albert of Grand Forks, and Renie of Holt; two brothers, Albert Furstenau of Indiana and Herman Furstenou of Michigan; 20 grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband and one son.

Born in Germany, November 25, 1855, Mrs. Werner came to America and settled in Indiana in 1883. Later she lived at Red Wing and in Excel twp., Marshall county, until 1921 when she moved to this city to make her final home. Her marriage to Edward Werner took place in Germany January 9, 1877.

"Renegotiation" Might Touch You

Under no other circumstances is the fine spirit of neighborly co-operation shown to better advantage in a rural community than in the case of fire or other calamity. This friendly spirit is not based upon personal interest, but upon the deep sympathy that just naturally arises in case of disaster. Of course, there is a personal interest if the fire threatens our own property, but we like to think this unity of spirit in our rural life is typical of America.

There is this same community of interest between industry, labor and agriculture, although sympathy for each other's troubles seldom comes to the surface.

Every farmer knows that his best market for the produce of his farm is our local domestic market. He depends upon this domestic market to consume over 90 per cent of what our American farms produce each year. If anything happens to his domestic market, like the depression and loss of employment in the early thirties, agriculture is at once affected. On the other hand, if anything happens to the buying power of agriculture, industry is hurt just as badly.

Right now congress is considering the renegotiation of all government contracts. The law was passed on April 28, 1942. Some people are urging that these new renegotiation bureaus should examine contracts made long before the law was passed.

Take the case of a contract made in 1940. The work has been done and paid for; taxes have been paid to the government on the profits, if any; labor has been paid and the money balance distributed either in repairs to plant or perhaps paid in dividends to stockholders.

Danger of Retroactive Measures.

Suppose that same thing happened to our local store, or even to our farmers themselves. Suppose the prices we received for our crops, or the conservation payments by the government for 1941 or 1940 were suddenly to be "renegotiated." Every farmer has either fed out or sold his crop, purchased new machinery or perhaps painted the barn, or bought a new dress for his wife. If, under a retroactive law, he were suddenly put up against the threat of renegotiation, all of his credit, and perhaps even his investment would be disturbed.

No one wants unfair profits or excessive dividends out of war contracts. Investigation has shown that over 95 per cent of industry and business made no excessive profits out of the war. Certainly no farmers have received excessive prices for farm crops.

Now Is the Time for Unity

We want to get on with this war. We must have unity. Unity is based upon mutual confidence in our government and in each other. We are all looking forward to a return of peace after the war has been won. We will then want to resume our domestic markets, replace worn-out farm machinery and resume our normal trade relationships. Industry and business will need all of their American ingenuity and strength to provide jobs which, in turn, furnish our domestic market after the war.

True, renegotiation at present is applied only to industry and contracts with the government. But we all recognize the good old American principle that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

If business contracts can be renegotiated under a law passed long after the business contracts were made, how about the sanctity of our own contracts?

Just now the fire seems far from our own neighborhood, but if we look closely, our domestic markets, both now and after the war, are involved. We can well take time off to show a little neighborly spirit and help put out the fire.

Many Attend Creameries Picnic

In spite of threatening weather and the gas rationing programs, more than 2000 people attended the 16th annual picnic of the Marshall County Creameries Picnic association at beautiful Middle River State Park on Sunday June 13.

While light sprinkles of rain fell during the program, the big crowd was eager to listen to the program of talks and addresses which gave them an opportunity to learn more about the civilian war programs.

John Brandt, scheduled to be the main speaker at the annual gathering was unable to be present, having been called to Washington on important business. However, L. L. Getten, production manager of Land O'Lakes Creameries, Minneapolis proved to be an able substitute. E. M. Evans, Attorney, Middle River, director of Land O'Lakes Creameries and president of the picnic association, served in his usual effective manner as master of ceremonies.

Other speakers were chairmen of various Marshall counnty war boards, including Judge Nels M. Engen, G. Holmquist, Victor Edman and O. M. Mattson.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hagen of Grand Forks visited at the John Hagberg home Sunday. They also loaded up their furniture here and moved it to Alvarado where Mr. Hagen has a job with the Central Lumber Co.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Carlson and Donna and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Carlson and baby of Argyle visited relatives here Tuesday

Mrs. Halvor Brunsvold of Hanlantown, Iowa, visited relatives here this week.

Mrs. Fred Dedee and Carol and Jimmy of Minneapolis and Emil Larson of St. Hilaire visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Larson on Sunday. They also visited Mrs. C. L. Sandberg.

Organize Farmars Union Local

A new local of the Minnesota Farmers Union came officially into existence on Tuesday, June 15, at the Silver Ridge school north of Gatzke.

Mr. Edgar L. Nordstrom, Minnesota organizer, was the main speaker. V. F. Kruta was elected president of the local.

It was estimated that this community could yield another fifty tons of scrap iron and metal according to the men who went out on the Scrap Drive Farm to Farm canvas on Monday. If your farm was missed, bring in your scrap and help in this drive now. Scrap for Victory.

Among those from this end of the county going to Fort Snelling on Tuesday next week to be inducted into the Army are Donald Horien, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Horien, and Paul Erickson of Viking. Earl Lindahl of Middle River leaves the same day for the Navy.

O. T. Ness, local scrap dealer, shipped out a big carload of scrap iron this week.

A. O. Aspelin and daughter Caroline visited at Thief River Falls on Sunday.

U. S. Stepping Stone to Tokyo; That's Amchitka, a Navy Base

Victory Parade

Navy forces on their way to Tokyo have landed forces on the Aleutian island of Amchitka, about 70 miles from the Japanese-held island of Kiska. Jap zero planes vainly sought to dislodge our forces. During one foray U.S. navy gunners knocked all attacking Jap planes out of the sky. All attempts to bomb or strafe the navy landing party ceased shortly afterward, and since completion of a landing strip for U. S. fighter planes, Jap aircraft are rarely seen.

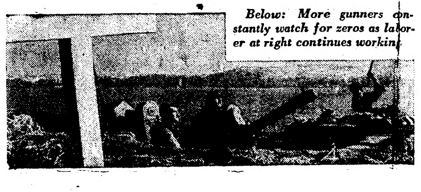
A machine gun crewman is silhouetted against the sun as he watches for zeros. Note tents in background at right, which were set up by Americans when they landed.

The silent messenger pictured above enabled U. S. forces to slip in quietly. This blinker was the communication between ship and shore. Here a message is being read to the operator who blinks it in code to a ship in the harbor. Left: Although they were deep in mud at Amchitka, these enlisted men found baseball equipment in the first load of freight delivered there. The mudclear airfield was being used to strike out Japs and had no room for baseball players.

Below: More gunners constantly watch for zeros as laborer at right continues working.



ON THE HOME FRONT
With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

EARLY American wall pockets cut out of light weight pine or scraps of half inch material may have many modern uses. In the kitchen they are just the thing for ration books and a pad for the grocery list. Just inside the front door one will lend a decorative note and make a convenient place for driving gloves and keys.

Originally these pockets were made in a great variety of designs and were used for letter boxes. They are still useful for this purpose or for a leave-a-note pad and pencil. If you enjoy working with wood you may want to cut these pockets out by hand with a coping saw as shown here. If you have a jig saw it is much faster, or you may mark your design and take it to a woodworking shop to be cut out for a few cents.

Load of Heavy Bombers

Heavy bombers of the latest U. S. type weigh about 40,000 pounds and are capable of carrying 4,000 to 8,000 pounds of bombs for an estimated distance of 3,000 miles. They carry 11,000 gallons of gasoline—or 3,000 gallons more than the ordinary railroad gasoline tank.

The Questions

1. What is the khamsin which was mentioned so often in news reports from Africa?
2. What country flies its flag upside down while at war?
3. What per cent of the numerical strength of modern air armies is in training planes?
4. How do military experts rate the two biggest factors, production and supply, and battle, in winning this war?
5. What is anchor ice?
6. Before Henry J. Kaiser built ships, of what three great dams did he head the construction?
7. When does the vice president have a vote in the senate?
8. What does the First amendment to the Constitution guarantee?
9. What is an atoll?
10. Why is no one allowed to whistle on board a navy ship?

The Answers

1. It is a hot African wind which fills the air with sand.
2. The Commonwealth of the Philippines is the only country in the world that flies its national flag upside down while at war.
3. Approximately 60 per cent.
4. Seventy-five per cent rests on production and supply and 25 per cent on battle.
5. Ice formed at the bottom of a body of water.
6. Grand Coulee, Boulder and Bonneville dams.
7. In the case of a tie.
8. The freedom of speech, of the press, and the right to petition.
9. A coral island.
10. The boatswain's pipe, which is blown to exact silence before he makes announcements or gives orders, has the pitch of a human whistle. Hence, to avoid confusion, navy men are forbidden to whistle.

Hubby's Caution Seriously Cramped Wife's Efforts

"It's rumored about that Mrs. Grumpus hasn't spoken to her husband since she got her First Aid certificate, more than a month ago," gushed Mrs. Gibblegabber.

"You don't say!" returned Mrs. Cackleclack. "What seems to be the trouble?"

"Well, before she took up First Aid, almost every day her husband came home from work with a bruise, cut, or other kind of injury," informed Mrs. Gibblegabber; "but now that she has her certificate, he hasn't suffered as much as a scratch, and she's convinced he's being careful on purpose!"

Penitents Still Wearing 'Tickle Shirts' in Britain

One of Britain's oldest and strangest industries, hair shirt-making, is surviving the war. In remote convents, nuns are still engaged in making the shirts for people who wish to do their penance with realism. Monks and very pious people wear the shirts, which are uncomfortable and painful.

The full-size shirts worn in olden days have nearly disappeared, and today a scapula, or a belt in which is woven horse-hair, and in some cases human hair, is worn instead.

Greeting Among Arabs

In North Africa, the ritual of greeting among Arabs demands that the man "looking down" should speak first, irrespective of his social status, says Collier's. Thus, the man on a camel greets first the man on a horse, the horseback rider nods first to the man on a donkey, the donkey rider bows first to the pedestrian and the pedestrian first to the man sitting down.

When you hear a Marine called a "Leatherneck," it has nothing to do with the epidermis of his neck. Years ago the Marine uniform was equipped with a high stiff leather collar. From that time on, "Leatherneck" has been the word for a Marine. The word for his favorite cigarette is "Camel"—the favorite cigarette also of men in the Army, Navy, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Japan Is Satisfied
By Clark Lee

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

Having accomplished every one of her major objectives, Japan is satisfied that she has won the war in the Pacific. All that remains, as she sees it, is to complete the unassailable wall of land, sea and air defenses she is building around her huge, rich new empire—a wall behind which she can grow fat and strong as she welds her "liberated peoples" together for the coming war of extinction against the white race.

All she needs is time—just a little more time, please.

Some public leaders in America have stressed the great historic menace that faces us in the Pacific. Few, however, have dared to state the whole startling truth. The truth is that Japan has already won her war.

With the exception of Midway island, and despite her defeats in the Solomons and New Guinea, Japan has captured every important objective she set out to take.

All She Needs.

Japan has seized all the territory and all the resources she needs. Japan now rules 300,000,000 people.

We have not yet started in earnest to fight our war—the war to retake the great areas Japan has captured.

That will be a new war, and because Japan will not be caught unprepared, it will be incredibly more costly than the lightning campaigns by which Hirohito's army and navy took over the great wealth and territory the United Nations had left virtually undefended in the Far East.

Unless we start to fight Japan soon, with every weapon at our command, and unless we keep China in the war on our side, we may find this second war impossible to win.

Japan, embarked on a deliberate program of world conquest, sees this struggle as a racial war which may last a century, and in which, backed by the limitless manpower and resources of the Orient, she will win the final victory.

All that Japan needs to make her the world's greatest power is time—time to exploit and develop her new empire and to unite the people of Asia under her leadership.

Until today, Japan has had that time. Japan is under no real military pressure from the United States. Behind a solid network of defenses which we have not yet begun to penetrate, Japan is using her time wisely and efficiently to achieve her immediate objective — the military, economic and political consolidation of the Orient.

Having under-estimated Japan's skill, preparedness and determination before the war, we should not make the same mistake again in assessing her ability to carry out her present program.

Japan today is highly vulnerable to air attack. Most of her heavy industry is still concentrated in four areas located along a 400-mile strip of coast extending south and west from Tokyo. More than 30,000,000 people live and work in the great seaport cities of Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, Kobe, Osaka, Shimonoseki and Moji. If these cities were heavily bombed now, Japan would be severely crippled.

Six months from today, however, that may no longer be the case. For Japan is becoming a continental power, through a program of dispersal of heavy industry.

Japan's fundamental aim is to scatter key industries over so wide an area that many thousands of airplanes would be needed to inflict vital damage.

With the seizure of Tientsin, Shanghai, Hong Kong, Manila and Singapore, Japan came into possession of tremendous American and British industrial facilities.

The economic resources of the conquered territories are being exploited under a plan which Japan has been perfecting for the past decade—a master plan for control of labor, transportation, shipping, public works, agriculture, finance, industry and all other functions of captured areas.

From the Philippines, Japan is getting chrome and copper. Malaya is contributing tin and rubber. Coal is coming from the Selangor mines. The Sumatra oil fields are producing great amounts of petroleum.

In Borneo the Japanese report finding large supplies of mercury and cinnabar. From the Andaman islands come lumber and fish. French Indo-China gives rice and coal. Java contributes rubber, quinine and petroleum. In Shansi province of North China is all the iron ore that Japan can ever use. Coal is found nearby.

All occupied territories are paying tribute in rice, and rice production and distribution is one of Japan's most powerful weapons in maintaining peace and order.

Japanese are almost wholly free to concentrate on reconstruction and development of the conquered areas. In the Philippines they claim to have repaired 340 of the 424 bridges destroyed by American forces. In Malaya all damaged bridges have been repaired. Railway and highway facilities are being extended.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1741-B designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 (34) requires 2¼ yards 35-inch material; 7 yards bias fold. Use scraps for bottom.

Battleship a Menagerie

For over a century, seamen on British war vessels were permitted to own pets, with little restriction on their number and size, says Collier's. The practice was banned a few years ago, when the admiralty learned that one battleship carried an assortment of 1,560 animals, which included large snakes, bears, deer and antelopes.

Fight the Forgery Racket!
By FRANK J. WILSON
Chief, United States Secret Service

WHENEVER you pay out your good money for any government check, remember one thing:

Have the check initialled by the employee who pays out the money for it.

This will help you to place responsibility if the endorsement on the check should be declared a forgery. Also, it will be of much help when an investigation is conducted in an effort to arrest the check forger.

There is another pointer which is closely associated with this one. Here it is:

Try to write on the back of the check a brief description of the person who presents it, if that person is a stranger. For instance, you might write "WM—50—5'9"—heavy" meaning "White man about 50 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, of heavy build."

This will take only a few seconds and may be the means of tracing a forger and recovering your loss, if the check proves to bear a forged endorsement.

First Air Mail

The first carrying of mail from one definite place to another by airplane took place over a 10-mile course on Long Island during a week's air meet in September, 1911.

Smile Awhile

So, No Men

He—The artists whose paintings show that angels are all women certainly didn't know women.

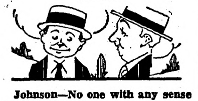
She—That is perhaps true. It may be that they knew only men.

At Ease

She (thoughtfully)—Why do so many women rest their chins on their hands when they are thinking?

He (brutally)—To keep their mouths shut so they won't disturb themselves.

HEARSAY



Johnson—No one with any sense could believe that.

Thomson—How do you know what anyone with any sense would believe?

The Question

Mrs. Newlywed—How do you cook pork and beans?

Mother-in-Law—Huh! How do you get 'em?

Even though it's true that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach, it doesn't mean he'll swallow anything.

Understood

A dignified man was taking home a pair of his wife's shoes which he had got from the shoemaker after they had been repaired. No box or paper was, of course, supplied, so he, slightly embarrassed, was carrying them loose.

A man opposite him in the bus watched him closely and said as he got out: "Not going to let her gad about—eh?"

A tourist stopped in front of a little country store, dumbfounded at the sight of an enormous display of salt piled on the premises. Stack after stack, boxes, barrels and bags. Tons of salt, inside the store and out. "You must sell a lot of salt," exclaimed the tourist. "No I don't sell much," replied the storekeeper, "but you shoulda seen the guy that came here last week. He really could sell salt."

Nothing New

Wife—I see by the paper that women are getting men's wages these days.

Hubby—Humph, haven't they always?

Knew the Prof

The professor of chemistry was giving a demonstration of the properties of various acids.

"Now," he said, "I am going to drop this half dollar into this glass of acid. Will it dissolve?"

"No, sir," replied one of the students.

"No?" said the demonstrator. "Then perhaps you will explain to the class why it won't dissolve."

"Because," came the answer, "if it would you wouldn't drop it in."

These Days

"I hear you've been doing very well at school, Alfred," said the fond grandparent. "What is your best subject—reading, writing or arithmetic?"

A look of quiet contempt crossed young Alfie's face as he replied:

"Don't be so absurd, grandpa! I produced the best plan for post-war reconstruction."

Without Priorities

"The price of everything has gone up since the war began."

"No, talk is just as cheap as ever."

AROUND THE HOUSE

So that they will not appear spotted, iron shantungs and ponges dry.

* * *

Start root vegetables in boiling, salted water, about one teaspoon of salt to a quart of water.

* * *

Baked ham is glorified by pouring honey over the ham before browning. It gives a delicate brown color and a delicious flavor.

* * *

No one particularly likes to iron curtain ruffles. Why not dip the curtains into cleaning fluid, two gallons for six pairs of curtains? If they are hung in the air to dry, and care is exercised, they will not require pressing.

* * *

Gilt frames can be cleaned by dipping a soft cloth in milk and rubbing gently over the soiled spots. Repeat several times if necessary.

* * *

Never, never put electrical appliances into water to clean them. A damp cloth and a mild abrasive are sufficient in most cases. Guard wires against dampness.

* * *

No job is so important that you cannot take time to do it safely.

* * *

Square corners on small linoleum rugs or mats often become broken and unsightly. Cutting the corners round will prevent this and make your rugs stay new much longer. When so treated they will lie flatter on the floor and will not be kicked about so easily. To make sure the corners you cut are uniform, trace a cutting line on the rug first with a saucer or pie plate.

* * *

Several strands of wire placed from end to end lengthwise over the poultry feed trough will prevent chickens from getting into the trough with their feet and wasting and contaminating the feed.

* * *

When drying a sweater or sweat shirt, use a wire coat hanger and bend the ends almost together while putting the garment on the hanger or removing it. This prevents stretching the neck of the garment.

A cushion or pad underneath a rug not only makes it feel softer and warmer but will also make the rug last longer.

* * *

To clean water bottles fill rather more than half full with hot soapy water and add some torn-up pieces of used blotting paper or brown paper. Let the bottles stand for two or three hours, shake up well, and rinse thoroughly with clean cold water. After they have drained, polish them gently with a fine glass cloth.

African Sergeant Major Is Permitted Four Wives

Among the troops who helped to drive the Italians out of Ethiopia in 1940 were sturdy native soldiers from the African Gold Coast.

The British carefully refrain from interfering with their customs. About half of them are Moslems, others Christians, but their marriage customs are peculiarly their own.

Some of the non-Christians may have as many wives as they choose in private life. But in barracks they are "rationed" according to rank; that is, one wife for a private, two for a sergeant, and four for a sergeant-major.

The Gold Coast soldier is about average height. He goes to school for an hour a day under British tutors, and serves under British officers. He lives in cement and white plaster barracks that are pin-bright. His boots shine like glass and he is scrupulously clean.

Uncle Phil Says:

IT IS easy to cure trouble by thinking cheerful thoughts, if it isn't your trouble.

One can always make money in a city where the population is dense.

Another nice thing about a radio sermon is that people don't turn and stare at you when the preacher denounces your pet failing.

Those who take no chances have to take what's left by those who do.

Those who sling mud lose ground.

Don't brood over your troubles. You'll only hatch them out.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

From 1907 to 1912, guayule rubber from Mexico represented about 7 per cent of the world's rubber supply. In 1941, it was less than 1 per cent.

More than 86,000,000 motor vehicles have been produced in the United States since 1900, with an average of five tires per vehicle. That gives you an idea of the number of tires that have been made to maintain motor transportation!

A Spanish historian back in 1519 described a ball made of the gum of a tree that grows in "hot countries." He was referring to what we now call rubber.

GHOSTS IN THE BARNYARD . . . This nation cannot turn out enough ammunition without a continuous flow of scrap metal. ★ ★ ★ The need is not for pounds; it is for tons. If production slows down, more American boys will die. It will then be haunting—heart-sickening—to see broken-down, scrapped machinery still rusting uselessly on the farm.

The more scrap you harvest . . . now, in good weather—now, when it is needed desperately . . . the more American lives you help to save. ★ ★ ★ Published in the interest of the war effort, by the Country Grain Elevators of the Northwest.

Looking Ahead

Farm Income

Farmers in the United States never have been able to collect fair pay for their work. When I say "fair pay" I mean as much reward for honest, effective effort as other men of similar skill get for what they do. The nearest they ever came getting equitable return for what they did was back in 1917 when the average farm worker earned 84 per cent as much as the average industrial employee.

Many famous ups and downs have occurred since 1919 but the earnings of farm workers experienced the roughest ride of all. In 1932 farm wages were only 23 per cent of industrial wages, on the average, and in 1942 farm pay averaged 60 per cent of industrial pay. In other words, farm workers are in a better relative position now than they were ten years ago but their pay still does not approximate factory pay and there is no justification for the difference. As this column has said before, farming is a skilled occupation and a hard one.

A Ray of Hope

It was a long stride in the right direction when the President of the United States began last March 30 to call leaders of the four principal farm organizations into conference. Many farmers think agricultural problems have been pretty badly muddled. They think farm experts should have been called much earlier to help set up a better farm program, and they hope now that a series of regular discussions has begun and will not end until the most serious tangles in the nation's food problem have been straightened out.

Albert S. Goss, Grange; Edward A. O'Neal, Farm Bureau; James G. Patton, Farmers Union, and Ezra T. Benson, Cooperatives, all attended the first conference and the second on April 7, expressing themselves freely to Mr. Roosevelt. Interested listeners included the food czars, Chester C. Davis and Claude R. Wickard. It is my impression that until then, men with practical farming knowledge had been consulted far too little in forming national farm policies.

The First Fruits

America's big food problem can not be set right in a few hours by any set of conferees, but these very first meetings accomplished much toward building moral courage. The farmers I know need a great many things, such as help, machinery and fertilizer, but the stuff they needed most, early in the year, was hope. Now, to say the least, they are more encouraged.

Although the spokesmen for agriculture were not in complete agreement on methods their objectives were the same and they took a rational attitude toward the question of farm prices. One of them, Ezra Benson, emphasized that "parity" is no longer an issue; even price (as an end in itself) is not an issue. "The big objective," he said, "is to get food production, and price is only a means to this end." These words bespeak real patriotism.

Seeks Practical Men

The Office of War Information has estimated that 6% less food will be grown on American farms this year than last. I believe the actual decline will exceed 6%, but that cloud gets a silver lining from the fact that our President, in this extremity, called experienced farm experts into counsel, not classroom experts full of unproved theories. If the same principle is applied in other important fields it will increase confidence in many quarters.

Half the people in America depend directly or indirectly on agriculture for income. And as a farmer living in a farming community, I understand why farm prices should not now be increased enough to equal wages of factory workers. Today's farm-price fixtures are undoubtedly faulty in their relation to food production, as well as to factory wages. Just the same, the nation's entire war-time price structure is based on today's farm prices.

An Unequal Burden

Farmers bear the brunt of wars and depressions, the same as of floods and tornadoes. In former times they have also taken the hardest rap in post-war adjustments. This last mentioned calamity can and should be avoided. America's war plans are already made and it would be a boomerang blow to agriculture to change them now. Higher farm prices would call immediately for higher wages to offset loftier living costs for industrial workers, and there would be no end.

It is every American's duty now to make price ceilings hold, to guard against inflation and stand ready when peace comes to keep men working and farm markets booming. If ceilings fail to hold, the runaway price balloon will be out and gone, with the sky for a limit. Just as this war is more costly than the other World War, so a price-flight now would be wilder than that of 1919 and the inevitable crash worse than the one that ruined so many farmers in the 1920's.

A prosperous farm market is essential to genuine prosperity in any agricultural country. In America's postwar crisis it will be vital. It would be an act of long-range wisdom on the part of every patriotic citizen, worker and industrialist as well as farmer, to exercise his utmost influence to increase agricultural parity after the war.

Relatives and friends gathered at the John Hall farm home on Sunday afternoon the occasion being John's birthday. After a sociable afternoon Angel food cake and ice cream were served. Marilyn Helquist of Rosewood also was honor guest there, her birthday being the following week.

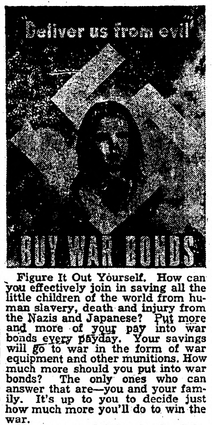

Figure It Out Yourself. How can you effectively join in saving all the little children of the world from human slavery, death and injury from the Nazis and Japanese? Put more and more of your pay into war bonds every payday. Your savings will go to war in the form of war equipment and other munitions. How much more should you put into war bonds? The only ones who can answer that are—you and your family. It's up to you to decide just how much more you'll do to win the war.

If you were fighting in the Solomons or in Africa or forcing a landing in Europe you'd like to feel that the folks at home were back of you—all the way—you'd be proud of your family and your friends if you knew they were buying war bonds not at 10 per cent or 15 per cent, but with every cent beyond that which they need for necessities.

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor — Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, July 2, 1943. — Volume 33, Number 9

Celebrated Fourth In 1831

One of the earliest celebrations of the Fourth of July to be staged on the site of what is now Saint Paul centered about Fountain Cave, a cavarn on the Mississippi near the foot of the present Bay street. It took place in 1831, and it was arranged by Joseph R. Brown, a prominent pioneer, and some companions.

According to an account of the event published nineteen years later in the "Minnesota Pioneer," St. Paul's first newspaper, Mr. Brown and his friends "brought a 2 pounder down from Fort Snelling, with a supply of powder and provisions, and celebrated Independence day, in the mouth of the cave." They began by discharging the big gun within the cave, and by so doing loosened some of the sand and rock in the arch, which was 15 feet high. Consequently they decided that it would be wiser to fire their gun outside the cavern.

Later in the day Brown and two companions explored the cave. By the light of a candle they penetrated nearly a mile into the grotto, following a little stream and eventually reaching a "precipitous water fall." There the candle burned out, and the explorers were forced to grope their way back to the mouth of the cave in darkness.

Later in his career Brown engaged in varied activities on the Minnesota frontier. He was prominently identified with the development of the St. Croix valley and at the head of Lake St. Croix he founded a townsite that eventually became a part of Stillwater. This phase of his career will be described by W. M. Babcock at Stillwater on August 21, as one feature of a historical program designed to mark the city's centennial.

You'll Like Your Marshall County Fair

Marshall Count'ys 37th Fair

Preparations are now nearing completion for Marshall County's 37th Annual Fair at Warren on July 12, 13, and 14 when Marshall and Northern Polk county agricultural production will be on display.

Distribution of premium lists was commenced last week when copies were mailed to all the exhibitors who entered displays at the 1942 Fair. Copies of the list were also distributed at the 4-H club picnic on Sunday. Others may secure copies by notifying the secretary at Warren.

The 1943 Fair will again feature the agricultural displays of Marshall and the Northern Polk county residents who are doing their level best to increase production of vital food crops for the war effort in spite of adverse weather conditions.

Special contests developed for Victory Garden displays and for the largest litter of market hogs on exhibition with large premiums in War Bonds and Stamps offered by the Warren Commercial Club and State Bank of Warren will aid in drawing record entries in these divisions.

Grandstand attractions for the coming Fair will come up to the standard of former years with Miss Jule Miller of the Northwestern Amusement Company of St. Paul directing the program for the night show. "International Follies" with a cast of more than 30 people including a strong group of Circus Acts. There will be no afternoon program this year, due to the acute labor shortage throught the area. One admission will be good for all day and night at fairgrounds.

There will be at least five thrilling rides, seven clever shows and the usual line of concessions on the Midway pike provided by the Golden West Shows, one of the largest traveling organizations making Northern Minnesota theis season. Your Fair board feels fortunate that they were able to secure this organization during these stringent times and feel confident that the organization will meet with the approval of the patrons.

Tte county fair has been encouraged to continue operations during war times as an aid to building morale of the people, by providing them with good clean amusement as well as its contribution to the stimulation of agricultural production. In line with these requests, the Marshall County Agricultural association has gone forward with its plans, and urges the general public to time their trip to Warren for Fair Week.

Farmers To Get Awards

Farm Scrap Award

The Farm Scrap Award is an award of Merit and as such shall be presented to every farmer entitled to receive it, but to none who have not earned it. The Farm Scrap Award will be presented to every farmer who has sold all his heavy scrap from his farm.

You will have to rely upon the judgement of your Local Salvage Committee Chairman, and their Salvage Squad Leaders for assistance in certification of Award winners in their respective districts. Accordingly, those upon whom you rely as judges of Awards should be fully informed of the basis for Award and impressed with the responsibility of making their recommendations with fairness, and without favor.

We are delegating to the Local Salvage Chairmen the responsibility of making these awards to only qualified farmers. We are confident we can rely on their judgement.

Tin Cans

The need for the salvage of tin cans is again urgent. Our Minnesota quota is one pound per month, obtainable even under rationing if every tin can that comes into the home is salvage. It only takes 4 tin cans to make a pound. Let's save them all.

Waste Paper

The demand for waste paper is again acute, and it is necessary that we intensify our efforts for the salvage of this type of raw material. All types of waste paper are in demand; but the acute shortage exists in, and our emphasis placed on brown paper, brown boxes, brown containers, brown bags and brown wrapping paper.

Tremendous amounts of waste paper are needed to make containers for food, ammunition, supplies, and emergency rations for our Armed Forces, as well as Lend-Lease and other Allied requirements.

Let us help our fighting boys on the battle front.

Marshall County can do this by getting in 760 tons of scrap metal and when we have done this, we will have 500 pounds per capita. Let us do our share on the home front for the good old U. S. A.

Arvid Carlson, Marshall County Salvage Committee.

The Weather

According to old timers who have spent up to fifty years in this community, the month of June this year was the wettest they have ever seen. The past week has been sprinkled with various kinds of weather. Starting last Thursday with a nice day it got hot and we had two rains on Friday with the one in the evening being a real soaker. Monday was so cold that a few tender cucumbers froze when the thermometer dropped to 32 in the early hours of the morning. Since then the weather has been cold and as we go to press (Thursday) it is again raining.

Kidneys Must Work Well-
For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

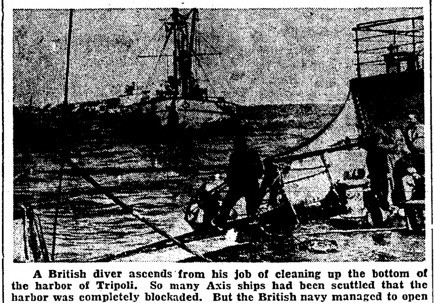
Nurses Practice War in Tennessee

Second Lieut. Helen Callesen sitting in her tent, at left, writes a letter while off duty from her nursing post in an evacuation hospital in the Tennessee hills as the Second army held its rehearsal for war. At center, Lieutenant Callesen washes her mess kit after "chow." With her long-handled brush she can scrub all the pots, dip them into cans of boiling water, and make them sparkle without getting her hands wet. All the pots are strung on one handle. Second Lieut. Betty Hindman is shown, at right, digging a foxhole.

France's Future in Their Hands

Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen. Charles DeGaulle, leaders of two French factions trying to unite in a fight against the Axis, are pictured shortly after DeGaulle arrived for a consultation. Seemingly, all that stood between the union of the two groups was DeGaulle's demand that he be given a high post in Giraud's North African government.

Break Blockade of Sunken Axis Ships



A British diver ascends from his job of cleaning up the bottom of the harbor of Tripoli. So many Axis ships had been scuttled that the harbor was completely blockaded. But the British navy managed to open a narrow passageway to allow ships to get into and out of the harbor. The Axis had sunk many ships, blown them open on the bottom, and then sunk other ships over the first group.

Jealousy Within Axis

By Ramon Lavalle

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with The American Magazine.)

I have just arrived in America from Tokyo. As a neutral diplomat I have seen, beyond the curtain of censorship and terror, Japan at war. I was the Argentine consul in Hong Kong when the Japs conquered and looted that city. Later I was second in charge of the Argentine Embassy in Tokyo, where I remained until recently, when I was able to leave Japanese territory via Siberia.

As soon as I arrived in Tokyo I began to notice an atmosphere of fear and dread in the foreign embassies and legations such as I had never seen in diplomatic circles before, even under wartime conditions. Strangely enough, this existed among the Germans and Italians as well as among the representatives of neutral nations.

It was caused partly by the constant spying and surveillance of the Japanese police, partly by the annoyances and insults to which all Europeans were subjected when they went into the streets (quite unlike the Japanese politeness of former times), and partly by the offensive arrogance of Japanese officialdom, fed fat with the great early victories.

I saw an official of the Italian Embassy get into a taxicab at the railway station. Three Japanese came along and wanted the cab. They reached in, yanked the Italian diplomat out, punched him and got into the cab.

Polite to Russians.

The Russians, who had a large diplomatic staff, kept very close to themselves within the spacious quarters of their embassy. Whenever they ventured out, they were closely followed by numbers of Japanese police. But the Japs, mindful of Russian air bases within range of Tokyo, were careful to preserve a correct attitude toward their powerful neighbors.

The Japs held the Italians in contempt because of the failures of the Italian troops in Europe. The Italians feared the Japs, and several of them told me that if they lose in Europe and thus become useless to the Japanese as military allies, they believe the Japanese will massacre them.

The attitude of the Germans in Tokyo toward their Japanese allies, the "honorary Aryans," is one of mingled suspicion and dislike, which verged toward uneasiness and fear as Germany began to suffer military reverses in Russia and Africa.

Last fall there were three German raiders moored at the main pier in Yokohama harbor, near Tokyo—one a cruiser and two converted merchant ships. There was also, nearby, a prize ship, captured from the British. I saw many of the German crew members from these ships shortly before they were preparing to sail.

Then one morning we heard a series of explosions, heavy enough to shake out windows. We got into the embassy car and drove across to Yokohama. The town was in confusion, with much shattered window glass in the streets, fire sirens screaming and ambulances racing toward the docks. We learned that all three of the German ships, and a tanker fueling them with oil, had blown up. The prize ship and another ship were on fire.

There was intense anger that evening among the German colony in Tokyo. It was freely charged at the German Club, that "this is the jealous rivalry of the Japanese, who are envious of the Reich, and have sabotaged our ships and killed our sailors."

About 80 German sailors were killed, 160 injured and many more missing. No word of this disaster was allowed to get into the Japanese press. What the true origin of the explosions was I was never able to find out. Some Japanese officials told me that two American submarines had crept into the harbor and torpedoed the ships. But the next day they realized that this cast doubt on the invincible Jap navy, so they changed their story to Chinese communist spies and saboteurs.

The Germans had other grievances against their Jap allies. There were many German families from Java who had taken refuge in Tokyo while the Japs were conquering the Dutch East Indies. These families owned valuable lands and properties in Java. After the Japs had completed their conquest, these Germans wanted to go back and resume possession and management of their estates.

The Japs bluntly told them this was impossible. Java was a "military zone" and would remain so indefinitely.

On one occasion when the Japs were putting on a display of friendship for neutral nations, they asked me to lend them a phonograph record of the Argentine National anthem for their loud speakers. I went to my record cabinet and found an excellent phonograph record of the Star Spangled banner. Pasting a piece of plain paper over the label, I gave it to them. They played it several times.

It was doubtless a petty and undiplomatic joke on my part, but the loss of face to the Japs, when they learn of it, will be terrific.

AROUND THE HOUSE

One-fourth teaspoon lemon juice added to each cup of heavy cream will hasten whipping.

* * *

Rub bacon fat over the skins of potatoes before they are put into the oven to bake. Then the skins will not crumble or break, and will have a delicious flavor. Eat the skins with the potatoes.

* * *

When stubborn particles of meat and vegetables stick to the inside of the grinder, run a small piece of dry bread through the grinder. The bread acts as a chaser, and saves work in the dishpan.

* * *

Cut two large apples and one lemon into slices without removing the peel. Add three ounces of sugar and one or two cloves. Pour over this a quart of boiling water, cover closely, and leave until cold.

* * *

When pickling onions, if you are using white vinegar, a few drops of sweet oil of almonds added to each jar will help to keep them white.

* * *

The setting of a jelly can be hastened by placing the mold in a pan of cold water.

* * *

For a spring dessert how about rhubarb shortcake? Serve rosy rhubarb sauce over slightly hot biscuits made with a bit of sugar added to flour.

* * *

Mayonnaise used on sandwiches should be thick enough to prevent its running out at the sides.

* * *

A piece of wax tied in a rag, and rubbed over the hot iron before ironing, will help it to run along smoothly, and prevent its sticking.

* * *

Numerous Floating Isles; One Traveled 1,000 Miles

Two Brazilian airmen forced down off the coast recently took refuge on a floating island from which they were rescued. Floating islands are frequent in the estuaries of big South American rivers such as the La Plata, Amazon and Orinoco. They were originally parts of low-lying jungle torn away by floods and held together by roots. Sometimes they carry animals and insects as well as vegetation.

Some years ago a floating island two acres in extent was seen drifting in the Gulf Stream off Key West, the southernmost point of Florida. It was thickly covered with bushes, and at one point rose to 30 feet above sea level. That was in May. By the end of August it had passed Cape Cod and was veering towards the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

One month later it was in mid-ocean, northwest of the Azores, but now it was considerably smaller than it had been earlier in the year, and after the end of September was not seen again. Gales, no doubt, had broken it up, yet before its destruction it had voyaged a distance of more than a thousand miles.

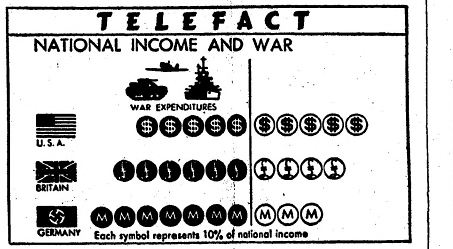
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allies' Italo-Balkan Moves Factor In Baffling Axis on Invasion Plans; U. S. Moves to Solve Corn Shortage; Russ War Stepped Up on Orel Sector

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



MEDITERRANEAN:
Balkan Powder Keg

The summary closing and opening of the Turko-Syrian frontier within a 48-hour span by the Allied command had presaged new and important military moves, as the Mediterranean area from Italy to the Balkans had tensed for oncoming action.

Increasing evidence that the Axis' much-vaunted Balkans bastion might be a powder keg instead came in the form of reports from Ankara that Rumania had sounded out the Allies on armistice terms. From Ankara, too, came steadily mounting proof of Turkey's closer friendship with the United Nations. The appointment of Brig. Gen. Richard G. Tindell as American military attache in Ankara and the dispatch of a contingent of Turkish fliers to America for special training were significant steps in this direction.

Reports from Axis sources had reflected increasing official bafflement over the Allies' next moves. After telling its listeners of "many landing craft concentrating from African coasts toward Pantelleria and the massing of a million troops for an Italian invasion," the Rome radio had broadcast a report that "large British forces were concentrating along the southern frontier of Turkey."

Observers for months had known that large numbers of Allied troops had been training in Syria. Lying in the eastern corner of the Mediterranean, Syria offered an effective base for operations against Crete, the Italian-held Dodecanese islands, Greece proper or other Axis points in the Balkans.

BUREAUCRATS:
Congress Compliments

The much-criticized home front government bureaus were given a friendly pat on the back and a virtual clean bill of health when the house appropriations committee approved appropriations of $2,939,441,504 for 18 civilian war agencies, including the Office of Price Administration and the Office of War Information.

In making public its highly complimentary report on the work of these agencies, the committee admitted that mistakes had been made and will be made, but denounced those who criticize "without knowledge of the tremendous burdens thrown on agency heads and of the great strides made in putting the United States on a war footing."

"The type of criticism that serves only to create public distrust in the agencies is not helpful to the war effort," the committee's report said.

OIL PACT:
Navy Cancels Deal

The tempest over the navy department's contract with the Standard Oil Company of California for operation of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve subsided when Secretary Frank Knox announced cancellation of the agreement.

The decision to cancel followed a legal ruling by the department of justice that the proposed arrangement exceeded the authority granted by law, a navy announcement said. Norman H. Littell, assistant attorney general, testifying before the house public lands committee, said that a department report sent to the White House had concluded that the navy's agreement with the oil company was "illegal and invalid."

Colonel Knox declared that his own investigation of the agreement established that "no improprieties had been employed by either party to the negotiations."

CORN:
'42 Loans Called

First steps in a program to solve the increasingly serious corn supply situation came when the government formally called loans on 47,000,000 bushels of 1942 crop corn effective July 15. The government had previously used deliveries of grain through liquidation of 1938-41 loans to restore the operations of two closed-down processing plants.

The corn loan move was described as "only an immediate palliative, not the final answer to the problem," and it was stated that efforts to find a solution would continue.

The government's action came as the War Food administration and Commodity Credit corporation received a request from the Corn Industries Research foundation for either complete lifting of federal price ceilings on grain or the imposition of ceilings on hogs. Meanwhile J. B. Hutson, director of the Commodity Credit corporation, said that 25 million bushels of privately owned corn in grain elevators would be seized for plants manufacturing by-products for war uses, unless "crops can be moved off farms."

RUSSIA:
Orel to Forefront

A stepping-up of land activities was reported on the Russian front, with especially heavy fighting reported in the Orel sector. Here, Russian troops defending a strategic newly won bridgehead were reported to have beaten off eight German counter-attacks.

It was reported that strong formations of Soviet planes had broken up German formations supporting Nazi tank and infantry units. The Germans, however, were reported bringing up reinforcements in an effort to forestall the possibility of Russian flanking movements against Orel, strategic Nazi-held base midway between Moscow and Kharkov. Heaviest fighting was reported in the vicinity of Mtsensk, 30 miles northeast of Orel.

Russian air forces continued their efforts to disrupt Nazi supply concentrations by striking at four railroad junctions over which German supplies and reinforcements must move for the Bryansk-Orel-Smolensk area. The junctions were Roslavl, Unecha, Vladislavoka and Novozybkhov.

PACIFIC:
13-to-1 Record

With all indications pointing toward major sea and land engagements looming in the Pacific, air activities still held the center of the war stage in this theater.

Most dramatic of all engagements was that fought out over the Solomons when American planes shot down 77 Jap aircraft over Guadalcanal while losing only six of their own. This 13-to-1 score turned in by American combat fliers in the Solomons who have heretofore included army, navy and marine pilots was regarded as the best ever recorded in a single air action anywhere.

But Allied planes were not idle elsewhere. Liberator bombers made their second heaviest raid of the war on Jap-held Kendari, on Celebes island, 850 miles northwest of Darwin, Australia, damaging airdromes and destroying planes parked on the ground.

In China, a military spokesman for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek charged that the Japanese again were employing poison gas in their operations in Suiyan province. Meanwhile Chiang's forces claimed new successes, including the recapture of strategic towns south of the Yangtze river.

MANY an American of pioneer background can remember when all the floors in the house except the parlor were covered with woven rag rugs and carpets. Today there is something about the vigor, simplicity and economy of these colorful old-time floor coverings that fits our mood. The local weaver with a rug loom is flourishing in many communities.

The modern weaver has an assortment of colors in warp and filler that may be used with the rags that you have prepared in the manner shown here. About one and three quarter pounds of sewn rags will be required for a square yard of carpet. Rugs may be either cotton or wool but do not use both in the same rug. The rags should be soft and clean and hems or uneven finishes should be removed. Dye white rags the colors you wish to predominate.

4. How many veterans of the last war are engaged in the present war?
5. Where is the home of the Kaffirs?
6. What planet's period of rotation on its axis is about the same as the earth's?

The Answers

1. Chinese.
2. The fierce unpredictable wind of Alaska which has upset minutely plotted attacks.
3. The year 1942. Authorities say 2,000,000 men of all nations were killed in the war during the year.
4. Approximately 250,000.
5. South Africa.
6. Mars (24 hours 37½ minutes).

Admirals may be admirable, but that isn't where the word comes from. It comes from an old Arabic word "amir-al" meaning "commander of." That's what the Admiral is, the top-ranking officer in the Navy. Top-ranking cigarette with our Navy men is Camel—the favorite, too with men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard, according to actual sales records from their service stores. Camels are a top-ranking gift, too. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are. —Adv.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A chain of rest stations is rising across northern Brazil along the route of workers trekking into the Amazon Basin gateway of Belem to increase collection of wild rubber. They provide medical aid and other human comforts to the 50,000 additional workers being recruited for the Amazon rubber forces.

The rubber normally used in one month's manufacture of baby pants can make 2800 rubber lifeboats for ocean-going planes.

A check of 7,200 farm-owned trucks showed that only 25 per cent of the tires on them were good; 54 per cent were fair; and 21 per cent were in poor condition.

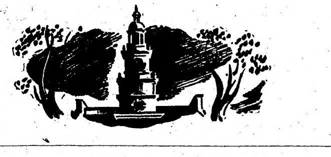
HOW LONG SINCE YOU'VE READ

The Constitution of the United States?



"We, the people of the United States . . ."

156 years ago, these simple words began America's warranty of freedom.

Today we are deep in war—so that this warranty may endure. Should we win—and win we must—whom will it profit?

Are you a farmer, and do you love your land? Are you a worker, and do you cherish your hard-bought home? It will profit you that no man, without due process, can wrest your home, your field, your plow from you.

Do you worship God in a church, or in a synagogue, or in the secret places of your heart? It will profit you that no heathen hand can desecrate your altars.

Do you impart the truth to the printed page—or do you seek it there? It will profit you that the presses will not be shattered in the night.

Do you talk with your neighbors in the market place—or meet on the steps of the town hall? It will profit you that no bludgeon can drive you into secret cellars.

Our Constitution assures us these things. And these we fight for.

In many ways we fight. Some in small, silent ways—when our sons have gone. Some in large, heroic ways—in the roaring of wings. Farmers fight in the rows of corn; writers under the lamp; ministers from the pulpit's height.

Not the least of these are the men of industry. And proud we are to be among them.

Proud to pledge ourselves still further to the fight—that all peoples everywhere may continue to find in this Constitution of ours a heartening hope!

Sales Taxes

Casting about for ways to raise money with which to pay America's huge war bill, the United States Treasury has steadfastly held "thumbs down" on retail sales taxes. "They are irritating to everybody concerned," it is said; "constitute a nuisance to retail merchants and an added expense of doing business." Truly, experience with them in many states has proved that they give rise to endless complaint.

It is only natural for the administration to go slow in its consideration of a sales tax therefore, because the United States still is a government by popular consent. Office holders instinctively shrink from starting movements that are labeled "unpopular". But it is my belief that a sensible sales tax can be made popular; can be sold to the public. Except for the bother of it, nothing fits the nation's immediate needs so well.

Systematic Savings

A big advance toward making a general tax acceptable to the public has been made already by Senator John A. Danaher of Connecticut. He is proposing one that is not strictly a tax; more in the order of an enforced loan to Uncle Sam, returnable in full after the war. You might think that such a plan would require a lot of costly machinery to operate, since payments would come in such small amounts, but not so. The senator has overcome that.

Here's how it would work: For purposes of this illustration, call the rate 10%. Every time a customer bought a dollar's worth of merchandise at a retail store, the merchant would have to demand also the purchase of a 10c savings stamp. Mr. Customer would paste these stamps in a book and when he got $100 worth he could exchange them at the post office for a $100 bond which would bring full face value in cash after the war.

The Poor Must Pay

Frankly I am in favor of the Danaher Plan or something very much like it, for several reasons. First, it is plain now that farmers, laborers and low-income salaried folk are going to be called upon to pay a greater part of the war's cost. There is no other way. If the government should take every penny of this year's income from every person now earning $20,000 a year or more, the resulting revenue would carry on the war only six weeks at the present rate.

Carrying the speculation further: If the government should confiscate the entire income of every person earning $10,000 a year or more, the grand total of revenue raised in this way would be baraly enough to pay our war bills for two months. Digging even deeper into the "comfortably situated" class, suppose the government should grab every penny earned by everybody receiving $5,000 a year or more. Even this extreme measure would raise only enough money to keep our war going four months. Obviously the poor must pay.

They Are Willing

People of small income want to help. They are anxious to do their part and it is my opinion that they are entitled to pay their share the cheapest and most direct way (which is by sales tax) now that Senator Danaher has devised a method of making it practically painless. People of low income already are paying hidden taxes up to 20% of their earnings, and I call it only fair that they be allowed to contribute in a way that will bring their money back to them.

The American Federation of Labor made some recommendations to Congress not long ago which contained these two significant sentences:

"Provision should be made for the return, in cash, after the war, of a part of the present high taxes. We can well be guided by the English policy which proposes to return a high percentage of the taxes now assessed against low-income workers."

A sales tax should be 100% returnable because it is the man of small earning who is hit hardest by any sales tax. The reason is obvious: He spends a major share of his earnings just for necessities. Necessary food, shelter and apparel cost as much for a man earning $2,000 a year as for one who earns three times as much.

Combats Inflation

My third reason for favoring the Danaher plan is the main one. The chief purpose of tax legislation this year is to combat inflation. Inflation means run-away prices. When there is not much of anything to buy and everybody has more money to spend, people naturally bid prices up, trying to get what they want. The less they have to spend the less temptation they have to bid prices sky-high.

Besides, there is an honest and patriotic way to escape any sales tax. It is by saving money; the tax is on spending. The Danaher plan is a savings plan. It permits the working man to help finance the war. It helps defeat inflation. It compels some saving for everybody and inspires more saving for others; save now while money is relatively easy to get, so as to have something after the war when it may meet a very serious need.

WOMEN AT WAR

Augusta

Augusta Travers—you know, the one who runs the little hat shop down on Main Street—she's always been dead set against gambling in any form. Never will forget when I was a kid and she found little Hammy, her youngest nephew, playing marbles for keeps out back of the shop. Took it on herself to give him a whaling and point out the evils of gambling. She's a strict woman, Augusta, real strict. Good as gold, of course. But mighty set against the lighter things of life.

Well, so you could have knocked us all over with a feather when Augusta started her gambling campaign for War Bonds and Stamps, right out in the window of her shop. First she got hold of the photographs of every boy here in town who's joined up, and pasted them on a big board in the window, with little American flags at the corners. Half the town was down there watching her do it. She left the middle empty. Then she brought out a placard she'd had printed up and put it in the middle, and this is what it said: "These are the Local Boys who have enlisted in America's War—They are betting that you are buying War Bonds and Stamps—Hitler and the Japs are betting you aren't—Place your bets inside."

My wife couldn't wait to get herself down there and inside Augusta's shop to see what in the wide world had happened to her, turning right around about gambling like that. You know my wife. She kind of likes to talk. She went right up to Augusta and said, "Augusta Travers, seems like something's come over you. Why, I never thought I'd see you running a gambling campaign in your own shop."

Mean to tell me it's a gamble whether this country buys enough bonds to win this war?" Augusta asked.

I forgot to say. Wasn't just a hat my wife brought home. Was a hat and a $25 bond.

Farmers Union Picnic Sunday

The Marshall County Farmers Educational & Cooperative Union will have its first annual picnic at the Middle River State Park (Old Mill) on Sunday, July 11. The Farmers Union is one of the fastest growing farmer organizations in the state and has been going ahead at a very rapid rate in Marshall County where it now has ten locals organized.

Several good speakers will be at the picnic and take part in the program and explain the workings of the Farmers Union to those who have not already had a chance to get acquainted with it. The program is being arranged by the various locals in the county. The main speaker of the day will be Charles D. Egley, manager of the Farmers Union Livestock Commission Co. of South Saint Paul and Fargo. There will also be a speaker who will talk exclusively on Technocracy.

Bring your dinner and stay all day. Refreshments will also be sold ot the grounds at the State Refectory.

This outing will give you a good chance to find out what the Farmers are doing for themselves thru being members of the Farmers Union and should you be in doubt about joining, it will give you a clearer understanding of what you can accomplish by being a member of one of the county locals.

Celebrated 25th Anniversary

A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the Wilson home on Sunday to honor Mr. and Mr. C. D. Wilson on their 25th wedding anniversary and also to give Cpl. and Mrs. Vern Wilson a party. A very nice program was given. The honored couples were presented with a cash purse and a delicious lunch was served.

County Fair Opens Next Week

Stressing the important part Marshall & Northern Polk counties are playing in the production of "Food for Freedom", Marshall county's 37th Annual Fair is ready to open for its three day run at the Fair grounds at Warren on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Near record entries are expected in all divisions of the Fair with farmers and homemakers planning extensive displays of livestock, poultry, crops, gardens and home economics projects. More than $1,550 in premium awards will be distributed among the exhibitors.

Marshall county's 4-H club members are putting in long hours in their part of the "Food for Freedom" program of the nation and will be out in force to exhibit their projects during the fair week, said Mrs. Harold Copp, county club leader.

Entry days for the Fair will be on Sunday, July 11th from 1:00 until 6:00 p. m. and on Monday morning from 8:00 until noon sharp. Exhibitors are urged to bring as much of their entries in on Sunday as possible to avoid confusion and the rush on Monday morning. Judging will start at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon.

For the first time since the establishment of the Marshall County Fair, there will be no afternoon grandstand programs this year, directors dispensing of this part of the exposition because of the seriousness of the farm labor situation in the area. However, more stress has been given to the evening programs which will feature Miss Jule Miller's International Follies, an outstanding production clever dancing, singing and novelty numbers.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Larson and family, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Larson and family, Rev. and Mrs. Hanson and sons, Mrs. Fred Larson and son Ludvik and Mrs. Iver Larson were among those from this community who attended the Silver Creek Parochial School Picnic held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Knutson on Sunday afternoon. Miss Evelyn Larson was teacher.

Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson and sons Harold and Luther, returned Thursday of last week from a three weeks visit with friends and relatives in Minneapolis. They were accompanied by Mrs. Hanson's mother Mrs. Martha Oppegaard of St. Paul who will remain for an extended visit.

Miss Marian Backlund resigned her position at the Narverud Cleaners at Thief River Falls and commenced working at the Ben Franklin Store on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Larson and son Allen of Badger called on Rev. and Mrs. Hanson on Sunday evening. Allen remained to visit friends until Monday.

Farmers To Get Awards

Farm Scrap Award

The Farm Scrap Award is an award of Merit and as such shall be presented to every farmer entitled to receive it, but to none who have not earned it. The Farm Scrap Award will be presented to every farmer who has sold all his heavy scrap from his farm.

You will have to rely upon the judgement of your Local Salvage Committee Chairman, and their Salvage Squad Leaders for assistance in certification of Award winners in their respective districts. Accordingly, those upon whom you rely as judges of Awards should be fully informed of the basis for Award and impressed with the responsibility of making their recommendations with fairness, and without favor.

We are delegating to the Local Salvage Chairmen the responsibility of making these awards to only qualified farmers. We are confident we can rely on their judgement.

Tin Cans

The need for the salvage of tin cans is again urgent. Our Minnesota quota is one pound per month, obtainable even under rationing if every tin can that comes into the home is salvage. It only takes 4 tin cans to make a pound. Let's save them all.

Waste Paper

The demand for waste paper is again acute, and it is necessary that we intensify our efforts for the salvage of this type of raw material. All types of waste paper are in demand; but the acute shortage exists in, and our emphasis placed on brown paper, brown boxes, brown containers, brown bags and brown wrapping paper.

Tremendous amounts of waste paper are needed to make containers for food, ammunition, supplies, and emergency rations for our Armed Forces, as well as Lend-Lease and other Allied requirements.

Let us help our fighting boys on the battle front.

Marshall County can do this by getting in 760 tons of scrap metal and when we have done this, we will have 500 pounds per capita. Let us do our share on the home front for the good old U. S. A.

Arvid Carlson, Marshall County Salvage Committee.

The Weather

No rain for a few days, and finally warmed up.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The first privately owned turnpike toll company to be organized in this country was the Philadelphia and Lancaster Turnpike Co., incorporated in 1792. New York was the first state to charge an automobile registration fee to pay highway costs and in 1901 collected $954 in such fees.

In 1843 an English woman obtained a patent for a pavement material consisting, among other things, of "oil rubber."

Eleven per cent of the tires of the 25,400 passenger cars on New Jersey farms were found to be "bald" in a check made by Rutgers University.

Woman Pilot

By Cornelia Fort

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Woman's Home Companion.)

(Here is one of the most remarkable articles ever published—a personal story by the first woman pilot to die on war duty in American history. Shortly after it was written, Miss Fort, 24, of Nashville, Tenn., was killed when the bomber she was piloting crashed in Texas.)

I knew I was going to join the Woman's Auxiliary Ferrying squadron before the organization was a reality, before it had a name, before it was anything but a radical idea in the minds of a few men who believed that women could fly airplanes. But I never knew it so surely as I did in Honolulu on December 7, 1941.

At dawn that morning I drove from Waikiki to the John Rodgers civilian airport right next to Pearl Harbor, where I was a civilian pilot instructor. Shortly after 6:30 I began landing and take-off practice with my regular student.

Coming in just before the last landing, I looked casually around and saw a military plane coming directly toward me. I jerked the controls away from my student and jammed the throttle wide open to pull above the oncoming plane. He passed so close under us that our celluloid windows rattled violently and I looked down to see what kind of plane it was.

The painted red balls on the tops of the wings shone brightly in the sun. I looked again with complete and utter disbelief. Honolulu was familiar with the emblem of the Rising Sun on passenger ships, but not on airplanes.

I looked quickly at Pearl Harbor and my spine tingled when I saw billowing black smoke. Still I thought hollowly it might be some kind of coincidence or maneuvers. It might be, it must be. For sure, dear God!

Then I looked way up and saw the formations of silver bombers riding in. Something detached itself from an airplane and came glistening down. My eyes followed it down, down, and even with the knowledge pounding in my mind, my heart turned convulsively when the bomb exploded in the middle of the harbor.

I knew the air was not the place for my little baby airplane and I set about landing as quickly as ever I could. A few seconds later a shadow passed over me and simultaneously bullets spattered all around me.

Suddenly that little wedge of sky above Hickam Field and Pearl Harbor was the busiest, fullest piece of sky I ever saw.

We counted anxiously as our little civilian planes came flying home to roost. Two never came back. They were washed ashore weeks later on the windward side of the island, bullet-riddled. Not a pretty way for the brave little yellow Cubs and their pilots to go down to death.

When I returned, the only way I could fly at all was to instruct Civilian Pilot training programs. Weeks passed. Then, out of the blue, came a telegram from the war department announcing the organization of the WAFS, and the order to report within 24 hours if interested. I left at once.

Because there were and are so many disbelievers in women pilots, especially in their place in the army, officials wanted the best possible qualifications to go with the first experimental group. All of us realized what a spot we were on. We had to deliver the goods or else. Or else there wouldn't ever be another chance for women pilots in any part of the service.

The attitude that most nonfliers have about pilots is distressing and often acutely embarrassing. They chatter about the glamour of flying.

Well, any pilot can tell you how glamorous it is. We get up in the cold dark in order to get to the airport by daylight. We wear heavy cumbersome flying clothes and a 30-pound parachute.

You are either too cold or too hot. If you are a female your lipstick wears off, and your hair gets straighter and straighter. You look forward all afternoon to the bath you will have, and the steak. Well, we get the bath, but seldom the steak: sometimes we are too tired to eat and fall wearily into bed.

None of us can put into words why we fly. It is something different for each of us. I can't say exactly why I fly, but I "know" why as I've never known anything in my life. Of this I am most positive.

I knew it when I saw my plane silhouetted against the clouds, framed by a circular rainbow. I knew it when I flew up into the extinct volcano Haleakala on the island of Maui, and saw the gray-green pineapple fields slope down to the cloud - dappled blueness of the Pacific.

But I know it, also, otherwise than in beauty. I know it in dignity and self-sufficiency and in the pride of skill. I know it in the satisfaction of usefulness.

I am profoundly grateful that my one talent, my one knowledge—flying—happens to be of use to my country when it is needed. That's all the luck I ever hope to have! It will be enough.

I have yet to have a feeling which approaches in satisfaction that of having signed, sealed and delivered an airplane for the United States army.

Wolves Threaten Food Supply, Shot From Sky

Wolves are threatening the wartime food supply of people living in the Arctic circle. In less than 10 years they have reduced reindeer herds in Alaska from 550,000 animals to 170,000.

According to Mr. J. Sidney Rood, director of the United States Reindeer service at Nome, Alaska, the only answer to the menace is the employment of government aeroplanes flying low enough to permit shooting of the wolves, after the fashion of the coyote hunters of the Montana-Idaho country.

One airplane, operating only in the pilot's spare time, accounted for 30 wolves last spring in a comparatively small area.

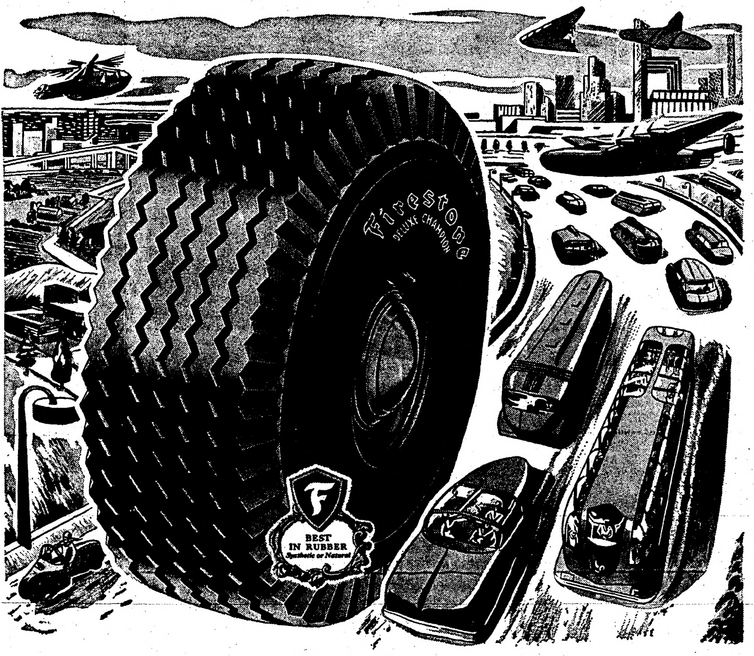
The TIRE OF TOMORROW is here TODAY!



THE WORLD-FAMOUS FIRESTONE DeLuxe Champion TIRE IS NOW BEING MADE WITH Firestone Butaprene
THE MARVELOUS New SYNTHETIC RUBBER

JUST as you'd expect, Firestone is FIRST to build the tire of tomorrow for the car owners of America. It is only natural that Firestone should be the leader in working out new processes, in creating new compounds and in building better tires from American-made rubber, for Firestone has always been the pioneer in developing new materials, new methods and new machines that have resulted in tremendous advancements in tire design, construction and performance.

From Firestone have come such revolutionary improvements as the FIRST straight side tire, the FIRST rubber non-skid tread, the FIRST commercial demountable rim, the FIRST patented Gum-Dipping Process, the FIRST balloon tire, the FIRST Safti-Lock Cord Body, the FIRST Super-Speed Construction and the FIRST practical pneumatic tractor tire.

In 1933, Firestone built the FIRST synthetic rubber airplane tires for our armed forces. In 1940, Firestone built its FIRST synthetic rubber passenger car tires at the New York World's Fair and began the manufacture of its own synthetic rubber, called Butaprene, the same type that was later adopted by the Government. In 1942, Firestone became the FIRST company to produce synthetic rubber in a Government-owned plant and later became the FIRST to make synthetic rubber using butadiene made from grain alcohol. And today Firestone is making synthetic rubber tires for passenger cars, trucks, buses, airplanes, tractors, farm implements and all types of war vehicles.

All of these years of experience, all of the knowledge that made these FIRSTS possible have been called upon in producing the new Firestone DeLuxe Champion Tire made with Firestone Butaprene. It is now ready for the car owners of America as released by the Government. But do not think that the crisis is past. America's greatest rubber supply is still on the wheels of its 27,000,000 cars. So you must continue all of the rubber conservation measures that have been so effective. However, if you are eligible and require new tires, remember this — in mileage, in strength and in safety the new Firestone DeLuxe Champion Tire upholds the Firestone tradition of "Best in Rubber — Synthetic or Natural."

Listen to the Voice of Firestone with Richard Crooks and the Firestone Symphony Orchestra, under direction of Alfred Wallenstein, Monday evenings, over N. B. C.

MORE "DATES" for girls who hasten healing of externally caused pimples by relieving irritation with RESINOL

One thing a soldier is afraid of is a display of emotion. That's why his slang so often sounds derogatory. For example, he refers to the silver eagles on his colonel's shoulder straps as "buzzards." But when he speaks of his favorite cigarette, he says: "Camels." They're first with men in the Army as well as with Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen. (According to actual sales records in service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S. and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

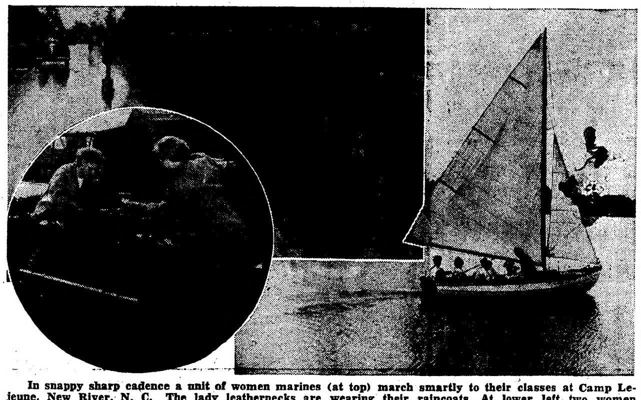
Wounded Raiders Flown From Behind Jap Lines

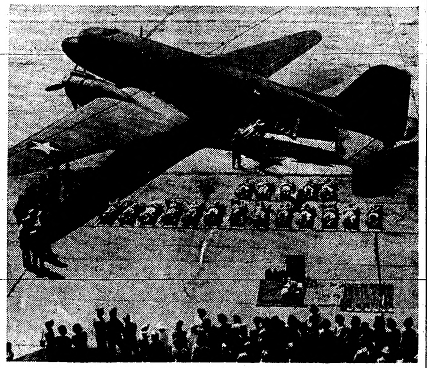
Despite wounds and jungle sores, Pvt. John Yates, a British raider, (left) manages to smile as he is flown from Burma. He was one of the raiding party that blew up railroad lines, supply depots, and disrupted communications 200 miles behind Japanese lines in that area. At center, raiders board that airplane which flew them back to India. They may be distinguished from RAF fliers by their bedraggled condition. A raider suffering from dysentery (bottom right) hangs onto a rope as he drinks water inside the plane.

At a Lady Leatherneck Training Camp



In snappy sharp cadence a unit of women marines (at top) march smartly to their classes at Camp Lejeune, New River, N. C. The lady leathernecks are wearing their raincoats. At lower left two women marines check the water and oil of a jeep. This is part of the toughening up course which these girls go through before they relieve a male marine so that he can get into a more active post. As part of their course, women marines must take lessons in sailing. A group is shown at right in sailboats. One of the most pleasing experiences for the girls at Camp Lejeune is being served by male waiters in the mess halls.

Graduates See Rescue of War Wounded



A group of New York high school graduates watch in awe as members of the army air force demonstrate the mass evacuation of wounded from a battlefront. This was a feature of a day-long military exhibition staged for the 35,000 graduates by Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce, commander of the First air force. The planes used were DC-3 transport planes.

Soldier Tells Miners of African Victory

A wounded veteran of the North African victory, Sergt. Ted Varney, relates his experiences to a group of coal miners in Dickson City, Pa. A third strike of the United Mine Workers was ended by an announcement by their president, John L. Lewis, who said that the miners would go back to work under Mine Custodian Ickes until October 31.

Household Hints

When buying oranges select those that are firm, heavy and not spongy or soft. Usually slight scars or russet spots on the skins will not affect the flavor or the quality of juice in the oranges.

• • •

When browning sausages in a pan, to prevent excessive greasiness, pour off the fat as soon as it collects.

• • •

Always add a little melted butter to uncooked frosting. It improves the flavor and prevents cracking.

• • •

Knitted washcloths are not always a good buy. They are likely to stretch out of shape, become limp and stringy. A firmly woven cloth, like that used for bath towels, usually is best.

• • •

To clean pewter utensils, rub them with a brass polish applied with a soft brush or cloth. Polish with a soft cloth until shiny. If the pewter is to be used for holding foods, wash it in hot water and soapsuds, rinse in boiling water and wipe dry.

Looking Ahead

Bureaucratic Blight

Early in December 1942 this column offered a pointed protest to a federal law calling for the renegotiation of war contracts. What I wrote at that time aroused a deal of criticism. My article was frankly a forecast, saying what was likely to result from trying to enforce the Renegotiation Law. I am no prophet. I only wish I had been able to foresee the worst. The law is a year old now and a Senate committee has learned and told part of the sad story.

Discussing the needlessly rapid growth of government bureaus, I wrote: "The law governing the renegotiation of war contracts will (by itself) create four boards, many branch offices and possibly 200,000 jobs for auditors, investigators, etc." In this same connection I mentioned that an estimated 100,000 married men had been needed to fill the November draft quota; i.e., every man of draft age who took a soft government job exposed one more husband and father to military service.

Figures Disputed

After the article was published, an administration man whom I admire, a man of unquestioned competence and patriotism, assured me with emphasis that only a small fraction of the 200,000 jobs I had suggested would actually be created by the Renegotiation Law. I do not know how many men finally were assigned to this job of fighting windmills but the pace set during the first ten months indicates that between 300 and 400 years will be required for its completion. This is true if the report of the Senate committee headed by Harry S. Truman of Missouri can be trusted, and I think it can.

Hearing that an unnecessary government bureau (composed of fewer men than was first feared) is hopelessly swamped with details, would be too small a matter to worry anybody, except for the fact that the very existence of the law hinders the war effort. It keeps contractors in a quandary that slows down production of military necessities; postpones victory.

The Actual Figures

The Renegotiation Law authorizes and directs the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Chairman of the Maritime Commission, whenever in his opinion excessive profits have been realized, or are likely to be realized, from any war contract, to recover such excess profits and revise the contract price.

Ignoring what, to one who is not a lawyer, looks like an unconstitutional assignment of judicial authority to executive officers, the law made some 85,000 separate contractors subject to its provisions. At last count, 203 of these had been obliged to do-over their government contracts; too many, but less than ¼ of 1% of the 85,000. Progressing at this rate they will get through some time before the middle of the next millennium unless, as I suggested in December, they build up an enormous bureaucracy.

Not Worth Doing

Careful study of this renegotiation work proves the law worthless as a revenue measure. Take the War Department as an example: Its auditors have refigured contracts totaling 8.6 billion dollars and claim to have recovered for Uncle Sam 300 million dollars. This looks big on the deceiving face of it, but actually 80% to 90% of this revenue would have come in quite automatically through the excess profits tax that was working satisfactorily when the federal "Renig Law" was passed. Net recovery therefore has been 60 million dollars or 7/10 of 1% of the amounts involved.

The worst feature of the ill-conceived affair is that manufacturers have to turn their attentions from production of military essentials and let our fighting men wait while they palaver with government auditors. One manufacturer of five-inch gun mounts for steamships said recently, addressing the American Legion convention, "We shut down our plants two weeks to take a fiscal inventory essential to a formal audit. The historic display prepared for the Price Adjustment Board blacked out our drafting room for more than ten days."

A Tragic Ending

He went on: "The time wasted by management in renegotiating has resulted in a loss of at least 100 five-inch Merchant mounts which Secretary Knox says are the finest anti-aircraft weapon in the world. These 100 gun mounts which were not produced because of renegotiation would have adequately protected 100 Merchant Ships from enemy airplanes and submarines. And, I guess, that at least forty more of these cargo ships would have reached Murmansk instead of being sunk if they had been protected by these five-inch guns."

A loss of 40 merchant ships which the speaker said cost at least one billion dollars with their cargoes, would certainly dwarf the contemporary effort of bullet-proof bureaucrats to glean 60 million dollars the tedious way from builders of war materials. A small increase in the corporation tax rate would have raised the money without putting a monkey-wrench in the works.

And now there are 340,000 men of draft age on the government payroll in civilian clothes, the Costello Congressional Committee has revealed.

Storm Does Heavy Damage

Shortly after midnight on Monday a wind storm of terrific power hit this part of the state. It came in from the southwest with such force that it turned over small buildings, moved many machine sheds and tore down big trees. According to reports the damage done by the storm was heavy in North Dakota. At Stephen the high school was unroofed and many other buildings torn down and damaged. Argyle came in for a heavy blow to trees and property.

Reports have been made that several barns north and west of here were blown down. The large arena at Roseau was blown down. Here the damage was small but many nice trees were blown down.

So far we have no reports on crop damage but many farmers estimate shat it will be heavy where the crops are tall and heavy. Many hay stacks had to be retopped. A heavy rain followed the wind storm and the weather cooled off for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Food Congress at State Fair

A Food Preservation Congress, which will feature drying, freezing, storing and canning of fruits and vegetables for the home, largest ever held in the Northwest, will be a major attraction of the Minnesota 'On to Victory' State Fair, Aug. 28 to Sept. 6, Raymond A. Lee, Secretary of the state fair announced today.

The exposition, occupying extensive space in the Food Show Building, will feature daily demonstrations on dehydration, winter storage, quick freezing and canning of vegetables and fruits for home use. Specialists from the Colleges of Home Economics and Agriculture, University of Minnesota, will be in charge.

Only inexpensive and easily-operated equipment within easy pocketbook reach of the average home will be used in the demonstrations. Literature telling how to build or buy this equipnent, and operate it, is being prepared for special distribution.

The primary purpose of the exhibits and demonstrations will be to show the public how to preserve, or store the record-breaking crop of vegetables and fruits now being raised in the state's orchards and fields, and thousands of Victory Gardens, and thus help to avert future food shortages which many believe are imminent.

Twenty-one counties, the maximum number which can qualify, have entered agricultural exhibits at the coming fair.

Cleo Ann and Harold Roger, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stienhauer, were baptised at the parsonage on Thnrsday, July 1. Their sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lubitz and Robert Nyval.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Wilson and Boyd, Cpl. and Mrs. Wilson and Otto Johnson were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Smith on Tuesday evening of last week.

Watch Your Tomato Crop

This is the season for tomato diseases, says County Agent R. A. Reirson, who warns gardners to be on the alert and to protect plants at once by spraying or dusting.

Reports of leaf spot have come in from different parts of the state, according to Carl J. Eide, University Farm plant pathologist. Since more rainy weather will spread the disease, Eide urges spraying or dusting tomato plants at once to prevent recurrance of the disease so prevelent last year. Leaf spot can be recognized by the presence of the small dark spots on leaves which turn yellow, then dry up and falloff.

Only effective material for spraying or dusting to prevent leaf spot is a copper fungicide, Eide says. Copper fungicide available as sprays or dusts may contain copper oxide, tri-basic sulphate, basic copper sulphate and similar compounds.

Materials to be used as a spray is in concentrated form and should not be used as a dust, while the dust is too week to be used as a spray. Bordeaux mixture and copper-lime dust should not be used on tomatoes because they contain lime, which may be injurious to tomatoes and may actually increase blossom-end rot.

Another disease to watch for, blossom-end is a disease which effects the blossom end of the fruit about the time the fruit begins to ripen. When the leaves give off moisture faster than the roots can supply it, the lack is made up by taking moisture from the fruit, with the resulting rot at the blossom end. Lime sprays increase the loss of water thru the leaves and hense are likely to increase blossom end rot. If water is available, keeping the plants supplied with moisture may help.

Tomato mosaic, indicated by a yellow mottling of the leaves, is most prevalent where tomatoes are adjacent to potatoes.

To control mosaic, keep the weeds down, avoid handling the plants, if only a few affected ones are noticeable, remove and burn them to prevent further spread, Eide advises.

Dropping of blossoms from tomato plants is not due to a disease, Eide says. It merely indicates that the plants have more blossoms than the number of fruits it can support.

Cpl. and Mrs. Vern Wilson left Thursday for Portland, Oregon, after spending their furlough here with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Wilson and Boyd and Otto Johnson accompanied them as far as Grand Forks.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

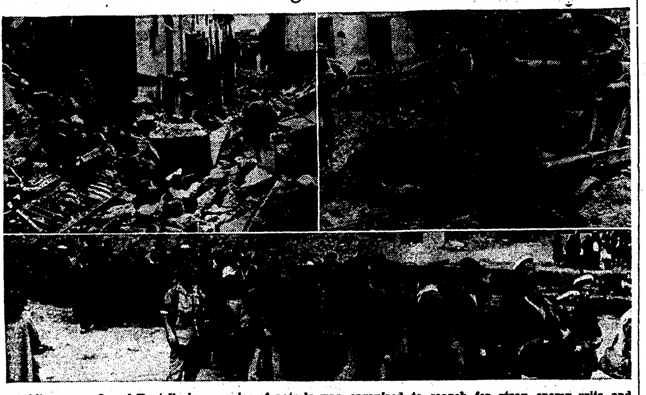
Transform Axis Stronghold Into an Allied Base



After surrender of Pantelleria, a series of patrols was organized to search for stray enemy units and snipers. At upper left three British fighters pick their way through a battered street. At upper right a bulldozer clears away rubble as the island is turned into a base for use against the Axis. Italian soldiers, marines, and sailors stand in line (bottom) waiting for transportation from the former Axis stronghold.

French Girls Help Stage 'South Sea Scandals'

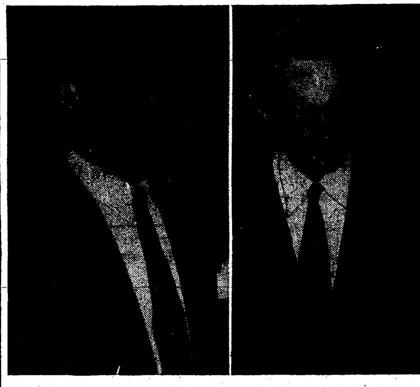
Seized by FBI in Spy Hunt



These two men have been arrested as spies by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Erwin Harry De Spretter (left) had been making gun sights for our armed forces. He admitted guilt in connection with sending information to Germany. Ernest Frederick Lehmitz (right) was known as a highly efficient air raid warden. He is accused of informing Germany of U. S. convoy movements.

Hurdles to Health

Wounded American soldiers now take special exercises in hospital gymnasiums to rehabilitate their injured limbs and muscles. Private Ralph Johnson is assisted over these foot-high hurdles by Sergt. D. D. Gilbert. They are hospitalized overseas.

Fighters Put on Their Armor

Members of a crew of a Flying Fortress are shown helping each other don their armored flying vests at a United States bomber station in England. Made of tough manganese steel, these vests protect the airmen from flak shrapnel and fragments of cannon shells. A quick pull on a rip cord causes the vest to fall away from the body.

Your Bedside Tables From Orange Crates

THESE orange crate bedside tables are useful and easy to make; they are very decorative, too, when fitted out as illustrated. These were lined with green oil cloth cut, fitted and pasted, as shown. The full skirt pieces were tacked to the top of the sides and lapped a few inches around the back. A top cover with a 3-inch frill was then added. The bedspread is trimmed with 5-inch frills of the muslin and 1-inch straight bands over seams and for the monograms.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Entire Pacific War Strategy Changed By Latest Allied Attacks in Solomons; RAF and U. S. Air Force Rock Europe With New Series of Non-Stop Bombings

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Troops in Maj. Gen. Sanderford Jarman's anti-aircraft artillery command receive alert warning of approaching planes in practice drill and are about to release barrage balloon. Besides forcing enemy planes to high altitudes thereby affecting bombing efficiency, barrage balloons' cables are strong enough to destroy any craft striking them.

MacARTHUR ATTACKS:
Advance in Pacific

Under cover of bursting shells and strong aerial formations, American forces in the South Pacific strengthened their hold on the Solomon islands and opened up another front against the Japanese in New Guinea.

Protected by big guns of the navy and a protective canopy thrown across the skies by fighter planes, U. S. troops scored a surprise landing on Rendova and New Georgia islands in the Solomons, and soon were shelling the big Jap air base on Munda.

To the west, American units swarmed ashore on the Huon gulf of New Guinea, and soon were advancing toward the important Japanese position at Salamaua, already menaced by an Allied force which had hacked its way through the jungle to within 12 miles of the outpost.

Between these two theaters of operation, American forces occupied the Woodlark and Trobriand islands without opposition.

More than 100 Japanese planes were shot down resisting the American landings. Our own losses were 17, along with a 7,000 ton transport and several other ships damaged in the dangerous reedy waters of the Solomons.

FOOD SUBSIDIES:
Banned by Congress

The administration's plans for the use of subsidies to "roll back" retail food prices were strongly jolted by congressional action in passing the Commodity Credit corporation bill outlawing such payment except as incentives to producers. As a result, the "rollbacks" recently instituted on meat and butter would be wiped out, with payments only being made on previous commitments.

In passing the bill, congress acted in opposition to administration support of the subsidy program. Prior to passage, the War Labor board came out for "rollbacks" to offset the increasing cost of living, which threaten its policy of limiting wage boosts to 15 per cent over January, 1941.

In passing the bill which extends the life of the CCC for two more years and adds 750 million dollars to its lending authority, congress permitted payment of 150 million dollars for subsidizing increased transportation costs and the production of critical minerals and food.

CHINA:
Press Japs Back

See-saw warfare in China continued, with Chinese forces recapturing a large section of Owchihkow on the Yangtze river, thus driving the Japanese further out of the great rice bowl which they had threatened to overrun.

Assisting the Chinese in their successful counterattack was the American air force, which has been established in the southeast of China. Under leadership of Gen. Claire Chennault, the Yanks have been concentrating on Japanese locomotives, freight trains and other heavy equipment which the enemy finds most difficult to replace.

Japanese attacks near Shanghai and Swatow were also checked, with Chinese troops regaining several important points at Swatow, once famous treaty port on the Kwangtung coast.

EUROPE:
Clearing a Path

Europe rocked from all sides as British and American air squadrons continued pounding vital Axis industries, installations and airdromes.

Nowhere did the Axis find rest. British bombers flew into Germany's Ruhr to strike at the already badly battered industrial centers, and even while the blockbusters and incendiaries plummeted roofward, the Nazis Munitions Minister Walter Speers complained that Axis workmen were compelled to labor in the open in many places.

In the Mediterranean American Flying Fortresses, accompanied by Lightning fighters, struck at airfields in Sicily, apparently striving to cripple bases from which Axis craft could oppose Allied landing expeditions.

Off to the east, American bombers began lambasting Axis airdromes and installations in Greece, along the route an Allied army might take to invade the Balkans. In anticipating a major Allied drive in this direction, the Axis reported fortification of mountain passes along the whole rugged Grecian coast.

HOGS:
Flood Market

With principal markets flooded with heavy receipts, prices on hogs dropped and government and industry representatives appealed to farmers to restrict shipments.

Although the government had promised to support prices for 240 to 270 pound pigs at $13.75, hogs of this weight brought less as a result of the large receipts. It was explained packers lacked the labor to handle such huge supplies.

Prices for hogs over the 270 pound weight sagged as the government made no commitment to prop returns at the $13.75 mark. The action was seen as a move to induce farmers to market pigs at lighter weights to relieve the critical corn situation, which continued to plague processors and manufacturers, who said they would be compelled to seriously restrict operations unless further grain was forthcoming.

GAS:
Tight Pinch

Completion of the big oil pipe line in the Middlewest and declining petroleum production in California might well spell a tightening of gasoline supplies in those sections within the near future, Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes declared. At the same time, Ickes could see no relief in the gasoline situation in the East.

In all cases, Ickes said, the services' huge consumption of petroleum is digging deeply into the nation's supply. Ickes cited Lieut. Gen. Somervell's estimate that military demands now approximate 1,000,000 barrels a day, exclusive of gasoline and lubricating products, while American refining capacity stands at 3,850,000 barrels.

Completion of the big pipe line in the Middlewest, Ickes said, will free many tank cars for haulage of oil from the area east of the Mississippi. However, Ickes pointed out, it is this area which is suffering from a decline in production, and further diversion of its supplies necessarily will result in a further pinch in civilian consumption there.

RICKENBACKER: Capt. Edward Rickenbacker visited the Russian front while on an official mission to Moscow for the secretary of war.

MILK: Synthetic milk, made of vegetable oils, was pronounced an unsatisfactory substitute by the two government experts. The artificial product failed to stimulate growth and development properly in feeding tests.

CORNSTARCH: Corn refineries are facing shutdowns because of insufficient supply of corn, executives of the industry warn. Only about 5 million bushels are believed to be available to processors for the year.

SERVICE: A law making almost all adult men and women subject to wartime service wherever needed, is being urged by Rep. Wadsworth of New York.

WALLACE VS. JONES:
Renew Feud

War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes' efforts to patch up the feud between Vice President Henry Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones apparently had come to naught as the two ripped into each other once more.

Cause of the controversy was Wallace's charge that Jones, as Reconstruction Finance chairman, had been niggardly and slow in advancing funds to Wallace's Board of Economic Warfare for the purchase and development of strategic material abroad. Jones struck back by stating that the BEW initiated only 5 per cent of the government's purchases.

Wallace started the ball rolling again by stating that the two disputants had agreed to have the BEW warfare ask congress for separate funds to continue operations. Then he repeated his charges that Jones' agency had been slow to act on BEW projects.

Flaring up, Jones called Wallace's statement "dastardly," and repeated his demands for a congressional investigation of the BEW.

BLOOD PLASMA

The latest miracle of transfusion—plasma—has been described as the No. 1 agent in saving the lives of our American soldiers.

Plasma is the liquid element in the blood in which the red and white cells float. By adding salt of sodium citrate to fresh blood, the blood remains unclotted and is allowed to stand for two or three days, during which the cells settle and the plasma then is poured off.

Formerly, it was necessary to "type" blood since it was discovered in 1900 that substances in certain bloods destroyed red corpuscles in other kinds. Plasma, however, removes these substances and makes use of the fluid general.

Dried or frozen, plasma can keep for weeks or months. It can be shipped to any part of the world and used. Through the agency of the American Red Cross, blood donors throughout the country are making plasma possible.

MINERS:
'Return,' Ickes Pleads

Despite the plea of Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes to return to work, about 150,000 miners remained idle. Most seriously affected were the steel companies' coal fields in Pennsylvania.

Declaring the miners' wage demands were among many received in Washington, Ickes said it was necessary for particular groups to submerge their personal considerations for the general welfare. He then asked the miners to return to the pits "on the eve of the greatest military operation in history."

More than 400,000 other miners were back at their jobs following their union's decision to return to work only if the government maintained control of the mines. Although granted a wage concession amounting to 20 cents a day, it was expected that the miners might press efforts to obtain compensation for travel to and from their working stations.

ARMY:
Arms Program Cut

Emphasis of war production on aircraft, cargo ships and navy combat vessels has resulted in a reduction of the army ground supply program and delayed full equipment of its forces until 1944, Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell declared.

Because of the production drop, Somervell said, the army has been compelled to ship equipment in camps to the fighting front. Not only does this affect the training of troops, he remarked, but it also tends to lower morale.

Somervell said U. S. and British military chiefs had planned operations for 1943 predicated on a 95 billion dollar production program. But the War Production board stated the industrial output of this country could only approximate 75 billion dollars.

CHURCHILL:
Must Co-operate

The United States and Great Britain must continue to co-operate in peace as well as in war to assure their security, Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared in a speech in which he also predicted heavy fighting "before the leaves of autumn fall."

Stating that Great Britain sought no profit nor desired any aggrandizement from the war, Churchill added that it would accept no compromise.

Rejoicing that May was the best month for the Allies in the U-boat warfare, Churchill revealed that 30 German submarines had been sunk in that month and new ships were being built at a rate of seven to every single loss.

WPA:
Finis

Since its beginning in 1935, the WPA oft-times was charged with squander, but when the time came for going out of existence, the agency returned $130,000,000 in unexpended funds and materials to the government.

Officials say that the records will show that WPA spent 10½ billion dollars and employed more than eight million persons. Only a small staff was left behind for liquidation.

Ancient Fishing Methods Still Prevalent in Malta

Precisely as did their forebears in biblical days, the inhabitants of the quaint fishing villages of Marsa and Zurrico, on the island of Malta, in the Mediterranean, today follow the life of the fisherman for their livelihood.

Many of the old fishing methods employed in the early days are in use today. The fishermen use a peculiar type of trap attached to their boat, instead of the nets commonly employed.

Fishermen of Malta are happy, now that the Allies dominate the Mediterranean. No longer do they have to fear the Axis aerial attacks to which they were subjected day after day before the rout of Rommel in Africa.

One Bit of Tough Detail That Smith Didn't Mind

Two men worked side by side in a War Production board office. They never spoke, but each watched the other. One man left work daily at four o'clock. The other toiled on till six or later.

Some months passed. Then the harder-working of the two approached the other.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "but do you mind telling me how you can clean up your work every day at four o'clock?"

"Not at all," said the other man. "When I come to a tough piece of detail, I mark it, 'Refer to Mr. Smith.' I figure that, in a department as large as this, there is sure to be a Mr. Smith. And I must be right; those papers never come back."

The harder worker started to remove his coat.

"Brother," he said, "prepare for action. I'm Mr. Smith."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Recapped tires will render satisfactory service—if the tire carcass is in good condition, good workmanship is exercised, inflation rules are observed and speed is kept to 35 mph. Have your tires recapped at a reliable shop.

Scientists have developed the fact that when a car is driven at 50 mph there is a centrifugal force of two tons trying to pull the tires apart.

That our standard of living is affected in many ways by the shortage of rubber will be appreciated when it is known that normally about 50,000 items were made with rubber.

CAN PEAS AND BEANS, TOO!

Peas . . . Some like them hot, some like them cold, but nearly everybody likes them canned, or so claims Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company. Not everybody likes green or "English" peas and that's all right because there are plenty other peas of different color and flavor.

All kinds of peas, lima beans, and butter beans are canned the same way. All should be picked and canned the very day the pods are full enough to be shelled. At that time they will be from small to medium size, tender and sweet.

Peas and beans begin to lose flavor and food value as soon as pulled from the vine and are likely to spoil if time is wasted between gathering, preparing, and canning.

Flat sour and all other spoilage can be avoided by paying strict attention to canning rules. Yes, Rules, they are as simple as this:

1. Check over jars and lids the day before the canning is done. If glass top seals or two-piece metal vacuum seals are to be used, examine the top edges of the jars—the slightest flaw may cause you to have to do work over. The same is true of the sealing surface of glass lids. If there is any doubt as to the tension of the wires on "lightning" jars, fill them with hot water, seal, let stand until cold, then hold upside down and examine for leaks. and don't forget to wash jars, caps and rubbers clean.

2. Use young, tender, freshly gathered vegetables—and they won't be fresh after being out of the garden all night.

3. Prepare no more than your canner will hold and not that many if the canner is large and the help small.

4. Wash the pods clean before shelling. Sorry, but dirt is the chief cause of spoilage, so rinse the peas or beans in clean, cool water after they are shelled.

5. Cover with hot water and cook from 3 to 10 minutes, depending upon size; then pour into the jars while boiling hot—this won't break jars that have been covered with lukewarm water, heated to boiling and kept hot until needed.

6. Leave about an inch space at the top when filling the jar: add ½ teaspoon salt to each pint. Pint jars are best for peas and shelled beans because the heat reaches the center of the pack more quickly but whether pints or quarts are used, be sure to have enough water to insure quick heating all the way to the center of the jar. Seal or partly seal jars, depending upon type used; then put into the canner as quickly as possible and process the correct length of time. Young, tender, green peas take 50 minutes; blackeyed and field peas, limas and butter beans are processed 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. If no pressure cooker is available, process (boil) 3½ hours in hot-water bath canner. Use the same time for pint and quart jars. Nothing larger than a quart is safe for canning non-acid vegetables.

The bacteria that cause spoilage in peas and beans thrive in the temperature that makes you say "Whew, ain't it hot in here!" The quicker you make it too hot for bacteria, the better. So, don't piddle around when canning vegetables or anything else for that matter. If you have no pressure cooker, use a water-bath canner (never an oven or a steamer for vegetables). And remember to boil beans and peas 15 minutes before tasting them—even if a pressure cooker is used—for about once in a million or so times, a toxin forms in non-acid foods. Such toxin can be destroyed by boiling. Failure to take this precaution has been known to cause serious illness. Reboil non-acid vegetables left over from one meal to another.

To use a water bath right: Have the water steaming hot and deep enough to cover the tops of the jars two or more inches when they are put into the canner. Get the water boiling as quickly as possible and keep it boiling steadily every minute of the time called for in the recipe. Take the jars out of the canner as soon as they have processed long enough; complete the seal on all jars that require it (all except two-piece vacuum seals should be partly sealed before and completely sealed after processing—the vacuum seals are sealed before only); stand the jars far apart on a cloth or folded newspaper to cool. Make sure every jar is sealed when put away for winter and, believe it or not, there will come a day when you will say "I didn't dream it possible that canned peas could taste so much like garden fresh ones."

Looking Ahead

Two Routes

Seven big Chinese coolies, each possessing 180 pounds of healthy brawn, youthful, intelligent and willing to do your bidding, ought to be worth $1 a week apiece in a good year to an enterprising employer. But if the prospective enterpriser by chance is a stranger in China he is likely to overpay them, any year. Not that there is anything wrong with the men; they simply can't produce anything marketable to meet the $7 weekly payroll.

In the United States any one of these big fellows, unable to read or speak English, could earn much more than the other six combined if they stayed in China. Now what is the difference and how did it happen? The Chinese people had 20 centuries to learn how to live before America was discovered. Asia has everything North America has, in the raw: coal, iron, oil, fertile fields and six times as many people to buy things.

A Chinaman's Chance

Did you ever hear the expression, "a Chinaman's chance" meaning no chance at all? It is not a serious exaggeration. The average Chinese has one chance in five to live through infancy, and one chance in 6,000 to own an automobile if he grows up. There is no incentive; no private enterprise in China, no reward for working, saving, thinking, investing or inventing. A man with money to use or an idea to develop does not have protection for industrial developments. Result: no progress for thousands of years.

In less than 500 years America has developed the most productive and profitable large-scale farming ever known. With machinery, one man tends 100 to 500 acres, depending on the crop. In other countries it takes no less than five men (sometimes 100) to cultivate such a farm. All of them have to live off the land, so they have accordingly less to sell. Thus Americans are known as the best fed people on Earth. Private Enterprise does it; more production per man.

Also in Factories

The American industrial worker earns more than the average of his craft anywhere else in the world, for the same reason: he produces more. American workmen produce more because they are more skillful, and because they have 4.5 installed, mechanical horsepower apiece to help them. This calls for investment, of course. The average investment required to make a job for one man in American industry is $8,000. Men are inspired to get skill because good jobs demand skill.

Opportunity to make money encourages people to invest their savings in what it takes to increase the yield per worker. Volume production is not "charity" on farms or in factories. It's good business. Management invests its stockholders' money in machinery and training for employees, to get (1) more output per worker and better paid workers, (2) less production cost per item and lower prices, (3) more sales and larger dividends.

Freedom to Prosper

Because the investments of American shareholders are protected by law, countless consumers of small means can afford things they now enjoy, things with which they live better than people who, in other countries, are called rich. Free Enterprise and Democracy go hand-in-hand; cannot be separated. Neither one could survive without the other. Our forefathers who knew Europe and its vicious oppressions, protected Free Enterprise in the American Constitution.

Free Enterprise is the right of every man to work (or trade) where he likes, save and invest according to his own judgment, run his business as he thinks wise, and take the consequences of gain or loss. Free enterprisers in this country include the big industrialists. They also include every farmer, every crossroads merchant and every laborer who has not pawned his birthright, his liberty to sell his skill in a free market.

Free Enterprise, the cornerstone of American prosperity, is now threatened. James A. Farley told a Mother's Day meeting in Washington that alien philosophies at home are threatening the freedoms for which U. S. soldiers fight overseas. They are threatened by government ownership of industry, just as they were threatened in the 1930's by a get-on-relief fad; by advocates of a "planned economy" and by apostles of "Thirty dollars every Thursday."

Two Ways Open

These philosophies are not dead. They will be revived at the end of the war. Two roads lie before us. We must take our choice. Shall we continue by way of Free Enterprise to standards of living higher even than we have known before; or permit ourselves to be misled by rattlebrain slogans like "Production for use, not for profit," and slide down through government ownership and State Socialism to the living standards of the Orient?

I think the American people like opportunity, incentive and progress such as the nation has thrived on since 1776. We don't want relief from the responsibility of leading our own lives. We don't want to swap independence for regimentation. We want to preserve Free Enterprise with its possibilities for progress and prosperity.

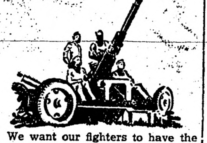
Round Up Range Horses

The bureau of animal industry says that there are 11 states of the Union known as western range states which round up range horses—namely, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Nevada, Wyoming, Oregon, California, Washington, Montana, Idaho and Utah. These horses are sold at auction under state laws.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Bofors anti-aircraft gun is designed for greater range and heavier calibre than the average anti-aircraft or rapid fire gun. They are mechanically intricate and more costly. The two-gun Bofors mount costs approximately $98,000 while a Bofors quad-mount runs up to $140,000.



We want our fighters to have the best equipment possible and your purchase of War Bonds will help pay for these guns, giving them an advantage over our enemies. Buy War Bonds every payday. At least ten percent of your income, or as much as you can buy will help pay the war cost, provide you with a nest egg for the future, and pay you good interest. U. S. Treasury Department

Farmers Uniom Picnic Report

The following report on the the Marshall County Farmers Union Picnic held at the Middle River State Park (Old Mill) was written for this paper by Jaroslav Kruta of Gatzke.

Charles D. Egley, St. Paul, spoke and he lashed out at the inefficiency of the capitalistic system. He pointed out the difference between the cooperative system and the capitlist system. Under a capitalist system the farmers and workers are unable to buy back those things which they produce, the result is a big surplus. When industry accumulates a suplus the results are a series of lay-offs, lock-outs and strikes.

In the cooperative system thru the payment of patronage dividends, the wealth is kept decentralized thereby keeping the purchasing power in the hands of the masses of people.

But our problems are not solved by just building a few local cooperatives. We must go all the way. We must have cooperatives from Producer to the Consumer.

If surpluses, as it is said, are the cause of unemployment and depressions then what a depression we will have after this war is over, for our ability to produce surpluses will be much greater. The many plants and labor saving machines which are now used for making of war equipment can be easily converted to making peacetime goods.

Mrs. Francis Kruta County Educational Director explained the Junior Reserve camp which was held at Thief River Falls.

Einer Kuuvinen, State President of the Farmers Union gave a short talk and urged the farmers to keep up the good work which they have started in the county.

Harry Brooker of Technocracy Inc., gave a short address, explaining the program of total conscription, featuring national service from all and profits to none.

The large crowd had a very good day and enjoyed the picnic.

$3,369,000 RACC Loans

Food, fiber and oil seed production for war on the farms of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and North Dakota has had the stimulus of $12,224,000 in RACC financing for the crop season of 1943.

With the planting season now practically over, 14,478 drafts have been paid to Minnesota farmers for a total of $3,260,000.

More than two-thirds of the $12,224,000 has been for such war-essential crops as potatoes, flax, canning crops, soy beans and beans, and was made in the form of "F-2 special advances". A feature of the "special advance" is that under certain circumstances liability for repayment ends when the borrower has applied the total income from the crop towards repayment, providing this was not enough to liquidate the debt.

The regular RACC or "F-1" loans, made for the production of the same crops, also include smaller amounts for other purposes directly connected with this year's production, such as purchase of essential machinery or essential minor structures such as corn cribs, grain bins, hog houses. The regular loans do not carry the special exemption from repayment.

Nelson-Gilbertson Wedding

Saturday evening at 7:00 o'clock, Miss Olga Nelson daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Knute Nelson became the bride of Tech. Cpl. Lyle Gilbertson of Camp Beale, California at a single ring ceremony held at the Nazareth Lutheran parsonage with Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiating.

Miss Gladys Nelson, sister of the bride, and Orville Ness were the attendents. The groom left on Tuesday evening for his Army duties where the bride will join him later.

About 35 young people from Nazareth Luther League attended the marshmallow roast in Tindolph Park on Saturday evening.

Has Big Cactus Collection

West St. Paul.—Approximately 800 cactus plants representing 15 years of collecting, are housed in the portable conservatory of John Haagr Varieties from North and South America, the Hawaiian Islands, West Indies and Africa. Some are very rare, such as "thrixanthocereus blessfexdiroum" once found in South America but no longer to be found there. Two plants from Africa known as "euphorbia obesa" are of a poisonous variety, the sap from which is used by natives to poison arrows used to kill enemies. Another cactus known as the "Sacred Mushroom" is the source of brilliant colors for dye used by Arizona Indians during tribal rites. Some of his plants are from 75 to 100 years old.

Sunday visitors at the Henry Nohre home were: Mrs. and Mrs. Ed Noto and family and Harriet Lufkin of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Fred Larson and Ludwik, Mrs. Bill Sorum and girls and Agnes Nohre.

The Marshall County Fair held at Warren last week was well attended despite the fact that no afternoon performance was held. The evening session last Tuesday had 4000 people on the grounds. Exhibits were good and the crowd enjoyed the fine shows that had been engaged for this fair.

Cautions for Home Canners

Housewives doing home canning with wartime jar caps are cautioned to follow implicitly the instructions of the cap manufacturers if they wish to avoid unhappy experiences and waste in their patriotic effort to conserve. Spoilage of food and breakage of jars is certain to result, if instructions are not followed to the letter.

Proper methods and careful canning will insure excellent results, more important in the present food situation than at any other time.

The Glass-Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap, a wartime product developed to conserve metal, requires careful use, according to the home service departments of fruit jar manufacturers. This cap consists of a metal band, glass lid and rubber ring. With these three widely varied materials making up its component parts, the cap must be used according to important but easily followed instructions. First of all, the cap is not recommended for, and must not be used in, oven canning.

If the food is processed (cooked in a jar), one inch of space must be left in the top of the jar when filled, in order to allow room for expansion. If an open kettle is used a half-inch of space must be left in the top of the jar.

The next step is to place the rubber around the projection on the bottom side of the lid, and the lid must then be placed so that the rubber lies between it and the top edge of the jar. All jars on which top-seal closures, either glass or metal, are used must have smooth-top edges.

The band is then applied tightly and immediately loosened slightly about one-quarter of a turn. Bands must fit loosely during the processing or cooking. If an open kettle is used, the bands are to be screwed tight as soon as the jar is filled. After the processing is completed the bands are screwed tight to complete the seal. The bands may be removed twelve hours after the canning operation. At no time should the filled jars be turned up-side-down.

The housewife who takes no chances on variance from any one of these simple but important steps is assured of success and the enjoyment of the delicious flavor of home canned foods this winter.—Adv.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

At a Navy yard, 3000 workers travel daily 60 to 85 miles round trip by automobile—a good reason why war workers must have tires.

Tire users now restricted because of the rubber shortage will have de luxe road traveling conditions open to them in post-war days if State and Federal highway plans materialize. Already twelve States have approved building express highways of tomorrow when peace comes. Seven others are considering such plans.

A truck tire that is overloaded 50 per cent will only deliver 44.5 per cent of its mileage expectancy.

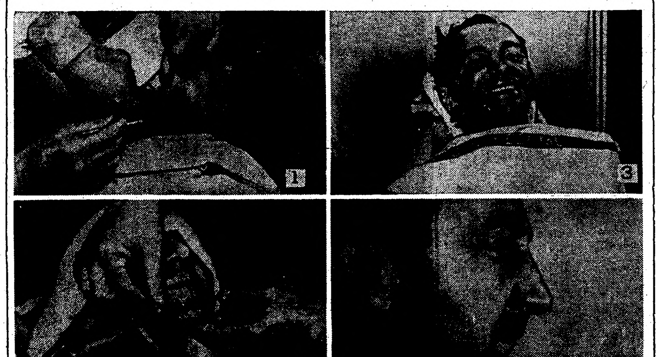
Training Cooks for the World's Best Fed Army

America prides itself on producing the best fed, best clothed, best equipped army in the world. Helping to maintain this standard are the schools for bakers and cooks. Left: At the Fort Sam Houston school students are learning to prepare coffee with a tripod and a Dixie Boiler. The men kneeling are heating dehydrated foods in their mess kits over the fire. Center: A student baker is adding shortening to other ingredients in the dough mixer. Bakers learn to operate movable and immovable equipment. Right: A typical doughboy samples the result of the school's training. Ninety per cent of the students who become expert cooks and bakers were not able to fry potatoes properly before entering training school.

Broken Jaws Can Now Chew Steak While Healing



Skeletal fixation of fractures of the mandible—that is the medical phrase for a new technique of setting broken jaws so that they can be used while healing. These pictures illustrating the method were made at a naval dental clinic. 1. After the X-ray shows the line of fracture a surgeon paints a line to indicate the position of the break. 2. A stout needle is screwed into the face. Three such pins are set in on both sides of the fracture line. 3. The pins are bridged by a strong steel rod which holds them tightly keeping the two parts of the jawbone together. 4. The patient, practically scarless, returns to his normal activities.

SMOKES and the SOLDIER

Is it true that a soldier is always hungry?

Yes—up to a point. But the Quartermaster Department has found that some soldiers, particularly new recruits, actually don't eat enough.

The Army mess table is exactly like a football team's training table. The food served there is carefully planned to aid in the physical development of the soldier. And the Army has discovered certain little ways to increase Johnny Doughboy's appetite.

The Army has found it can add to a soldier's enjoyment of his food—and therefore increase his consumption of all those carefully prepared vitamins, minerals, and proteins—if he is allowed to smoke during meals. Measured tests run by the Quartermaster's Department show that food consumption actually increased by 5% when soldiers were permitted to smoke cigarettes at the mess table.

"Smokes," of course, play a prominent part in many phases of the life of a soldier. Whenever you see a news photo of soldiers at ease, you're apt to see them enjoying a cigarette. Particularly among American troops overseas, cigarettes—real American cigarettes—are highly prized and almost never present in sufficient quantities.

What kind of cigarettes do Uncle Sam's fighting men prefer? Well, records show that the favorite cigarette is Camel. That is true not only with men in the Army, but with Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen as well. Sales records from the service men's own stores—Post Exchange, Sales Commissaries, Ship's Service Stores, Ship's Stores, and Canteens—show that Camels are first with men in all branches of the service.

Further proof that Uncle Sam's fighting men like their smokes is given in the service man's preference in gifts from home—it's a carton of his favorite brand of cigarettes. Tobacco dealers, recognizing that Camels are the favorite among service men, are equipped to help you in properly wrapping, addressing, and stamping your gift of Camels to the man in the service.—Adv.

And Nary a Drop Was Spilt Along the Way

A young Scottish couple had moved from their country cottage into a modern house. All their goods and chattels arrived safely—with exception of the rain tub.

After the wife had pleaded with her husband that this was an asset to her household, he said he would go and get it that evening.

As he had not arrived home at 12:30 a. m. his wife became worried. At 1:15 a. m. the back gate slammed and there was a dull thud. In a few seconds the door opened to reveal a dishevelled and perspiring man, who said:

"Ee, lass, 'A've 'ad job wit' toob. Thee didn't tell me it were full o' watter."

Furious Tank Battles Rage in Russia As Nazis Seek to Encircle Red Army; Farm Income Increased by Two Billion; Allied Victories Threaten Jap Bases

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

For meritorious work as commander and military governor of the Territory of Hawaii during the critical period after Pearl Harbor, Lieut.-Gen. Delos Emmons (extreme right) receives Distinguished Service medal from Secretary of War Henry Stimson (at extreme left). Brig.-Gen. H. B. Lewis (center) attended the ceremonies.

RUSSIA:
Blitz Again

Seeking to wipe out the big Russian bulge on the central front, 500,000 German soldiers continued their attacks at both ends of the bulge, with the objective of encircling the huge Red army from the rear.

At the southern extremity of the bulge near Belgorod, the Reds admitted that the Nazis had scored early gains. According to the Russians, the Germans were backing up their forces with masses of tanks and airplanes. In action was a new tank, bigger than the 60 - ton Mark VI.

From dispatches, the battle assumed the old lines of German blitzkreig. The Nazis concentrated their strength at certain points and then threw their whole weight against them. As their forces streamed through, the Russians moved to pinch off the tanks and infantry and isolate them from the main armies.

Although claiming success, the Germans said that the huge bulge still extended 85 miles to the west.

CONGRESS:
Adjourns for Recess

Capping its hectic deliberations with an agreement to give President Roosevelt a free hand in reducing retail food costs through subsidies, the 78th congress recessed for a summer vacation.

The session saw passage of notable legislation. For the first time, taxpayers were put on a current basis with the enactment of pay-as-you-go legislation. Approximately 130 billion dollars was appropriated.

The administration's authority to make lend-lease and reciprocal trade agreements was renewed, and permission was given for use of 2 billion dollars to stabilize foreign currencies.

President Roosevelt's limitation of wartime salaries to $25,000 was repealed. Spurred by the walkout of the nation's coal miners, anti-strike legislation was passed over a presidential veto. Although both houses took favorable action on the Commodity Credit corporation and agricultural department bills, they killed a senate proposal to raise the ceiling on corn to $1.40, and also voted to abolish crop insurance.

PACIFIC ADVANCE:
On 700 Mile Front

The languorous islands of the Southwest Pacific know peace no more.

Along a great arc of 700 miles, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's offensive continues to rage, with American troops menacing the Jap air base of Munda in the Solomons, and Allied troops pressing against Salamaua in New Guinea from three sides.

Trapped in the narrow Kula gulf, eight Japanese warships were reported sunk, sent to the bottom by a thunderous broadside from U. S. naval vessels.

By making two landings on New Georgia island, American troops closed in on Munda from the north and east. Finished by the Japs last December, this air base would give Allied fighters and bombers a springboard for attacking the great enemy naval and airplane center of Rabaul, between the Solomons and New Guinea.

Strafed and bombed by Allied airmen, Jap troops gave ground before advancing columns in the area south of Salamaua.

FARM INCOME:
Up by 2 Billion

Bolstered by a 36 per cent increase from marketing, farm income for the first five months of 1943 was up two billion dollars over last year.

Total income amounted to $6,788,000,000. Of this, $6,412,000,000 was gotten from marketing, while $376,000,000 was obtained in government payments.

The big increase from marketing was attributed to the larger returns from oil-bearing crops, tobacco, poultry and eggs. Substantial gains also were reported for all commodity groups.

The nation's heavy year-round demand for food was reflected in figures which showed that the increase in income from April to May was less than seasonal. Small increases resulted from marketing of vegetables, fruits and nuts and dairy products, among other crops.

MUNITIONS:
Need Great Quantities

Gigantic battles are in prospect and equally gigantic quantities of materials will be needed to achieve the victory, but the U. S. and Canada are equal to the task of supplying the Allied forces, Donald Nelson said in an address to the Canadian club.

Since the outbreak of the war, Nelson said, the two countries have turned out 115,000 airplanes, and before the end of the year, our capacity will be 112,000 annually.

More than 175,000 large caliber guns have been made, he continued, and more than 1,500,000 machine guns and 6,000,000 rifles have been produced. About 25 billion rounds of small arms ammunition—1,500 bullets to each Axis soldier—have been manufactured.

Close to 6,000 tanks, more than 1,600,000 trucks and nearly 70,000 scout and combat cars have rolled off the assembly line of the two nations, Nelson revealed. About 20 million tons of merchant shipping have left the ways, and production has now reached the rate of 22 million tons annually.

MEDITERRANEAN:
Europe Tense

Allied air action at both ends of the Mediterranean and large concentrations of Allied shipping in North Africa have heightened the tension in the Axis' European fortress.

The Germans were chiefly concerned with Allied activity in the Near East. They interpreted frequent flights of Allied bombers and reconnaissance planes over the Aegean islands as preparation for a big push against the Grecian mainland. American fliers have raided Axis air bases near Athens, and British Commandos landed on the main Aegean island of Crete to probe enemy defenses and strike at an airfield.

In North Africa, the Allies were said to have massed over 1,000,000 tons of shipping, heavily shepherded by battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers. Hundreds of Allied planes have been assembled for attack.

American and British bombers continued to pound Sicilian airdromes. Appearance of Axis fighter planes in force indicates that the enemy intends to challenge the Allies' occupation of Italy's neighboring islands.

Australian Aborigines

Although the white colonization of Australia began in 1788, the majority of its aborigines still do not know how to cultivate land, make clothes or build a shelter other than a windbreak, says Collier's. These people have always been looked upon as little more than animals. In fact, up to 40 years ago, a settler merely required a permit to "shoot, poison or otherwise kill" them at will.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO HOME CANNERS

The Glass Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap for Home Canning was developed as a Wartime product to conserve metal. It consists of a Metal Band, Glass Lid and Rubber Ring.

Because of the difference in the nature of these three materials this Cap must be used differently from any other fruit jar cap. If used properly it will give excellent results. If not used properly, results will be bad, including failure to seal and breakage of jars. Following are simple instructions for use of the Glass Top Seal Cap and must be followed carefully.

1. Do NOT use in Oven Canning.
2. If processing, (cooking in jar), leave 1 inch space in top of jar. If using open kettle, leave ½ inch space in top of jar.
3. Fit rubber around projection on bottom side of lid.
4. Place lid so rubber lies between lid and top edge of jar.
5. Turn bands tight, then loosen slightly (about ¼ turn). Bands must fit loosely during processing (cooking). This is Important and must be done to insure best results. If using Open Kettle, screw bands tight as soon as jar is filled.
6. After processing, screw bands tight to complete seal. Remove bands 12 hours after canning.

DO NOT TURN FILLED JARS UPSIDE DOWN

CAN PEAS AND BEANS, TOO!

Peas . . . Some like them hot, some like them cold, but nearly everybody likes them canned, or so claims Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company. Not everybody likes green or "English" peas and that's all right because there are plenty other peas of different color and flavor.

All kinds of peas, lima beans, and butter beans are canned the same way. All should be picked and canned the very day the pods are full enough to be shelled. At that time they will be from small to medium size, tender and sweet.

Peas and beans begin to lose flavor and food value as soon as pulled from the vine and are likely to spoil if time is wasted between gathering, preparing, and canning.

Flat sour and all other spoilage can be avoided by paying strict attention to canning rules, Yes, Rules, they are as simple as this:

1. Check over jars and lids the day before the canning is done. If glass top seals or two-piece metal vacuum seals are to be used, examine the top edges of the jars—the slightest flaw may cause you to have to do work over. The same is true of the sealing surface of glass lids. If there is any doubt as to the tension of the wires on "lightning" jars, fill them with hot water, seal, let stand until cold, then hold upside down and examine for leaks, and don't forget to wash jars, caps and rubbers clean.

2. Use young, tender, freshly gathered vegetables—and they won't be fresh after being out of the garden all night.

3. Prepare no more than your canner will hold and not that many if the canner is large and the help small.

4. Wash the pods clean before shelling. Sorry, but dirt is the chief cause of spoilage, so rinse the peas or beans in clean, cool water after they are shelled.

5. Cover with hot water and cook from 3 to 10 minutes, depending upon size; then pour into the jars while boiling hot—this won't break jars that have been covered with lukewarm water, heated to boiling and kept hot until needed.

6. Leave about an inch space at the top when filling the jar: add ½ teaspoon salt to each pint. Pint jars are best for peas and shelled beans because the heat reaches the center of the pack more quickly but whether pints or quarts are used, be sure to have enough water to insure quick heating all the way to the center of the jar. Seal or partly seal jars, depending upon type used; then put into the canner as quickly as possible and process the correct length of time. Young, tender, green peas take 50 minutes; blackeyed and field peas, limas and butter beans are processed 60 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. If no pressure cooker is available, process (boil) 3½ hours in hot-water bath canner. Use the same time for pint and quart jars. Nothing larger than a quart is safe for canning non-acid vegetables.

The bacteria that cause spoilage in peas and beans thrive in the temperature that makes you say "Whew, ain't it hot in here!" The quicker you make it too hot for bacteria, the better. So, don't piddle around when canning vegetables or anything else for that matter. If you have no pressure cooker, use a water-bath canner (never an oven or a steamer for vegetables). And remember to boil beans and peas 15 minutes before tasting them—even if a pressure cooker is used—for about once in a million or so times, a toxin forms in non-acid foods. Such toxin can be destroyed by boiling. Failure to take this precaution has been known to cause serious illness. Reboil non-acid vegetables left over from one meal to another.

To use a water bath right: Have the water steaming hot and deep enough to cover the tops of the jars two or more inches when they are put into the canner. Get the water boiling as quickly as possible and keep it boiling steadily every minute of the time called for in the recipe. Take the jars out of the canner as soon as they have processed long enough; complete the seal on all jars that require it (all except two-piece vacuum seals should be partly sealed before and completely sealed after processing—the vacuum seals are sealed before only); stand the jars far apart on a cloth or folded newspaper to cool. Make sure every jar is sealed when put away for winter and, believe it or not, there will come a day when you will say "I didn't dream it possible that canned peas could taste so much like garden fresh ones."

Looking Ahead

Rationing Red Tape

A young man of my acquaintance, after registering for draft with his local board, went approximately 1,000 miles from home and took a permanent job. Regulations require that such cases be transferred to a board near where the individual has moved. But the young man did not know the rules, so he wrote a letter to the board back home and asked permission to deal with the board nearest him. His request was refused! The board answered his letter and said it would be unlawful to grant his request.

The incident illustrates one of the gravest dangers of government by bureau, as contrasted with government by law. Bureaucrats themselves may become hopelessly entangled in meshes of red tape. Evidence has come to light recently which indicates that various boards (not just a few) are failing to follow instructions from Washington. Undoubtedly red tape is extensively to blame.

How Abuses Start

Rationing rules are especially complicated, due to the great variety of civilian needs. The regulations could not be simple and do what is expected of them. But people who work in ration board offices are only human. They like to do as they please and they are in positions of authority. Some of them probably find it a lot easier to make their own rules than to digest the printed matter that comes to them from higher-ups who are far away on the Potomac.

I have no doubt that employees of local boards imagine that what they do is all for the best; that their decisions in special cases are in harmony with the spirit of existing rulings. This, in fact, is the trouble with bureaucracy. Persons who have authority, which does not originate with the people they serve, often develop a frame of mind which makes them think whatever they do is right. Moreover, the authority of such rulers is rarely challenged unless some citizen makes a special effort to know his rights.

Ration Book Renewals

It is not yet common knowledge that an OPA regulation authorizes gasoline rationing boards to mail applications for coupons to holders of certain ration books before their rations expire, and sets up a plan for sending out new books by mail. Many local boards do not mail such forms prior to expiration, and refuse moreover to mail the coupons after the application has been completed. In short, they compel car owners to make two unnecessary trips for each ration book.

With farmers and their problems of transportation primarily in mind, I addressed some questions about renewal of gasoline ration books several weeks ago to Mr. Prentiss Brown, head of the OPA, and more recently had a reply from his office signed by John R. Richards, head of the gasoline rationing branch. The letter is long. It goes into satisfactory detail. But it adds up to this: Farmers no longer have to visit their local War Price and Rationing Boards in person four times a year for each truck and twice a year for every other vehicle they own that is run by a gasoline engine.

Fewer Motor Trips

Holders of Certificates of War Necessity for trucks have to present them at least once, subsequent to last March 2 when Amendment 25 took effect, but once is usually all. Regulations now authorize rationing boards to mail application forms to most holders of gasoline ration books before the rations expire, and provide methods whereby coupons may be obtained by mail. This applies to holders of B, C, E, R and sometimes T ration books.

This is no small matter. There are 5.7 million automobiles and trucks (not counting tractors) on farms of the United States and it is safe to say that farmers live, on the average, more than five miles from the closest ration board office. One trip to the ration board and back home can be called ten miles per motoring farmer. For 5.7 million farm cars and trucks, that's 57 million miles. Multiply this by four times a year and you have 228 million miles. Such travel is the equivalent of sending 500 automobiles (getting 20 miles per gallon of gasoline) on an unnecessary trip to the moon and back over gravel roads.

The Farmer's Time

Time wasted by more than half of America's ten million farmers, going back and forth to the ration boards and waiting in line, is an unknown quantity but a big one. Even if such trips required only half-a-day apiece four times a year for each car, the sum total of time lost would exceed ten million days; about a year's work for 30,000 farmers. Such a saving of time can't help but make a difference in food production.

What is more valuable than farm work? It is not rationed but it is as essential to the war effort as rubber or motor fuel in this crucial year of food shortages and price ceilings. The brain which conceived the idea of having every farmer with a car call in person at his ration board office four times a year was helping the Axis, maybe not intentionally. We can be thankful that one more bureaucratic blunder has been corrected.

What The Butter Rollback Means To Farmers And Consumers

UNDER PRESENT PLANS, civilians are allowed 12 pounds of butter a year. The rollback of 5c per lb., therefore, saves each person only 60c a year.

AUTHORITIES say that the rollback on average purchases of meat, butter and coffee saves each American only $3.92, based on food allowable under the ration plan. Yet, the subsidy-rollback will cost each American many times more than that amount, due to interest, administration costs, etc. Check up yourself! See, how much money the rollback saves you!

IT LOOKS to us as though subsidies merely postpone paying the nation's grocery bill--and then both farmers and consumers will get bigger bills.

LAND O'LAKES feels that it is an obligation and a duty to call such facts to the attention of government officials, not only for the good of our members, but for better public understanding of the northwest dairy indurstry.

News Selected By Rap. Hagen

Washington, D. C., The Holt Weekly News has been selected as one of 60 publications through which Congressman Harold C. Hagen expects to keep his finger on the pulse of public opinion and activities in Minnesota's ninth Congressional district.

The Crookston U. S. Representative serving his initial term in Congress after an eight-year apprenticeship as secretary to Congressman R. T. Buckler, said that he is subscribing to all of the 9th District newspapers in order to keep fully informed of the views of his constituents and the problems of each community.

"I hnow of no better way than this" said Hagen "to guide me in the decisions that will be required during this critical session of Congress. Certainly, the news papers reflect the true thoughts of the people on public questions"

When he has finished reading the papers, one or two evenings at home, the Congressman will file them in a permanent library in his office, where Minnesotans visiting in Washington will find them conveniently avaiable.

Contingent Will Begin Service

Another group of Marshall county men, who have satisfactorily passed military physical examinations will report in Warren on Tuesday, August 3rd at 8:00 a. m. from where they will be transported to Fort Snelling to begin their military training.

Among those selected are several young married men. The group took their examinations at Fort Snelling two weeks ago and are winding up their three weeks furlough at their homes, preceding their induction.

The navy will receive William E. Fay of Stephen and Juel C. Wold of Grygla, while the following will be assigned to the U. S. Army service:

Robert Palmer, Warren, (acting corporal).
Raymond A. Sagstuen, Holt.
George Rannels, Oslo.

HEALTH HINTS for LIVESTOCK

PREPARED BY AMERICAN FOUNDATION FOR ANIMAL HEALTH

VITAMINS AND ANIMAL DISEASES

Another great contribution to man's fight against livestock diseases is the great volume of knowledge that is rapidly accumulating with relation to vitamins and their bearing on animal health.

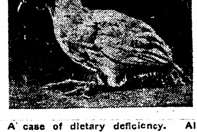
Many diseases which formerly were classed as due to unknown causes are now quickly recognized by veterinaians as due to dietary deficiencies.

For example, a few years ago thousands of young dairy calves died in convulsions during the winter months, from an unknown cause. Today we know that this trouble is largely due to lack of vitamin D (the anti-rickets vitamin), and that a supply of green, leafy alfalfa hay and clover will usually prevent such trouble.

Blacktongue, the fatal dog disease so common in the Southern states, has been identified as a lack of life-giving vitamin G,—and some veterinary authorities feel that this particular vitamin is also related to outbreaks of enteritis or bowel disease in swine.

A brain trouble of baby chicks known as "crazy chick disease" has been traced to a deficiency of vitamin E—the anti-sterility vitamin—while a peculiar trouble involving the corners of the beak in young chicks is blamed on lack of a certain vitamin element known as the anti-chick dermatitis factor. Running fits of young dogs are said to be due to a prolonged lack of vitamin B-1, while the so-called "cotton seed" poisoning so often noted in long-fed steers has definitely been classified as vitamin A deficiency and is corrected by a supply of suitable legume hay. Night blindness in animals is also associated with this vitamin, as is resistance of new-born animals to lung and intestinal infections.

But the complexity of all this late knowledge of vitamins and their disease relationship is so complicated that counsel of a skilled veterinarian is essential in attempting to diagnose any of the nutritional diseases. Some diseases mistakenly thought to be due to lack of certain vitamins are, in reality, mineral deficiencies and vice-versa. Likewise, some of the infectious diseases, for example, swamp fever of horses, closely resemble nutritional deficiencies.



A case of dietary deficiency. All types of livestock and poultry need a balanced diet if they are to thrive.

Deferment For 30 Days

Deferment for 30 days of military selectees called to report during the period from July 26 to August 26, in addition to the regular 21-day furlough, for all those who accept work in corn canning plants or harvesting of essential crops, was announced this week at state Selective Service headquarters in Saint Paul. Local boards were being notified it was stated by Col. Norman D. Dean, occupational advisor on the state office staff, after a telephone conference with Col. J. E. Nelson, state director, at Washington. Col. Nelson, has been at the national capitol this week.

Col. Nelson ordered the deferment after the seriousness of the farm help situation had been presented to him by Frank M. Rarig, Jr., regional director for the War Manpower Commission, George A. Selke, state WMC director, Paul E. Millers, in charge of the Emergency Farm Help Program in the state, L. B. Ryan, state USES director and others.

The effect of the new order is to continue, for another 30 days, a special deferment that was ordered early in June, and in addition give added farm help to the deferred category.

Under the order, any selectee ordered to report for induction for the 30-day period beginning July 26, will be deferred by his local board, if he obtains a harvest job or work in a cannery.

Three Hurt In Car Accident

While driving to Hazel Saturday evening, George and Marilyn Wegge, Harlan Gunheim, Jerome Sorum and Betty Urdahl of Hazel figured in a car smashup when Anton Peterson of Hazel, going in the same direction, turned off the highway right in front of them as they were about to pass his car. They had been in Thief River Falls and were taking Miss Urdahl and another girl home to Hazel when the accident happened two miles south of Thief River Falls. Marilyn received a broken wrist on her right arm and Jerome had to have several stitches taken in his scalp. Miss Urdahl also was cut. The Wegge model A Ford received the hardest damage in the accident.

Hilmer Davidson, local well driller, sank a well on the Alf Movick farm last week but had to quit at the 160 foot level due to shortage of casing. The past week he has drilled several wells in the vicinity of Wannaaka. When he returns from there he will overhall the well on the Searls farm near Middle River and come back and finish the well for Mr. Movick.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Peterson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Larson and Kenneth and Ruth were blueberrying near Gatzke on Sunday.

7. How long did federal prohibition last in the United States?
8. What is the approximate civilian population of Alaska?
9. Are the depths of the earth's oceans greater than the heights of her peaks?
10. Which President has vetoed the most bills?

The Answers

1. The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes is in Alaska.
2. Oklahoma.
3. The chemical symbol for gold is Au.
4. Sadist.
5. "The Masked Ball."
6. Dispersion of light.
7. Thirteen years.
8. Approximately 72,000.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Millions of wild Hevea seeds from Brazil have been sent to neighboring countries and as far north as Central America in the extensive program under way to encourage rubber development in the Western hemisphere. Congress appropriated $500,000 in 1940 to stimulate rubber planting in the Americas.

India rubber pontons and ponton boats were used by the U. S. government 100 years ago. They were made of coated canvas in three compartments, each inflated by a separate tube. They were inflated by a hand bellows and collapsed and sank with the slightest leak.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

FDR, Churchill Seek Italy's Surrender As Allies Smash at Sicily Resistance; MacArthur Forces Gain in New Guinea; Farmers Get First Call on Gas Stocks

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Seabees are shown about to board a transport somewhere in Australia for duty in a combat zone. A naval band gives the men a lively sendoff. Although performing construction work, Seabees are also trained to protect themselves against attack.

SICILY:
'The Hour Has Come'

Axis resistance on Sicily stiffened as Gen. Bernard Montgomery's British 8th army moved on the big port of Catania, which is 55 miles from the terminus of Messina, where but two miles of water separate the island from the Italian mainland.

As the battle of Sicily raged, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill told the Italian people the hour had come to honorably capitulate.

While British troops clattered toward the great plains which roll around Catania, Gen. George S. Patton's 7th American army fought its way into the area of Vizzini, from which the British flank can be covered or an assault sprung toward the Axis rear.

Hundreds of Allied paratroopers continued to be dropped behind the enemy's lines near Catania. To the front, the 8th army recovered from a heavy Axis blow with which they had driven into Montgomery's base at Augusta before being repelled.

FUEL:
Gas for Farmers

Predicting a tightening of the supply of crude oil in the West, the Petroleum Administration for War took steps to provide sufficient gasoline for farmers throughout the country by giving them first call on available stocks.

According to WAP, farmers are using about 100,000 barrels of motor fuel daily, 90 per cent of which is being consumed outside of the East. About 70,000 barrels are required in the Middlewest.

As the WAP made its announcement, the big-inch pipe line running from Norris, Ill., to the East was opened. Eventually the line will pump 300,000 barrels of crude daily, thus draining the West of supplies that had previously abounded because of a lack of transportation facilities.

Meanwhile, the oil industry continued alarmed by the drop in oil reserves, partly caused, spokesmen said, because of a virtual cessation of exploratory drilling as a result of prices for crude. Between 50 to 60 billion barrels of new oil will have to be discovered within the next 20 years, it is said, to maintain present production.

RUSSIA:
Giants Locked

Rain drenched the sprawling Ukrainian plains around Belgorod, hindering mechanized activity on the south end of the flaming Russian front, but Red armies attacked in force above the northern pivot of Orel, extending the battlefield to 225 miles.

Both the Germans and the Russians were agreed on one thing: the great number of men being used on both sides. Around Orel, the Nazis admitted that the Reds had broken their lines at two points, but had been driven back in counter-attacks.

Heavy ground action at Orel was supplemented by strong Russian aerial action. Red bombers blasted the principal railway installations of the town, from which the Russian lines bend southward in a great arc, thus offering the Germans a pivot for encirclement from the rear.

PACIFIC:
New Guinea Victory

With the fall of Mubo, the big Japanese base of Salamaua in New Guinea lay in peril of capture by Australian and American forces operating from all sides.

Mubo fell about two weeks after the start of General MacArthur's Pacific offensive. American troops had landed on Nassau bay to the east of the town, and then marched into the interior to cut off Japanese forces from the rear and effect a junction with the Australians. At the same time, Allied soldiers attacked the enemy's main lines, and thus, completely enveloped on all sides, Mubo was overrun.

The Allied success at Mubo came as American troops pressed closer to the Japanese air base of Munda on New Georgia island. Approaching the stronghold from the north and east, doughboys worked cautiously through jungle foliage to gain ground. Squeezed, the enemy launched one counterattack, but withdrew fire after being stopped.

CANNED GOODS:
Cut Civilians' Share

Already rationed, canned fruits, vegetables and soup supplies for civilians will be cut another 15 per cent in the next 12 months, the War Food administration announced. Of the prospective pack of vegetables and soups, domestic consumers will get 70 per cent, and of canned fruits and juices, they will receive 53 per cent.

The total supply of canned vegetables and soups in the next year is expected to total 262,000,000 cases. Of this amount, civilians will be allotted approximately 180,000,000. The War Services will obtain practically all of the remainder, with about 4 per cent going to the Allies and other purposes.

About 61,000,000 cases of canned fruits and juices, excluding citrus, will be produced, WFA estimated, and of this supply, civilians will be allowed approximately 31,000,000 cases. Approximately 24,000,000 cases will be allotted to the services, with the remainder marked for the Allies and export.

FOREIGN DEBTS:
Mexico, Canada Pay

An improvement in financial conditions arising from the stimulation of the war was noted in the action of the Mexican and Canadian governments in announcing plans for the discharge of their debt obligations.

For the first time in years, Mexico resumed payment on 15 issues of national debt, excluding all railroad bonds except the Tehuantepec National railway 5 and 4½ per cents. Annual distributions on the issues will amount to only $2,050,000, however, on a total Mexican debt of 1 billion 200 million dollars, including back interest.

Last December, the Mexican congress ratified an agreement to pay 40 million dollars in settlement of all U. S. claims except for expropriated oil property.

Canada's improved financial condition was reflected in its redemption and prior payment on 106 million dollars of bonds.

CABINET:
FDR Restores Order

Hereafter, if any administrative heads in Washington are in conflict over fact or policy, they must resolve their differences quietly or else turn in their resignations. That, in short, was the ultimatum President Roosevelt laid down after Henry Wallace had charged Jesse Jones with interfering with the operations of the Board of Economic Warfare, which Wallace headed.

The President solved the Wallace-Jones fracas by abolishing the BEW and establishing the Office of Economic Warfare and then appointing as its director Leo T. Crowley, alien property custodian and chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

The action relieved both Wallace and Jones of direction in the government's purchase of foreign materials. Previously, the two agencies had shared in the program, with the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which Jones heads, supplying the funds for the buying.

OPA:
Raps 'Bright Boys'

Declaring the best thing that could happen to the Office of Price Administration would be a reduction of 50 per cent in its staff of 2,700 attorneys, Lou R. Maxon, deputy administrator of OPA, turned in his resignation.

Maxon's withdrawal came at a time when he was being prominently mentioned as a general manager for the OPA, a job later given to Chester Bowles, a New York advertising executive. He complained of the government's failure to establish a definite food program, charging that instead of working out a set policy, the administration was meeting each crisis with a makeshift compromise, thus creating the basis of another crisis. Price Administrator Brown replied that OPA had a definite policy in "roll-backs" to reduce retail costs to September, 1942, levels.

A Detroit, Mich., advertising executive, Maxon flailed OPA "theorists" and "professors" for attempting to institute a grade labeling program for goods, which would eliminate all trade marks and brands and have the effect of eliminating competitive merchandising.

CATTLE:
Marketing Increases

Marketing of cattle increased in the face of talk in Washington that the OPA was considering establishing ceilings on livestock to break the speculative angle of growers and spur liquidation of herds. Plans also called for modifying the government's support price of $13.75 for hogs, to discourage feeding for heavy porkers.

Calves scarce in market.

Although cattle marketings increased over recent abnormally low levels, supplies still were well below last year's runs. Calves remained exceptionally scarce. Continued heavy shipments of hogs and sheep, however, bolstered the over-all meat production.

OPA's plans for livestock ceilings have been bitterly contested by congressional farm spokesmen, meat packers and cattle raisers. Under the present system of setting wholesale ceilings, small packers have found difficulty operating since no bar has been set on prices paid for stock.

BANKING:
Deposits Rise

The extent to which banks are financing the war was illustrated in the announcement that the investment in government securities by 20 of the nation's largest banks approximated 18 billion dollars on June 30, an increase of 7 billion dollars from a year earlier.

The announcement also revealed that the 20 institutions had total deposits of 31 billion dollars on June 30, a rise of six billion dollars over 1942. Total resources amounted to 33 billion 700 million dollars.

GREAT BRITAIN:
Discuss Post-War

Growing American seapower and the administration of neutral colonies after the war were subjects of lengthy discussion in Great Britain.

Laborite Emanuel Shinwell said that the end of the war will find the U. S. with a merchant marine of 30 million tons against Britain's 9 million tons. He proposed the organization of an Anglo-American board to regulate shipping in the post-war world.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

INFLUENZA: Navy physicians have developed a serum which they hope will prevent influenza. Tests on white mice have been 90 per cent successful.

GERM WARFARE: Spreading deadly disease germs by bombing or any other means is not a practical offensive weapon, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

BARGES: The first of 100 new tugboats, built to tow oil tankers along the Atlantic coast, is on its way south from Boston to pick up its first load.

WHEAT: Feeders and grain merchants are bidding vigorously for the final allotment of wheat to be released by the Commodity Credit corporation this year, amounting to 215 million bushels.

ON THE HOME FRONT
with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IF YOU are furnishing a combination living and dining room with odds and ends from the family attic why not use paint and inexpensive fabrics to harmonize unrelated pieces?

Here a combination chest and dish cupboard has been made from an old dresser. The cupboard at the lower right sits on top of the dresser and a quarter round molding nailed to the dresser top holds plates in place. Both dresser and chairs are painted cream color and quaint Dutch designs in gay colors are stenciled on them. The chair seat covers repeat the colors in these designs. Pieces of the cracked mirror of the old dresser are cut to fit painted picture frames and typical Dutch tulip designs are stenciled on the glass.

Why Bother About Cat When Meat Is at Hand?

Mrs. Bronson was perturbed to find that the three pounds of meat she had bought had disappeared. Her husband, helping in the search, noticed what he took to be a guilty look on the family cat's face, and pointed to her and said, "There's your meat."

"Why, no," objected Mrs. Bronson, "that little thing couldn't get away with all that meat."

"Well, let's weigh her and see," suggested the husband.

They did so. The scales registered exactly three pounds.

"Yes," admitted Mrs. Bronson, "there's the meat all right, but where's the cat?"

MEAT GOES FAR WITH ALL-BRAN "BRANBURGERS"

Here's a new way to serve that old favorite, the hamburger. Make it with KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN to stretch the meat supply, to give the popular hamburger new interest, and to get ALL-BRAN'S nutritional benefits—valuable proteins, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals.

Kellogg's All-Bran Branburgers

1 egg
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 cup milk
¼ cup catsup
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
1 pound ground beef

Beat egg slightly, add salt, pepper, onion, parsley, milk, catsup and All-Bran. Let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Add beef and mix thoroughly. Shape into 12 patties. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) about 30 minutes or broil about 20 minutes.

Yield: 6 servings (12 2½ inch branburgers.)

Coffee Most Adulterated Of Foods Generation Ago

Up to a generation ago, coffee was subjected to more adulteration than almost any other article of food, says Collier's. Among the spurious substances used were the roasted and ground roots of the dandelion, carrot, parsnip and beet; grains of wheat and rice; seeds of lupine, the broom, fenugreek and iris; and chicory, acorns and soybeans.

There was even a molding machine that made "coffee beans" from a mixture of flour and molasses.

Amazon's Secret

Three French explorers, lately returned from Brazil, claim to have traced the source of the Amazon to the Nilcocha glacier in the Andes, at a height of 18,000 feet.

From an old French word "mes" derived from the Latin word "missus" meaning a course at a meal, comes the Army's name "mess" for its breakfast, dinner and supper. Favorite meal with the soldier is chicken dinner—his favorite cigarette, Camel. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) A carton of Camels, by the way, is a gift that's always welcome. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. Listen to Morgenthau-Marshall Tell Power of Payroll Savings!

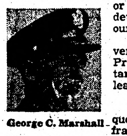
Washington, D. C.—How important is the average worker's war bond purchases out of his pay every payday in the grand strategy of the Allied High Command? Does the extent of his or her War Bond allotment have a part in determining when, where and the strength of our military blows?



George C. Marshall

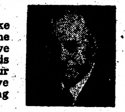
Any worker listening in on a recent conversation between General George C. Marshall, President Roosevelt's Chief of Staff, and Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., learned the answers to these questions.

Said General Marshall:

"Mr. Secretary, I want you to answer a question for me and to answer it with complete frankness. Can we military leaders plan to fight this war in an orderly way—in the surest and most effective manner—or must we take extraordinary risks for fear the money will not hold out?"

Replied Secretary Morgenthau:

"General, the American public will take care of that. What they have done in the Second War Loan drive—the money they have produced and the spirit they have shown—is proof enough for me that they will not let our fighters suffer from lack of support until we achieve complete victory, no matter how long that may be nor how much it may cost."



Henry Morgenthau, Jr.

Looking Ahead

Rationing Red Tape

A young man of my acquaintance, after registering for draft with his local board, went approximately 1,000 miles from home and took a permanent job. Regulations require that such cases be transferred to a board near where the individual has moved. But the young man did not know the rules, so he wrote a letter to the board back home and asked permission to deal with the board nearest him. His request was refused! The board answered his letter and said it would be unlawful to grant his request.

The incident illustrates one of the gravest dangers of government by bureau, as contrasted with government by law. Bureaucrats themselves may become hopelessly entangled in meshes of red tape. Evidence has come to light recently which indicates that various boards (not just a few) are failing to follow instructions from Washington. Undoubtedly red tape is extensively to blame.

How Abuses Start

Rationing rules are especially complicated, due to the great variety of civilian needs. The regulations could not be simple and do what is expected of them. But people who work in ration board offices are only human. They like to do as they please and they are in positions of authority. Some of them probably find it a lot easier to make their own rules than to digest the printed matter that comes to them from higher-ups who are far away on the Potomac.

I have no doubt that employees of local boards imagine that what they do is all for the best; that their decisions in special cases are in harmony with the spirit of existing rulings. This, in fact, is the trouble with bureaucracy. Persons who have authority, which does not originate with the people they serve, often develop a frame of mind which makes them think whatever they do is right. Moreover, the authority of such rulers is rarely challenged unless some citizen makes a special effort to know his rights.

Ration Book Renewals

It is not yet common knowledge that an OPA regulation authorizes gasoline rationing boards to mail applications for coupons to holders of certain ration books before their rations expire, and sets up a plan for sending out new books by mail. Many local boards do not mail such forms prior to expiration, and refuse moreover to mail the coupons after the application has been completed. In short, they compel car owners to make two unnecessary trips for each ration book.

With farmers and their problems of transportation primarily in mind, I addressed some questions about renewal of gasoline ration books several weeks ago to Mr. Prentiss Brown, head of the OPA, and more recently had a reply from his office signed by John R. Richards, head of the gasoline rationing branch. The letter is long. It goes into satisfactory detail. But it adds up to this: Farmers no longer have to visit their local War Price and Rationing Boards in person four times a year for each truck and twice a year for every other vehicle they own that is run by a gasoline engine.

Fewer Motor Trips

Holders of Certificates of War Necessity for trucks have to present them at least once, subsequent to last March 2 when Amendment 25 took effect, but once is usually all. Regulations now authorize rationing boards to mail application forms to most holders of gasoline ration books before the rations expire, and provide methods whereby coupons may be obtained by mail. This applies to holders of B, C, E, R and sometimes T ration books.

This is no small matter. There are 5.7 million automobiles and trucks (not counting tractors) on farms of the United States and it is safe to say that farmers live, on the average, more than five miles from the closest ration board office. One trip to the ration board and back home can be called ten miles per motoring farmer. For 5.7 million farm cars and trucks, that's 57 million miles. Multiply this by four times a year and you have 228 million miles. Such travel is the equivalent of sending 500 automobiles (getting 20 miles per gallon of gasoline) on an unnecessary trip to the moon and back over gravel roads.

The Farmer's Time

Time wasted by more than half of America's ten million farmers, going back and forth to the ration boards and waiting in line, is an unknown quantity but a big one. Even if such trips required only half-a-day apiece four times a year for each car, the sum total of time lost would exceed ten million days; about a year's work for 30,000 farmers. Such a saving of time can't help but make a difference in food production.

What is more valuable than farm work? It is not rationed but it is as essential to the war effort as rubber or motor fuel in this crucial year of food shortages and price ceilings. The brain which conceived the idea of having every farmer with a car call in person at his ration board office four times a year was helping the Axis, maybe not intentionally. We can be thankful that one more bureaucratic blunder has been corrected.

CREAMERY EQUIPMENT SUPPLY PROBLEM SOLVED!

WOULDEN'T THAT BE WONDRFUL news? Unfortunately, with existing conditions, priorities and necessary government regulations, one of the biggest problems a creamery operator has is to obtain new and essential equipment for his plant.

OF COURSE, NO ONE can work miracles, but creameries have found that by working through Land O'Lakes supply and equipment departments, many of thiir supply prablems have been selved. Expert advice, up-to-date knowledge of existing regulations, and technical knowledge of creamery problems do much to help creameries solve their wartime production problems.

THERE ARE BIG ADVANTAGES in making creamery equipment purchases through Land O'Lakes supply department. The advice and help with wartime regulations is free—prices are reasonable—and dividends are paid on the basis of purchases.

PROGRESSIVE norshwest creameries are invited to investigate this up-to-date service. It is made possible because of Land O'Lakes cooperative efforts for the good of the entire dairy industry.

F. A. Brown New President

All major offices of the Northwestern Minnesota Association of Conservation clubs for 1943 will be held by Marshall county sportsmen, as a result of action taken by delegates at the annual convention held in Thief River River Falls on Monday, July 26.

Ferdie A. Brown, Grygla postmaster, was elected president of the organization with William T. Larson, Oslo, vice president and Harry Sailor of Warren as the secretary-treasurer. Mr. Oscar Schenkey of Middle River was elected as marshall county's director, each county in the group naming one director of the advisory board.

Among the resolutions adopted was one recommending that there be no open season on Pinnated or Sharptailed Grouse this year, thereby giving the bird population an opportunity to increase in numbers.

Mrs. Oppegaard, Mrs. Backlund and Mrs. Hanson called on Mrs. Paul Olson Wednesday evening of last week.

Mrs. O. Backlund, Mrs. O. B. Johnson, Mrs. Nettie Peterson, Mrs. L. Wegge, Mrs. J. Hagberg and Mrs. O. T. Ness were entertained by Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Oppegaard.

IF YOU HAVE NO CANNER, MAKE ONE

"All authorities on home canning advise that non-acid vegetables be canned by processing (cooking in jars) in a steam pressure cooker because a pressure cooker is the only household utensil that can retain a much hotter than boiling temperature. High temperatures are desirable when canning beans, peas, corn, greens, etc., because they insure more certain destruction of bacteria and because the canning can be done more quickly. But," says Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, who heartily approves using a pressure cooker whenever possible, "the time is at hand when we must be practical. Don't worry if you can't buy a pressure cooker for surely you can find a wash boiler, lard can, baby bath tub or some deep container in which water can be boiled. Tack a few strips of wood together to make a rack or platform to hold the jars about one-half inch from the bottom of the container. Find something, even if it has to be a board, to use as a lid. Then you will have a water-bath canner for those Victory garden vegetables.

"You are afraid to eat vegetables canned that way? Nonsense! A lot of folks who say a water bath can't be used were raised on vegetables canned by that method. But let's get three things clear before we go any further: first, there have been a few instances of poisoning from eating canned vegetables; second, all such danger can be avoided by boiling the canned vegetables 15 minutes before tasting or serving—they should be re-boiled before serving if left from one meal to the next; third, a pressure cooker is not a guarantee against spoilage. There will be spoilage if the pressure gauge registers too low or if poor judgment is used in the selection, preparation, and packing of food into the jars. And don't let anybody tell you otherwise.

"Now, back to the water bath. The water should be steaming but not boiling when the jars are lowered into it and deep enough to cover the tops of the jars two or more inches. No, water won't get into the jars if directions are followed. The water should be brought to boiling as quickly as possible and kept boiling steadily throughout the canning period.

"Any jar suitable for use in home canning (and only those with names lettered on them are suitable) may be used for water-bath processing. Mason jars may be sealed with one-piece zinc cap and rubber—if you can find the caps—with glass top seal, or with two-piece vacuum seal caps. Glass top seal closures and vacuum caps seal on the top edge of the jar, therefore it is necessary to make sure the top edges of the jars are even, smooth, and perfect in every respect. The bands are screwed down tight on the vacuum seals as soon as the jars are filled to within from one to one-half inch of the top, and should not be tightened again. Zinc caps are screwed down on the rubber and then loosened slightly. Bands for glass top seals are screwed down and then loosened. This tightening and loosening is called 'partly sealing' and should always be done before jars are placed in a canner. Seals are completed by tightening caps or bands immediately after processing.

"Then there is the jar with a glass lid and rubber ring held in place with wires—it is ideal for canning, especially when fitted with high-tension, stretch-proof, steel wire. It is partly sealed before and completely sealed after processing.

"Those who select vegetables that are young, tender, and right out of the garden, and waste no time in washing them clean, cooking them five to ten minutes, and pouring into clean, hot jars and processing immediately, will live to laugh at those who say it can't be done. It is the Cans, not the Can'ts, who are going to win the war on both home and battle front."

Lookout For Chick Disease

Coccidiosis disease is now showing up in late May and June chicks, according to County Agent R. A. Reierson who points out that this highly fatal disease generally affects birds ranging from two to twelve weeks of age. Because prevention is the only practical method of combatting coccidiosis, he urges poultry raisers to move brooderhouses to clean ground and destroy all the affected birds.

Full protection can be provided, according to the division of veterinary medecine at University Farm, by putting the birds on wire, ½ to 1 inch mesh, raised about one foot from the floor, or by putting the birds on deep litter, 2 to 3 inches deep, and to change the litter every third day. Damp litter should be changed more often and floors should be washed with hot lye solution at each change.

In addition to these measures, young birds should receive all of the skim milk or buttermilk they will consume along with their regular mash. If these are not available, powdered milk or buttermilk can be added so that it makes up 40 percent of the regular mash. Chicks should be returned to their previons rations after a week or ten days, and carcasses of all dead birds should be burned or buried several feet deep.

University Farm verteinarians point out that regular cleaning of the floor litter prevents the birds from picking up the small animal parasites that cause the disease. Affected birds give off in their droppings the immature forms of the parasites. These become fully developed after being exposed to atmospheric conditions for two or three days. Addition of buttermilk or skim milk or powdered buttermilk provides the birds with an easily digestable, nutritious food during this critical period.

Bloody droppings or a bloody diarrhea is the most common characteristic of the disease. Parasites live in infected soil from one year to the next, and spread easily from farm to farm.

Rev. and Mrs. Edward Folden and son of Spring Grove visited visited over the week end at the home of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Folden. They are moving from Spring Crove to Boston, Mass., immediately upon their return there.

They were accompanied here by Mrs. Thomas Trehus and son of Spring Grove. Mrs. Folden is a daughter of Mrs. Trehus.

Mrs. Martha Oppegaard left last Thursday for Ortonville, Minnesota, where she will visit at the home of her daughter before returning to her home at Minneapolis. She has visited at the home of her son-in-law and daughter Rev. and Mrs. Hanson the past month.

Mr. and Mrs. Rangvald Olson and family of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Ness and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Silverness and son of Newfolden, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Reierson and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Uleland and daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ness gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nils Ness on Sunday afternoon to help Mr. Ness celebrate his 63rd birthday which is August 4th. Lunch was served, the main feature being a birthday cake. As a birthday gift the sons and daughters presented their Dad with a cash purse.

On The Minnesota Farm Front

Last spring it was predicted that if the farmer could get his crop planted, the American public would not let it rot in the fields. Well, that prediction is coming true. Reports from thruout most of the state reveal a tremendous interest by towns people in assisting the farmer. Down in Lake City teams of five men go out from town every nite after supper and work until 9 o'clock. They report they can shock 10 acres of grain and interest is running high as to the fastest team of workers. In Rock county, farmers are reported paying 75 cents an hour to businessmen who assist in shocking grain. Herman, Minnesota businessmen are closing their stores at 3 p. m. and going out to help farmers in teams of four. And so the reports come in from all over the state. Chief concern right now is for the Red River valley area and state and federal officials are starting a campaign in that area to enlist every available person to assist in the potato, sugar beet and the small grain harvest.

The country is passing the peak in egg aroduction. Farmers are expected to produce 16 percent more eggs this year than the record 1942 production. But due to the tremendous increase in egg consumption, a severe shortage of eggs is expected this winter. Government officials fear this may lead to a bad black market. Right now no plan is being considered for egg rationing. Government officials believe it can't be done, that the problem is too huge.

Farmers can look for new regulations on the distribution of farm machinery and equipment in the near future. Indications are that the new regulations will be more liberal because of the recent increase in output of farm machinery. OPA has already issued an order permitting manufacturers to sell up to 40 percent of their machines and equipment without bothering with rationing restrictions.

Nothing much has been said as yet, but watch for another drive for payments to farmers for growing needed war crops. You may see a return of a demand for incentive payments asked by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and kicked out the window by Congress late last winter. Most government people are convinced that some incentive must be given to farmers who take extra risks in producing new crops. And most farmers are of the same opinion. It will be interesting to watch the progress of the 1944 farm program when it reaches the floors of Congress.

Early fears of a poor corn crop have turned into optimism. Latest estimate of the Secretery of Agriculture is that we may harvest a corn crop that will exceed last year's record crop by as much as 100 million bushels. And that is the best crop news to date. Faced with possible serious feed shortages, a record breaking corn crop will go a long way toward easing the tight feed situation.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been warm and dry. Nice weather for harvesting.

An entire trainload of war trophies from the world's far-flung battle-fronts is being sent from Atlantic Coast assembly points for exhibition at the Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 28 to Sept. 6, according to word received today from Washington, by Secretary Raymond A. Lee.

Included in the shipment are German and Jap landing barges, a gigantic German tank, an Italian pontoon plane, a Jap 10,000-pound field gun more than 28 feet long, parts of a Jap Zero plane and numerous other war trophies.

Trpohies now are being assembled at the Marine Base, Quantico, Va.; Amy Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Maryland; Philadelphia and Washington, D. C.

Mrs. A. W. Carlson entertained the following on Friday afternoon in honor of Karen who was one year old that day: Mrs. Arvid Carlson of Middle River, Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson and Harold and Luther, Mrs. Glenn Peterson and Sandra, Mrs. O. H. Nohre, Mrs. Oscar Fosholm and Carolyn, Mrs W. Holst and Marlene and Arlene Horien.

Mr. and Mrs. Lars Ring and Jane, Mr. and Mrs. Ludvig Sagstuen and Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sagstuen and Marles, Verna and Joyce Peterson visited at the Hartley Peterson home Wednesday evening. They also helped Donovan celebrate his 5th birthday.

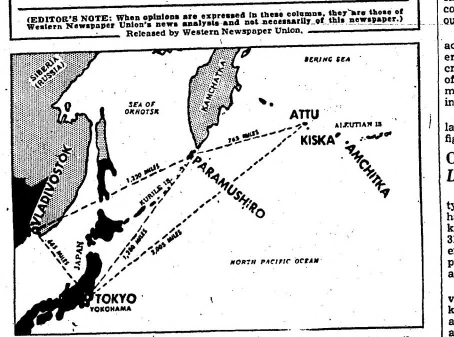
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. Capture of Palermo Pockets Axis Army in Sicily's Northeastern Corner; Allied Activity in Pacific Is Intensified; Nation's Employment Reaches 38 Million

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



American fliers moved closer to the Japanese mainland when they bombed Paramushiro, which lies below the Kamchatka peninsula of Siberia, 1,200 miles from Tokyo. Hits and near misses were reported on Jap ships lying in the harbor.

SICILY:
Pocket Axis

The second stage of fighting in Sicily found the Axis forces retiring from the western reaches of the island as the Seventh American army of Gen. George S. Patton moved into rapid occupation of the territory.

The Yanks' seizure of Palermo sealed off the Axis troops in the northeastern corner of Sicily. As Patton's army hemmed the remaining Axis forces of approximately 100,000 men in from the west, Gen. Bernard Montgomery's British Eighth army pounded at the enemy's line on the southern extremity of the trap, at Catania.

Units of the celebrated Herman Goering division put up a stiff fight on the outskirts of Catania. In this section, the broad Catania plain is criss-crossed by several rivers, making tank and motorized operations difficult; and many shallow creek beds and thick grain fields gave German machine-gunners good cover for defensive fire.

While the fight raged in Sicily, British naval and air units bombarded the sole of the Italian boot at Crotone.

CIVILIAN GOODS:
Increase Possible

The government's effort to get a more effective production for the war might result in a reduction of certain programs and free materials for civilian goods, War Mobilization director James F. Byrnes said. That, however, is a hope and not a prediction, Byrnes cautioned.

Byrnes' statement came on the heels of a revelation that the munitions program was being cut down in some lines because our growing air power was amply protecting Allied industries abroad from destruction from bombing, and thus reducing their demands on U. S. plants for material.

According to Byrnes, the various war agencies are studying their purchasing programs, to confine procurement to articles most useful in the light of recent combat developments. Where cancellations or reductions in orders may be feasible, the possibility exists that material spared will be used for civilian goods.

EMPLOYMENT:
38 Million at Work

As the labor department announced that over 38 million people were currently employed in nonagricultural establishments, the war department revealed that it had authorized the release of 4,500 men from the army for work in copper, zinc and molybdenum mines.

According to the labor department, current employment was 1,663,000 over that for the same period a year ago. Despite the fact that the manufacturing and public utilities and transportation industries put on 162,000 workers recently, total employment was only 66,000 more than in May of this year. Since May, the construction industry has laid off 99,000 men.

The war department said failure of the metal mines to secure the necessary amount of workers left only the army as a reservoir of men with the requisite skills for the pits.

SOUTH PACIFIC:
Range to Dutch Indies

Ranging 1,200 miles to the west, American heavy bomber formations struck at the Japanese naval base of Surabaya in the Dutch East Indies.

Tumbling down on an oil refinery, docks, warehouses and railway installations, 500 pound bombs caused heavy damage, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique said. The action marked the first air raid on Surabaya since that former Dutch base was pounded by the Japanese early in the war.

The raid on Surabaya was part of intensive Allied activity in the South Pacific area. As American troops worked closer through heavy jungle to the Japanese air base of Munda on New Georgia islands in the Solomons, medium and dive bombers and fighter planes kept up a rain of explosives on the embattled enemy troops guarding that stronghold. In one day alone, American airmen made 250 raids on the Japanese positions.

ROME:
'Priceless Treasures'

Declaring ". . . Despite the precautions that may be taken it is almost impossible to avoid, on this sacred soil of Rome, the destruction of venerated edifices," Pope Pius XII deemed it ". . . our duty once more to raise our voice in defense of the priceless treasures that constitute the ornament of Christian and human endeavor," following the Allied bombing of the Eternal City.

In citing the historical, cultural and religious importance of Rome, the pope said ". . . All that we put before competent authorities on several occasions in clear terms, recommending to them in the name of human dignity and of Christian civilization the inviolability of Rome." Then stating that he had hoped the papal authority would have proved sufficient in addressing a plea for the immunity of Rome, the pope said ". . . But alas, this so reasonable hope of ours has been disappointed."

RUSSIA:
Reds Whittle Bulge

Throwing the full weight of their might into the drive, the Russians bore down on Orel from three sides, while embattled German troops fought desperately to prevent being cut from the rear.

While the battle of Orel raged, the "Anti-Nazi German National Committee" in Moscow appealed to the German high command to overthrow Hitler and negotiate a peace with the Russian government. Although presumably composed of former German army officers, the "national committee" bears a liberal sprinkling of former leaders of the Communist party of the old reichstag.

At Orel, the Nazis were holding a big bulge eastward, from which they could strike out against the rear of the Reds' northern or southern armies. Russian troops made notable progress cutting across much of the bulge in the north, but the Germans were offering stiff resistance on the southern fringe.

For their part, the Germans made no effort to minimize the power of the Russian drive. They contended their strategy called for a continuation of the struggle so as to wear down the Reds' strength.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

NEWSPRINT: The price of newsprint paper on which newspapers are printed, will be raised $4 a ton, on September 1 by order of the Office of Price Administration.

* * *

"INVASION" MONEY: Government printing presses are turning out specially designed paper money for use of American servicemen in countries they occupy.

BABY CARRIAGES: Baby carriages ("prams") are scarce in England. Women are advised to use them only for airing the baby.

* * *

FIGHTING FRENCH: Allied victory will bring about dissolution of the "Fighting French," Gen. Charles de Gaulle stated recently. A liberated France will mean the end of the mission of his organization.

FARMS:
1.3 Per Cent Idle

A total of 76,704 farms with an acreage of 6,484,292 lay idle in the United States when the decennial census was taken in 1940. The number represented 1.3 per cent of all farms in the country.

New England and the Middle Atlantic states showed the greatest percentage of abandonments, with one out of every 20 farms idle. This compared with Iowa's report of one out of every 2,000.

Abandoned farms averaged 85 acres against the 174 acres for operating tracts. Depleted soil and crop failures accounted for one-third of the vacancies, and there were many departures for employment in industry.

Almost 57 million acres of land lay idle on producing farms, census figures also showed.

CASUALTIES:
Light, So Far

War and navy department casualty lists issued for the first year and half of the war totaled 16,556 men killed in action or from wounds, and 31,343 missing. The missing, it was explained, may either be dead or prisoners, but final tabulation must await the war's end.

Casualties were almost equally divided between the services. Of the known dead, 8,412 are navy, marine and coastguardsmen, while 8,144 are army men. However, the army's record of 21,076 missing doubled the navy, marine and coast guard's figure of 10,267.

As the services' casualties were announced, word was received of the death of Maj. Gen. William P. Upshur of the marines and Capt. Charles Paddock in the crash of a naval plane near Sitka, Alaska. General Upshur was commanding general of the marines for the department of the Pacific, while Paddock, who had served on General Pershing's staff in the First World war at the age of 18, was world famous as a sprinter, having set 94 records from 1920 to 1929.

POULTRY:
Army Takes Over

Under the second war powers act, the Office of Price Administration ordered the detention of poultry truckers on eastern highways and the requisitioning of their stock for the army.

OPA took the action, it said, after black market operations had interfered with the army's purchase of poultry in the Delaware, Maryland and Virginia area, largest fowl producing section in the East. According to OPA, much of this meat was being sold to dealers over the price ceiling.

Dealers from whom the poultry was requisitioned, were paid the prevailing ceiling price.

MINERS:
Seek Contract Approval

With the War Labor board rested the task of determining the fate of the new wage contract entered into between Illinois' United Mine Workers and bituminous coal operators, providing for a daily payment of $1.25 for time spent traveling underground. Differences over such compensation was the chief cause of three walkouts, leading to government seizure of the pits.

In addition to providing portal-to-portal pay, the new two-year contract outlaws strikes and lengthens the 35-hour week to 48 hours. Under present conditions, the miners now receive $7 daily for a seven-hour shift, but the new pact would award them time-and-a-half for the eighth hour each day and for the full eight hours on the sixth day.

Besides WLB approval, the agreement is dependent upon the Office of Price Administration's authorization of an increase in coal prices to offset the wage settlements.

LABOR:
Demands Roll-Back

Meeting in the White House, organized labor served notice on President Roosevelt that it would not continue support of his anti-inflation program unless prices were rolled back to the September 15, 1942, level.

Charging Price Administrator Prentiss Brown with having failed to execute the government's roll-back program, labor representatives declared they would open a pressure campaign for his removal from office unless plans were set in motion to push current prices back.

The labor leaders said further dalliance on roll-backs would lead them to repudiate the wage stabilization program, in which wage increases have been limited to 15 per cent over the January, 1941, levels. Living costs have jumped approximately 21 per cent since that time, they said, outstripping income by at least 6 per cent.

WAR BONDS

With 23 billion dollars already raised from non-banking investors since last December, the government announced plans for a new 15 billion dollar war bond drive to start in September. Individuals, corporations, insurance companies and other non-banking sources will be eligible for the purchase of the various denominations of savings bonds, notes and certificates.

In the two previous drives, banks bought over 10 billion dollars of securities.

Children of Mars

By Quentin Reynolds

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

In Russia, they call their Boy Scouts "Pioneers." They have no uniforms, no recreation, no time to play. But they are very proud of the job they are doing to speed victory.

I stood the other day on the embankment, looking across the river toward the Kremlin and its towers and mosques. I could feel the warmth of the sun and I knew that summer finally had come to Moscow.

At home, the kids would be getting out baseball bats and gloves and hurrying to the nearest vacant lot. Here in Moscow, the youngsters just out of school were hurrying to the embankment across the narrow river outside the Kremlin. They laughed and yelled, and then a soldier gave an order and the laughter stopped.

The kids lined up. There were about 60 of them, one-third girls. Not one was more than 14. The soldier gave crisp orders. The kids marched smartly up and down the embankment. They marched by twos and fours, with their drillmaster barking out military commands.

They drilled for one hour—these children of Mars—and then they were dismissed. When their time came, these youngsters would already have considerable basic military training. Today they had been in school for five hours and they had drilled for one hour.

It's Children's War, Too.

The children of Russia are organized into a society called Pioneers. It's much like our Boy Scouts, except that girls also are admitted to membership.

When school is done and drilling is finished, they go into homes and help. Each housewife now has to run her own home by herself. There's no servant problem in Moscow; there are no servants.

If her children are very young, her problem is a difficult one. This is where the Pioneers enter the picture. Each group of Pioneers is assigned to a city block. They find out which families need help. They go into homes and do what is needed.

The Timur Group.

Within the Pioneers there is a secret group, the envy of all the others. These are called the Timur.

Some years ago, a moving picture depicted a boy named Timur who had very great powers. He often visited the dirty homes of mortals and merely by waving a wand would make the house immaculate. If there was wood to be chopped, why, that was a cinch. He'd wave his wand again and there would be a neat pile of logs all ready for the stove.

When the family came home to find the house clean and wood piled in the bin, they would know that Timur had been visiting. Timur was a great favorite with Russian youngsters, and the Pioneers adopted his name for their secret society.

They work much as Timur worked. A family is finding the burden of carrying on too heavy. Perhaps the husband is at the front, and his wife works in a factory all day. This is true of thousands and thousands of families in Russia. Nurseries take care of the children while a mother is working, and she picks them up on her way home. Then she has to prepare dinner for them. She has little time for housecleaning or wood chopping.

Vigilant youngsters will report this to the Pioneers. A flying group of Timur lads will descend on the house, give it a thorough cleaning, scour the pots and pans, beat rugs, wash and dry any dirty dishes, chop enough wood to last a week—and then vanish.

The housewife comes home and looks at her now clean and tidy house and thinks that the age of miracles has come again.

Typical of the way in which Timurs operate is the care they take of an aged invalid, father of the well-known Soviet inventor Peter Bostivan. Both Bostivan and his wife enlisted and are at the front. The woman who normally took care of the household went into a munitions plant, and the old man, quite helpless, was alone.

The Timurs heard of it and today they are in the house getting his hot tea and black toast ready for breakfast. They take turns giving up their lunch hours to prepare his food. In the afternoon they do his marketing and housecleaning. In recognition of this, Bostivan recently wrote a glowing letter of thanks.

Although discouraged by military authority, the children have actually done a job in combat at the front. Sometimes military leaders cannot help themselves. I met 15-year-old Vassia, who was just back from the front. He was a baby-faced kid.

Vassia had lived the life of an ordinary country lad in the region around Kharkov. The Germans came and killed his father, and Vassia ran away to join the guerrillas. In time he became an expert tommy-gunner, incidentally using a Thompson machine gun made in Bridgeport, Conn. Oh, yes, he had killed many Germans—many, many Germans. So many, in fact, that the Germans heard of him and learned his name and took their typical revenge. They hanged his mother and sister, who were still in Kharkov.

STRETCH CHINTZ OVER CARDBOARD THEN FRAME
OLD WASHSTAND WITH SIDE SHELVES, NEW TOP AND 4" BASE BOARD MAY BE USED IN LIVING ROOM, DINING ROOM OR ENTRANCE HALL

TODAY'S living room is often furnished with streamlined pieces that have served a more humble purpose. Almost any plain washstand or dresser may be given long smart lines by adding open shelves at the ends. Here a top of plywood with a plain moulding around the edges extends across the stand and shelves. By adding a plain baseboard and a coat of paint the piece is finished with a modern air. The paint should match the woodwork.

The diagram at the upper right shows how to make the wall decoration from a remnant of flowered chintz. If you use an old frame, the chintz picture may be given the appearance of an oil painting by applying several coats of varnish.

4. What great writer's middle name was "Makepeace"?
5. In what part of his body did Paris mortally wound Achilles?
6. What is Hedonism?

The Answers

1. Rebellious.
2. The Suez canal has no locks. It is at sea level.
3. The church pennant.
4. William Makepeace Thackeray.
5. The heel.
6. The doctrine that pleasure is the chief or sole good in life and that moral duty is fulfilled in the gratification of pleasure-seeking instincts.

When the soldier talks about "the skipper" he means his captain, the head of his company. And that's just what the title "captain" means. It comes from the Latin word "caput" meaning "head." Another leader high in the Army man's favor is Camel cigarettes—they're first choice with men in the Army. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) When you're sending gifts from home, keep in mind that a carton of cigarettes is always most welcome. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The annual consumption of gasoline on highways, which has a bearing on rubber consumption, jumped from 8,500,000,000 gallons in 1925 to 22,000,000,000 gallons in 1940. Some figures to keep in mind when gasoline shortage is mentioned today.

In general, guayule rubber has the same qualities and characteristics as plantation tree rubber, except that it has a high resin content, about 20 per cent, compared with 4 per cent in tree rubber.

The first manufacture of rubber footwear outside of the United States took place in 1856 in Scotland.

Likely Hercules Knew Nothing About Cave Man

The aproned figure at the sink gazed sadly at the accumulation of plates and dishes, pots and pans. Was this all that marriage meant?

A heavy sigh, a rolling up of sleeves, and the kitchen was soon filled with the clatter of washing and scouring. The toiler paused from time to time to listen to the steady thrash of a typewriter in the next room.

Suddenly the noise ceased, and a large, spectacled woman, lofty of brow, appeared in the doorway.

"Hercules, darling," she said, addressing the little man, "I never can remember—do you spell 'cave man' with or without a hyphen?"

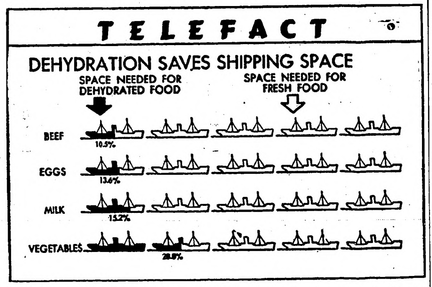
Right: A Maori maiden cuts up a bit as she rolls her eyes and sticks out her tongue during a native demonstration of jive—South Sea style, for the entertainment of United States marines. The Japanese are being harassed at both ends of this long battlefront of islands. As the Allies struck at the enemy airdrome at Munda, a raid was made on the Jap's major base at Macassar. Fires from the raid were visible 80 miles away.

Aimed at a Japanese Air Field

American troops roll a 155 mm. field piece into position to shell the Japanese-held Munda air field across the channel. Much guerrilla fighting in this area was reported as steadily advancing Allied forces continued to close in on the enemy's positions.



With Allied forces fighting on battlefronts scattered around the world, tremendous amounts of food and ammunition are constantly being shipped to supply these numerous bases and provide a reserve. A great space saver has been the dehydration of foods which not only saves shipping area, as is shown in the chart above, but makes it possible for soldiers and sailors to carry enough food in their pockets to sustain them for several days.

In the Breadbasket

Stories about progressive schools continue to roll in, one being concerned with a little boy who proudly brought home a picture of Abraham Lincoln which he had mounted on a piece of cardboard.

"Did teacher tell you anything about this man?" the boy's father asked. The little boy said yes, she had. Well, did he remember what she had said? The little boy beamed and replied: "She said: 'Paste him in the middle.'"

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Beans

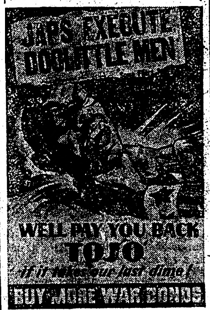
So long as a soldier can eat and think up disparaging names for his equipment the Army will do all right. Food is either "beans," or "chow."

"Chow" may consist of a well cooked meal or if circumstances demand our fighting men have learned to subsist on "Ration K," the concentrated food that all of them carry into battle.

With millions of men and women in the services it will require a lot of War Bond buying on our part to keep them happy.

U. S. Treasury Department

Up Your Savings



There will be American justice for the savages of Tokio but our trial and punishment of Tojo and his criminals will cost blood, sweat, toil and tears and money. You can supply the money by upping your war bond buying through the payroll savings plan. Figure it out yourself and see where the money is coming from. How much does it cost you and your family to live each month? How much money is coming in from all members of your family? Put the extra money into war bonds, every penny of it. Let 10 per cent be only the starting point for figuring your allotment.

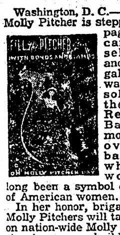
Nationwide Molly Pitcher Tag Day



FILL the PITCHER WITH BONDS AND STAMPS
ON MOLLY PITCHER DAY

Washington, D. C.—On August 4th, Molly Pitcher is stepping out of the pages of American history to sell War Bonds and Stamps. The gal who carried water to thirsty soldiers during the blistering Revolutionary Battle of Monmouth and took over her husband's cannon when he was wounded, has long been a symbol of the heroism of American women.

In her honor, brigades of modern Molly Pitchers will take their stands on nation-wide Molly Pitcher Day at street corners, building entrances, and in public places to sell the bonds and stamps that back up our modern fighting men.

A red-white-and-blue Molly Pitcher Tag will be given to everyone who purchases a bond or stamp on that day. Members of the American Legion Auxiliary, and of the Independent Food Distributors Council unit of Molly Pitchers, will aid and augment local Women's War Savings Staffs to make up the volunteer sales force. They will use water pitchers to hold their supplies of tags and War Stamps. The slogan on the tags will read "Fill the Pitcher with Bonds and Stamps on Molly Pitcher Day," and the goal of the sales force will be to "tag" the total population.

Looking Ahead

Money Talks

Public school teachers are now being asked for donations to a legislative campaign fund. The goal is $600,000, which the promoters seem to think will be enough to convert the great heart of Congress, and secure an increase in pay for teachers, to the amount of $200,000,000 a year out of the national treasury, which, somehow, some seem to think will never run dry.

Teachers, most of them at least, deserve more money than they get. Increases, however, should come from the local communities which teachers so faithfully serve. The success of the present effort to secure an appropriation from the Federal treasury would jeopardize the freedom of our entire public school system. Therefore I hope the effort will fail, and judging from the temper of the present Congress, I believe it will. We cannot afford to sell away our freedom for a mess of Washington pottage. Why not increase teachers' salaries from local taxation? We will pay for it locally in the end anyway. Washington gets no money except through taxation.

Why Ape Hitler?

The very fact that America is in war makes certain distasteful things necessary. To save the integrity of the United States, our young men are being conscripted and sent to battle; civilians are giving up their individual rights. Without resentment, they subsist on less and pay more for it. We are forced by war to do a number of things that our enemies did first. But there is no point to Nazifying our public schools by placing the whole educational system in bondage to bureaucracy. It will cost each community more than it will gain in money, besides costing priceless freedom.

"Educational Finance Act of 1943," beter known as S.637, written by Senators Elbert D. Thomas of Utah and Lister Hill of Alabama, is worded adroitly. Section One starts right off with this disarming provision: "No department, agency or officer of the United States shall exercise any supervision or control over any school or state educational agency with respect to which any funds are expended pursuant to this act, . . ."

Some Will Believe

Many teachers by nature are hopeful and trusting folk. Likely they will believe employees of the federal government to be entirely without selfish motive; that they will pass out easy money indefinitely to big slices of voters without finding a way, now or later, to boss their dependencies. The idea is childish. The hope is vain. The wish is father of the thought—a wish for money.

Immediately after Section One, which denies the existence of a "hook," comes Section Two, presenting the "bait" which is a boost in pay for pedagogues. That's the only news in S.637. It is an old bill. Starting in 1938 it has been presented to Congress four times and thrice voted down. Now, at a time when governmental economy is more essential than ever before, it suggests the appropriation of 300 million dollars of Uncle Sam's money with two-thirds of it earmarked as salaries for teachers.

How It Works

The bill recognizes the United States Commissioner of Education, authorizing him to apportion the money to the various states. It creates penalties that make it possible for Mr. Commissioner to crack a whip over state school authorities in general and (in Section 12) empowers him to make such rules and regulations as may be necessary. The net result is to give education a dominant head in Washington.

If every school teacher in the United States would turn back to an old Fourth Reader, quietly review and contemplate once more the fable of "The Arab and His Camel," it might do the schools of this country much more than 300 million dollars' worth of good. As the story goes, the Arab permitted his camel to put her head in his tent one cold night. But the camel (with a precedent established) got her neck inside also, then her forelegs and at last entered completely, leaving no room for the Arab.

Bureaucratic control of schools is the camel in 1943, and S.637 is the camel's head. At first, all it does is give the teachers a raise in pay and establish a precedent. After that it becomes possible for a federal bureaucrat, with concern for his personal prestige and for the sake of politics, to wield tremendous influence over the public schools of America.

Federal aid to education is wrong in principle, unless we want a totalitarian state. Our money is not multiplied by being sent to Washington. We will not only pay the bill, but some will be lost in transit. We will pay for that too.

We are able to increase teachers' salaries by local taxation. The local burden would be no greater than increasing them from a federal appropriation. This is the greatest opportunity public school teachers have to declare their loyalty to the traditional American freedoms, by insisting upon local increases in salaries rather than asking for Federal aid, which will jeopardize academic freedom, make a political football of education, and in the long run, cost local tax-payers still more.

CREAMERY EQUIPMENT SUPPLY PROBLEM SOLVED!
WOULDEN'T THAT BE WONDRFUL news? Unfortunately, with existing conditions, priorities and necessary government regulations, one of the biggest problems a creamery operator has is to obtain new and essential equipment for his plant.
OF COURSE, NO ONE can work miracles, but creameries have found that by working through Land O'Lakes supply and equipment departments, many of thiir supply prablems have been selved. Expert advice, up-to-date knowledge of existing regulations, and technical knowledge of creamery problems do much to help creameries solve their wartime production problems.
THERE ARE BIG ADVANTAGES in making creamery equipment purchases through Land O'Lakes supply department. The advice and help with wartime regulations is free—prices are reasonable—and dividends are paid on the basis of purchases.
PROGRESSIVE norshwest creameries are invited to investigate this up-to-date service. It is made possible because of Land O'Lakes cooperative efforts for the good of the entire dairy industry.

News Aids National Pulp Drive

The Holt Weekly News today has joined other weekly and daily newspapers of the nation in a campaign to aid the government to help solve the serious pulpwood shortage situation.

It is the second time since Pearl Harbor that the nation's newspapers have been called upon to overcome a serious war material shortage.

Last Fall it was the Newspapers United Scrap Metal Campaign. At that time scores of steel mills faced shutdowns for lack of vital materials. What the newspapers accomplished in that drive is history. The situation saved with more than 6,000,000 tons of precious metal collected. Now it is the pulpwood campaign and it is equally serious because hundreds of thousands of cords of the nation's pulpwood are required for war purposes.

The Victory Pulpwood Campaign was initiated by the War Production Board, with the cooperation of other Federal Departments, war agencies and industry. It is designed to relieve increasingly serious shortages in pulpwood, the raw material which makes smokeless powder, rayon for parachutes, plastics for airplane parts, shell and bomb casings and shipping containers for amunition, foods, supplies, blood plasma and other necessities for our armed forces and our allies.

There is a lot of Poplar timber in the eastern part of the county which can be made into pulpwood. It is in the pulwood areas of the county where effort should be concentrated for cutting and shipping of this class of wood during the late fall and winter months.

Wildlife Exhibit at State Fair

A mammouth national wildlife exhibit, containing more than 200 birds and animals, will be an outstanding feature of the fair. Live specimens collected from all parts of America, from the frozen wastes of the Arctic to the deserts of Mexico, will be shown. Purpose of the exhibit is to arouse interest in the conservation of our wildlife resources.

The all-important role played by meat in helping to win the war will be the major feature of this year's big National Livestock and Meat Board exhibit in the Food Exposition building. Value of meat as a food on both the war-front and home-front will be stressed. Exhibits also will show how housewives may make use of other foods as meat extenders.

Harvest is now in full swing here. Many nice fields are already up in shocks and it appears that the yield is going to be good considering the type of spring the farmers had at seeding time.

Leonard Larson, who arrived here a week ago from Tacoma, Wash., has made all arrangements to sell out his personal property here and rent out his farm. The sale will be held on Saturday, Aug. 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Paskewitz spent Wednesday and Thursday of last week at Bemidji with Mrs Peter Aune who became ill and was brought to the Lutheran Hospital in Bemidji. Mrs. Anna Carlson of Middle River and Peter Aune of Gatzke also accompanied them there. Mr. and Mrs. Aune had been spending the week end at Bemidji on their wedding trip when she became sick.

HOME-CANNED BERRIES TAKE LITTLE SUGAR

Home canned berries play leading roles in the pantry because they contribute vitamins and minerals for health, can be used in many ways, and are easy and inexpensive to can.

Blackberries, blueberries, boysenberries, raspberries, elderberries—can them all and others, too, with little or no sugar. Sugar gives them better flavor and more calories, but has nothing to do with keeping qualities.

Berries are too precious to waste and none will be wasted if you will see to it that every step taken is the right one. First of all, wash, rinse and examine your jars. Be sure to inspect the top edges of those to be sealed with glass top seal or two-piece vacuum seal closures because top seals refuse to work unless tops of the jars are perfect. Cover jars, glass lids, and zinc caps with luke-warm water, heat to boiling and keep hot until needed. Wash and rinse rubbers and vacuum seal lids and drop them in boiling water—they don't need boiling unless you plan to do old-fashioned open kettle canning—then they must be boiled a few minutes to sterilize.

Every berry must be fresh, sound, ripe, and firm. Wash them carefully and then take your choice of canning methods.

Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, prefers to hot-pack berries. This is how it is done. Place berries in a wide, shallow pan; add one-half cup sugar, or less, for each quart of berries; set the pan over low heat and simmer until the berries heat through and the sugar dissolves (remember you don't have to use any sugar); pour the hot berries into clean, hot jars and process five minutes in hot water-bath canner.

If you prefer cold packing, fill a jar about half full with raw berries, then tap it gently on a folded cloth to shake the berries down. When the jar is filled to within a half-inch of the top, add enough hot syrup to cover the berries. Process 20 minutes in a water-bath canner.

Syrup for four quarts of berries may be made by boiling two cups sugar and three cups water or berry juice together until the sugar dissolves. If you are a little short on sugar—and who isn't these days?—try making the syrup of one measure sugar, one measure corn syrup, and one-half measure water or berry juice. This syrup seems rather thick and sweet, but it will become thinner and less sweet after it has been with the berries a few weeks. And if you have no sugar at all, cover the berries with hot berry juice or boiling water; seal or partly seal the jars (follow the manufacturer's instructions) and process 20 minutes in a water-bath canner.

If you want your berries to really star, can them without sugar. Then they can be used as if they were fresh from the patch. The juice can be drained off and used for making jelly. The berries can go into a pie or into jam—a jam turnover tucked in a lunch box will make the noon hour much more pleasant for somebody and surely you need nobody to tell you that jelly and jam are far more delicious when freshly made than at any other time.

F S A Purchase Loans

Rehabilitation and tenant purchase loans are again available through the Farm Security Administration to Marshall, Pennington, and Beltrami County farmers who want to do their part to meet the nation's war food production goals, according to Mr. J. P. Rosengren, FSA Supervisor.

Designed to assist small farm operators to produce to capacity, Farm Security loans are available to those who lack the necessary credit or financial resources to put into maximum wartime production their land, equipment and labor supply.

There's no lack of credit for the nation's farmers. Banks and other lending institutions have funds available for the legitimate needs of the farmer who possesses adequate security. Farm Security, however, thru an annual appropriation from Congress makes loans avaiable for those small farm operators who can increase their output of food but lack the necessary security to negotiate a loan through normal channels.

The No. 1 job of FSA, an agency of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is to bring into full production the resources of the small farm operator through supervised credit. For several months prior to the close of the fiscal year on June 30, FSA was temporarily "out of funds". However, funds were made available to meet the credit needs of the small farmer with the passage of the Agricultural Appropriation Bill for the fiscal year 1943-44.

Stressing approved farm and home management practices, including better live-stock, use of purebred sires, improved sanitation and better feeding practices, FSA supervisors work towards the complete rehabilitation of the farm family and their restoration to the ranks of high producing, financially independent farm operators.

All applications for FSA loans are reviewed by a committee of three operating farmers and the FSA Supervisor. Applications for loans in these counties may be made at the local FSA office located at Thief River Falls.

Carlson-Aune Wedding

Miss Elsie Carlson, daughter of Mrs. Anna Carlson of Middle River, and Peter Aune, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Aune of Gatzke, were united in marriage Saturday, July 31, at the Lutheran Parsonage at Thief River Falls with Rev. E. L. Tungseth officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Paskewitz, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, attended the couple.

A white two-piece dress was worn by the bride. She carried a corsage of red and white roses. Her attendant also wore a two-piece dress with a corsage of roses.

Stilaf Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Anderson, who has been attending college at Ames Iowa, has now been inducted into the Army. Along with his military training, he is also finishing his Veterinary course, which will be completed in December.

A birthday party was given in honor of Mrs. Fred Larson on Tuesday afternoon at her home.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been hard to take for the farmers. Friday evening we had a heavy shower and Sunday we had a real heavy rain most of the day. Sunday it was the darkest at 11 a. m. that old timers here can ever remember seeing in 60 years. Tuesday night we had another rain here but not as heavy as it struck some of the neighboring areas.

Heavy Hailstorm In County

Many thousands of acres of ripe grain were quickly harvesten in Marshall county Tuesday evening when a destructive hailstorm swept through a wide area exteneing from Argyle to well past the Radium community in a strip from one to four miles in width.

The heavy hail was accompanied by a soaking rain which measured 1.47 inches at Luna elevator while only a trace was noted on the Peavy Elevator guage in Warren. West and southwest of Warren no rain at all fell.

After a tour of part of the hail area Wednesday morning it was estimated that less than 50 per cent of the grain had been cut, with all standing grain fields being practically a total loss. Corn was torn to shreds, while grain fields were beaten into the ground. Many gardens were also damaged.

The hailed area came within two miles of the north edge of Warren, at which point it appeared to have changed its course to an easterly direction with heavy damage in a wide strip extending east to Radium area. The Burnside school area four miles northeast of Warren, which suffered a severe hail loss in June was in the center of the storm Tuesday.—Warren Sheaf.

U. S. Armed Forces Use Parachutes for Pigeons

Carrier pigeons employed by U. S. armed forces are today being lowered from planes in crates, suspended by midget-sized parachutes. If pigeons were released at 25,000-foot altitude from a plane moving 400 miles per hour without this protection, wing feathers would be blown off by the blast of air from the propeller, and birds would freeze to death. After a carrier has descended several thousand feet in the crate, the door of the crate is automatically opened, releasing the bird to do its duty.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The basis of modern rubber usage is vulcanization, a word that is derived from Vulcan, the Greek God of Fire.

The cryptostegia vine yields about 17 drops of rubber latex a day, a seven-year-old Hevea tree three to six pounds of rubber a year. Properly treated Hevea trees, when 10 years old, can give from 1000 to 1500 pounds of rubber per acre per year. About eleven pounds of rubber are used in making a small automobile tire.

Lay rubber articles flat when storing, allowing them to assume their natural position. Rubber loses its life when under a permanent strain.

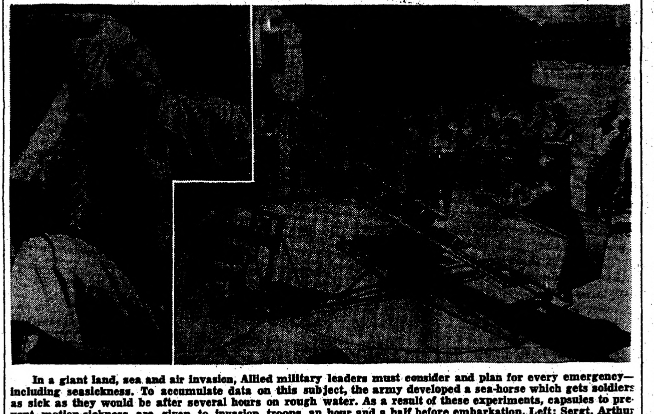
One Axis Leader Down—Two to Go

The sudden political demise of Benito Mussolini makes him the first Axis dictator to fall under the military and intellectual might of the Allied nations. Left: King Victor Emmanuel of Italy who accepted Mussolini's resignation and appointed Marshal Pietro Badoglio, center, as the new premier of Italy. Although Badoglio announced that "the war continues," as he proclaimed martial law, he was never a member of the official high ranking Italian fascist group which surrounded Mussolini. He has been known to have disagreed with the former premier several times. Right: Benito Mussolini who took advantage of the unrest of World War I to create a dictatorship and now finds himself overthrown by similar forces in World War II.

Get Sick on Land to Stop Sea-Sickness



In a giant land, sea and air invasion, Allied military leaders must consider and plan for every emergency—including seasickness. To accumulate data on this subject, the army developed a sea-horse which gets soldiers as sick as they would be after several hours on rough water. As a result of these experiments, capsules to prevent motion-sickness are given to invasion troops an hour and a half before embarkation. Left: Sergt. Arthur F. Nichols after a session in the sea-horse. Right: The contraption in action.

Sub Hunting

By James Hirshfield

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with The American Magazine.)

I was on the bridge of the coast guard cutter Campbell, escorting a big convoy, when there came a message, reporting a submarine 25 miles south of us. We charged full speed for the spot.

Whether we got that first submarine I don't know—you seldom know—but we didn't have time to worry about it. A signal crackled through from another vessel of the escort, a British corvette. With a sister corvette she was attacking another U-boat she had picked up on her sound gear.

With the two corvettes we converged like arrows on the U-boat. Over a wide area we sowed ashcans. The sea went mad with geysers. Then a great patch of Diesel oil appeared on the sea. It smells like kerosene, but to a submarine hunter's nostrils it is sweeter than violets, for it means that a U-boat has been sunk or damaged. From engine-room to bridge there was joy in the Campbell.

Whole Convoy Attacked.

It was then about 1 p. m., and very black. After a final search of the area, we ran back toward the convoy. Presently a splotch of cold, white light appeared on the horizon. It grew brighter as we drew nearer, and we heard the rumble of distant explosions. My heart sank. Those lights meant the whole convoy was under attack. Escort ships were throwing up star shells to light the sea better to fight off the raiders.

Leaving the slower corvettes in our wake we raced for the convoy, but before we reached it another message came in from the escort commander. It confirmed my fears. Several ships had been attacked. One had fallen behind. The Campbell was to go to the rescue.

I didn't like leaving the convoy just then, but orders are orders. Foam boiled under our keel as we reversed course. An hour or so later we found the ship 10 miles astern of the convoy. She was just sitting there in the darkness. As we sighted her, a tall tower of water erupted on her port side. The ship was under attack.

Hole Torn in Campbell.

Soon we were under attack ourselves. An explosion tore a great hole in the water just astern of the Campbell. It was mighty close. It really shook us up. It sounded as though we were on the inside of an iron boiler which had been slammed with a sledge hammer.

I waited on edge, for a second one. Then our lookouts spotted the U-boat which was throwing the stuff. It was on the surface about a mile away. Through the eerie light of early morning we could make out the cream of her wake and a faint haze from her Diesels. The Campbell bore down on her like a terrier after a rat.

The rat showed no inclination to fight it out. Our guns were just opening when the craft submerged. We dropped a pattern of depth charges, and a few minutes later were again rewarded with that blessed fragrance of Diesel oil. It was the third submarine the Campbell had engaged in less than 12 hours.

About midmorning, our sound gear picked up another submarine.

Sub Crash-Dived.

I ran to the starboard side of the bridge, where the men stood pointing. The periscope had vanished. The submarine had crash-dived. We gave it the works.

When it was all over I happened to notice the lookout who had given the alarm. He was beaming like a happy ape.

I had forgotten our prize fund for the men who spotted submarines. Before the end of that voyage, our treasury was exhausted.

It was high noon when the Campbell encountered her fifth Jerry. It was on the surface, about three miles away, and must have had some foolish notion it could outrun us. It soon found that it couldn't, and submerged in a hurry. Again we laid down a pattern of depth charges.

Later that night we sighted our sixth. It was on the surface, about 500 yards off the starboard bow.

For the 12th time in a little more than 24 hours, our gongs clanged "general quarters." The men sprang to their battle stations. We swung hard right to ram. The Campbell raced down on the sub with guns blazing at point-blank range. We really caught that U-boat napping. It was a big one with a large conning tower and heavy armament. We could see men on the deck. Shouting wildly, they tried to bring a deck gun into action. They never had a chance. We raked their deck from stem to stern with machine-gun fire.

She tried to swerve just as the Campbell rammed her. We struck her a glancing blow. It felt exactly as if we had bumped a pier. She went down pronto.

The Campbell had not come out of the collision unscathed. A 12-foot slit had been ripped in the cutter's side below the water line. Water was cascading into the engine room. But a friendly destroyer, the Polish boat Burza, came to our rescue and stood by until a big tug came and towed us into port. Our cutter, built for rescue work, had probably sunk or damaged six submarines!

Beggar Woman Quickly Made an About Face

He was extremely mean, and pretty well known for this characteristic in the town where he lived. One day an old beggar woman, new to the district, began her appeal.

Mr. Mean put his hand into his pocket as he approached, and she, full of hope, began to pour down blessings on his head.

"May the blessing of Heaven follow after you," she said, "all the days of your life—"

Mr. Mean extracted his handkerchief and blew his nose as he passed on—but the woman, whose hopes were dashed to the ground, was not at a loss:

"And niver catch up wid ye!" she added viciously.

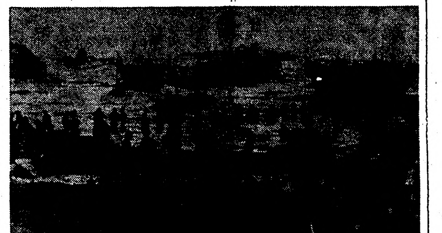
Allied Forces Meet Bitter Resistance In Final Phase of Battle for Sicily; Japanese Employ New Naval Strategy To Supply South Pacific Strongholds

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



Here's the way the Allies work in setting up a base after landing on hostile shore. As the first Allied wave struck Sicily, men waist deep in water pass supplies ashore from a lighter, while men in foreground prepare roads for tanks and other vehicles.

SICILY:
Yanks' Test

More than three divisions of Adolf Hitler's crack German troops took up positions around San Stefano in northern Sicily to await the assault of Gen. George S. Patton's charging American Seventh army.

The San Stefano region loomed as the Axis' northern anchor for their shrunken lines in the mountainous corner of the island where they found themselves pocketed. Much like the Tunisian terrain, great difficulties confronted Patton's Yankees, who were faced with a tedious crawl up rocky slopes in the face of stiff machine gun and mortar fire.

To the west of the Axis defenses, stood the Canadians, encountering the same obstacles as the Americans. To the south, Gen. Bernard Montgomery's British Eighth army poised for action against strong German forces, which had held them up in the plains after a slashing tank attack.

Thus the final phase of the battle of Sicily opened.

Five Points for Italy

Successful as a diplomat once before when he pulled Adm. Jean Darlan's French North Africa over to the Allied cause, Gen. Dwight "Ike" Eisenhower addressed himself to another soldier, this time Italian Premier Pietro Badoglio, in a bid for Italy's withdrawal from the war.

Commending the Italian people and Italy's royal house for removing Mussolini, General Eisenhower stressed five points in his address to the newly constituted government.

Said General Eisenhower: 1. Only the Germans in Italy are blocking peace; 2. Cessation of hostilities is possible immediately under honorable terms; 3. Discontinuance of assistance by the Italians to German armed forces is a prerequisite of peace; 4. A pledge that Italian war prisoners will be returned if Allied prisoners in Italian hands also are returned; 5. If hostilities cease, the liberties and traditions of Italy will be restored.

PACIFIC:
Rip Jap Barges

Although Japan's merchant marine ranked No. 3 among the world's fleets before Pearl Harbor, her maritime position has since slipped in view of her losses and limited shipbuilding facilities.

As a consequence, the wily Nips have devised a new system for supplying their embattled South Pacific island forces: strongholds are now being supplied through small, swift coastal barges, in which the enemy sail at night, and in which they hide by day in the many coves along the shores lines.

Well aware of the Japanese system, American airmen have concentrated much of their bombing against these craft. Barges attempting to stock enemy troops at beleaguered Munda on New Georgia island have had rough going at the hands of U. S. aviators, and a concentration of the craft at Rein Bay, New Britain, was the target for a heavy Allied assault.

With the Allies threatening their sea-borne supplies and bombarding them from the sky with deadly torpedo and dive bombers, Jap troops, true to their tradition of fighting to the death, clung desperately to the last perimeter of their defenses at Munda.

SHIPS:
1,496 Delivered

In the first six months of 1943, Pacific coast shipyards turned out 393 vessels of approximately 4,200,000 tons; Atlantic coast shipyards completed 259 of over 3,000,000 tons, and gulf coast yards produced 108 of 1,150,000 tons. Grand total: 760 ships of 8,350,000 tons!

Since Pearl Harbor, American shipyards have turned out 1,496 vessels, more than existed in the entire U. S. merchant marine before the war. This production has given the country a greater commercial fleet than Britain and a larger one than Japan, Germany and Italy combined.

Once looming as the great bottleneck in Allied war plans, America's industrialists overcame the shipping hurdle with a mass production technique which also has given the U. S. supremacy in aircraft construction. Not only have war materials been flowing overseas in great numbers, but the improved situation has increased use of shipping for civilian supply.

GAS:
Sees More for East

Completion of the "big inch" pipeline to the East which will supplement the railroads' transport of oil to that section of the country, will result in a reduction of the "A" and possibly the "B" and "C" gas ration cards in the central states, Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes indicated.

At present, "A" card holders in the East only receive 1½ gallons per coupon, while the same coupon draws 4 gallons in the central states. Ickes indicated that central states' allotments may be cut down as much as two gallons.

Gas rationing in the central states has been primarily enforced for the preservation of rubber, Ickes said. Because oil was relatively plentiful in these states as a result of insufficient transportation facilities to haul it to the East, rations were more liberal. Now that facilities are available for increasing the haul, however, Ickes felt that the supply should be "equalized" as much as possible throughout the country.

RUSSIA:
Peak Offensive

Peak of summer fighting in Russia centered around Orel. Here, the Reds exerted the greatest pressure against stubborn German forces ringed from the north, south and east, with their principal railway supply line running westward to Bryansk seriously threatened.

According to Russian accounts, the Germans used large forces of reserves to counterattack advancing Red units from the south and east. Admitting they were outnumbered, the Germans were said to have fallen back slowly under the trip-hammer blows of Russian armored columns.

The Germans told another story. They said their attack at Belgorod in the first stage of the summer fighting broke up Red concentrations at the southern end of the 160-mile front and compelled the Russians to concentrate on Orel. Here, the Nazis said, they were pursuing a policy of defensive fighting to exhaust the Reds' strength.

Heavy fighting was reported south of Leningrad by both sides.

Did You Ever Hear of a

"COOPERATIVE COOPERATIVE?"

PROBABLY not in those words, but a "cooperative cooperative" is important to northwest dairying.

IT MEANS that cooperation is carried one step beyond the usual idea of a cooperative—that benefits don't stop at the creamery door.

THE LAND O'LAKES METHOD of marketing is just that. It controls the producer's goods all the way to the grocer's door through processing, packaging, pool car shipping, distribution and sales. Thus, the producer controls—and has a potential profit in—more movements of his products.

THIS LAND O'LAKES COOPERATIVE method of marketing has been proven by over twenty years of successful operation.

PROGRESSIVE northwestern creameries are invited to investigate the advantages of membership in Land O'Lakes.

THIS COMMUNITY HAS A SPECIAL WAR JOB

THIS COMMUNITY is on the spot! We are in a pulpwood growing section and there is now a pulpwood shortage. The country needs vast quantities of pulpwood for explosives, rayon parachutes, gas mask filters, shipping containers and a thousand other uses — yet some of the mills that make these things are actually shutting down for lack of wood.

This is a desperate situation— a war emergency. Something must be done QUICKLY!

And only we who live in the pulpwood cutting areas can do anything about it.

This is OUR responsibility.

How the problem can be solved

Mr. Donald M. Nelson, Chairman of the War Production Board, gave the key to the solution in the following statement:

"If every one of the more than 3,800,000 farmers in the 27 pulpwood producing states were to devote 3 EXTRA days in 1943 to cutting pulpwood, we could overcome the threatened 2,500,000 cord shortage with wood to spare."

Will you enlist for 3 EXTRA days?

If you are now cutting pulpwood part time; if you have cut it in the past; or if you have never cut it but know how to use an axe and saw, will you pledge 3 EXTRA days (at regular pay) to meet Mr. Nelson's challenge?

Fill in the coupon. Mail it to this newspaper and you will receive the pledge badge which identifies you as a Victory Pulpwood Cutter.

This is a war emergency.

Stillwater Celebrates Centennial

A program planned jointly by the Minnesota and the Washington county historical societies will be presented at Stillwater on August 21 in commemoration of the city's centennial. A big lumber mill erected in 1843 by four pioneer loggers proved to be the nucleus of the future city on the St. Croix.

Among the builders of the mill was a Maineite named John McKusick. The waters of Lake St. Croix, which spread out quietly below the mill site, reminded him of the city of Stillwater in his home state. It was McKusick who suggested the name that was given to the new settlement.

When Stillwater was founded, Minnesota territory was still a matter of the future. It was not organized until 1849. In 1843 the lands both to the east and west of Lake St. Croix were in Wisconsin territory. A section then known as St. Croix county extended westward as far as the Mississipi. "One Hundred Years Ago in St. Croix County, Wisconsin Territory" will be the title of an address to be presented on the centennial program by Mr. Willoughby M. Babcock, curator of the museum of the Minnesota Historical Society.

Other features of the program will be a brief talk by Governor Thye, a paper on "Pioneer Women in the Development of Stillwater" by Miss Emma Glaser of Stillwater, and historical pagent.

A large crowd attended the outdoor Luther League meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ingvard M. Pederson on Sunday afternoon. The Rev. H. A. Larson of the Swedish Augustana Church in St. Hilaire gave a very interesting talk on present day Mission and Educational problems in China.

Congressman Hagen at Warren

Office space in the lobby of the Warren Hotel in Warren, Minnesota has been made available to U. S. Representative Harold C. Hagen, of the Ninth Minnesota District for an all-day official visit on Monday of next week.

In view of the transportation difficulties, he has conceived of this plan of bringing his office to the people of his district, so that more of his constituents might discuss their various official federal problems with him, and so that he can gain a better knowledge of what the people are thinking about.

The setting up of his office in Warren for a day for the people of Marshall and near-by counties is a new type of service offered by representative Hagen. He and his secretary, Fay George Child, will be available to any-one who calls between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Congressman Hagen's Washington, D. C. office is in charge of one of his office assistants while congress is in recess, and the many contacts that must be made between the people of this district and the thousands of agencies in Washington will be facilitated by him there.

A home Ninth District office has been opened in Crookston, 205 Post Office Building, for the duration of the Congressional Recess which ends September 14.

The office in Warren for next Monday was made avbilale thru the courtesy of Joe Herbrandson proprietor of the Warren Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Karvonen and family have now moved their household goods to Minneapolis and will make their home there. Mr. Karvonen is employed with his uncle in the tire business.

Third War Loan Drive Sept. 9

An all-out effort in war financing will be necessary in Marshall county during the Third War Loan campaign which opens on September 9 when county residents will be asked to purchase $732,500 worth of War Bonds as its share of the $15 Billion national goal.

The Series E Bond quota will be $327,300 and is included in the general quota for the county.

This information was given to members of the Marshall County War Finance committee who attended a Regional conference at Crookston last Friday evening by Leif Gilstad, Minneapolis, executive manager of the Minnesota War Finance Committee.

Members of the county committee will meet at the City Office building in Warren on Thursday night to consider ways and means for raising this huge amount of money for Victory, O. M. Mattson, county chairman, announced Monday. The committee will also establish quotas for each township, village and city in the county on as equitable basis as possible.

The state has been given a quota of $216,000,000 for the September drive. All county quotas were established by the Treasury Department in Washington with "estimated income" used as the basis for determining the E. Bond quotas and a combination of factors including income, April sales and bank deposits as a basis for the rest of the quota, it was learned at the Crookston meeting. The September quota is more than double or nearly tripple the quota for the April drive which was $260,000. Marshall county raised more than $400,000 in that big campaign.

Many threshing rigs are now busy in this community threshing out the early grains. Most of the crops are of a fair variety despite the backward spring we had during the seeding time. Crops seem to be coming through the season in fine shape.

Cpl. Joseph Hansen arrived Sunday from North Africa, where he has been in service for some time. He is visiting his sister Mrs. Iver Larson and is enroute to Inverness, Montana, having been transferred to the Enlisted Reserve Corps.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fricker and LaRue and Boy left Sunday for Bemidji and other points east for a few days vacation. They expect to be back here Friday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. H. O. Peterson and daughters, Shirley and Joan, of Edmore, N. D. visited from Sunday until Monday afternoon with Rev. and Mrs. Hanson.

Sold First New Grain Here

Anton Hanson, farmer northwest of town, brought in the first grain threshed in this community. Mr. Hanson brought in a load of Barley to the O. T. Ness Elevator Company and Mr. Ness reported that the grain was of fine quality and that it tested 46 pounds to the bushel.

Don't forget about the big auction sale on the Leonard Larson farm southwest of Holt on Saturday, August 21. Mr. Larson and family are in war work at Tacoma, Wash., for the duration and will not keep their personal property over so they decided to sell out all livestock, farm machinery and household goods. Read their sale ad in this issue of the News.

Rev. Hanson accompanied Rev. G. S. Thompron of Thief River Falls to Roseau on Tuesday. They were members of a committee which met to plan the 100th anniversary of the Norwegian Lutheran Church which is observed by various Centennial Programs throughout the Circuit this fall.

Lyle Patznick and his mother have rented the Leonard Larson farm southwest of town and will move there as soon as they harvest their crop on the Carl Ellestad farm that they have been renting.

NEW EXHIBITS AT STATE FAIR HELP MEET WAR NEEDS

Wartime Exposition Features New Major Displays in Every Department

Spectacular exhibits, dramatizing many of the miracles wrought by science on farm and in factory the past year, will feature every department of the Minnesota State Fair, August 28 to September 6.

Latest results of man's ceaseless search for new farm and industrial products, and new uses for old ones, will hold center stage in every building and major display at the fair.

New Farm Magic

On every hand, the "New Farm Magic" symbolizing this year's great war exposition will point out how Northwest agriculture and industry may be of greater service to the nation in the critical months ahead.

"Soybeans at War," a colorful show sponsored by the soybean industry, will feature scores of war uses for Minnesota's newest major farm crop. Plastics, paints, glues, table foods and livestock feeds made from soybeans will be shown.

Industrial products from corn, including synthetic tires made from corn alcohol, will be a major attraction of the Midwest Hybrid Corn Exhibition, supervised by the hybrid seed corn industry.

Home dehydration, winter storage, quick freezing and canning of surplus vegetables and fruits from the state's victory gardens will be demonstrated by specialists at the Northwest Food Preservation Congress.

Many New Exhibits

In every major department—women's activities, agriculture, dairy, horticulture, 4-H Club work, bee culture, state's exhibits, machinery, school exhibits and others—new methods, new processes, new features and new products will hold sway.

Fully as thrilling to all will be the Fort Snelling model camp, the U. S. army maneuvers, and the many exhibits dealing directly with the war.

Captured war trophies from North Africa, Sicily, Russia and the South Seas, and war paintings by famous war refugee painters now living in America, will occupy the ground floor of the grandstand.

War Trophy Show

A mammoth war exhibit picturing the ravages of war in the British Isles, Russia, China and other leading allied countries, and the life and customs of their peoples, will be presented by the United Nations Exposition, on the main floor of the grandstand.

All these, and a host of equally interesting other features, give this year's wartime state fair the most novel and timely educational program in its history.

Save More Grass Seed

Since there is a great need for all the grass and legume seeds that can possibly be produced, farmers of Marshall county were urged today to look into the possibility of filling at least part of their seed needs from the home sources. County Agent R. A. Reierson says that timothy, brome and Reed canary grass not yet cut will probably make better seed than hay. He also suggests leaving some second crop legume to set seed if plenty of hay is already on hand.

M. L. Armour, extension agronomist at University Farm, offers these suggestions for cutting legumes and grasses for seed.

Cut timothy when seed is starting to shatter from the tips of 10 to 20 per cent of the earliest heads.

Cut brome, meadow fescue and Reed canary grass when two-thirds of the seed has passed through the soft dough stage.

Cut alfalfa, sweet clover, alsike, medium and mammoth clovers when two-thirds to three-fourths of the heads are ripe.

Armour says it is important to thresh these seed crops as soon as they are dry enough. That means arrangements should be made for a combine or thresher at the same time it is decided to leave crop for seed.

One of the best reasons for getting a home grown seed supply is that the farmer who has seed is likely to plant more grass and legumes. County Agent R. Reierson says there was a falling off in legume plantings this year, which may have serious consequences in the feed situation in 1944.

HOME-CANNED BERRIES TAKE LITTLE SUGAR

Home canned berries play leading roles in the pantry because they contribute vitamins and minerals for health, can be used in many ways, and are easy and inexpensive to can.

Blackberries, blueberries, boysenberries, raspberries, elderberries—can them all and others, too, with little or no sugar. Sugar gives them better flavor and more calories, but has nothing to do with keeping qualities.

Berries are too precious to waste and none will be wasted if you will see to it that every step taken is the right one. First of all, wash, rinse and examine your jars. Be sure to inspect the top edges of those to be sealed with glass top seal or two-piece vacuum seal closures because top seals refuse to work unless tops of the jars are perfect. Cover jars, glass lids, and zinc caps with luke-warm water, heat to boiling and keep hot until needed. Wash and rinse rubbers and vacuum seal lids and drop them in boiling water—they don't need boiling unless you plan to do old-fashioned open kettle canning—then they must be boiled a few minutes to sterilize.

Every berry must be fresh, sound, ripe, and firm. Wash them carefully and then take your choice of canning methods.

Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, prefers to hot-pack berries. This is how it is done. Place berries in a wide, shallow pan; add one-half cup sugar, or less, for each quart of berries; set the pan over low heat and simmer until the berries heat through and the sugar dissolves (remember you don't have to use any sugar); pour the hot berries into clean, hot jars and process five minutes in hot water-bath canner.

If you prefer cold packing, fill a jar about half full with raw berries, then tap it gently on a folded cloth to shake the berries down. When the jar is filled to within a half-inch of the top, add enough hot syrup to cover the berries. Process 20 minutes in a water-bath canner.

Syrup for four quarts of berries may be made by boiling two cups sugar and three cups water or berry juice together until the sugar dissolves. If you are a little short on sugar—and who isn't these days?—try making the syrup of one measure sugar, one measure corn syrup, and one-half measure water or berry juice. This syrup seems rather thick and sweet, but it will become thinner and less sweet after it has been with the berries a few weeks. And if you have no sugar at all, cover the berries with hot berry juice or boiling water; seal or partly seal the jars (follow the manufacturer's instructions) and process 20 minutes in a water-bath canner.

If you want your berries to really star, can them without sugar. Then they can be used as if they were fresh from the patch. The juice can be drained off and used for making jelly. The berries can go into a pie or into jam—a jam turnover tucked in a lunch box will make the noon hour much more pleasant for somebody and surely you need nobody to tell you that jelly and jam are far more delicious when freshly made than at any other time.

Little Chap Won His Bet With Both Thumbs Down

Green, who was the local athletic champion, had been holding forth at great length. None of the club regulars could do anything about it. But presently one of the visitors looked up.

"I'll bet," he said cheerfully, "$10 that I can wheel something in a wheelbarrow from one street lamp to the next, and you can't wheel it back!"

Green looked him over—not a very hefty sort of fellow. Whatever the stranger could do he could.

"Taken," he said.

A wheelbarrow was borrowed.

The stranger rubbed his hands, picked up the handles. "Get in, old man," he said.

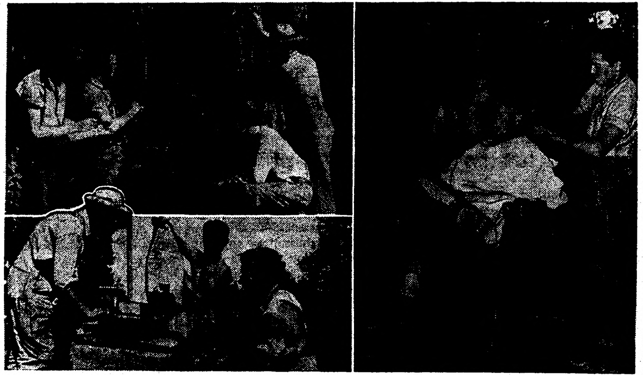
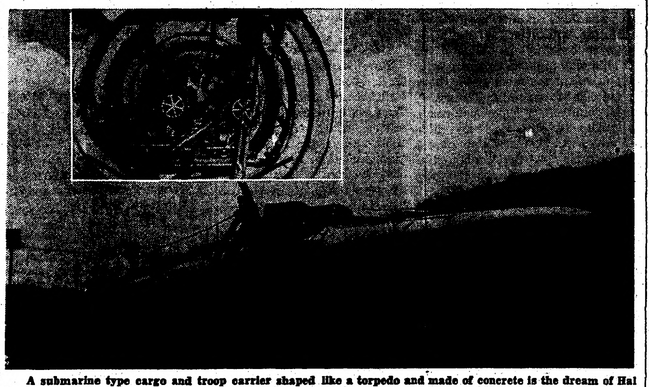
Self-Sufficiency Basis of Youth Forest Camp



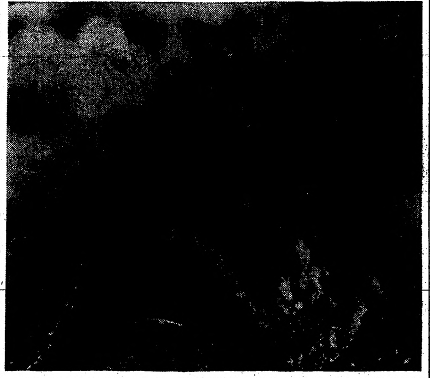
Boys who have been made wards of the juvenile court in California are being sent to a forestry camp in Calaveras State park if a check of their records and behavior indicates they are worthy of an opportunity. Self-sufficiency is stressed at the camp. Top left: Custodian A. A. Beck and J. H. Knight, assistant warden, kneeling, instruct two of their charges in the care of young trees. Bottom left: Two youths learn to mix concrete for camp foundations. Right: A youth gives his companion a haircut.

Concrete 'Sub' Type Cargo Carrier Planned



A submarine type cargo and troop carrier shaped like a torpedo and made of concrete is the dream of Hal B. Hayes, Hollywood contractor, and Hal Williams, motion picture producer. They claim that their craft would operate almost completely submerged and thus would present a poor target in submarine warfare. It would be cheap and light, they said, by utilizing concrete instead of steel. A model for the new type vessel is pictured above at Richmond, Calif. Inset: Hayes inspects the motors inside the new craft.

Hamburg Now World's Most Bombed City



Another Axis city now is entitled to the dubious distinction of "world's most bombed city"—Hamburg, Germany. It has been rendered useless as a military, manufacturing or shipping locale. Through gaps in the pall of smoke rising over the city, new explosions can be seen as Allied fliers work on the Howaldsrwerke U-boat shipyards.

As Zero Hour Neared

Just before a vast multitude of Allied warriors swarmed over Sicily in one of the greatest invasions of all times, Allied commanders inspected their troops. Gen. George S. Patton and Admiral Alan G. Kirk inspect American forces.

Japan's "Con" Man

By Clark Lee

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

If you should twirl the short-wave dials of your radio one of these nights and hear an announcer say: "This is Colonel Jiro Saito speaking from Manila," listen carefully!

The voice will be that of Japan's ace undercover man, a man you should know if you are to understand how the Tokyo war lords operate, how they are using every possible weapon in their bid for world conquest—trickery as well as troops; propaganda, bribery, fifth columnism and intrigue as well as submarines and airplanes.

And more important, it will be Jiro Saito or somebody very much like him whom the Japs will call on when they are eventually forced to cry "uncle" to Uncle Sam. The Japs don't expect to win their war to conquer the world all at once. What they want now in the Pacific is a stalemate and a negotiated peace that will let them keep part of what they have taken and give them time to prepare for the next step toward world mastery.

When the situation looks ripe, they will "depose" the militarists, put in a "conservative" cabinet of business men and one-time friends of America. They will produce men like Jiro Saito to plead their case, shy, soft-spoken, "so-sorry-for-you" fellows, who will attempt to convince the United States that it was all a mistake and let's be friends again.

When you listen to Jiro Saito's smooth, cultivated voice, speaking in grammatically perfect English, with just an occasional suggestion of Honolulu "pidgin," you will be hearing a man who exemplifies Japanese deceit. Saito is a medium-sized, rotund man of 48, with powerful neck and shoulders and with hair trimmed close to his broad pate in traditional Japanese army style. He looks like a typical Jap, but doesn't act like one. He spent his early years in Honolulu.

Started Two Wars.

There is nothing of the sword rattler or swashbuckler about him. On the contrary, he is extremely shy. Meeting him in peacetime, you would have thought him a nice, pleasant character, totally unlike the average run of Jap army officer.

But Saito has started two wars and stopped one. In his wake, there has always been a trail of bloodshed and tragedy. He was—and undoubtedly still is—the Japanese army's first expert on American psychology, its star secret agent, and a one-man fifth column.

You can scarcely stick a pin anywhere in the map of Asia without touching a region that has felt Saito's influence; and for the past decade and longer, a large part of Asia has been bathed in blood. Even so, there is no blood on Saito's own pudgy hands. He always gets out of a place before the shooting and bombing start, or he goes in after they have stopped. Indeed, in nearly 30 years in the ill-fitting khaki of the Imperial army, he has never plunged his sword into one of the emperor's enemies, never heard a shot fired except on maneuvers, never commanded troops in the field.

The portly colonel was very popular with the American correspondents in Shanghai. Squatting cross-legged at a geisha party, he looked like a bronze statue of a paunchy, heavy-jowled Chinese god, benevolent, but with a metallic quality about him.

Saito was especially sentimental about the Hawaiian Islands, where his father was consul general from 1903 to 1910, and where Saito attended private school and McKinley high, class of 1911.

"I feel more at home in Honolulu than any place in the world," the colonel told me.

By the summer of 1941, Japan decided it was time to drop the mask and take over southern Indo-China, which she needed as a jumping-off place for attacks on Singapore and the Dutch East Indies, and to protect her flank while she assaulted the Philippines.

Once again, the advance agent of empire was—you guessed it—Jiro Saito.

The colonel did his usual backstage job in Saigon, the capital of southern Indo-China. Then he emerged into the open as head of the military mission to supervise occupation of the strategic southern portion of the French colony.

The occupation of Saigon finally awakened the United States to the seriousness of Japan's penetration of southeastern Asia. But by then, it was too late. The Japanese had seized their springboards. They were ready for war.

We were soon to face the tragedies of Bataan and Pearl Harbor.

Today, Saito is director of the department of information of the Japanese army in the Philippines. That is his title, at least.

In a radio speech beamed to the United States, he said: "Our strategic positions both in the north and the south are being strengthened day by day, leaving no loophole to the enemy. In the Aleutian Islands, our forces continue to maintain unshakable strongholds, fully prepared when the time comes to march from here to Alaska."

That was a few days before our forces smashed ashore on Attu.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Scientists have found that rubber is the only substance that can be stretched tremendously and resume approximately its original form. Too much stretching, such as in underinflated tires, causes "fatigue"—and deterioration.

The first manufacture of rubber footwear outside the United States took place in 1856 in Scotland.

If gasoline consumption is a gauge of tire wear, more miles are run in July and August than any other months. Of the gas used in 1941, 9.5% was consumed in August and 9.4% in July. February was the low month, with 6.4% of the year's total.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Justice Holmes Had Gold Added to His Sunset

Justice Holmes replied as follows to the tribute of the other members of the Supreme court upon his retirement:

"My dear brethren: You must let me call you so once more. Your more than kind, your generous letter touches me to the bottom of my heart. The long and intimate association with men who so command my respect and admiration could not but fix my affection as well. For such little time as may be left for me I shall treasure it as adding gold to the sunset."

Catania's Capture Marked Beginning Of Axis Last Stand in Sicily Battle; Red Offensive Crumples Nazi Flanks; Yanks Continue Gains in Pacific Drive

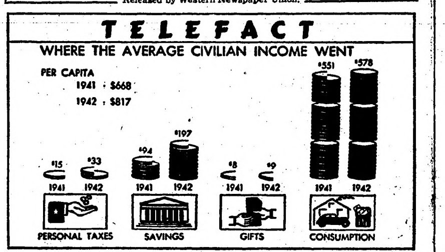
WHERE THE AVERAGE CIVILIAN INCOME WENT



SICILY:

Last Stand

Forty thousand Axis troops were all that were left to stand between the Allies and complete conquest of Sicily as the last phase of the battle developed. Of the 40,000, it was estimated that 35,000 were German and the rest Italian.

Although heavily outnumbered by the 10 Allied divisions reported in action, the Axis relied on strong natural entrenchments hewed into the rugged mountains to hold up the British-American drive. The advance against these positions was difficult, with the infantry slowly picking its way up the craggy but barren slopes in the face of stiff mortar and machine gun nests which had held their ground even after fierce Allied artillery barrage.

After being stalled for two weeks in front of Catania, the British 8th army spilled into the city after overcoming strong Axis positions set up along the several rivers winding through the country and in the tall fields of grain. Aided by the navy's bombardment of the enemy's coastal positions along the Tyrrhenian sea, the U. S. 7th army's drive pointed eastward to Messina, the Axis' last communication link with the Italian mainland.

MINERS:

For Travel Pay

Pride might cometh before the fall, but in John L. Lewis' case, it was his interest in drawing underground pay for his 500,000 United Mine Workers that accounted for his appearance before the War Labor board which he had so often berated in the past.

John L. Lewis

Occasion was the WLB's hearing on the Illinois Coal Operators' and UMW's agreement for payment of $1.25 a day to the miners for the time spent in traveling underground from the mine's entrance to the diggings. Lewis told the WLB that American coal miners are the only miners in any civilized country who receive no compensation for underground travel.

The agreement also calls for an eight instead of a seven hour day and a six-day work week, which, with the underground travel pay, would increase miners' daily checks by $3. Stating that 1,482 miners died from risks in the pits last year and 72,000 were seriously injured, Lewis said the extra working hours would increase the men's exposure to such accidents. Furthermore, he declared, the miners received just $37 more a year than the lowest classification of government clerical workers.

GRAIN:

Going East

Six hundred million bushels of corn were used during the second quarter of 1943, the department of agriculture reported, with supplies as of July 1 totaling 872 million bushels. Of this amount, 842 million bushels remained on farms.

As of July 1, the department stated that there was a supply of 290 million bushels of oats; over 200 million bushels of barley, and 46 million bushels of rye. Approximately 300 million bushels of wheat were found available for feed.

In relation to livestock, feed supply is reported to be 20 per cent smaller than last year and 14 per cent below average.

STRIKE

In the first test of the Smith-Connally law, 1,005 employees of two plants of the Allis-Chalmers company in Springfield, Ill., voted to strike in protest of the National Labor Relations board's refusal to grant District 50 of the United Mine Workers an election to determine its claim as collective bargaining agent. A total of 836 voted against a strike.

The ballot read: "Do you wish to permit an interruption in war production in wartime as a result of this dispute?"

RUSSIA:

Offensive Climax

The height of the Russians' summer offensive was reached with the fall of Orel. After a month of hard fighting, Marshal Timoshenko's forces swept into the city, even as the bulk of 250,000 German troops was being withdrawn to new positions to the west.

Gen. Timoshenko

Held by the Germans since October, 1941, Orel stood in ruin as the Russians moved in, with Nazi rear-guards tackling the Reds in hand-to-hand fighting in delaying action in the streets of the city.

In taking Orel, the Reds threw the full weight of their artillery, planes, tanks and infantry into the battle. Slowly, they ground down German resistance on the north, south and east sides of the city.

On the other end of the central front, the Reds announced capture of Belgorod.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:

At Munda

The American attack on Munda in the Solomons stands out as a classic of military strategy.

In the final stages of the battle against a fanatical enemy resisting to the death, American forces drew a tight noose around the Japs, with one column moving to the west of the defenders' line while two other columns hammered in from two ends on the east.

When American planes failed to sufficiently reduce the Japs' hidden pill-boxes hewed in the jungle brush, 13-ton tanks were called into the fray, and these crackled through the dense foliage to advance on the enemy's well-concealed positions and draw their fire. Their gun-fire guided the tanks to their entrenchments and these were quickly subdued with point-blank barrages.

With strong Jap points overrun on the east, American warships and airplanes then moved in along the coast to the west and laid down a thunderous volley into the enemy's positions. As this combined barrage shook up the Japs in their pillboxes and caves, American troops picked their way northward, to ring the enemy from the west.

TAXES:

Corporations' Share

What is the corporations' share of the nation's tax burden?

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau revealed that preliminary statistics show that 509,062 corporations filed returns for 1941. Except for 40,160 which were inactive with no income data, these corporations paid over seven billion dollars in normal, surtaxes and excess profit taxes. The government collected nearly 13 billion dollars in revenue for 1941, which would indicate that corporations accounted for almost 60 per cent of the total.

Henry Morgenthau

Morgenthau reported that of the corporations reporting for 1941, 264,625 showed profits, with net income of 18 billion dollars. Approximately 43,648 more corporations made money during the year than in 1940.

MISCELLANY:

WAR PRISONERS: One out of every ten American soldiers in Japanese prison camps has died of disease since the Philippines fell, the war department reveals.

WOUNDED: Seventy per cent of wounded Russian soldiers recover and return to the battlefield, report British army surgeons who have been on a mission to the Soviet Union.

Self Is Something You Are Creating Day by Day

A self is not something you are endowed with at birth. It is something you are continually creating as you live your day-by-day life.

"Ye must be born anew" is as true in modern psychology as in traditional theology. Every resentment that you encourage, every grudge, every despondency, every smug conceit—and on the other hand every self-mastery, every high fortitude, every facing of naked truth—makes either for breaking down the self or for building it up.

For mental self-command—the habit of constructive thought-direction—is more important for a wholesome life than physical soundness.—Winfred Rhoades.

When armored knights met, it was customary for each knight to raise the visor of his helmet as a means of identification. This gesture has come down through all armies in the form of the salute. Traditional, too, is the Army man's preference for Camel cigarettes. With men in the Army, Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard, actual sales records in their service stores show that Camel is the favorite. It's one of the favorite gifts with service men. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Looking Ahead

Discipline

The backwash of war is crime. Of course crimes occur in peace time but it's a matter of record that they increase sharply in war. Right now, along with their many other distresses, honest people in America are suffering from a crime wave. Those who must do their bit on the home front for victory in World War II have no more deadly enemy to face than a breakdown in the nation's moral fiber.

It is hard to see anything good about wars; hard to say anything good about them. Nations trying desperately to defend all that the human family has gained in the last twenty centuries are obliged to view their war as a necessary evil, but an evil just the same. Perhaps the ugliest of war's horrible features is the fact that the winner loses. Nobody actually benefits, and sometimes the conquering country is hurt worst of all.

A Destructive Force

War is fundamentally destructive. Under its impact human lives perish and human hopes turn to ashes. But there is something even worse: human souls go to ruin. Desperate people do unthinkable things and, with a spirit of desperation rampant in five continents, crimes have multiplied. However much to be desired, there was not much reason to expect less crime in war time.

Currently, America is said to be the leader in crime. The morals of our own people are sustaining an upheaval. And, in spite of the fact that history teaches us to expect it, the development is hard to understand. America is making a serious, self-sacrificing struggle in a noble cause! Why is this an excuse for wickedness to spread like a plague over an orderly country?

Seeking the Cause

Looking at the problem through the lens of cold reason, anybody is likely to say, "War and lawlessness are two different things; neither one causes the other." But is this true? I have been a student of youth rather than of criminology and I was shocked by the official figures showing that 15 percent of all murders, 35 percent of all robberies, 50 percent of all burglaries and 58 percent of all car thefts are being committed by people under 21 years old.

It is my studied conviction that the tendency of youth to break laws did not increase because America went to war. The tendency of youth is about what it was a year earlier, or two years earlier, but war induced young people to give expression to their rebellious impulses. Now, more than in previous years, young people (in war or at work) are finding themselves in strange surroundings, in disorganized communities, haunted by disturbing uncertainties. Many of them do not have the character to live normal lives in abnormal surroundings.

Early Training Poor

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, lays the blame squarely on the doorstep of the American home, and I think he is right. Of course it is much easier to deplore a situation than it is to correct it; much simpler to prohibit something than to prevent it. Nevertheless an honest size-up of a bad state of affairs is certain to help, and Mr. Hoover's analysis is sound. Respect for rightful authority starts at home, and disrespect for rightful authority is what makes outlaws. Criminals begin as impudent, disobedient children.

Records show that the divorce rate in America is up 500 percent from 40 years ago, also that crime has increased 500 percent in the same time. There is another vagrant statistic that stresses this parallel by showing what a large share of juvenile problems come from broken homes. Whatever such figures may seem to prove comes under the general classification of "spilt milk," but the cold facts are sobering. It is obvious that our Bible-reading ancestors who "got married for keeps" reared children who grew into better citizens.

Threat to Freedom

Growth in youthful delinquency is a threat to democracy. Mr. Hoover and his F.B.I. are doing a fine job subduing the unruly children of neglectful parents who are now more than half way to the cemetery, but youthful delinquency must not continue to grow if the nation is to survive. America's hope rests in the uprightness and solidarity of families that are younger; of those being formed now. The wisest man of all time said "Righteousness exalteth a nation."

Psychologists say the character of a man is formed in early childhood. The idea is not new; Solomon emphasized the same point 3,000 years ago. Would-be good parents who deny their children discipline are betraying them at the time of greatest need. It is my belief that schools and colleges do pitifully little for their students unless they qualify them to establish households where godliness is the standard of conduct.

The future greatness of the American people depends upon their courageous acceptance of natural responsibilities. Moral and religious training will permit the United States to continue as a self-governing people. Neglect of home discipline can wreck democracy, because criminals, as well as good citizens, are made at home.

Land O'Lakes News

Did You Ever Hear of a

"COOPERATIVE COOPERATIVE?"

PROBABLY not in those words, but a "cooperative cooperative" is important to northwest dairying.

IT MEANS that cooperation is carried one step beyond the usual idea of a cooperative—that benefits don't stop at the creamery door.

THE LAND O'LAKES METHOD of marketing is just that. It controls the producer's goods all the way to the grocer's door through processing, packaging, pool car shipping, distribution and sales. Thus, the producer controls—and has a potential profit in—more movements of his products.

THIS LAND O'LAKES COOPERATIVE method of marketing has been proven by over twenty years of successful operation.

PROGRESSIVE northwestern creameries are invited to investigate the advantages of membership in Land O'Lakes.

Entertained At Picnic Supper

The following people were entertained at a picnic supper at the L. M. Larson home on Sunday evening: Richard and Karina Luoto, Viola and Toivo Tuura, Amelia, Sally and Willie Wappula and Mildred Neimela of Middle River, Neil Larson and Glenn Johnson of Halma, Kenneth Boyum of Greenbush, Clayton, Eileen and Ardelle Larson and Francis Johnson.

Reorganize Sunday School

The Administration, teachers, former teachers and parents of the pupils of Nazareth Lutheran Sunday School will meet in the Church Parlors on Monday evening to plan and to organize the work for the coming year. It is hoped that many will be present at this meeting as it is important to plan a year,s work in Christian Education. All interested persons in the Sunday School are asked to be present. This year the plans are to have the parents and former teachers take part in the organization meeting. Due to the fact that many have left, it will be harder to secure teachers this year than in previous years.

Marshall County is faced with a possible teachers shortage and all married women who have taught are asked to contact Hattie Anderson, Assistant County Superintendent of Schools for further information.

Celebrate 31st Anniversary

Over 100 relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Furr gathered at their home on Sunday afternoon to help them celebrate their 31st. wedding anniversary. The following program was given: Greeting from Rev. Hanson read by Verna Peterson; Reading by Hazel Lunke; Song by five girls; Reading by Mrs. J. Nelson. Hilmer Lunke gave a talk in presenting the honor guests with a cash purse from those present.

Lunch was served. Two beautifully decorated wedding cakes were given to them from Mrs. Orville Risberg and Elaine Hoard.

Among those present from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoard and family, Mrs. Bill Parbst, Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Lunke and family and Mr. and Mrs. Art Johnson all of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Risberg and Judy of Detroit Lakes and Mrs. Anna Risberg of Middle River.

Card of Thanks

We wish to take this means of expressing sincere thanks to those who came to our place on Sunday to give us the fine party. Especially do we thank those who made the arrangements, those who were on the program and those who brought the wedding cakes. Also thanks very much for the cash purse.

SOME VICTORY RULES FOR CANNING VICTORY VEGETABLES

Canning without rules is like driving in a strange country without a road map—one is likely to go in the wrong direction. The wrong direction in canning leads to spoiled food—loss of canned food through spoilage is deplorable and unnecessary in time of peace, and inexcusable in time of war.

Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, gives the following sure-fire rule for successful home-canning:

1. Use jars intended for home-canning. Every one of them has a name lettered on the side.

2. Examine every jar to make sure that it is in good condition. Give special attention to the top edges of Mason jars. Most of them must be sealed with glass top seal closures or two-piece metal vacuum seals, because the zinc that used to go into the one-piece Mason caps has gone to the battle front. The glass top and vacuum seals can take the zinc cap's place on the home front only when used on jars with perfect top edges.

3. Do not stretch rubbers to test.

4. Wash and rinse jars, lids and rubbers. Then cover jars, zinc caps, and glass lids with lukewarm water, heat to boiling, and keep hot. Jars and lids to be used for old-fashioned open-kettle canning must be boiled 20 to 30 minutes. Wash rubbers and vacuum-seal lids, drop into boiling water, and keep hot until needed if to be used for processing (cooking food in jars). They must be boiled to sterilize for open-kettle canning.

5. Get canners and jars ready before starting to prepare vegetables.

6. Use vegetables that are fresh from the garden. The alien enemies, mould, yeast and bacteria, stand ready to sabotage any and all vegetables left standing over night or all through a long, hot morning.

7. Be sure that everything to be canned is at the right stage for canning. Shelled beans and peas should be young and tender—a few over-size or over-mature ones can cause the loss of the whole batch. The pods of string beans should be crisp and meaty—corn in full milk stage—and tomatoes red-ripe, firm, and sound. Wash all fruits and vegetables before breaking the skins.

8. Hot pack all vegetables except tomatoes. Hot pack means to cook the food a few minutes, then pour it into hot jars for processing. This is also the best way to can most fruits.

9. Fill no more jars at a time than your canner will hold.

10. Leave ample head space and plenty of room for liquid to circulate between pieces of food when filling jars for processing.

11. Tighten metal bands on two-piece metal vacuum seal caps before processing. Do not tighten again.

12. Partly seal for processing, all jars on which a jar rubber is used.

13. Place jars in the canner immediately after packing and process the time called for in the recipe. Remember, time guessing has no place in canning.

14. Take jars out of canner as promptly as possible after the processing time is up and complete the seal on all that are partly sealed for processing (see Rule 12).

15. Set hot jars as far apart as possible so they will cool quickly, but do not place in a draft.

16. Be sure every jar of canned food is sealed before it is put away.

a. Take the bands off glass top seals after the jars have stood over night and test the seal by pulling gently on lid with finger tips. Don't put the bands back on the jars.

b. Remove bands from vacuum seals 12 or 15 hours after canning and test the seal by pressing on the lid with the finger. If tightly sealed, there will be no "give" to the lid. Don't put the bands back on the jars.

c. One-piece zinc caps are drawn down flat when sealed. Do not turn down Mason jars upside down—this rule applies when using glass top seals, vacuum seals, and zinc caps.

d. Test "lightning" jars after they are cold by holding them upside down and examining for leaks.

17. Be finicky when it comes to cleanliness. Get rid of house flies. Remember, they prefer food to foot tub for foot washing.

18. Don't ask your neighbor how to can. She may not be as up-to-date as she thinks she is. It is far better to get a good recipe book and follow directions to the letter. As good a one as can be bought costs only a dime.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been of the best variety in all sections of this community. The area to the southwest had a soaker of a rain Saturday evening and again on Tuesday. The eastern country had a near cloudburst on Tuesday morning. The harvest and threshing, however, is progressing fairly well. We had another damp spell yesterday.

Marilyn Wegge arrived home Wednesday from Thief River Falls. She spent part of the time at the hospital receiving treatment for her arm.

Transcribing Battle Noises

Real battle noises will soon be transcribed by American radio stations through a new sound recorder about to be used on many fronts, says Collier's. Operating on batteries and recording magnetically on a thin wire that runs for four hours without a reload, the machine registers the sounds of battle and a running description made on the spot by the news commentator who carries the device on his back.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

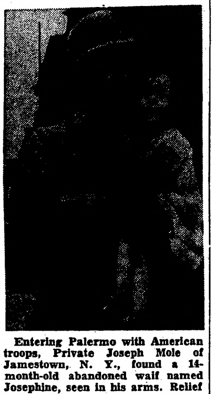
Italy's Industrial Belt Feels Weight Of Continued Allied Bombing Attacks; Grain Crop Production Shows Decline; U. S. Airmen Hit Both Ends of Pacific

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

ITALY:
Toe and Thigh

As the bulk of the German forces streamed across Messina straits from Sicily to the big toe of the Italian boot, Allied bombers struck at Italy's industrial belt high on the thigh of the leg-like peninsula.

As the final curtain was being drawn on the Sicilian campaign, suicidal German rearguards planted themselves in the craggy island's hill tops and mountain sides, and with mortar and machine gun fought Allied advances fiercely, as the bulk of their forces were evacuated.



Entering Palermo with American troops, Private Joseph Mole of Jamestown, N. Y., found a 14-month-old abandoned waif named Josephine, seen in his arms. Relief authorities took over her care.

In those last hours, the German rearguards' position became more precarious as daring units from Gen. George S. Patton's American 7th army landed behind their lines, and aided by naval batteries and dive bombers slashed their way through bayonets to firmly entrench themselves on shore.

Despite heavy anti-aircraft fire which was said to have thrown up a wall of steel, waves of Allied bombers hit the important industrial center of Milan. Terrific detonations could be heard on the Swiss border miles away as the bombers pushed their way through the flak to drop their incendiaries and block-busters.

DRAFT:
Induction Order

Now that Selective Service officials have authorized the drafting of fathers October 1, plans have been drawn for induction according to the importance of a man's occupation.

Under the new plan, a new classification known as "super-eligibility" would be created, under which certain skilled jobs in direct war production would place the employee last in the draft list.

The plan also would extend the list of non-essential jobs, holders of which would be eligible for immediate call, regardless of number of children. In this case, such men would be given the opportunity to switch to more essential industries.

Thus, those in non-essential occupations would be called first, before essential and "super-eligible" employees. About 300,000 fathers are to be drafted this year.

RUSSIA:
Fighting Unsurpassed

Russia's resurging manpower rolled like a tidal wave over the endless Russian plains, and Germany's stubborn armies gave under the weight.

To the north, the Reds drove on Smolensk from two sides, leaving the Nazis a 140-mile gap in which to retreat along the corridor Napoleon Bonaparte used over a hundred years ago to pull his ragged and beaten army out of the country.

To the south, the Reds bore down on Kharkov, like they bore down on Orel, from three fronts, the north, east and south. Possessed with no natural fortifications, battered Kharkov, once the mighty "Pittsburgh" of Russia, lay exposed on the barren plains to the Reds' massed fire power and troops.

BUSINESS:
Biggest Merger

Originally incorporated in New York state in 1851, the Western Union Telegraph company, with a capital of $170,000, almost immediately established a policy of purchasing or consolidating with less formidable competitors.

Biggest step in the policy loomed recently when stockholders of the Postal Telegraph company voted to merge with Western Union, now more than a $340,000,000 enterprise, world-wide in operation.

AGRICULTURE:
Below '42

Total production of the five leading grain crops was set at 5,282,000,000 bushels for 1943, 700,000,000 less than harvested last year, on the basis of estimates of the department of agriculture.

Because of favorable growing conditions in July, the department looked for a corn crop of 2,874,711,000 bushels against last year's harvest of 3,175,154,000; a wheat crop of 834,894,000 against 981,327,000; an oats crop of 1,189,546,000 against 1,244,255,000; a barley crop of 348,848,000 against 426,150,000, and a rye crop of 33,314,000 against 57,341,000.

Combined production of the four feed grains—corn, oats, rye and barley—was estimated at 111,000,000 tons below last year's yield. Soybean harvest was set at 200,328,000 bushels.

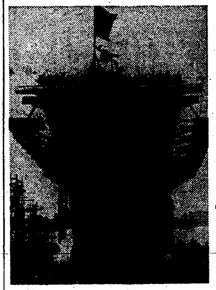
Milk production held close to last year's level and egg output was at a peak, except in the West.

PACIFIC:
Hit Both Ends

While American troops hemmed in the last surviving band of Japanese on New Georgia island in the Solomons, U. S. airmen lifted their Liberator bombers off of the Aleutian runways and headed them for the northern-most chain of islands of the Japanese empire.

As the Liberators rumbled over these islands, known as the Kuriles, 40 enemy fighter planes rose up in defense. But the Americans opened their bomb bays and death and destruction tumbled on the designated target areas. Two Liberators were shot down, but the others swung their noses homeward to complete the 1,000-mile trek.

Bad weather made the jungle on New Georgia a stew, but nevertheless U. S. Doughboys slogged through the mire to complete encirclement of the remnants of the Japanese force on the northwest coast of the island.



Latest addition to the U. S. fleet is this new aircraft carrier, Bataan.

ALLIED MEETING:
Politics and War

With Allied forces at the gates of the European fortress, with Marshal Pietro Badoglio's military government of Italy reportedly receptive to peace terms, and with Russia having indicated willingness to negotiate with a "democratic" Germany purged of Naziism, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt came together for their sixth personal meeting of the war.

Flying to the North American continent with Churchill was a staff of military and naval chieftains, and joining them for discussion were ranking U. S. army and navy officers. The combination of these staffs indicated further operations of joint character, such as those in North Africa and Sicily, where the services of the two nations teamed for effective action.

As Churchill and Roosevelt met, Russia threw a bombshell into the diplomatic picture by declaring that Premier Joseph Stalin had not been invited to the conference, and therefore neither he nor an accredited Soviet representative would attend. Russia's diplomatic jockeying to share in the dominion of Europe after the war will be one of the Allied leaders' chief considerations.

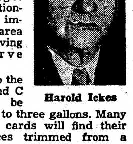
GAS:
Ration Change

Reduction in the gas ration in the Midwest and Southwest was planned by the Office of Price Administration following Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes' report of a critical fuel shortage. Formerly, rationing had been imposed in the area to limit driving and conserve tires.



Harold Ickes

According to the plan, A, B and C coupons will be cut from four to three gallons. Many holders of C cards will find their gas allowances trimmed from a maximum of 720 miles per month to 480. Preferred motorists like doctors, ministers and certain war workers will continue to receive unlimited supplies according to need.

It was said increased movement of oil to the East through the newly completed "big-inch" pipe line would draw from the affected area's supplies, contributing to any reduction in the gas ration there.

TAXES:
Who Pays

Of the total of 22 billion dollars collected by the U. S. treasury for the fiscal year 1943 which ended June 30, the states of New York and Illinois contributed almost 28 per cent.

The treasury's figure showed that the people in eight highly industrialized states paid 59 per cent of the government's total revenue. Besides New York and Illinois, these states were Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan.

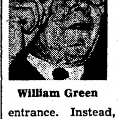
By contrast, the treasury said North and South Dakota, each with a small population, paid about .08 of the total revenue.

Of the revenue collected, more than 10 billion dollars was in the form of individual and corporation income taxes.

LABOR:
Shun Lewis

Big, burly John L. Lewis found the road back to the American Federation of Labor, from which he once bolted to form the CIO, blocked.

Headed by AFL President William Green, the union's executive committee officially refused to accept the United Mine Workers' application for re-entrance. Instead, the council said that the matter would be referred to the AFL annual convention.



William Green

In rejecting Lewis' application, the council showed no disposition to bargain with him. Whereas Lewis had insisted that the UMW be accepted as presently composed, the council called for dissolution of UMW's District 50, which has been unionizing various branches of labor. Otherwise, the council said, District 50's activities might interfere with established AFL unions.

MINERS:

Seven weeks after passage of the Smith Connally anti-strike bill, 30 coal miners, including officials of various United Mine Workers locals, stepped into federal court and asked that the case be thrown out on constitutional grounds.

The miners' counsel declared that the anti-strike law was in opposition to the first amendment of the Constitution guaranteeing freedom of speech, and the 13th amendment to the Constitution against involuntary servitude.

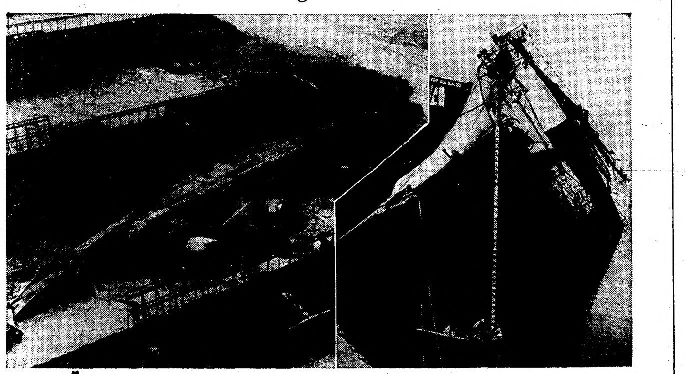
Normandie Floats Again—Soon to Be Erect



The USS Lafayette, formerly the French luxury liner, Normandie, will once again sail the seas despite the devastating fire of February 9, 1941, which swept through her and the 100,000 tons of water which were poured into her hull sending her crashing to the bottom of the Hudson river. A corps of 70 divers and 700 workmen have her rapidly on the way up in the final stages of the second tremendous naval salvage operation of recent weeks. The other record setting ship raising and refitting was at Pearl Harbor. Left: The Normandie just after she rolled over. Despite the intense fire and the hundreds of workmen aboard only one life was lost. Right: It has been necessary to paint new numbers on this measuring tape to keep pace with the rapid rise of the ship.

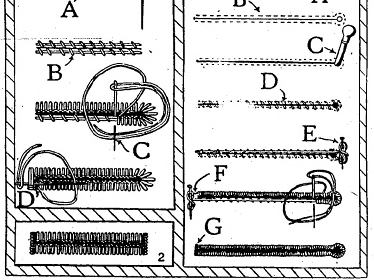
BETTER DRESSMAKING

By Ruth Wyeth Spears



CONSERVATION of clothing begins with an ounce of prevention. When we think of where garments wear out first, buttonholes come to mind. Once the material around them becomes frayed the garment is finished so far as good looks is concerned.

The buttonholes of old garment may be reworked; those of inexpensive ready-mades may be reinforced; and those in new garments may be made both smart and substantial with evenly purled stitches.

Three types of worked buttonholes are shown here. 1. The buttonhole with fan stitches at the outside end and reinforcing bar at inside. 2. Buttonhole with bar at both ends. 3. Tailored buttonhole with eyelet at outside end. The process of reinforcing a buttonhole slit with long stitches and overcasting is shown at A and B, in Sketch 1. The position of the needle and thread in making the purled buttonhole stitch is shown at C. The blanket stitch used for the bar is shown at D. Sketch 3 shows the method of marking the tailored buttonhole at A; stitching around marking, at B; punching eyelet, at C; overcasting, D; method of holding reinforcing thread, E and F. The bar at the inside end is shown at G.

NO SUGAR NEEDED IN EASY-TO-MAKE ALL-BRAN MUFFINS
Here's an already favored recipe that's gaining new wartime fame . . . ALL-BRAN Muffins without sugar! See for yourself how the flavorsome crispness of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN gives these delicious muffins a texture and taste all their own!
Kellogg's All-Bran Muffins
2 tablespoons shortening
⅓ cup corn syrup
1 egg
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
¾ cup milk
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder
Cream shortening and corn syrup thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk, let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 8 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2¼ inches in diameter.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

No More Brass

On land or at sea our fighting men do their many chores by the sound of a bugle. All sorts of uncomplimentary epithets are used to designate the bugler, but nobody has yet been able to provide a satisfactory substitute for a bugle although recordings are used at some permanent bases.

Aboard ship the men fall in at the order of "Pipe muster." On land the bugler sounds "Assembly!" But no matter where the bugle is used thousands must be bought out of the money we are investing in War Bonds. Back the attack with an extra $100 Bond in the 3rd War Loan.

YOUR STAKE IN THE COST OF WAR

"Renegotiation of war contracts" is a heavy-sounding term, and newspaper readers in the sections of America where public interests are localized and largely agricultural may wonder how such a subject can concern them.

But since every taxpayer has a personal stake in any measure that increases government expense and adds to the public payroll, especially at a time when every dollar is needed for the war effort, then this question of contracts for equipment and supplies becomes vital to all.

"Renegotiation"

In the early days of lend-lease and of the huge task of mustering an armed force of millions of men, a few contractors receiving fat orders saw in these government contracts only a new gold mine. To meet the relatively small number of abuses which were brought to light, the last Congress passed a law requiring that all new and old Army, Navy and Maritime Commission contracts be written with a "renegotiation" clause, so that they could be refigured in the search for cases where contractors were making too large a profit.

This law requires that the Army, Navy and Maritime commission each employ a separate force of men to re-estimate all contracts for buildings, machinery, tanks, airplanes, guns, clothing, and the thousand items industry must turn out for war use.

The law seemed wise and harmless at first, but evidently it was not realized how large an "army" of employees would be needed to enforce it.

It is estimated that there are some three million such contracts, over 20,000 contractors, and an unknown number of sub-contractors. If the original law were carried out, it might easily require 200,000 new public payrollers, and 300,000 new employees hired by contractors to prepare the data for the federal authorities, and this at a time when manpower is scarce and every able-bodied person is needed for service in uniform or production work at home. The job would take years even after the war.

Amendments Not Sufficient

Agriculture and industry are short of machinery and manpower, and these men are too badly needed in producing crops and equipment for ourselves and our allies to be wasted in checking up on contracts, especially when there is already an efficient means of doing that work.

True, the original bill has been amended; but the amendments still authorize each department concerned to refigure contract prices. This means the employment of a vast number of special auditors and accountants.

Congressman Disney points out that there should be an automatic method of screening out contractors from those whose profits are not excessive, "so that we will not have to use, in renegotiation, all of the accountants in the country."

A proposed amendment whittles at the original law and limits renegotiation to contracts which show more than 2 per cent profit. But this is no time for half-way measures. That sort of plan would still require a lot of unnecessary employees on both government and contractors' payrolls.

The Solution

The Internal Revenue department has a yearly check on all profits. It figures the taxes paid in all industries, including those with Army, Navy and Maritime commission contracts. If the Internal Revenue authorities discover an abnormal profit from any war work in any business, after payment of taxes, it could so certify to the department concerned so that renegotiation could be started. The ones that are within the fair and reasonable limit of 2 per cent profit after taxes would require no attention, and in that way millions of man-hours would be saved and duplication of effort, and delays caused by extra forces of employees refiguring contracts, would be avoided.

The Disney amendment, which seems simple and effective, has not yet been adopted. Yet it amply guards against excess profits, with a minimum of interference with wartime production and at the same time providing escape from the new load of non-essential payrollers which the original law threatened.

The ordinary man therefore concludes: Why not let the Internal Revenue tax man do the whole job at one sitting? Why not save the time of industrial management and employees for vital work? Why not use the established check on costs, and at the same time save the expense of extra payrollers?

Most of those payrollers could well be used in the armed service, or on farms, or in factories, or in some other productive kind of work, instead of occupying desks in Washington. They would then be doing something to help win the war.

"ON TO VICTORY" IS STAGE SHOW AT STATE FAIR

Wartime's Greatest Musical Revue; Wild West Days and Army Show Booked

"On to Victory," a sparkling, fast-moving patriotic musical revue, will be the night grandstand attraction at the Minnesota State Fair, August 28 to September 6.

Participating as goodwill emissaries from our allies will be celebrated entertainers representing Russia, Great Britain, Holland and China.

Designed to provide relaxation from the war strain, "On to Victory" will present diversified entertainment at its highest peak. Combining the spectacular with song, comedy and thrilling ensemble dancing, the 1943 extravaganza is the most pretentious in fair history.

Diversion for All

An all-star cast of 400 living artists will be featured in a new modernistic setting introducing many novel and original scenic and lighting effects. The costumes are the creation of the cinema's outstanding designers.

The production will be built around four episodes, Indians, Russia, When the Lights Go On and Let Freedom Ring. Entertainment from our Allies include Wen Hai and his oriental troupe from China; Mel Hall, Britain's famed clown and unicyclist; the Van Oranto trio from Holland, in a new, nerve-wracking double balancing feat on the top of a single pole, and the Pallenberg animal circus from Russia.

Harness racing will be featured four afternoons, August 28, 30, 31 and September 1. More than 150 pacers and trotters will compete for the $10,000 in purses.

Wild West Days will be presented five afternoons, September 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6. Cowboys, cowgirls, Indians, bucking broncs, sharpshooters and lariat wielders will vie with one another in reliving the thrilling days of the frontier. A special war show will be an added attraction.

Army Show

The U. S. army will stage a series of maneuvers in which tanks, jeeps, anti-aircraft and machine guns, mobile units and field equipment will participate.

Fun for all is promised by the Rubin and Cherry shows on the new midway.

Looking Ahead

Good Living

Once upon a time a successful man decided to take a recess from business, and travel. Before leaving, he set up a budget to continue operations, appropriating substantial funds to three subordinates; 62½% to A, 25% to B and 12½% to C. When, after a long time, the head of the firm came back and asked for an accounting he learned that A and B both had doubled their money but the incompetent Mr. C had barely saved his principle.

What happened after that? Well, the management dismissed C and assigned his appropriation to the especially capable Mr. A. The story is told perfectly in Matthew 25:14-30. In this text is the origin of the term "five-talent man" meaning a person of exceptional ability in matters of business. It shows why business prospers in the hands of capable, energetic people. It is one of the many parables of Jesus.

A Singular Gift

Some people naturally have more money-making ability than others, just as some have more musical talent or more eloquence in public address. There is no end to a list of skills at which men have varying abilities, for new crafts are being created every day. But the knack of making money is in a class by itself, at least in the estimation of most people. It is a skill desired by many but admired by few.

It is not unusual to hear people speak with contempt of the money-making skill and, on several occasions, curiosity has led me to ask them why they did it. Some answers have been long and some short but they all have agreed on one point. Every answer implied that accumulating capital is selfish. One woman said, "Musicians play and sing for all to hear, artists make pictures for all to see, but the man who piles up money is helping only himself."

How Earnings Come

Hers was a tell-tale answer. It disclosed considerable prejudice and not much thought. The truth is that a man with moneymaking ability is almost invariably a blessing to his community. Of course a miser's money is no good to himself or anybody else, but people who know how to assemble capital, put it to work and manage it well, are public benefactors. Such men improve incomes for people around them more than for themselves.

The best wages are paid only where big investments have been placed and where good profits are being made. Learned economists have scientific methods of proving that wages increase with the amount of capital invested, but it's more than a mere theory. It is a thing anybody can see by looking about at other people's jobs. Common sense teaches that (1) in the long run people get paid for what they produce, (2) with good equipment they can produce more and earn more, (3) but it takes an investment to provide the equipment.

The American Plan

Think of six foreign countries; any six you can name, large or small, rich or poor. The national income of the United States of America is equal to that of all the foreign six put together, no matter if you select the best half-dozen of the lot. This means that the average American earns far more money than the average citizen of any foreign country, and accordingly lives better.

Somebody is sure to ask: "How does this affect me? Of course our country is rich but the big corporations have everything gobbled up. National income and averages are nothing but statistics and I can't spend them. If I walk down the street and meet the millionaire who owns the plant where I work, his wealth and mine may average above $500,000 but that doesn't make me any richer. What about me?"

Protect Investments

The answer to such a question is plain and reasonable: Every workman in any plant is richer because of the investment in it. Wages in America are twice as high as in England, three times as high as in continental Europe and six (sometimes 20) times as high as in the Orient. It is because only in America are workmen backed up with 4.5 horsepower of installed equipment apiece, an investment of $8,000 for the average workman's job.

Do American workmen earn more because they work harder? No indeed! They don't work as hard or as long. Their pay is in proportion to their production: twice that of an Englishman, three times that of an European, six time that of a Jap. The necessary investment has been made by men who have prospered and saved and now hope to prosper further by intelligent investment.

Divided Gains

Under the American system of Free Private Enterprise, a few five-talent men in industry are extremely well paid. They earn it because all they get is very little compared to the income they create for others. Less than 16 per cent of national income will pay everybody in America who earns $10,000 a year or more. Occasionally somebody shouts for equalized incomes. What the complainer really says is this: "Down with competent men. Let's ruin their investments, wreck their machinery and live on Japanese standards."

A HAND IN NATIONAL AFFAIRS!

NO ONE DAIRY FARMER could hope to make his needs known to our government or to bring about a public understanding and appreciation of farm problems. Even single cooperative creamery organizations would have a difficult time educating public officials to the increasingly complex problems of dairying. But, in Land O'Lakes there are hundreds of cooperative creameries.

TOGETHER, the Land O'Lakes members have a hand in national affairs. For example, even though Land O'Lakes opposed the principles of the recent roll-back. it was through the efforts of the Land O'Lakes organization that some of the physical dairying problems involved were recognized and thus thousands of dollars were saved for Land O'Lakes members . . and ALL dairy farmers.

A HAND in national affairs . . this is but one of the many intangible yet important reasons why you should urge your creamery to investigate the advantages of a marketing membership in Land O'Lakes.

Get Your Driver's License

If you moved Sept. 1, or will move any other time, it will be necessary to get a renewal of your driver's license within 30 days. This year, however, you can kill two birds with one stone, for your old drivers license will expire on your next birthday any way. If you get a new license when you move, it will expire on your birthday in the fourth year after date of issuance. For instance, if your birthday is Nov. 15 and you move and get a new license in September, it will be good until November 15, 1947.

A double Baptism was performed at the parsonage on Saturday afternoon when Judith Sherry, infant daughuer of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Severts and Charles Henry, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Waino Walton of Middle River were baptised. The sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Severts, Mr. and Mrs. Waino Walton and Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Sorter.

Card of Thanks

I wish to take this means of expressing sincere thanks to those who wrote to me at the Luther League Social Hour. Also thanks to Rev. Hanson for the Church Chimes and to all those who write letters to me.

Also Geraldine Larson of Badger.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sandberg and girls, Mrs. Inga Backlund, Marian and Oliver were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Guss Sunday of last week.

Jules Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson, left Sunday evening for Oakland, Calif., where she will be employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Torrance Lillevold of Grygla and Mrs. Ed Horien and son Frank visited at the Leo Horien home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Johnson, Louis Sagstuen, Mrs. L. Sagstuen and Hartley Peterson were among those who picked blueberries on Sunday.

Mrs. L. Hams and Larry have rented the apartment over Carlson's store and moved there on Monday. Mrs. Hams has been employed at the Augustine and Lubitz home this summer.

Canning without rules is like driving in a strange country without a road map—one is likely to go in the wrong direction. The wrong direction in canning leads to spoiled food—loss of canned food through spoilage is deplorable and unnecessary in time of peace, and inexcusable in time of war.

Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, gives the following sure-fire rule for successful home-canning:

1. Use jars intended for home-canning. Every one of them has a name lettered on the side.

2. Examine every jar to make sure that it is in good condition. Give special attention to the top edges of Mason jars. Most of them must be sealed with glass top seal closures or two-piece metal vacuum seals, because the zinc that used to go into the one-piece Mason caps has gone to the battle front. The glass top and vacuum seals can take the zinc cap's place on the home front only when used on jars with perfect top edges.

3. Do not stretch rubbers to test.

4. Wash and rinse jars, lids and rubbers. Then cover jars, zinc caps, and glass lids with lukewarm water, heat to boiling, and keep hot. Jars and lids to be used for old-fashioned open-kettle canning must be boiled 20 to 30 minutes. Wash rubbers and vacuum-seal lids, drop into boiling water, and keep hot until needed if to be used for processing (cooking food in jars). They must be boiled to sterilize for open-kettle canning.

5. Get canners and jars ready before starting to prepare vegetables.

6. Use vegetables that are fresh from the garden. The alien enemies, mould, yeast and bacteria, stand ready to sabotage any and all vegetables left standing over night or all through a long, hot morning.

7. Be sure that everything to be canned is at the right stage for canning. Shelled beans and peas should be young and tender—a few over-size or over-mature ones can cause the loss of the whole batch. The pods of string beans should be crisp and meaty—corn in full milk stage—and tomatoes red-ripe, firm, and sound. Wash all fruits and vegetables before breaking the skins.

8. Hot pack all vegetables except tomatoes. Hot pack means to cook the food a few minutes, then pour it into hot jars for processing. This is also the best way to can most fruits.

9. Fill no more jars at a time than your canner will hold.

10. Leave ample head space and plenty of room for liquid to circulate between pieces of food when filling jars for processing.

11. Tighten metal bands on two-piece metal vacuum seal caps before processing. Do not tighten again.

12. Partly seal for processing, all jars on which a jar rubber is used.

13. Place jars in the canner immediately after packing and process the time called for in the recipe. Remember, time guessing has no place in canning.

14. Take jars out of canner as promptly as possible after the processing time is up and complete the seal on all that are partly sealed for processing (see Rule 12).

15. Set hot jars as far apart as possible so they will cool quickly, but do not place in a draft.

16. Be sure every jar of canned food is sealed before it is put away.

a. Take the bands off glass top seals after the jars have stood over night and test the seal by pulling gently on lid with finger tips. Don't put the bands back on the jars.

b. Remove bands from vacuum seals 12 or 15 hours after canning and test the seal by pressing on the lid with the finger. If tightly sealed, there will be no "give" to the lid. Don't put the bands back on the jars.

c. One-piece zinc caps are drawn down flat when sealed. Do not turn Mason jars upside down—this rule applies when using glass top seals, vacuum seals, and zinc caps.

d. Test "lightning" jars after they are cold by holding them upside down and examining for leaks.

17. Be finicky when it comes to cleanliness. Get rid of house flies. Remember, they prefer food to foot tub for foot washing.

18. Don't ask your neighbor how to can. She may not be as up-to-date as she thinks she is. It is far better to get a good recipe book and follow directions to the letter. As good a one as can be bought costs only a dime.

Third War Loan Opens Sept. 9

Every income earning resident of Marshall county will be requested to increase their purchases of U. S. War Bonds during the Third War Loan which officially opens on Sept. 9, when more than 250 volunteer workers will go from farm to farm and house to house as official representatives of the U. S. Treasury.

"Marshall county banks are bulging with money belonging to the residents of the county, and a large share of this must be invested in government securities if we are going to meet our $732,500 share of the $15 billion national goal", said Mr. Mattson. "Bank deposits in the county were never higher and will increase considerably during the next few weeks when much of the income from this year's harvest will be received. It behooves every one of us to figure out for ourselves how much of this new income we can invest for the preservation of our freedom.

"Practically every home in Marshall county has one or more members of their immediate family or intimate friends in the armed services of our nation. They have taken their place on the fighting fronts or in training camps. They are giving life or limb, they are undergoing ordeal after ordeal protect all that you are or hope to be.

"If you want a simple direct answer to the question: 'What is my part in the Third War Loan?' here it is: Do everything in your power to back the attack with War Bonds. Take every penny you do not need for necessities—such as rent, taxes, food, health—and put it into War Bonds.

"Meet the solicitors in your township or village with a glint in your eye for freedom and show him that you are ready to lay your dollars down on the line for the future of America. Uncle Sam wants to use your dollars now—he will pay them back with interest to you when you may need these dollars when the war is over!

Xmas Shopping Season Here

The Christmas shopping season is here - - even tho the weather is still warm.

Mailing of gifts for Army and Navy personnel overseas must begin by Sept. 15, if many of the men and women in our armed services are not to be disappointed; and Sept. 15 is less than two weeks away.

Christmas gifts may be mailed by parcel post to Army men and women overseas only between September 15 and October 15. After the latter date, such parcels may not be mailed unless a written request from the soldier for the article is presented with each parcel. No soldier should have to ASK for a Christmas gift; so gifts must be mailed on time. The Navy also urges that gifts be mailed between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15.

Reasons for early mailing dates are: The vast distances that the parcels must travel to reach our men at war fronts and stations the world over; frequent transfers of thousands of men from one location to another, which means forwarding of the mail and consumes additional time; the necessity for giving preference to reinforcements, arms, munitions, medecine and food in allotment of shipping space, which often means that shipments of gifts must wait. And it is most urgent that gifts be delivered to the men in Time For Christmas, to keep their spirit high.

Mail of all kinds is vital to the spirit of fighting men. Every officer who has inspected our Army and Navy postal facilities overseas has reported that thousands of fighting men disregard mess call when it conflicts with mail call, and get their letters first. Officers at our large military and naval stations report that the spirit and efficiency of their men receive a distinct lift when mail is distributed, and that a delay in mail service caused a decided decline in spirit with a consequent letdown in efficiency.

Life of Mrs. M. Udstrand

Mrs. Markus Udstrand, nee Elise Marie Larson, the daughter of Lars and Margaret Larson, was born at Troms, Norway, on June 10, 1865. She was Baptized in the Troms Lutheran Church and was later confirmed in the Kvaedfjord Church. She emigrated from Norway to America and arrived here on July 4, 1893. On Feb. 10, 1894, she was united in marriage to Markus Udstrand in the Ringbo Lutheran Church. She, together with her husband and family, lived in the Ringbo and Holt communities until 1930 when they purchased a home in Thief River Falls and moved there. She made her home there until recently when she moved to Warren. Her husband died on Feb. 4, 1940. She was a home-loving, quiet, kind and considerate woman. For many years, she was a member of the Ladies Aid in the Ringbo and Holt churches.

She is survived by the following children: Mrs. Gida Udstrand and Mabel Udstrand, Warren; Mrs. Alma Dudley, St. Cloud; Mrs. Palma Enge. Tacoma, Wash Helmer and Arthur Udstrand, Thief River Falls; Hjalmer and Bernard Udstrand, U. S. Army.

One daughter died in infancy.

She is also survived by 7 grand children and the following four sisters: Mrs. Emma Olson and Bertha Larson in Norway; Mrs. Inga Kalin, Kennedy, Minnesota Mrs. Josephine Ness, Seattle, Wash.

She passed away at Warren on Monday, Aug. 23 following a three weeks ailment, at the age of 78 years, 2 months and 13 days.

Funeral services were conducted from the Nazareth Lutheran Church Saturday Rev T. C. L. Hanson officiating. Pall bearers were: Christ Engen, E. O. Waagedahl, Carl Johnson, Carsten Sagstuen, Ludvig F. Larson, T. B. Folden. She was laid to rest in the Holt cemetery.

A disconsolate soldier or sailor who thinks he has been forgotten at Christmas obviously is not at his best. So the gifts Must be mailed on time so that they can arrive on time.

THIS old fashioned saw tooth quilt pattern has been used for the border of many handsome quilts. It is so modern looking and so simple to piece that it should serve many decorative purposes. Here it trims kitchen curtains of unbleached muslin. In addition to its old time use its angular note would make it effective as a border for luncheon cloths, aprons and various other purposes.

Lawyer Met His Match In Tinsmith, On and Off

A lawyer, noted for his success in cross-examination, asked a witness how long he had worked at his business of tin-roofing.

"I have worked at it off and on for some time."

"How long off and on?"

"Sixty-five years."

"How old are you?"

"Sixty-five."

"Then you have been a tin-roofer from birth?"

"No, sir; of course I haven't."

"Then why do you say you have worked at your trade 65 years?"

"Because you asked how long off and on I had worked at it. I have worked at the trade 65 years—20 years on and 45 off."

Here there was a roar in the courtroom, but not at the expense of the witness, and the lawyer hurriedly finished his examination in great confusion.

When you see news photos of soldiers "off duty" in camp or behind the battle-lines—notice how often you'll see them smoking a cigarette. There's a good reason for that. Army officials say that cigarettes are an appreciable factor in maintaining morale—and the soldiers themselves add that a carton of cigarettes from home is always welcome. What brand? Well, sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens show that Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in all the services. Though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen wherever they are.—Adv.

Allied Military Representatives Plan Over-All Strategy for Defeat of Axis; Red Troops Close on Nazi Strongholds; October Draft Quota to Include Dads

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

With the historic Chateau Frontenac in the background, English-American political and military leaders meet for memorable conference. Seated from left to right are Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada; President Roosevelt, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England. Standing from left to right, Gen. H. H. Arnold, Sir Charles Portal, Sir Allan Brooke, Adm. Ernest King, Sir John Dill, Gen. George Marshall, Adm. Sir Dudley Pound, and Adm. William Leahy.

Zero Hour

The zero hour for Italy arrived.

Across the Mediterranean, Allied transports massed in North African ports. Axis planes flying in to bomb the shipping were met by walls of steel anti-aircraft fire and scores of fighter planes.

Plowing along the Italian shoreline, Allied cruisers and destroyers poured heavy shells into important railroad junctions and power stations. Overhead, all kinds of bombers — fighter, medium and heavy — dropped high explosives on Axis troops moving along open roads and through mountain passes.

Gen. Dwight Eisenhower

As Allied artillery pumped shells into Italy from Sicily, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower counted 167,000 Axis casualties in the 39-day campaign which won the island. Our own losses were placed at 25,000.

Peace and the Sword

Assault of Hitler's European fortress and policies for dealing with re-occupied countries—upon these momentous questions turned the sixth conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in Quebec.

Formulating the military grand strategy were approximately 350 army and navy officials from the U. S., Great Britain and Canada. Over their maps they planned, first, the invasion of Europe, then, the conquest of Japan.

Joining Roosevelt and Churchill were their foreign secretaries, Cordell Hull and Anthony Eden. With them, the two Allied leaders discussed the measures to be taken in restoring order in re-occupied nations, and the policies to be pursued to meet Russia's territorial claims and demand for participation in the rehabilitation of Europe.

RUSSIA:

Push Nazis Back

Russian troops closing in on the charred ruins of what was once the mighty industrial city of Kharkov, found their advance delayed by strong German counter-attacks. But as fighting raged at the gates of the former "Pittsburgh" of the Ukraine, other Red forces worked their way northwest to seal off the last railroad running out of the embattled city.

Farther to the south, the Nazis claimed the Russians threw in tanks to re-enforce 150,000 Red troops hammering along the big bend of the Donetz river. This would indicate the Russians concentrated their striking power along the whole Ukrainian front, where the Germans have been making a slow retreat with the Reds pressing forward in the teeth of intensive defensive artillery, mortar and machine gun fire.

The Russians claim the Nazis have 211 divisions, approximating 3,000,000 men, on the eastern front, with 38 divisions in reserve in Poland.

TAXES

Americans buying goods over and above actual necessities may have to pay a spending tax in 1944. Such a tax is under study by the treasury department, which is considering sources for raising an additional 12 billion dollars in revenue next year.

The treasury also has under study a congressional proposal for taxing all income over and above an individual's normal peacetime return.

At any rate, individual and corporation income taxes, excess profits and goods' taxes face an increase.

WORK-STOPPAGE:

Strikers, Plants Hit

Cancellation of draft deferments and suspension of a striker's privilege for other employment were authorized by President Roosevelt for refusal to comply with orders issued by the War Labor board for settlement of industrial disputes.

Mr. Roosevelt also recommended that war contracts, priorities, fuel or transportation be withheld from companies failing to observe the WLB directives.

Other penalties for non-compliance authorized by Mr. Roosevelt include government seizure of plants in extreme cases, and withholding of dues and cancellation of other union benefits until conformance with the WLB orders.

Office of Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson was charged with imposition of the penalties. Of 1,000 cases settled by WLB, there have been only seven instances of non-compliance.

Miners on Trial

Thirty miners who appealed for dismissal of indictments against them for conspiring to conduct a strike in government held pits on the grounds that the Smith-Connally anti-strike law was unconstitutional, were denied their motion and ordered to trial by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Pittsburgh.

Judge Schoonmaker answered the miners' contentions that the law violated the constitutional provisions for freedom of speech and against involuntary servitude, by declaring that the government's war powers were unlimited.

To the miners' charge that the law would prevent them from discussing working conditions in any plant, the government attorney contended the crime of sedition was almost always committed by the utterance of words alone. But that did not prevent punishment for such speech, he said.

DADS' DRAFT:

Certain to Go

With the draft quota for October set at 312,000 men, the War Manpower commission reported that induction of pre-Pearl Harbor dads would begin, with those in non-deferrable jobs being the first to go.

Robert Reynolds

While the WMC was making its announcement, Sen. Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina declared that congress soon would act to establish a definite draft policy and eliminate the confusion arising from varying WMC directives. Reynolds favored the induction of all single men in the nation before drafting any fathers.

The October quota was set on the basis of the services' goal of 10,800,000 men by January 1. Of these, the army will get 8,200,000, and the navy the rest. However, the navy recently revealed that it had already achieved its mark of 2,665,000 in uniform.

EXPLOSIVES

So huge a quantity of explosives is being turned out by the nation's chemical companies that the government has ordered output be reduced. Less than four months after Pearl Harbor, powder production had surpassed the peak of the first World war. Because of decreased demands for the army and lend-lease shipments, eight army ordnance plants have been placed in a "stand-by" or non-producing status, by Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson.

Peace Planners Emphasize Need for Orderly 'D' Day

Planning Board Report Envisions Reintegration Of Men Into Services Where Skill, Ability Are Recognized.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

Next week's release of "Washington Digest" will be written from Quebec, where H. R. Baukhage covered the history-making Roosevelt-Churchill conference for Western Newspaper Union and its affiliated newspapers.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building
Washington, D. C.

As the plans which received their final approval at the Quebec conference start turning from ink and paper to moving men and machines, the thoughts of other planners turn toward another zero hour—"D" day.

The war is not over by any means but hard-headed people who realize that you can't wait until it rains to prepare for a rainy day know that you can't wait until the sun comes out to buy your summer clothes.

"D" day is as important as "M" day. Demobilization is as big a problem as mobilization. Various plans have been worked on, none has been perfected. The President has offered one. The Republican party will offer another. Industry will present its program. The administration, whoever is at the helm when peace comes, will have a heavy responsibility. The National Resources Planning board has already made a report expressing its opinions on a plan drawn up by a special committee on post-war readjustment which, at least, gives us a point of departure.

Plan Needed Now

The board points out that victims of the war are already coming back and the time is ripe. Only the other day, I went through Walter Reed hospital here and saw some of those victims. Saw photographs of the conditions in which they come back and others showing what medical skill has done for them. I also saw the workshops where wounded men are being rehabilitated, fitted to take up work which, in spite of their handicaps, they could learn to do.

This plan emphasizes the need for an orderly demobilization. It is important to get every man who can be spared from the armed forces, the moment he can be spared without threatening the nation's security, back into civilian life. I know how glad I was when I got out of uniform into civvies after the last war.

But the report emphasizes that still more important than speed is order in demobilization. "We not only want the men out of the armed services; we want to get them into peace services where skills and abilities can be fully recognized, utilized and rewarded." That is the thesis of the planning board.

Responsibility for the placement of veterans in industry is acknowledged by the re-employment division of the selective service system under the selective service act. The selective service system is not perfect but considering the job it had to do, it has worked out in a manner that is a triumph of the democratic method. Draft boards are groups of "neighbors" who pass upon each registrant, and on that basis, select or reject him. The same system will put the soldier back into his old job—if his old job is there, and if he can fill it. But many had no jobs. Others for one reason or another will be unable to fill the ones they had before the war. These cases must be taken care of.

Board's Principles

Business has been shuffled and shifted about just as the men themselves have. It may be difficult to get man and job together. The problem is intricate but the committee has tried to lay down certain principles. Here they are:

1. Three months' furlough at the end of the war at regular base pay not to exceed $100 a month, plus family allowances.

2. Beyond that time, if necessary, unemployment insurance for 26 weeks for those who register with the government employment service.

3. Special aid and counsel regarding readjustment and compensation.

4. Special provision, including tuition and allowance, for the continuation of education interrupted by the war or to follow a special course of training.

5. Veterans credit for old age and survivors' insurance on the basis of service in the armed forces.

6. Opportunities for agricultural employment and settlement for a limited number of well-qualified men. But no dumping of men on farms simply because industrial employment is not immediately available.

Re-Training Program

Similar provisions must be made for war workers as war industries close or change over. Meanwhile, the government will maintain centers where assistance and re-training for civilian jobs can be arranged. In order to prevent a too rapid attempt at change-over of industry, a moderate policy of continuation of war contracts some of which can be continued in the national good.

Of course, nothing can be done permanently to stabilize the labor situation without a rapid expansion of peace-time industry toward a goal of full employment. It is well understood even by the most fervent of government planners that private industry and not the government must eventualy furnish the employment.

Already industry is offering plans of its own but it cannot be expected to do the whole job. One suggestion is that government loans be made to industries turning to peace-time production in proportion to the number of men such industries employ.

Business cannot take over the burden alone. In 1939, we were at peace although we were making a lot of war supplies for the Allies. Then 4.1 million workers were employed in munitions making. Eight and six-tenths millions were working on farms or agricultural pursuits. At the end of last year, the workers in war plants had more than doubled. They were 10.5 millions. In agriculture, unemployment has not greatly changed, comparatively speaking; farm workers amount to 8.9 millions. But the men in the armed forces more than doubled. In the same period the unemployed had decreased from 8.7 millions to 1 million. (Some of these we shall always have with us—the lame, the halt and, of course, the lazy.) But it is estimated there were 900,000 persons jobless and deserving work in July of this year.

There may be points to the committee's plan to which objections will be raised. It is not offered as a working drawing, merely as a basis of discussion, but how much better such a procedure is than the policy after the last war when the soldier was a football and where each congress tried to vote more dollars out of the treasury without rhyme or reason; money which didn't provide jobs, which in many cases, pitifully failed of its purpose, and in others simply filled the coffers of the bootlegger and the shark and left the recipient nothing.

Diary of a Broadcaster

Over the land, the Victory gardens are bringing in their rich yields to many a person who probably never worked as hard—physically—for his supper before. And probably never had more fresh, sweet and luscious vegetables.

But I wandered over a farm recently that was crying for rain. I couldn't help thinking, as I pushed through a wood lot beside a shrunken stream, stained brown from the yellow leaves that carpeted it, how all the living things were anguishing with thirst. Twigs snapped under one's feet like dry bones, there was an ugly growl instead of a happy hum from the insects—it seemed that only the tough blue-bottles could survive. Not far from the stream where the earth in the bed of a spring was still damp, one cricket was singing gratefully but there were few of his fellows about. Leaves on tall weeds hung to the stem like a flag at half-staff on a day when no breeze stirs, one yellow-headed flower stood out in a spot of color, it looked like a very sleepy little girl, her damp locks glued to her face almost concealing her tired smile.

I thought: "I wish I could stay here until the rain comes singing through the leaves, wetting cracked lips of the peeling furrows—I believe I would hear a real hymn of rejoicing go up."

Early Coalman Couldn't Sell 'Dirty Black Rock'

In 1828, a few tons of coal were shipped into Cleveland to determine if this kind of fuel could be introduced here. An agent loaded on a wagon and drove up one street and down another almost pleading with the residents to buy at least a small basket full. But they weren't going to be fooled into buying this dirty black rock when they could get wood.

At nightfall the agent drove to a barroom and persuaded the proprietor to try some in the stove. This was the beginning of the coal business in Cleveland.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
Rubber shortage will cause motor trucks to be operated this year only 60 per cent of their 1941 mileages, according to OWI. Ton mileage haul in intercity service, however, was up 10 per cent early this year.
Rubber latex, a milk-like substance, contains from 30 to 40 per cent solids; cow's milk has only 12 per cent solids.
Add lettuce to the list of rubber producers! Tests of three varieties of lettuce by the University of California, it has been reported, showed high content of rubber latex.

Different Flags in Wars

Every war the United Sates has waged, with the exception of the present one, has been fought under a different flag. That is, either the stars or stripes—or both stars and stripes—were arranged somewhat differently.

For example, in 1898 in the war with Spain, our flag had 45 stars. In 1917, in the war with Germany, the flag had 48 stars.

Axis Prisoners Get Medical Care, Good Food

Axis prisoners captured in the North African and Sicilian victories will probably total approximately 340,000. Transporting these men to prison camps, feeding them, plus providing medical care for them, are major war problems. Left: Wounded Axis prisoners on stretchers cover a landing dock in North Africa. Brought from a field hospital by Red Cross ambulances, they await shipment to more permanent hospitals and prison camps. Top right: The dish for which their country is famous—spaghetti—entices these Italian prisoners. Bottom right: A wounded German soldier is given a blood transfusion by another German soldier.

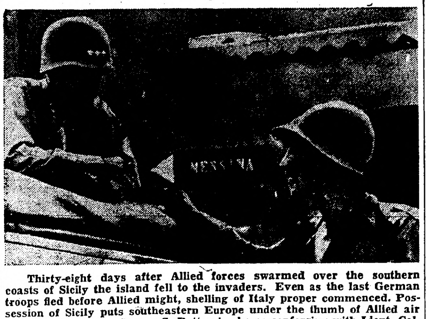
Two Yanks Take 1,027; Flier Missing 72 Days

Engine trouble forced Staff Sergt. William I. Coffeen (left) of Chicago, a marine flier, to bail out over the Central Solomon islands. He lived on coconuts and whatever he could find in the jungle until he located friendly natives. A navy rescue plane picked him up 72 days later. He is pictured as he looked shortly after arriving at a naval base. Center: Lieut. Louis Testa, who with Capt. R. E. Gerard (right) conducted a two-man campaign that netted them three Sicilian islands and 1,027 Italian prisoners at a cost of only $3—the rental price of the fishing boat on which they rode to the islands. They also took nine small tanks and ammunition.

Barging Toward Japanese Shipping

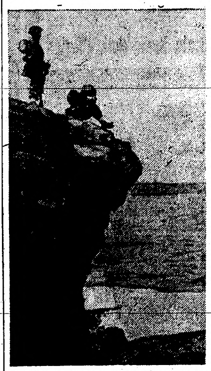
The eventual destination of this ammunition is the interior of Japanese ships where it will be thrown by Allied guns. This barge is loaded with projectiles of both armor piercing and bombardment variety. The cases hold ammunition for anti-aircraft guns. Steadily increasing Allied pressure is pushing the Japs back home.

Allies Shell Italy as Sicily Falls



Thirty-eight days after Allied forces swarmed over the southern coasts of Sicily the island fell to the invaders. Even as the last German troops fled before Allied might, shelling of Italy proper commenced. Possession of Sicily puts southeastern Europe under the thumb of Allied air power. Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton is shown conferring with Lieut. Col. Lyle W. Bernard as their troops neared Messina.

On Guard



At their rocky perch on the lonely coast of Newfoundland, two Canadian soldiers watch for signs of the enemy. This is one of Canada's advance posts in her war against the German submarine.

Household Hints

Water the compost pile occasionally to keep it in a moist condition. When the pile has cured for a sufficient length of time to decompose thoroughly, fork the pile through and through so as to have all the material well mixed.

* * *

Hang blankets over a line with a half or a fourth on one side, and without clothespins. A blanket dries quicker if two lines—near together — share the weight. Squeeze water from the ends occasionally and shake the blanket to fluff the nap.

* * *

Ventilated containers for bread and cake should be scalded, sunned and aired once a week during the summer months.

* * *

Water spots may often be removed by drying the spots, then rubbing them with a finger-nail or the edge of a coin; or by rubbing the spot with another section of the material and pressing the article under a damp cloth.

* * *

Grape juice frosting is delicious and different. Put three tablespoons grape juice into a pint bowl, then stir in one to one and a half cups of confectioner's sugar till mixture is thick enough to spread on your cake.

* * *

Light-weight food containers for refrigerators allow food to cool more quickly than do thick heavy containers.

* * *

Should the clothes closet become moldy, air it with an electric fan. An electric lamp kept burning for a time will help dissipate the moisture.

* * *

If your kitchen is small, instead of a table have a shelf that may be let down out of the way when not in use.

World's Largest Bearing Carries Million Pounds

The world's biggest bearing was designed to carry the enormous load of one million pounds, which is the estimated weight of the largest telescope ever designed, in Mount Palomar, Calif. It is in the shape of a gigantic horseshoe and weighs 158 tons. But it is a marvel of accurate engineering, for so perfectly has it been machined that it is within five thousandths of an inch of the actual specifications.

Some indication of its size may be obtained from the fact that it is no less than 43 feet across and 58 inches thick, and is just over eight times as large as the bearig which bears the mirror of the huge Mount Wilson instrument.

ELECTRICITY

"THANK GOODNESS!

Electricity is one thing that hasn't gone up!"

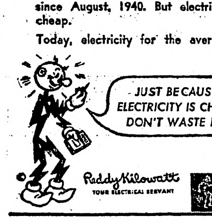
No need to look so surprised, Lady!

The cost of living has gone up 22 per cent since August, 1940. But electricity is still cheap.

Today, electricity for the average householder costs only about half as much as it did 12 to 15 years ago. If your bill is a little higher now than it was then, that's because you use a lot more electric appliances. And you're getting twice as much for your money! That's good news for your budget, isn't it?

Why is electricity so cheap? Because experienced business management has made it so. Your electric company has been on the job for years—and those years of experience count. They all add up to friendly, dependable service—at low cost.



JUST BECAUSE ELECTRICITY IS CHEAP DON'T WASTE IT!

Looking Ahead

Getting Well

Serious ailments often call for strenuous treatments. From the patient's point of view, potent medicine sometimes seems worse than the disease. But the ailing one (when rational) cooperates, convinced that the drug is constructive while the bug is destructive. The medicine, however distasteful, is meant to fight the disease, not the patient. Treatments, however inconvenient, are expected to be temporary, whereas the malady might last a lifetime.

Magnified to proportions as big as a continent, the illustration fits a nation at war. Threats to the freedom of an unoffending people, threats to their very existence, constitute a serious ailment. National defense is a natural process like bodily resistance to disease. Emergency measures are a part of the nature-aiding treatment. America is rational and will cooperate in hope of recovery.

A Genuine Recovery

None of the good physicians now attending the patient in whom we are all interested has ever said "Miss Columbia, you can't get well." On the contrary, every authority with any right to issue a statement of progress in the fight against this Axis epidemic has offered recent assurance of final and complete victory. This nation is taking a lot of bad medicine, however, including some dangerous habit-forming drugs.

Granted that these doses are essential to the successful prosecution of the struggle, nevertheless a danger exists that we might decide to continue using them after the war, to our own serious injury. One of these supposedly temporary, emergency measures is government control of industry.

What Is It For?

Government's hands were laid on the controls of American industry as a defense measure, to allocate materials, regulate production and direct deliveries. Manufacturers have been told what to make and how much, where to sell it and at what price. Wages and hours have been regulated also. Now come suggestions from various quarters that these regulations not be relaxed when the war ends. Men in high office even suggest that regulations be increased after the war.

Europe has had much more control of industry by government than America ever had in the past; the Orient still more. Experience in these countries proves that production shrinks, wages decline, and people get poorer as government's control of industry increases. Government regulation lowers production in this country too. Some of America's big manufacturers say they could increase production by one-third now if bureaucratic control were relaxed.

Expensive Medicine

Nobody knows how many American manufacturers could enlarge their effective war production extensively if government regulations were lifted. There is no positive assurance that the number is large. But it is perfectly obvious that rigid restrictions (with all their compensating advantages for war purposes) are themselves bottlenecks and would be a distinct hindrance to competitive industry if applied in peace time.

Government control, essential in times of war to concentrate production on war necessities, even now is expensive and would prove far more costly to the public if carried over into the post-war period. One large industrial concern stated recently in a report to its stockholders that the cost of figuring statistics for the government, answering questionnaires, etc., came to 10% of its net income in 1942. Executives of other big companies saw the report and thought the figure was high, but studied their own outlay for similar activities and agreed later that 10% was conservative.

A Fixed Expense

A lot of big companies could raise wages now on 10% of net income. If government red-tape amounts to this much, figured on the swollen volume of a war year, it could become a crushing burden to business in a post-war lull. When competition becomes active again, the cost of government regulation alone would be enough to throw many a company into bankruptcy. In connection with other restraints it would retard investment, which economists recognize as the mother of employment, waste resources needed to expand the sale of new products, and drain off working capital essential to business activity.

Unless government regulations are relaxed after the war, production will decline, wages will be forced downward proportionately, markets for farm products will drag and living standards will be lowered for all Americans. There are just and necessary regulations and these must be retained, but needless ones must be relaxed after the war or America will sink to European living standards which, at best, are no more than half as high as those we know in America.

If the United States hopes to stay in the competition and remain a world power of the first rank, we must quit taking doses when we get well.

3rd War Loan Drive Started

More than 250 volunteers will begin work in Marshall county today to raise Marshall county's $732,500 share of the United States Treasury's $15 Billion 3rd War Loan—the largest financing campaign in the history of the world.

"The stage is all set for Marshall county's participation in this huge program to Back the Attack", said O. M. Mattson, county War Finance committee chairman. "Marshall county people have the money to easily fulfill its quota of $732,500. Our banks have never operated with such huge deposits—postal savings have reached new highs in practically every post office. Most of this new money is idle money--money which we, as individuals cannot spend to advantage in the purchase of durable goods. Mild inflation is already here. Let's all get together and stop it now. It is up to the people of Marshall county to take a good share of this new money and invest it in War Bonds and in that way do their part in 'Backing the Attack' for ultimate victory. Your purchases today do two things—they speed the day of Victory and Peace and at the same time help you control inflation. What you save today, you can use after the war to buy what you want and need at normal price."

Every home in Marshall county will be visited by solicitors in this all our campaign. An attractive sticker, prepared by the Treasury department, will be given to all purchasers of bonds this month. These stickers should appear in a front window in every home, in every store, in every office and in every industrial shop in Marshall county.

Brigadier General A. J. Browing, director of purchases, U. S. Army Service Forces, will be in Minneapolis Saturday night and will address War Bond workers and the general public over a state-wide radio hook-up at 8 p. m. You should all listen.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Knutson of Thief River Falls visited at the Ole Lunke home on Sunday.

Life of Mrs. Emilia Kuehne

Funeral Services were conducted from the German Lutheran Church at Thief River Falls on Saturday for Mrs. Emilia Kuehne who passed away in that city on September 1st after spending several weeks in a hospital.

Emilia Ernestine Kuehne, nee Zimmerman was born in Schoenwerten, Germany, June 2, 1866 and was at the time of her death 77 years, 2 months and 10 days. In 1888 she came to America and settled at Crookston. On March 26th 1889 she was married to August Kuehne of Crookston and homesteaded in Excel Township where they spent nine years before moving to Holt Township where they lived until 1921, when they moved to Thief River Falls where has spent the past 22 years living with her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Albin Knauf.

She leaves to mourn her passing three sons, Ernest of Duluth, William of Cook, Minn., and Otto of Kansas City. Two daughters, Mrs. Albin Knauf of Thief River Falls and Mrs. Hjalmer Peterson of Holt. Also seven grandchildren and one great grandchild. Her husband, one daughter and one brother have preceeded her in death.

The last rites were held from the German Lutheran church of Thief River Falls of which she was a member with Rev. V. E. Schoeder officiating and interment made in the Holt cemetery.

Pall bearers were Hans Anton Otto Geske, Gust Willkie, Otto Bessler, Steven Warring and Wm. Rupprecht.

Among those in attendance from Holt were; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Larson, Mrs. Norman Peterson, Mrs. W. Sorum, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Peterson, Mrs. Nettie Peterson, Rev. T. C. L. Hanson, Mrs. J. Hagberg.

Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Sig Nygaard of Nevada, Missouri, arrived here on Tuesday evening to spend about 10 days visiting at the home of Mrs. Nygaard's parent's, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peterson.

Life of Betsy Abrahamson

Mrs. Betsy Abrahamson was born in Ulvig, Hardanger, Norway, Sept. 21, 1869. At the age of five she came to America and settled in Northwestern Iowa where she resided a number of years. Later she moved to Holt to be with her father. She taught parochial school a number of years in Rollis township and near Grygla. In 1913 she was united in marriage to Oscar Abrahamson, and after his death on December 17, 1925 she made her home with his sons on the old home farm. Three weeks ago she was taken to the hospital at Warren, Minn., where she passed away August 25 following an operation. Left to mourn her departture are eight step children Clara, Mrs. John Henning of Middle River; Alfred, Martin and Louise Abrahamson of Gatzke, Ella, Mrs. Walter Collins; Agnes Mrs. Chris Sorenson of Hunter, N. D.; Tina, Mrs. Fredricks of Milwaukee, Wisc.; Lizzy, Mrs. Ed DuBois, New Richmond, Wisc. Also 14 grandchildren and seven sisters, three of whom attended the funeral: Sarah, Mrs H, Hegle of Lisbon, N. D.; Helen, Mrs. Alfred Anderson and Nettie Borsheim of Holt. Her father, mother and brother Iver preceeded her in death.

She was a good christian and loved and respected by all who knew her, and will be missed by hosts of friends and relatives.

Home Front Volunteers Start Today To Put Over Third War Loan Campaign For World's Greatest Financing Drive

With the Slogan "Back the Attack—With War Bonds," Every American Citizen Is Asked to Buy at Least One Additional $100 Bond in September

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 9.—America's Third Army marched forth today to capture the most important immediate objective on the home front.

As 2,000,000 volunteers swung into line to put over the Third War Loan campaign, they were met with helping hands from millions of workers in the home front production battle, and cheers of encouragement from men on the fighting fronts—to whom the success of the Third War Loan is literally a matter of life and death.

To "Back the attack—with War Bonds"—every American who can do so will be asked to buy at least an extra $100 War Bond. The quota for those who are able to invest more from income or accumulated funds will be much higher.

Speaking of the great drive to raise $15 billion—a major portion to come from individuals—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., said:

"The United Nations are on the march. The first rumblings of the big offensive are being heard in all the Axis nations. Thousands of our men have stormed Sicily. Tons upon tons of bombs are dropping on Germany. We are attacking Jap-held territory as never before. This is a great day for us. But it means that the time has come for us to really tighten our belts here on the home front. We have come to a most crucial period in the war, and the success that we will have on the fighting fronts, will depend to a considerable extent upon the degree to which we here at home are willing to work and sacrifice for ultimate victory.

"It's going to be a costly victory. We have said that before, but we must repeat it again and again. The real war has only now begun. Billions of dollars more must be spent to keep the material of war going to our men at the front. Your Government must call upon you, the American people, for that money.

"Remember! It is up to all of us here at home to 'Back the Attack' —and to do it more enthusiastically, more thoroughly and with greater sacrifice than any attack has ever been backed by any home front in all history. Everything is at stake. Everyone must help to the very limit of his ability."

The drive, continuing throughout September, will offer to investors in addition to Series E, F and G United States Savings Bonds the following securities: Treasury Savings Notes, Series C; 2½ percent Treasury Bonds of 1964-69; 2 percent Treasury Bonds of 1951-53; ⅞ percent Certificates of Indebtedness.

3rd War Loan Drive

STARTS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 9

Within a short time Marshall Csunty will be asked to purchase $732,500 in War Bonds for the September drive. The Holt quota is as follows:

Village of Holt	$ 7,000.00
Twp. of Holt	10,000.00
Twp. of Excel	19,000.00
Twp. of East Valley	2,000.00
Twp. of Agdar	8,000.00

This quota must be raised. Help to save gas and tires for the various committeemen by leaving your pledges at this bank. Your township will receive proper credit.

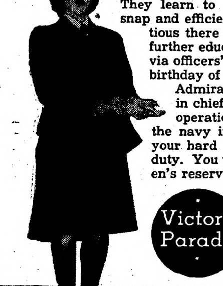
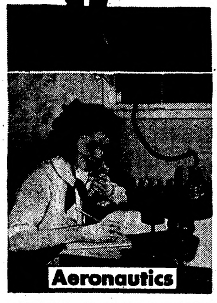
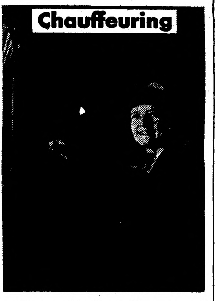
Skirted Sailors

Enough officers and bluejackets to man a major task force including a battleship, two large aircraft carriers, two heavy cruisers and fifteen destroyers have been released to naval battle stations by women appointed for voluntary emergency service. So successful was the first year's experiment of utilizing women at naval shore posts that the navy intends to raise their number from 27,000 to 91,000 by the end of 1944. The success of their invasion into a service which was once strictly all male has greatly changed the navy's original plans regarding the women's reserve. Originally their activities were largely to be confined to office work but today they are manning control towers at airfields, serving at nerve centers of naval communications, restoring health to the wounded at naval hospitals, packing parachutes, teaching blind flying, doing research work of all types and other vital work. They learn to work together with military snap and efficiency. To those who are ambitious there is always the opportunity for further education and more responsibility via officers' training schools. On the first birthday of the WAVES they were told by Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief U. S. fleet and chief of naval operations, that "the expectations of the navy in you have been justified by your hard work and sincere devotion to duty. You who are members of the women's reserve have won the respect of the naval service by your acceptance of military requirements, readiness for responsibility, an already valuable contribution to the work of winning the war."

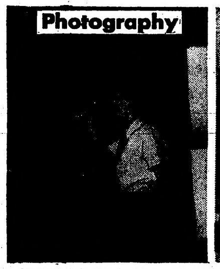




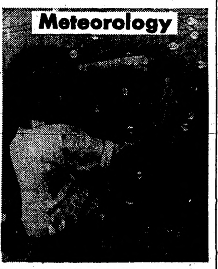
Technician Donna Lacher of Chicago, Ill., gives directions to a student pilot in a link trainer as he would get them by radio. The instrument before her records his course.



Ensign Margaret Cameron of Houston, Texas, at the wheel of the command car of the navy bureau of ordnance in Washington, D. C. Driving is one of her minor duties as a liaison officer.

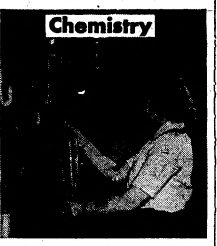


WAVE Anne Livesay was a photo-laboratory technician before joining the navy. She's doing the same work for Uncle Sam now at the navy hydrographic office in Suitland, Md.



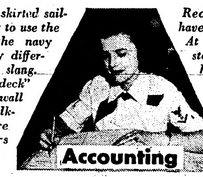
Seaman Margaret Barnes at Anacostia, near Washington, D. C., has taken over the job of checking the weather board which informs pilots at a glance as to the weather on their route.

Ensign Martha King works on a blue print. A graduate of the University of Michigan, she also investigates the effect of wind on airplane designs by using model planes in a wind tunnel.



Ensign Elizabeth Gerrard, formerly a research technician at Northwestern university, measures the amount of carbon dioxide in a gas at the naval medical center, Bethesda, Maryland.

Many of the skirted sailors are learning to use the language of the navy which is vastly different from coed slang. They "hit the deck" for "chow." A wall is called a "bulkhead." Floors are "decks," stairs are "ladders."



Recreational facilities have not been forgotten. At the Great Lakes, Ill., station there are movies, happy hours, softball, volleyball, sailing and nearby golf courses. The WAVE pushing the pencil is Constance Gorski.

ADVANCE ECHOES

What was that? I thought I heard
The dull boom of a whirling punt,
The thud of cleats along the field,
The crash of bodies up at front.

What was that? I seem to hear
The ancient call of "Hold 'em, Yale"—
The roll of thunder from the stands,

Could I be dreaming? Through the mist
I saw a forward pass that sailed,
I saw a runner goalward bound,
Before his flying feet were nailed.

There will be gaps in the ranks—many gaps—but within a short while football will show unexpected strength on both the pro and the service-college side.

Grantland Rice

The pros will be far stronger than anyone figured they would be six months ago.

And the Navy has sent enough fancy talent to take good care of a large college group, and give each section fast-moving and scrappy contests through the fall.

After all, the Navy got its share of college football stars from the 80,000 students they are sending back for war training, and from this collection there are several hundred names remembered from last year's program.

In spite of the Army's stand against football, there will be enough good teams to cover the map this fall.

Strong competition will appear in every section, although more than a few will have to take some heavy pounding from much stronger teams which happen to have the stars.

Someone has suggested that under such conditions there will be more upsets than ever. I doubt it. There should be fewer surprises to annoy the guesser, selector, prophet or soothsayer.

It is a sure thing that a number of unknown, unsung stars will be found among the mass of Navy and Marine material—many who have played little or no football.

It will be an interesting part of the game to see just how many unknowns pop suddenly into the spotlight before the season is over.

Shooting at a Record

Something over 20 years ago the Giants had a left-hander by the name of Ferdie Schupp. He had a fast curve ball that could break the back of an iron buffalo.

He finished a busy season with an earned run record at 1.06, the low mark of his profession.

Even the blazing fire of Walter Johnson could never quite equal this average. Walter's best earned run mark was around 1.09.

There is a 1943 entry who is crowding both Schupp and Johnson in this department of sharp shooting.

His name is Spud Chandler of the Yankees who is now close enough to reach out and tap either of them.

I hadn't thought of this until I happened to be talking to Spud, otherwise known as Spurgeon, about his best year.

"I'm pretty close to that earned run matter," he said. "I just happened to be figuring it up the other day. If I can stay somewhere around the best figures I shouldn't lose many ball games with Yankee hitting to carry me along. I'd like to finish the season around the one earned run spot although it means I can't do any resting even with a big lead."

Chandler's record so far is abnormal in view of the fact that in the last ten or fifteen years the leading effective pitchers led their leagues above 2 or 2½ spotless tallies. Too many home-runs today are likely to break out at any interval and pile up the score.

Earned Run Arguments

The earned run should be the best test of high class pitching, although Mathewson and other old timers used to argue differently. If his team gave Matty a fair lead Big Six would promptly ease up to save his arm.

"There are always a lot of other games to pitch," he said, "so why not save the arm for another day?"

In the first place, those were the days of the much deader-ball when ten or eleven home runs would lead the league.

In the second place, old-time stars had to work in many more games.

Query Without an Answer

We have asked any number of veteran horsemen why it is that so few high priced yearlings ever made good.

No one seems to have an answer. It must be remembered, of course, that thousands of cheaper horses are sold and bought who also never get to the post or win a race.

You don't hear about these. But any horse that brings $10,000 or more is in the spotlight.

And when he flops it is always a story.

TURN RIGHT SIDE OUT· STITCH TOP TWICE THEN SEW RINGS 2" APART· LEAVE BOTTOM OPEN CUT LINING 1" SMALLER THAN CHINTZ ·HEM BOTH· PLACE RIGHT SIDES TOGETHER AND STITCH SIDES AND TOP AS SHOWN

QUAINT chintz curtains are always appropriate for casement windows and their colors give the best effect by day if they are lined to keep the light from shining through. At night they may be drawn together to serve instead of shades if the lining is of fairly heavy material such as sateen, and this material also gives them body which adds richness.

The secret of making curtains of this type hang well is in not joining the two layers of material at the bottom. If your windows are narrow, a half width of chintz and of lining may be wide enough for each curtain. Plan them to be wide enough to hang slightly full when drawn together. The lining should be cut one inch narrower and shorter than the chintz. Hem each piece, then place right sides together and stitch side seams, as shown at the right of this sketch. Crease sides with seams on the lining, then stitch across top. The lower sketch shows how the top is finished.

Odd Painting Is Seen Only Through Reflection

A London artist has painted an odd miniature that can be seen only through reflection, says Collier's. Executed on a canvas about two feet square, the work is a jumble of form and color in the shape of a crescent.

But when it is flat on a table and a shining silver pillar, four inches high, is placed upon it, all the formless mass is reflected on the pillar as a perfect locket-size portrait of King George V.

What is the most welcome gift you can send to a man in the service? Well, surveys among service men themselves show that one of the favorite packages from home are cigarettes. And first choice among men in all the services is Camel, based on the actual sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen wherever they are.—Adv.

U. S. Troops Use Bombs Against Pesty Insects

"Health bombs" play an important part in the protection of America's fighting men. These so-called "bombs" are really dispensers, each holding one pound of liqud insecticide which protects our soldiers against malaria and yellow fever. When discharged on tents, barracks and planes, these "bombs" release a mist which is fatal to flies and mosquitoes, but harmless to human beings.

In less than 15 minutes one such discharge will fumigate 240 army pup tents or 50 giant bombers.

SLAVE TO PURGATIVES FINDS FREEDOM!
Feels 20 Years Younger, He Says!
Everyone who has despaired of ever finding normal regularity should read this unsolicited letter:
"Six years ago, I was quite constipated. I'd taken many so-called 'cures', but it was the same old story. It seemed that each dose had to be stronger than the last. Then, I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Soon I was 'regular' again, with none of the old griping pain. I'm 50, but feel younger than 20 years ago when I was a victim of common constipation." Mr. A. Bousfield, 426 S. Villa Avenue, Villa Park, Ill.
What's the secret of such reports of ALL-BRAN's wonderful results? It's simply this: Lack of certain cellulosic elements in the diet is a common cause of constipation. Scientists say KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is a rich, natural source of these elements—which help the colonic flora do their job—lightening and fluffing the accumulated waste for easy, natural evacuation. ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Not roughage that acts by "sweeping you out"! It's a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!
Eat ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you, too, don't find the relief you've dreamed of! Insist on the genuine ALL-BRAN! It is made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Floating Stone Image

A stone statue of the Virgin Mary, once the figurehead of a Portuguese schooner, was seen floating down the River Hooghly, British India, one Easter day about 100 years ago. It was taken out of the water and placed in the Roman Catholic church at Bandel, Bengal, and thousands go annually to pray at its feet.

No one can say why it floated, but requests by pilgrims are supposed to be answered if made there.

Courageous T. R. First President to Ride Auto

Theodore Roosevelt was the first President of the United States to ride in an automobile. The event took place at Hartford, Conn., in September, 1902. Behind the presidential car followed a horse-drawn vehicle—in case of an emergency.

Wrote one editor: "Roosevelt's display of courage was typical of him."

Road maps were not available in those days. Motorists used a Blue Book Traveling Guide containing directions such as: "Go 2¾ miles to red barn. Turn right. Go 4 miles to covered bridge," etc.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
Experience shows that tire failures during the four hot months from June to September average 20 per cent higher than during the rest of the year.
Rubber sheeting should be washed with soap and warm water, thoroughly rinsed and then cleaned with a 5 per cent solution of cresol, to get the longest service out of the rubber. Roll, don't fold, when not in service.

NEW EFFECTIVE HAY FEVER RELIEF

Hay fever, which annually causes more sneezes, more inflamed noses and more red, streaming eyes than any other scourge, may have its final big fling this September, all because a Pennsylvania electrical engineer was served a dish of corn meal mush which was entirely too salty.

The engineer, sneezing, and with all other hay fever manifestations, stopped at a hotel where he was served a dish of mush which he considered sending back as it was much too salty. Finally he ate it, however; the hay fever attack lessened, ultimately ceased. Next day he had three meals, all oversalted, and experienced his most comfortable time in years in the "hay fever season."

His analytical mind quickly grasped the possibility that the saline substance in his food was responsible for his relief.

About this time, Dr. E. E. Selleck, a graduate of Columbia University, met the engineer, made notes, and when he returned to his home, began experiments. Today Dr. Selleck declares he has found a certain means of relief for hay fever and is supported in his contention by other medical experts, and a nationally known chemical manufacturing concern, the Hollings-Smith Company, at Orangeburg, New York, has taken over making the remedy, which is called Nakamo Bell.

Describing the experiments, Dr. Selleck said, "After I was sure I had found a means of quickly relieving hay fever through the chloride group, I tested it in the most practical way I knew. I held a three day clinic, to which many hay fever sufferers responded, from ages ranging from 10 to 60 years. Each person was given two tablets with a little water. Some relief came to all within ten minutes. Reports on these cases during the ensuing weeks showed practically a complete cessation of symptoms."—Adv.

But for Courage, Henpeck Might Never Have Known

Desperately in need of 50 cents, Mr. Henpeck finally got up enough courage to open his pay envelope before taking it home to his exacting wife. Somewhat mystified at what he found therein, he hurried back to the cashier who had given him the envelope.

"You've given me ten dollars too much, I'm afraid," he stammered.

The cashier counted the bills and coins, then replied impatiently: "It's quite correct. I suppose you've forgotten that you got a ten-dollar raise last month."

Mr. Henpeck placed his hand across his eyes, shrank into his collar still farther, and said faintly: "My wife never told me."

Crab grass, one of the most troublesome lawn pests, is an annual weed and can be destroyed by constant mowing. This prevents it from seeding itself. Rake well before cutting to make the plants stand up so that seed heads will be cut off.

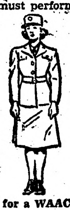
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

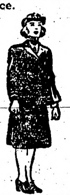
Many of the women of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps are already overseas serving in various capacities to help win the war. The WAACS go through a strenuous training to fit them for the arduous duties they must perform.



A uniform for a WAAC, complete, costs approximately $170.00. The quartermaster's department must provide thousands of them. Your purchase of War Bonds helps pay for these uniforms. Invest at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every payday through a Payroll Savings plan at your office or factory. U. S. Treasury Department

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Women's Auxiliary Volunteer Emergency Service, more familiarly known as the WAVES, has been established as a part of our Navy. They are doing a great work and relieving many men from office to active service.



Cost of a WAVE uniform, exclusive of accessories, is approximately $137.35. This includes suit, skirt, hat, overcoat, raincoat and service bag. Your purchase of War Bonds helps pay for the uniforms for these patriotic women. Buy War Bonds every payday with at least ten percent of your income. U. S. Treasury Department

BACK THE ATTACK

The Third War Loan—starting September 9—gives all us stay-at-homes another chance to show our colors—another opportunity to help our country and to help ourselves at the same time.

The Treasury Department has made it clear that if the Third War Loan is to be a success, common everyday citizens must put a lot more money into War Bonds than heretofore.

The quota assigned for the people of the United States—apart from banks, insurance companies and other corporations—is the largest amount of money any Government has ever asked of its citizens.

And the money can't be raised unless everybody—not just the other fellow—resolves to go without things in order to buy more War Bonds.

In every community where there are employees of the Great Northern Railway, their co-operation in making the Third War Loan a success can be taken for granted.

Twenty-two thousand of these Great Northern men and women are buying War Bonds regularly through the Payroll Savings Plan. Many of them are buying additional War Bonds from their local banks and postoffices, and are cheerfully accepting whatever sacrifices are involved.

So that credit for the bonds they purchase through the Payroll Savings Plan may be allocated to the states and counties in which they live, and their bonds delivered with the least possible delay, the Great Northern Railway became an agency for the Treasury Department for issuing Series "E" bonds. More than 15,000 of these bonds are issued every month at the Company's offices at St. Paul. The Great Northern is not reimbursed in any way for this expense.

Through the Federal Reserve banking system, every bond issued by the Great Northern is credited to the quotas assigned to the state and county in which the employee makes his home.

Besides BACKING THE ATTACK with their Dollars, these Great Northern men and women are BACKING THE ATTACK with their own services—meeting every requirement of the Government for the transportation of troops, their equipment, and vital war materials over the Great Northern Railway.

And along with millions of other Americans, they will BACK THE ATTACK with EXTRA War Bonds in September.

3rd War Loan Drive Is Slow

Marshall Counay's 3rd War Loan campaign is off to a slow start with only $107,768 worth of War Bonds pledged or sold during the first five days of the campaign which opened last Thursday morning, O. M. Mattson, chairman of the County War Finance committee reported following a check-up made with district chairmen Tuesday.

With farmers using every spare moment during dry weather to complete threshing operations, plowing or getting ready for the potato and beet harvest which is now under way in all sections of the county, the Third War Loans drive has necessarily lagged, early reports indicate. However the campaign must proceed with much vigor during the remaining weeks of September if Marshall county is going to do its share in financing the Invasion costs.

While the quota of $732,500 is exceptionally large, it is no larger in proportion to all the other counties in the state but with the large amount of cash money on deposit in the county banks and postal savings, there is no reason why this county cannot raise the amount expected from it, the county committee pointed out.

It will be necessary for every community to go all out in this financing effort. Every individual and every organization must sacrifice for the present and loan surplus funds to "Back the Attack" which will eventually bring the Peace to this war-torn world. Buy your War Bonds now so that our boys may return home sooner.

Only incomplete records have been received to date from district chairmen. Many township solicitors have been unable to cover their territories due to the busy season, while others have made only partial coverage. However, during the next two weeks more complete reports should be available on the progress of the campaign, said Mr. Mattson.

A report from the state office showed Marshall county in 64th place in the state, with only 5.4 per cent of the quota reached.

Standing of the Holt District with Geo. Fricker as chairman, is as follows with the first figures showing the quota and the second pledges and sales.

East Valley	$2,000	1,162
Excel	19,000	1,181
Holt Twp.	10,000	881
Holt Vil.	7,000	932

Corn—Home-Canned to Keep!

"Corn, a favorite food of man, beast, and bacteria, is the victim of defense propaganda and I am not talking about war." Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, made the above statement and went on to explain, "Persons who refuse to take the time and trouble to understand corn, defend their canning failures by claiming that it refuses to keep. The truth is, corn is more than willing to be canned, but is doomed to spoilage unless right tactics are used, because it has no acid to protect it against the invasion of bacteria. Tactics? Why," says Miss Kimbrough, "they can be summed up in one sentence: i. e., learn what is to be done, begin at the right time, keep things moving, and turn on the heat."

The first thing to be done is to get jars, lids, rubbers, and canner ready. If you have no pressure cooker, get along with a water-bath canner. Examine every jar and lid to see that it is in good condition—remember glass top seals and two-piece metal vacuum seal caps won't work unless the top edges of the jars are perfect. Wash everything clean; cover jars, glass lids and zinc caps with luke-warm water and put on the stove to heat. Cover vacuum seal lids and rubbers with boiling water and leave until needed. When everything is ready, gather the corn—bring in no more than needed for one canner full. Keep in mind that canning too much too late is a common cause of spoilage. Place the corn on a board and use a strong sharp knife to cut the husks (shucks to you in the Middle West and South) off at each end just where the corn begins and ends. There shouldn't be any worms if you have followed Victory garden directions; but if there are worms in the tassel end, cut deep enough to leave them with the husks. The husks will come off easily and bring most of the silks with them.

Examine every ear of corn and use only those having plump, glossy, juice-filled kernels. Remove all silks; rinse the corn and cut it from the cob. One or more cuttings may be made, but scrapings should not be used unless processing can be done in a pressure cooker, because the scrapings make a thick mass that heats through slowly. Cover the corn with boiling water, using about half as much water as corn; cook five minutes; then pour immediately into clean, hot jars. A generous amount of water helps the corn heat through quickly and aids in preventing its sugar from carmelizing and causing a brownish color. Add one teaspoon salt to the quart and seal jars according to manufacturer's directions. Then put into the canner and process.

If possible, use pint jars, as they heat through more rapidly — the quicker the jars can be heated through, the more certain the destruction of bacteria. Process pints and quarts 70 minutes at 10 pounds pressure or by boiling 3½ hours in hot-water bath. Remove the jars from the canner as promptly as possible after processing; finish sealing all jars that require rubber rings; set jars as far apart as possible on folded newspaper or cloth so they can cool quickly, but be sure they are not where a breeze will strike them.

The jars should be examined after twelve hours in order to make sure they are sealed. To do this, remove bands from glass top seals and metal vacuum seal caps (leave the bands off when the jars are put away). Test the glass top seals by pulling gently on the lids with the finger tips. Vacuum seals are tested by pressing down on them with the fingers—if sealed, they won't move under this pressure. "Lightning" type are tested by holding upside down and watching for leaks. There won't be any leaks if instructions are followed and there won't be any spoilage if you keep in mind that Vigilance means Victory. Furthermore, you will never know how good canned corn can be until you have tasted your own home-canned brand.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Engelstad and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Eastby and children of Gatzke visited with Rev. and Mrs. Hanson on Saturday evening.

Farmers Make Own Records

Farm reporters will not visit farms to obtain information about crops and production practices which are needed under the 1943 AAA Farm Program as in the past but will require cooperating farmers to furnish this information at a series of committee meetings scheduled in 17 communities of Marshall county, Chas. N. Kranz, chairman of the county committee announced.

This plan was adopted this year because of the shortage of labor, tires and gasoline and also to reduce operating expenses of the county AAA association, Mr. Kranz pointed out in a letter to the cooperating farmers.

In order that farmers may be able to furnish the information that is needed to compute payments due, they should determine the acreages of each crop grown and the amount of each production practice carried out on the individual farms.

"The responsibility for reportting crops and practices accurately has been placed directly upon the individual farmer," said Mr. Kranz in his letter announcing the series of meetings which got under way Sept. 15. Every farm report must be approved by the local township or community committeeman and a number of farms will be checked to determine accuracy.

The meeting for farmers around Holt will be held here at the school house Wednesday, September 22.

Clayton Gunheim arrived home Thursday evening from San Francisco Calif., to visit his parents a few days. He has now been transferred to Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Christ Engen entertained relatives at a turkey dinner Sunday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brown and son of Mayville, N. D., Mr. and Mrs. Ed Roll of Seattle, Washington, Mrs. Marie Offerdahl of Grand Forks and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Maijala and children.

Harvest-Mission Festival Sun.

The Annual Harvest-Mission Festival of the Nazareth Lutheran Church will be held on Sunday. The theme of this year's festivities will center around the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America. In old Muskego, near Milwaukee, Wis., the first congregation was organized in 1843. The beginning of this Synod had only three pastors and three congregations. Today it has about 1400 pastors, 2700 congregations and nearly 800,000 souls. The local pastor will preach at the Morning Worship at 11:00. At these services, there will be a Mission offering received. Special envelopes will be placed in the pews for this offering. A noon luncheon will be served by the Ladies Aid at noon After the afternoon services, the Rev. G. S. Thompson, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church, Thief River Falls, will deliver an address along the lines of the Centennial theme. These festivities are not only enjoyed by the local people but we always find many former members of the congregation come from a distance. The Amplifying system will be used enabling all those in the Church Parlors to partake in the festivities.

Following is the menu for dinner

Romme Grot
Vegetable Salad
Scalloped potatoes with meat
Bread Butter Pickles
Pie and Coffee

Tables will be set and a second helping passed. Price per plate 25c and 15c.

Millions of Volunteers Settle Down to Hard Grind for 3rd War Loan

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15—With the first burst of enthusiasm spent, the "third" army of more than 4,500,000 volunteers settled down today for a steady siege and a day-by-day advance to reach its quota of fifteen billion dollars in the Third War Loan Drive.

Reports from all sections of the nation in the first week of the drive indicated that the battle to "Back the Attack with War Bonds" is progressing "according to plan," but that every possible effort must be exhausted if the goal of at least an extra $100 War Bond for every income earner is to be reached.

First meager reports indicate that in some cities and in some sectors on this important battle front the immediate objective has been obtained and the quota met. In other sections a long hard pull will be necessary in the house-to-house and bench-to-bench canvass which has been undertaken in order to reach every man, woman and child in the United States.

This Third War Loan Drive is a challenge to the American people without parallel in history, for they are being asked to "lend" the largest sum of money ever raised in the life of any nation. It is a challenge to their will to sacrifice to "back the attack" of their husbands, sons, brothers and fathers who are sacrificing everything, even life, so that the people back home may continue to enjoy the freedom and liberty of the American way of life.

Reports from many of the urban sections of the nation indicate that workers are answering the challenge to send their dollars to war to "back the attack." "Fur coat" money, "automobile money," "new appliance money," "new home money" is going into War Bonds for the duration, into the assembly lines for tanks and planes, to settle today's job and guarantee a victorious America of tomorrow when every War Bond dollar will pay $4 for $3.

"Labor-management committees are working hand in hand; returned war heroes, film stars, bankers, housewives, professional men, workers, clerks and salesmen—men and women in every walk of life are demonstrating that War Bonds bring unity to American life and that the nation is bonded in a common purpose in this great financing task," Ted R. Gamble, national director of the War Finance Division of the Treasury, said here today.

"The people of the nation are demonstrating that Americans on the home front can and will match the performance of the invading armies in 'backing the attack' when they are called upon to do a job," Mr. Gamble said.

"Never before in history have a people in civilian life been asked to do a job comparable to the task which must be done in this Third War Loan," Mr. Gamble observed, "but we have a sustaining faith in the ability of the American people to make every sacrifice, to meet every test with which they are faced, in the voluntary, democratic way so that our boys in the trenches and on the battle lines may have the tools with which to fight our common enemies."

Dramatic Setting for Various Treasures

NO MATTER if you move from hither to yon or change from a spacious house to a single room there are certain treasures that will mean home to you. A few books, a piece of china and some perfectly useless but cheering bits of bric-a-brac—by all means take them with you and make a dramatic setting for them.

A shadow box cupboard will do the trick. The one shown here is light and substantial; will lend glamour even to dime store odds and ends, and may be placed on top of a table, a chest of drawers or a desk. No special skill and almost no tools are needed to make it.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

First Landings on Italy Foreshadow Final Crackup of 'Fortress Europe'; Nazis Fall Back to Banks of Dnieper; U. S. Civilians Slated to Get More Meat

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

To Gen. Dwight Eisenhower (left) fell command of the Allied forces which made their first direct assault on Hitler's European fortress with landings on the Italian mainland. British and Canadian troops spearheaded the invasion under Gen. Bernard Montgomery (right).

INVADE ITALY:
Fortress Assaulted

Four years to the day following Great Britain's declaration of war on Germany, Allied troops set foot on the Italian mainland.

With Allied bombers blasting roads and rails; with speedy dive-bombers swooping low to smash at defense positions, and with warships covering transports and barges, British and Canadian troops under Gen. Bernard Montgomery were the first to swarm ashore at Reggio Calabria.

Facing the Allies for the first time on their home grounds, Axis troops fought bitterly, with German soldiers lending the Italians a hand.

At the command of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower were more than 500,000 seasoned American, British and Canadian troops. In process of mobilization in North Africa were approximately 150,000 Frenchmen, for whose equipment the U. S. government already had furnished $60,000,000.

The Allies struck even as German spokesmen pointed to the mass of shipping assembled in North African ports. Before the first Allied soldier set foot into Hitler's vaunted European fortress, bombers tore up railroads and highways in southern Italy to impede troop movements to meet the invasion.

RUSSIA:
Germans Fall Back

High in the Kremlin, dark and mysterious Josef Stalin grimly received the battle reports.

Josef Stalin

All along the southern front German troops were falling back to the banks of the bulging Dnieper river. Russian armies reclaimed more and more of the coal and iron of the Donetz basin; they recovered vast stretches of the wheat and cotton belt of the Ukraine.

At Adolf Hitler's headquarters, the Nazi war chiefs spent four days in conference. While German field dispatches stated that defensive fighting was being conducted according to plan, the result of the Hitler meeting was said to be the decision to retreat to the Dnieper. Shortening of their line would enable the Germans to mass their troops more thickly along the whole front.

BERLIN:
In Ruin

Once, Herman Goering proudly boasted that not one bomb would drop on Berlin. Today, Germany's No. 2 Nazi walks the streets of the city, where gaunt and blackened walls and piles of brick and mortar rise in ghastly silhouette on all sides.

Bombed 72 times, staggered by a series of gigantic RAF raids, Berlin has been visited by all the horror of modern war. Entire districts have been wiped out, the extensive railroad system girdling the city has been crippled, and gas, electric and telephonic utilities have been disrupted after each big raid.

Following the latest assaults, 200,000 people were reported homeless.

To protect Berlin's essential industry, 1,000 Nazi fighter planes rose to combat latest RAF attacks. Huge six-inch barrel anti-aircraft guns mounted in concrete threw up barrages of steel shells.

PEACE IN '43:
Hope of Pope

Calling on the leaders of the warring nations to appreciate their tremendous responsibility for the fate of the people, Pope Pius XII appealed to them to answer mankind's common prayer for "peace, bread and work."

Recalling the tragedy of broken treaties, agreements and promises that preceded the war, Pius XII implored the nations' leaders to develop a sincere program for peace.

FOOD:
More Meat

Civilians were assured of bigger meat supplies with the War Food administration's order lifting the quotas on packers' slaughter for September and October. Under the order packers will be able to butcher and distribute pork, veal, lamb and mutton freely, but they still will have to set 40 per cent of beef production aside for the services.

The order also provided that packers must continue payment of support prices for hogs. WFA decided on the order to avoid congesting packing houses later in the season and relieve the tight feed situation.

Supplies Up

Record meat and fowl production is expected to lift the total U. S. food output for 1943 approximately 5 per cent over last year and 32 per cent above the pre-war average. Balancing a 9 per cent drop in grain and other crops, will be an estimated 10 per cent boost in livestock marketing. However, government claims to the food supply, will hold civilian consumption to present levels.

In making its predictions, the department of agriculture reported that continued drouths in the Southwest and sections of the Midwest threatened late crops. In some areas, the department said, pastures dried up, and stock died from lack of water. Conditions were described as especially serious in Arkansas and Oklahoma.

BOOM TIMES:
Farm Income Rises

As a result mostly of increases in receipts from food grains and vegetables, farm income for July approximated 1½ billion dollars, to bring earnings for the seven months of 1943 to 9 billion, 700 million dollars, the department of agriculture reported.

In July, government payments amounted to 35 million dollars, while for the seven months, they totaled 435 million dollars.

According to the department, income from food grains and vegetables during July was more than seasonal, while the decrease in receipts from livestock was less.

Retail Sales High

Sales continued to keep ahead of prices during the seven months of 1943, the department of commerce reported. While sales were 63.8 per cent greater than in the 1935-'39 period, prices were only 33.9 per cent higher.

Although business maintained an active level, there were signs that shortages of merchandise might begin to affect total business. In terms of dollars based on cost values, inventories were 22 per cent lower in July than they were a year ago.

CASUALTIES:
55,476 Dead, Missing

With heavy fighting still to get under way, American casualties in the war to date total more than 100,000, with 55,476 of these either dead or missing. The rest were wounded.

The army's casualties number 69,358. Of these, 8,927 were killed; 19,391 wounded, of whom 8,748 have left the hospital or returned to duty; 21,406 missing, and 19,634 prisoners.

Of the navy's 21,556 casualties, 7,840 were killed; 2,533 wounded; 8,917 missing; 2,246 prisoners. The marines reported total casualties of 7,904, with 2,005 dead; 2,501 wounded; 663 missing, and 1,195 prisoners.

MISCELLANY:

ELECTRICITY: Electric production has risen to an all-time high of more than 57 million kilowatt hours a week, an increase of 19 per cent over this time last year.

POTATOES: Idaho russet potatoes for January delivery sold at a new peak price for the year at $3.35 a hundred pounds on the Chicago exchange recently.

SOUTH PACIFIC:
Bomb Jap Outpost

Taking off from two aircraft carriers, 160 American bomber and fighter planes flew over the Japanese air and radio base of Marcus island, and ripped up its airport, fuel dump and communication installations.

Approximately 1,250 miles southeast of Tokyo, Marcus island serves as Japan's stepping stone to her great naval base of Truk, and other South Pacific possessions from which the American supply line can be menaced. Attack on Marcus was seen as prelude to large scale action to wipe out the outposts from which the enemy could slash at the enlarged American fleet in its broadening operations.

In New Guinea, the U. S. air force co-operated with ground troops closing on Salamaua, by blasting the supply depot of Madang, nerve center for Japanese resistance in the entire area.

MINERS:
To Court for Pay

Their plea for pay for underground travel time rejected by the War Labor board, the United Mine Workers filed suit in federal court in Birmingham, Ala., for such pay.

Under present conditions, the miners work on a 35-hour week. In refusing the miners' request for underground travel time pay, the WLB said that under the fair labor standards act, they were not entitled to extra compensation until the work week exceeded 40 hours.

Decision in the Birmingham case will determine the underground travel time pay issue for miners throughout the entire country.

DADS' DRAFT:
Showdown in Congress

Streaming back to Washington for the reconvention of congress, the nation's politicoes were heading straight for a showdown on the entire manpower question, including the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

Burton K. Wheeler

Under a bill proposed by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, the induction of dads would be postponed until January 1, 1944, to enable congress to go over the whole manpower situation to definitely determine the need for calling fathers. Such a congressional inquiry also would be concerned with meeting the nation's problem for supplying an additional 2,600,000 workers for essential industries.

RATION POINTS:
Raise Values

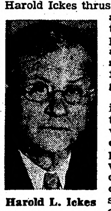
To conserve the very limited supply of canned goods, the War Food administration has increased the point values on 13 items. Three dried fruits, previously on the free list, are now rationed. Point values on eight items have been lowered.

Canners predict a smaller pack in fruits and vegetables in the face of increased demand from military and lend-lease officials, as well as civilian buyers. Canned peaches, pears, apples and cranberries in particular have been moving off dealers' shelves too swiftly, WFA spokesmen said.

Vegetables in cans or bottles that were raised in point value include beans of all kinds, corn, peas, spinach and tomato sauce. Raisins, prunes and dried apples have been returned to the ration list.

GAS:
Ickes Sees Famine

Stepping boldly to the microphone, Harold Ickes thrust out his big chin and told America that unless it pulled in its belt and curtailed essential driving, it faced a serious gasoline famine.



Harold L. Ickes

Declaring that impending military operations would require increased fuel supplies, Ickes warned that a continued draw on gasoline reserves would reduce necessary stocks for future use.

Casting a gloomy eye over the country, the "Old Curmudgeon," as Ickes likes to be called, saw only temporary comfort for California motorists, and predicted that heavy usage in the East would drain that section of gas "in a few days."

As for the Southwest and Midwest, Ickes said they were "living on borrowed time, so far as gasoline was concerned."

EMPLOYMENT:
To Drop After War

Within the first year after peace is concluded unemployment will rise to about six millions, not 12 to 15 millions as many commentators predict. This is the opinion of A. W. Zelomek, president of the International Statistical bureau.

He estimates that about 4,300,000 workers now in manufacturing will be discharged in the first postwar year. About 16,000,000 are now engaged in factory work.

Sometimes walls and ceilings become stained and cracked from water. Often this water works its way in under window sills. If you cut a V-notch the full length of loose sills, on the under side, the water won't reach the wall to work its way through the outside walls.

Jones Was Handicapped In Not Knowing Neighbor

"Those new people across the road seem very devoted to each other," said Mrs. Jones to her husband who was well hidden behind a newspaper.

A rustle of the sheet was all the reply she received, but she was used to that.

"He helps her clear the table and wipes the dishes after supper. I just noticed that."

"H-m-m," and another rustle of the newspaper.

"Every time he goes out he kisses her, and goes on throwing kisses all down the road. Edward, why don't you do that?"

"Me?" snorted the man behind the news, "I don't know her!"

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
There are about 400 kinds of trees and vines in the world that contain rubber latex, but Hevea brasiliensis, native of Brazil, is recognized as the best for commercial purposes.
Don't keep your car idle too long with the tires carrying the load. Drive it a short distance periodically. This flexes the tires and will prevent deterioration.
The Army is conserving rubber. It is estimated that by 1944 crude rubber requirements per vehicle will be cut 63 per cent as compared to the amount of rubber needed by the vehicle at the outbreak of the war.

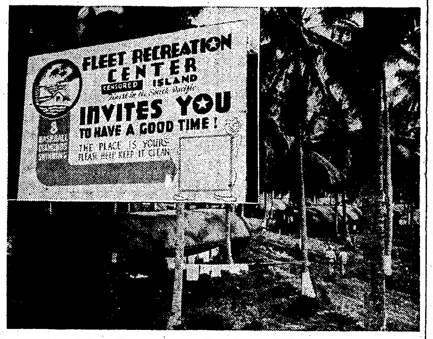
Health Haven In The Pacific

Behind the far flung battle lines on the South Pacific front our navy has established an oasis of peace and quiet where battered bodies and jangled nerves can be nursed back to health. Performing a near miracle, considering the time and labor expended, construction battalions have erected docking facilities and an airfield where casualties can be received from battles. For war weary but uninjured heroes the recreation center is a mecca—one spot on the war bound deep that is truly "pacific" where death can be forgotten for a brief hour in the sun.



A view of the hospital reveals the cool, airy canopy provided by the palms which tower over the buildings. Inset, top left: This sign erected at the outskirts of the center is a cheerful harbinger of the hours ahead for men who have been under the strain of battle.

Victory Parade

Above: Water lovers on liberty from warships, or recuperating patients, find refreshment in the Pacific surf. Overhanging tree allows swimmers to indulge in acrobatics along with their aquatics. Right: Using utmost care to handle patients gently, crew of an ambulance plane that flew casualties from battle area pass their precious cargo to another crew who will rush the injured to hospitals.

Island foliage surrounds the dock which a navy construction battalion erected on the sandy beach to facilitate handling of wounded men.

Farm Topics

Rope and Twine Must Be Made to Last

Supply Is Short, Says Dept. of Agriculture

Farmers must preserve their rope and twine on hand carefully, because very little new can be obtained, the department of agriculture warns. Fibers for rope and twine that used to be imported from the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies are now unobtainable because of the war. Small quantities of henequen and sisal fibers are coming in from Mexico, Cuba and Haiti, but this supply will not aid the situation much.

Rope for agricultural uses will be made largely of jute, cotton and other substitute materials. To take the best care possible of your rope, the department gives the following advice:

1. Store it properly in a dry unheated building or room. It should be clean and dry before storing. Hang it in loose coils on a peg—not on the floor.
2. Avoid kinks. Kinks pulled through a restricted space will shear the fibers and weaken the rope.
3. Don't leave rope where battery acid, drying oils, etc., can damage it, or where animals can chew it.
4. Splices are stronger, and easier, on rope than knots.
5. Don't overload rope. Use the right size for the job.
6. Reverse rope, end for end, that runs through pulleys and tackle to equalize the wear.
7. Save wear on rope by reducing wear and abrasion that occurs when one rope chafes another, when it drags over sharp surfaces, or picks up sand, grit, etc., when it is dragged over the ground.

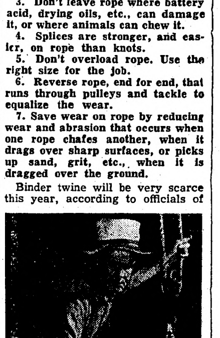
Binder twine will be very scarce this year, according to officials of the department. To make what you have go farther, they give the following precautions:



Ropes running through pulleys should be reversed end for end to equalize wear. (Picture from U. S. Soil Conservation service.)

1. Use twine only on mechanical binding equipment.
2. Keep all points on binding machines through which the twine passes in the best possible operating condition. This means touching up or repairing worn needles and other eyes, adjusting or replacing badly worn parts and weak or ineffective springs, keeping the cutter knife sharp, or replacing it if necessary. Such precautions are particularly pertinent when using twine made of substitute materials.
3. Tie larger bundles to use less twine.
4. Take care of your present supply—don't leave it out in the weather, or where rats can gnaw it.

New Chemical Kills Lice on Cattle

A new chemical combination made up of two parts sodium fluosilicate, one part phenothiazine, and one part white flour, has been used successfully to destroy both chewing and sucking lice that infest cattle. In the experiments conducted at the N. Dakota agricultural experiment station, phenothiazine alone, merely diluted with equal parts of flour, in trials on 12 infested animals located in various parts of the state, resulted in a 100 per cent kill of both short-nosed and long-nosed sucking lice in every trial. However, it failed to kill chewing lice. When the sodium fluosilicate was added to the diluted phenothiazine, the mixture killed both chewing and sucking lice.

Pullet Losses Reduced By Selective Breeding

Under ordinary conditions many poultrymen lose about 25 per cent of their pullets during the first year. In a test conducted by Dr. C. H. Bostian of N. C. State college, where matings were made from stock not bred for improved livability, the loss was 28 per cent. With another group of birds, kept under exactly the same conditions but from matings selected for improved livability, the loss was only 11%.

Looking Ahead

Petroleum

Uncle Sam has an oil shortage to worry about. This is not the first time but surely it is the worst time one ever developed. Our war machine will not work without oil. On all previous occasions when petroleum got scarce the price advanced and lured venturesome prospectors to the wilds to "make hole" and look for more. They call it wildcatting. But wildcatting is not active now because oil prices do not justify the expense of drilling in unlikely locations and prices are not rising. They are caught under OPA price ceilings.

Experts seldom see eye-to-eye when figuring crude oil reserves but this shortage is more than a gloomy estimate of oil for our grandchildren. It affects us. A thumb-nail sketch of the national picture is this: Prospecting does not pay at today's government - pegged prices. Accordingly not enough of it is being done. No matter how much undiscovered oil there may be underground somewhere, producers must keep their drilling close to proven acreage when prices are low.

Hunting for Oil

Some oil producers are big corporations, some are small companies and some are private individuals. Big concerns with capital enough to operate on a large scale, could (if priorities permitted) send drillers and tools to many doubtful, scattered locations and maybe strike oil in a few months. They know, however, from records of prospecting in many states for many years, that hit-or-miss wildcatting wastes time and money.

Big concerns, by the way, confine their drilling largely to known pools. With increasing wealth and number of stockholders, successful companies grow conservative. When it comes to discovering oil, private individuals and independent companies are champions. Records show that they find three-fourths of the new pools. These men are pioneers. They are not rich and there are thousands of them. They, of all producers, can least afford to wildcat at today's pegged prices.

Prices Too Low

Sharp up's and down's are typical of oil price trends. They follow sudden changes in above-ground supplies. Finding a new field somewhere always lowers prices all over the country. After that, prices tend upward again as new wells quit flowing and have to be pumped. Unfortunately for everybody, oil prices were low just before the war. When the government stabilized prices in general, the oil price was away down, and it is yet. Now the artificial restraint is creating a crisis.

It is no guess that oil prices were frozen abnormally low. The figures are official. The U. S. Department of Labor, for example, has chosen 1926 (a good year for just about everybody) and called it 100%. Prices any time are compared with 1926 as normal. And after the first quarter of 1943 the average all-commodity price was 104.0%, or 4% above 1926. Soft coal at that time was 115.2, farm products 122.8, lumber 134.6, and wages 170.4 but crude oil, by government order, remained at 58.9. This explains why wildcatting is off.

One for the Book

When future historians are seeking to illustrate how a government bureau can deadlock an industry and hinder a nation's progress, this will be an example. It will be a classic, because, in this instance, one bureau has shut its eyes to fact offered by another and choked off production of critical war materials, with the nation in a struggle for its life. It was easy to do; just a matter of making it impractical for pioneers to hunt new oil fields with their own money; a matter of holding down the price of oil while costs of materials and labor advanced.

A suggestion that government subsidize wildcatting has come already. There are two alleged reasons: (1) The war machine needs more oil than private industry is finding, and (2) a boost in oil prices would be inflationary. Both statements are warped. Actually, oil men are hindered from finding oil by a bureau-rigged price, and a somewhat better price would not be inflationary. Here's why: The price is abnormally low and revising it would increase production. Remember that inflationary prices are out-of-line prices that do not help increase the supply.

Help Is Needed

Government subsidy would be a blight to the oil business, discouraging individual initiative, destroying Private Enterprise, and ultimately increasing the cost of production. These reasons for opposing subsidy exist within all industries but every taxpayer has good reason to fight government wildcatting as wanton extravagance. Think of the artless parasities who would "qualify" as drilling contractors the same day Uncle Sam agreed to assume 66⅔% of dry-hole losses.

Petroleum demand is at an all-time high today because of war, and wildcatting is the only known way of discovering the needed new fields. Producers do not, however, need subsidy nor any such tinkering as the farmers have had to endure. A price increase of, say, 50c a barrel for crude oil, which the industry is asking, would get more oil quicker and at less cost than any form of mollycoddling.

BACK THE ATTACK

The Third War Loan—starting September 9—gives all us stay-at-homes another chance to show our colors—another opportunity to help our country and to help ourselves at the same time.

The Treasury Department has made it clear that if the Third War Loan is to be a success, common everyday citizens must put a lot more money into War Bonds than heretofore.

The quota assigned for the people of the United States—apart from banks, insurance companies and other corporations—is the largest amount of money any Government has ever asked of its citizens.

And the money can't be raised unless everybody—not just the other fellow—resolves to go without things in order to buy more War Bonds.

In every community where there are employees of the Great Northern Railway, their co-operation in making the Third War Loan a success can be taken for granted.

Twenty-two thousand of these Great Northern men and women are buying War Bonds regularly through the Payroll Savings Plan. Many of them are buying additional War Bonds from their local banks and postoffices, and are cheerfully accepting whatever sacrifices are involved.

So that credit for the bonds they purchase through the Payroll Savings Plan may be allocated to the states and counties in which they live, and their bonds delivered with the least possible delay, the Great Northern Railway, became an agency for the Treasury Department for issuing Series "E" bonds. More than 15,000 of these bonds are issued every month at the Company's offices at St. Paul. The Great Northern is not reimbursed in any way for this expense.

Through the Federal Reserve banking system, every bond issued by the Great Northern is credited to the quotas assigned to the state and county in which the employee makes his home.

Besides BACKING THE ATTACK with their Dollars, these Great Northern men and women are BACKING THE ATTACK with their own services—meeting every requirement of the Government for the transportation of troops, their equipment, and vital war materials over the Great Northern Railway.

And along with millions of other Americans, they will BACK THE ATTACK with EXTRA War Bonds in September.

IT'S THE EXTRAS THAT MAKE THE DIFFERENCE

ALL DAIRYMEN know that their largest return is usually on the initial sale of butterfat. But, in Land O'Lakes, there are many EXTRA potetial retuens, because the Land O'Lakes member creameries own and control ALL the movements of the butterfat—packaging, processing, shipping and sales. Thus, in Land O'Lakes, returns don't stop at the creamery door.

BUT, there are many other EXTRA advantages to a marketing membership in Land O'Lakes — intangible but important "Extras" that are so important today.

LISTED are only a few of the services and departments that facilitate the work of Land O'Lakes member creameries,

Legal advice;
Engineering and construction advice;
Supply and equipment sales service, assistance with priorities, regulations, etc.;
Councel and information on fast changing goverment orders, prices, rulings, etc.

REMEMBR, these are only a few of the EXTRAS if your creamery has a marketing membership in Land O'Lakes.

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor — Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, Sept. 24, 1943. — Volume 33, Number 21

Step Up Bond Buying Now

Marshall county is still a long ways from meeting its $732,500 quota in the Third War Loan drive with sales and pledges through Monday totaling only $281,492.25, Oliver M. Mattson, county War Finance committee chairman, announced following completion of a tabulation on Tuesday.

While the campaign is showing satisfactory progress in the villages of the county, the ideal fall weather permitting farmers to put in long hours in field work has caused delay in conducting the farm canvas in all parts of the county, said Mr. Mattson.

Viking village is the first village in the county to go over the top, W. W. Barr, reporting sales and pledges of $4,068.50 against a quota of $4,000 last Thursday morning. The village of Stepen has also surpassed its large quota of $43,000 with actual sales to village residents totaling $43,681.25, Forrest Yetter reported.

The city of Warren is nearing its quota of $75,000 with sales and pledges to date totaling $60,664.00.

"It will be necessary for every township solicitor to go to work with enthusiasm during the next few days in order for Marshall county to 'go over the top' in September," said Mr. Mattson. "Marshall county can and must raise this needed money to 'Back the Attack' and with every individual doing his or her share, this Third War Loan will wind up in a blaze of glory. Let's make this final week of the drive "Over the Top" week and show Marshall county's 1,000 or more men in the armed forces that we folks back home on the home on the home front are doing our duty in helping them bring Victory in the shortest possible time. We dare not fail now!"

Standing of the Holt District with Geo. Fricker as chairman, is as follows with the first figures showing the quota and the second pledges and sales.

East Valley	$2,000	1,781
Holt Twp.	10,000	3,712
Excel	19,000	1,293
Holt Vil.	7,000	1,660
Agdar	8,000	75

Duck Season Opens Saturday

Duck hunters in this end of the county will take to their their favorite marshes and good duck passes tomorrow morning to be ready to fire the opening shots of the 1943 hunting season. According to scouters who have been out and looked around, there is a plentiful supply of game to be had.

The shell shortage will be the hardest blow for many hunters.

Harry Engen and son Harley and Howard Horien arrived here Wednesday evening by car from Oakland, Calif., where they had spent the summer working.

Pvt. Stilof Anderson of Ames, Iowa, left on Tuesday for his studies at the Iowa State College following his visit here at his home

Marilyn Movick accompanied by Velma Lee and Clara Gudim of Newfolden left Monday night for Minneapolis where they will attend Augsburg College.

A very large crowd attended the Harvest Festival at the Nazareth Luthern church on Sunday at which Rev. G. S. Thompson of Thief River Falls was the guest speaker. The gross proceeds for the day were some over $100. There were several people from Thief River Falls present, including C. L. Heinze, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heinze and Mrs. Edwin Erickson and daughter Anna. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Moline of Crookston were also present.

Hagen Supports Pulp Drive

Congressman Harold C. Hagen has given his full support to the Victory Pulpwood Campaign now being carried on in the wood producing sections of Minnesota. In discussing this matter with Fred M. Hilden, timber buyer of the Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company at International Falls, Congresman Hagen stated that he had heard a great deal about the campaign which is being carried on and the support which is being given by the people generally in the wood producing areas. He added that this was opportunity for every woodlot owner to contribute something to the war effort.

Congressman Hagen further told Mr. Hilden that every farmer cutting pulpwood was really working in his own defense plant and should be considered as the man working in a defense factory.

He said that farmers of the country have always done their full duty toward Uncle Sam and he was confident that they would not fail now in their efforts to produce pulpwood which is so badly needed in this war effort.

Marvin Sandberg and daughter Sylvia, Ray Gusa and Oliver Backlund picked potatoes at Hoople, N. D. this week.

"NO MORE 'DOSING' FOR ME!"

Says happy ALL-BRAN eater!

If you've been "dosing" without getting the lasting relief you wanted, this letter may offer you real encouragement:

"Permit me to compliment you on your wonderful product, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN! It certainly lived up to its promises, with me! I'd been taking manufactured laxatives for a long time! But, no more dosing for me, thanks to KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN! I've adopted it as my standby!" Mr. Alexander Klein, 630 West 170th Street, N. Y. C.

Yes, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really "gets at" one big cause of constipation—lack of sufficient "cellulosic" elements in the diet—because ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements! They work by helping the friendly colonic flora fluff up and lighten the colonic wastes for easy elimination. Not a harsh purgative! Doesn't "sweep you out"! ALL-BRAN is simply a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If this is your trouble eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find you can give up "dosing" for good! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Acid Indigestion

Relieved in 5 minutes or double money back

When excess stomach acid causes painful, suffocating gas, sour stomach and heartburn, doctors usually prescribe the fastest-acting medicines known for symptomatic relief—medicines like those in Bell-ans Tablets. No laxative. Bell-ans brings comfort in a jiffy or double your money back on return of bottle to us. 25c at all druggists.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

If authorities prove to be correct, post-war tires may give 75,000 or more miles of service. Super-tough rayon, nylon or improved cotton carcass will help to make this mileage possible.

Army raincoats formerly containing 40 per cent crude rubber now are made almost entirely of synthetic resin and oil-treated material. Crude rubber content of boots and overshoes has been cut about 40 per cent.

A complete armored division on the road has 13,488 tires in use, not counting spares and reserve supplies.

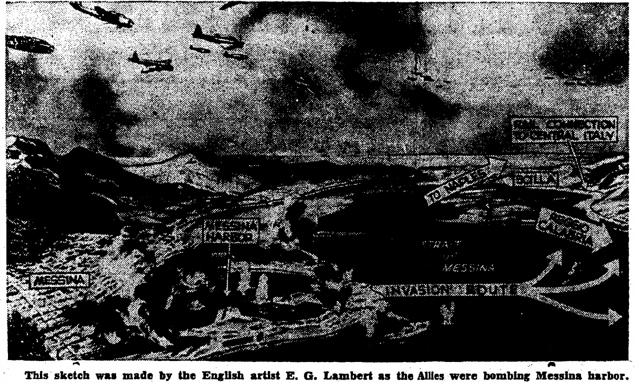
Sketch of a Victorious Invasion Route



This sketch was made by the English artist E. G. Lambert as the Allies were bombing Messina harbor. It shows the entire area of the strait of Messina from the air. Across this strait, which separates Sicily from Italy's toe, the British Eighth army spearheaded the first invasion of the European continent which resulted in Italy's surrender. The distance across the strait, at its narrowest point, is two miles. Prior to landing on Italy proper, Allied batteries along the Sicilian coast shelled Axis positions across this stretch of water.

Afrika Korps Men Save Peanut Crop in Georgia

Harvesting peanuts occupies most of the time of these former German soldiers, once dubbed "supermen." They were members of the Afrika Korps, first German troops to collapse. Farmers at Dublin, Ga., praise the work of the war prisoners and credit them with saving the peanut crop. Left: This "superman" swung his pitchfork with such zeal that he broke the handle. Center inset: Time out for lunch is taken by the prisoners. Right: Under a warm southern sun, these men apparently are regaining health and composure. Recognizing Planes

The navy has just adopted a new system of training its men to recognize ships and planes instantly from a glimpse of their total image, instead of by glances at their distinctive parts, says Collier's. The course consists of a 120-hour study of 2,000 pictures of 168 objects from various angles on slides that are run through a projector at high speeds.

To pass, a man must be able to identify a ship in one second and a plane in one 75th of a second.

In the Navy a floor is a "deck," doors are "bulkheads," downstairs is "below," and a cigarette is a "Camel." At least, Camel is the favorite cigarette among Navy men, as it is among men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And a carton of Camels is a favorite gift. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Sands Produce Various Sounds in Wide Range

The "singing sands" of the Arabian desert have mystified travelers for thousands of years. These sands produce the most unusual sound effects, ranging from the rumble of drums to the high-pitched twanging of harp strings. Sounds are produced over the musical dunes by the movement of sand grains in the wind.

Only sand grains of a certain size, shape, and uniformity will produce these interesting sounds. This accounts for the vast acreages of silent sand in many lands.

Sportlight

by GRANTLAND RICE

IT REMAINED for a young, keen-eyed corporal from Montauk, deeply interested in the sport, as most of our servicemen are, to ask a rather baffling question.

Ty Cobb

We were talking about the big bond sales gathering from baseball's Hall of Fame at the Yankee Stadium.

"Could you tell me," he asked, "from this Hall-of-Fame group, which men you consider outstanding—I mean the top of the list in each position? We have a lot of arguments about this around the barracks. There must be a few who head the list."

This was a quick-order decision. We had to make it that way. And here it was:

Outfield — Cobb, Ruth and Speaker.

Infield—Honus Wagner.

Pitchers — Cy Young, Walter Johnson.

Here were just six names that popped out from what is sometimes known as the subconscious roundup of more than 40 years.

Here is the way these quick selections worked out:

Back of the bat we have Bill Dickey, Mickey Cochrane, Gabby Hartnett, Buck Ewing and Roger Bresnahan.

My vote here goes for Bill Dickey, but there can be an argument.

In the box we have Cy Young, Christy Mathewson, Grover Alexander, Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove.

At first we have Lou Gehrig, George Sisler, Bill Terry.

At second we have Nap Lajoie, Eddie Collins, Rogers Hornsby, Frank Frisch. A photo finish.

At short we have only one man—Honus Wagner.

At third we have Jimmy Collins, Pie Traynor, Art Devlin, and Bill Bradley.

In the outfield we have Cobb, Ruth, Speaker and Joe Jackson—with Joe DiMaggio coming on. Ted Williams, a great hitter, was not a great outfielder.

Back to Results

I would say the top man on the list was Honus Wagner—in the infield spot.

The flying Dutchman, a great shortstop, led his league in hitting year after year.

He was also a brilliant base runner. Shortly before he died John McGraw, who knew more than his share of baseball, rated Wagner as the greatest ballplayer of all time.

In the outfield you can't get away from Cobb, Ruth and Speaker—hitting, fielding and spirit.

Shoeless Joe Jackson was the greatest natural hitter of them all.

But Jackson finished under a cloud.

It is almost impossible to split Lajoie, Collins and Hornsby. If I happened to be a manager I'd like to have any of these men around. Collins had the speed—the smartness. Lajoie and Hornsby had the hitting power.

Cy Young won 511 ball games, more than most men ever pitch.

He was the star of two leagues.

Walter Johnson was the best pitcher I ever saw. I believe these are the two standouts.

Look over Johnson's strike-out, shut-out and earned-run record. There's the story.

The best all-around ballplayer I ever saw—outfield, infield, pitching and hitting—was Babe Ruth.

Ruth and Cobb—or Cobb and Ruth—are still the two greatest ballplayers the old game has ever known Plus Hans Wagner.

Mathewson and Sockalexis

Our old college chum, Andy Oakley, told me "You made a mistake in naming your two greatest pitchers. I mean Cy Young and Walter Johnson."

"These two won close to 1,000 big league games," I suggested. "No one else was even close. What's your pick?"

"Christy Mathewson," Andy said. "He was the best and the smartest pitcher I ever saw in more than 40 years. I'll admit Matty never had as much stuff as Johnson had and he never had the incredible stamina of Cy Young. But he was the best."

"Who was the greatest ballplayer I left off?" I asked Andy.

"An Indian by the name of Sockalexis, who played with Cleveland He could outhit Cobb, Ruth, Speaker or Jackson. He had more speed than all of them."

Wartime Sports Program

Most of those who believe that sport should either be eliminated or cut to small measure in wartime are out of the service.

Most of those who favor as good a program as possible are in the service.

I have talked with many servicemen, and I have yet to find a single entry who doesn't want sport to keep going, largely for his own interest in baseball, football or boxing, news of which comes through newspapers, radio and movies.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

ON THE HOME FRONT

with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

MANY young homemakers are gaily setting forth to buy junk furniture for remodeling. The first thing they learn is to consider each piece not for what it is but for what it may be. The 40-year-old buffet shown here was never beautiful in its youth and took itself too seriously in a heavy sort of way. It seemed to be waiting there in the junk yard for some young modern to make cheerful use of its sturdy materials.

The sketch shows how the main part of the buffet was remodeled to make a chest under a window in a combination sewing and guest room. A wood chisel is useful for removing carving that is glued on and either putty or plastic wood may be used for filling old screw holes and even places where locks have been in drawers and doors that are to be painted. If the piece is varnished, it is best to rub it down with sandpaper to remove the high gloss before painting. What became of the mirror and legs of this buffet is another story to appear soon.

HARSH LAXATIVES UNNECESSARY?

Millions Find Simple Fresh Fruit Drink Gives Them All the Laxative Aid They Need

Don't form the habit of depending on harsh, griping laxatives until you've tried this easy, healthful way millions now use to keep regular.

It's fresh lemon juice and water taken first thing in the morning—just as soon as you get up. The juice of one Sunkist Lemon in a glass of water. Taken thus, on an empty stomach, it stimulates normal bowel action, day after day, for most people.

And lemons are actively good for you. They're among the richest sources of Vitamin C, which combats fatigue, helps resist colds and infections. They supply vitamins B_1 and P, aid digestion and help alkalinize the system.

Try this grand wake-up drink 10 mornings. See if it doesn't help you! Use California Sunkist Lemons.

Land O'Lakes News

IT'S THE EXTRAS THAT MAKE THE DIFFERENCE

ALL DAIRYMEN know that their largest return is usually on the initial sale of butterfat. But, in Land O' Lakes, there are many EXTRA potetial retuens, because the Land O'Lakes member creameries own and control ALL the movements of the butterfat—packaging, processing, shipping and sales. Thus, in Land O'Lakes, returns don't stop at the creamery door.

BUT, there are many other EXTRA advantages to a marketing membership in Land O'Lakes — intangible but important "Extras" that are so important today.

LISTED are only a few of the services and departments that facilitate the work of Land O'Lakes member creameries.

Legal advice;
Engineering and construction advice;
Supply and equipment sales service, assistance with priorities, regulations, etc.;
Councel and information on fast changing goverment orders, prices, rulings, etc.

REMEMBR, these are only a few of the EXTRAS if your creamery has a marketing membership in Land O'Lakes.

Are You SATISFIED?

Some of the news this past week has been hard to take. The war looked easy. Italy was in the bag. War Bonds? Oh, sure. We'll buy some. But what's all the shouting about?

Now you know. Invasion is no picnic, victory no lead-pipe cinch. Men — our own home State men — are buried at Salerno.

What can you do about it?

Have you bought War Bonds this month?

Have you bought enough War Bonds? Not just easy-to-find money — how about giving up something you want and want badly. How about buying War Bonds right now until you're broke.

Look at today's war news. Think a minute about what it means. This war is just beginning to get tough. The time has come to dig deep.

Are you satisfied — really satisfied that you have bought enough War Bonds this month to Back the Attack?

HOLT WEEKLY NEWS

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor | Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, Oct. 1, 1943. | Volume 33, Number 22

Life of Guy Anderson

Guy Adolph Anderson was born in Chicago, Ill., to his parents Haakon and Anna Anderson on September 20, 1875. At the age of 4 he moved with his parents to Brookings, So. Dak., where he grew to manhood. In 1902, he came to Holt where for over 30 years he was a Rural Mail Carrier. On May 21, 1921, he was married to Albertina Johnson. He was a long time member and officer in the Nazareth Lutheran Church at Holt. He retired from his position as a Mail Carrier in 1938. In 1941, he moved with his family to 248 Merriam Ave. N., Thief River Falls. He died at his home following a lingering illness on Sept. 18, 1943 at the age of 67 years, 11 months and 28 days.

He leaves to mourn his passing his wife and one daughter, Inez, at home. Also, two brothers, Alfred at Holt and Oscar of Valley City, N. D., one sister, Minnie Landro of Alamo, N. D.

Funeral services were conducted at the Nazareth Lutheran Church, Holt, on Thursday afternoon of last week with Rev. T. C. L. Hanson, officiating assisted by Rev. G. S. Thompson of Thief River Falls. Miss Audrey Zube of Twin Valley rendered two vocal solos. There was a wealth of floral offerings and In Memoriam gifts. Pall bearers were Carl Johnson, Oscar Johnson, Hjalmer Johnson, A. W. Carlson Geo. Fricker, and Dr. C. W. Jacobson of Thief River Falls.

In Memoriams amounted to $92.50. Mr. Anderson also left a gift of $100.00 for improvement of the Nazareth Lutheran Church. The church and the church parlors were packed to capacity.

Young Boy Lost His Life

Funeral services were conducted from the Thief Lake church on Tuesday for Sherman Johnson three and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Johnson of Middle River. Little Sherman met his death in a car accident on Thursday evening of last week when the car his mother was driving tipped over in the ditch on the road to the CCC camp near their home. Mrs. Johnson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wegge. She was driving home when the accident happened and somehow the little fellow fell out of the car and he was thrown out under the car as it turned over in the ditch. The sympathy of the entire community go out to the young parents in their sorrow.

Oscar Furr, farmer east of Holt, sustained bad injuries on Monday when a horse he was harnessing kicked him so hard on the thigh that it knocked him to the concrete floor of the barn where he hit his head in such a way as to render him unconcious. Mr. Furr laid on the barn floor for two hours before he was able to go to the house and call the Ole Larson farm for help. He was taken to the hospital at Thief River Falls for treatment.

C. D. Wilson returned home Friday from a visit with relatives in Iowa. He was present at a family reunion held on his father's 90th birthday.

Mrs. Guy Anderson and Inez of Thief River Falls, Mrs. N. N. Landro of Alamo, N. D. and Roy Johnson were dinner guests at the Hj. Johnson home on Sunday

Let Us Have No Regrets

To People of Marshall County:

From daily reports that have been coming to the Marshall County War Finance Committee about the progress of the Third War Loan Drive which officially closes Saturday, your committee feels that it is in duty bound to tell you that we have but remote possibilities of fulfilling our obligation to the goverement. Unless every person in Marshall county will immediately come forward and invest every dollar that they can get hold of in bonds in this Third War Bond Drive, Marshall county will not reach its quota of $732,500. Such a thing has never happened before either in the first World War or in this greater war. Are you going to stand idly by and let it happen now?

Your committee appeals to every person in the county who has not already bought bonds (and there are many of them) to immediately buy as large a bond as possible right now. It asks those who have bought to buy again, unless they have already invested every cent they can possibly dig up.

This appeal is especially addressed to the relatives and the friends of the more than 1,000 Marshall county men now in the armed services. Some of them have already given their lives for you and me in the jungles of the South Pacific, in Africa's deserts, in the mountains of Sicily and Italy. Shortly, you will hear that far more, as Lincoln said at Gettesburg, "have given their full measure of devotion" in those greater battles yet to come. If we can shorten this war by just one day and save the life of just one Marshall county boy by investing $731,500 surely that would be the best investment that Marshall county ever made.

What will be the feeling of the people of any township or village in Marshall county which does not "back the attack" when the casuality lists begin to come in? What will be the regrets of those who are saying today "I will wait until they tell me how much I must take. That is what we were told in the last war." The government never has in this war told how much we must buy. It leaves that to your own conscience. What will be the regrets of those who only buy a $25.00 bond when they could buy a $1,000 bond or more to help their community "Back the Attack"?

Marshall county people have the money — bank deposits total more than $5,000,000— Postal savings were never larger. Currency in circulation was never greater. Your county needs your dollars right now. Invest, Invest, INVEST.

Let us have no regrets in Marshall County!

Sincerely yours,
Marshall County War Finance Committee
By O. M. Mattson, Chairman

Another big farm sale will be held here on October 8, when L. F. Larson will sell out all his fine Holstein cows and young stock as well as five head of real good work horses and all machinery. Read his ad in this issue of the News.

Mrs. John Berget received the sad news of the death of her father, Peder Nelson, Greenbush, last week. She attended the funeral services for him at Greenbush on Monday.

Luther League Convention

The annual convention of the Young People's Luther League in the Thief River Falls circuit will be held Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, October 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, at Trinity Church, Thief River Falls.

Rev. E. E. Tollefson, president, of Greenbush, will open the convention Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Registration of delegates and visitors will begin one hour before the convention opens.

The convention theme will be "Christ's Marching Command" using as a basic text the words of Christ in Mark 16:15, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." Speakers in the sub-topics will be Miss Evelyn Larson, Holt, "Mobilization"; Philip Kays, Thief River Falls, "Attention"; Miss Mildred Mortenson, Wannaska, "Forward, March"; and Norval Torkelson, Strandquist, "Victory and Peace."

The feature of the convention will be the speaker Dr. Carl B. Ylvisaker, professor in Christianity at Concordia College, Moorhead. He will speak at the Saturday evening session, the Sunday morning convention services, and the Sunday afternoon Choral Union Concert.

Friday evening, 7 o'clock, Bible Camp talks "My Experiences with Christ at the 1943 Bible Camp" by Miss Iris Larson, Holt, and Kenneth Boyum, Greenbush. Bible Camp motion pictures will be shown by Rev. T. C. L. Hanson.

Mrs Ole Lunke was taken ill on Monday and was taken to a hospital at Thief River Falls.

Gilbert Erickson and Frank Erickson made a trip to Fargo last week.

The Weather

The weather the past week das been of the finest that could be, with nice sunshine every day.

500,000 Tons Scrap Needed

The prosiac, but mighty important, subject of scrap will come to the attention of Mr. and Mrs. Northwest this week in the opening of a drive to collect 500,000 tons of scrap iron and steel, untold pounds of waste fats and tin cans by the carload for the war effort.

War Production Board officials who are cooperating with salvage officials in every county and community of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, said preliminary indications point to successful termination of the campaign, even though Minnesota and the Dakotas fell short in their scrap campaign last spring.

Focal point of the drive, which will continue for six weeks, is the "Victory Scrap Bank," which will be a local community activity, to which will be brought scrap iron and steel collected from residents. Stress also is being laid on gathering up of farm scrap, with half the regional quota expected to be made up of discarded machinery, parts or equipment.

Salvage workers are seeking an average of half a ton of scrap from each farm.

Participating in the program will be the neighborhood Leaders an organization of farm men and women who will check every farm in their localities for scrap. They plan to make contacts with their neighbors during the first week of the campaign and then check back later to make sure scrap is being gathered up on the farms.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Burtness left on Friday for the west coast. They spent a few days with their son Romal at Fargo.

The local hunters all told that duck hunting was not so good this year. It seems that only locally hatched birds were here and when they were gone the fun was over.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Smith were among those who went potato picking this week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Monson, Mrs. Ole Lunke and Hazel, Mrs. Ben Garthus and sons, Mrs. Lon Inman and Larry, Mrs. Johnnie Nelson helped Mrs. Gilbert Erickson celebrate her birthday.

Xmas Seals For Overseas

Tuberculosis Christmas Seals to be used on overseas mail for men and women in service have been placed on sale for convenience of local people Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson announces.

They are available at the Marshall County State Bank and at the local Post Office. They can also be procured by calling Mrs. Hanson.

Christmas gifts for men in the Army overseas are to be mailed between September 15 and October 15, government bulletins announce. The gift packages for Yuletide for men in the Navy Marine Corps and Coast Guard must be mailed between September 15 and November 1 to be assured of reaching their destination in time.

"It is hoped that Christmas Seals will decorate every gift and card sent overseas to show that we are keeping up the fight against tuberculosis on the home front," said the local chairman.

This is a special advance Seal sale for overseas mail only. The regular Christmas Seal campaign does not open until November 22.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ose of Wannaska, Leona Ose and family and Tom Taylor of Middle River, Mrs. Inga Backlund Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sandberg and family and Ray Gusa were entertained for dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Larson on Sunday.

WMF Convention at Viking

A program is being completed this week for the Women's Missionary Federation meeting which will be held at the Lutheran Church at Viking on Wednesday, Oct, 13th beginning at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

The convention theme is "Soldiers of Christ". The main speaker for the day is Mrs. A. J. Stortroen of Mahnomen, who is the Northern Minn. Dist. W. M. F. president. She will speak in the afternoon.

Miss Lenorah Erickson of Badger, who has been a Missionary to China and the Phillipines for three years, coming home just before Pearl Harbor, will be the forenoon speaker. She will wear a native costume of the Phillipines It is a native Mestiza dress of the Ilacano and Tagolog women. She will also have a collection of articles with her from China and the Phillipines.

An interesting feature of the program will be a tableau entitled "The Hall of Fame" given by a group of women from Ross, Minnesota.

Holt women on the program are Mrs. Oscar Fosholm, who will sing a vocal solo; Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson, who will talk on the Mission Box work; and Mrs. H. O. Hanson, who will give a short response to the welcome.

Pfc. Roy Hagberg arrived home last week for a furlough.

Kidneys Must Work Well—

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

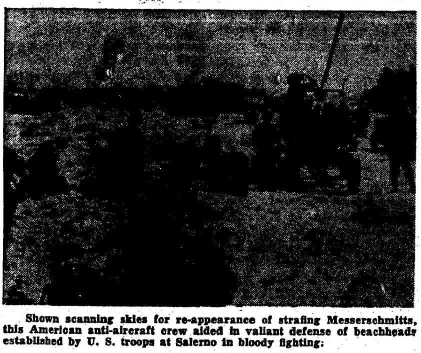
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allied Armies Start Drive to North Against Fortified Nazi Lines in Italy; Jap Key Base at Rabaul Is Encircled; Farm Groups Dissent on Subsidy Plans

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



Shown scanning skies for re-appearance of strafing Messerschmitts, this American anti-aircraft crew aided in valiant defense of beachheads established by U. S. troops at Salerno in bloody fighting:

ITALY:
Yanks on Offense

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark

Their bases firmly established on the beaches of Salerno after eight days of bloody battle, Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army went onto the offensive and drove Nazi panzer units back into the hills rising inland.

As the Germans retreated, General Clark's Doughboys made contact with Gen. Bernard Montgomery's British Eighth army, charging northward from the toe of the Italian boot. Together, the two armies prepared to swing against the series of mountainous defenses erected by the Nazis to wear down the Allies before they reach the main enemy lines in the Po valley.

Although the Allies were first pounded by 88-mm. guns when they landed on the sandy beach, and harassed by German armored units before they could organize strongly for attack, their position was gradually strengthened by a constant stream of reinforcements. Clouds of Allied planes roared overhead to break German battle formations, and 16-inch naval guns poured explosives into the hills from which enemy batteries caused such havoc on the beaches earlier.

Losses in Sicily

Despite the Allies' whirlwind 38-day campaign in Sicily, they suffered material losses ranging up to 54 per cent, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau declared in support of the current 15 billion dollar bond drive.

According to Morgenthau, operations in Sicily cost 13 per cent of all 155-mm. howitzers landed; 46 per cent of all 57-mm. guns; 13 per cent of all guns employed; 8 per cent of all medium tanks and 7 per cent of all light tanks; 54 per cent of the carriages for the 37-mm. guns; 36 per cent of the carriages for the 75-mm. guns, and 22 per cent of the carriages for the 105-mm. guns.

"In Sicily we met only a small fraction of the opposition we are getting from the Germans now in Italy," he said.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Big Base Encircled

With Allied troops in command of the Solomons and firmly closing their grip on New Guinea, the great Japanese naval and air base of Rabaul has been encircled and neutralized as an advance post for action in the Southwest Pacific.

Hardly had General MacArthur's troops closed the noose before a big naval battle was reported in the area between New Guinea and the Solomons, thus indicating that the Allies were moving swiftly to capitalize on their position.

With Allied bombers faced with shorter runs and therefore enabled to carry heavier loads to the big base, and with the U. S. fleet ready to spring into action from neighboring waters, the encirclement of Rabaul removes the Japs' immediate threat to Australasia. At one time the Japs threatened to overrun the entire region.

SUBSIDIES:
Farm Groups Dissent

Declaring that maximum production was the best guarantee against inflation, leaders from national farm organizations met with President Roosevelt to protest against general food subsidies to consumers.

To assure highest production, the organization spokesmen suggested the government support "floor" prices for farm commodities at levels assuring fair returns. In the case of meat and butter, it was said, subsidies failed to halt price reactions to supply and demand at the markets.

Bucking the subsidy idea on which organized labor has pressed the government to spend two billion dollars, were Albert S. Goss of the National Grange; Edward A. O'Neal, American Farm Bureau federation; and Ezra T. Benson, National Council of Farm Co-operatives. Representing the National Farmers Union, James G. Patton differed with the majority, favoring subsidies.

See Large Crops

Despite an unfavorable combination of low rainfall and high temperatures in a huge irregular area extending from southern New England to central North Carolina, from northern Georgia to central New Mexico, from central Illinois to southwestern Mississippi, and from central South Dakota to the Rio Grande, crop production was expected to be 4 per cent above any previous year, excepting 1942.

Estimating a yield of 31.7 bushels per acre, the department of agriculture forecast a corn crop of 2,985,267,000 bushels. At 16.7 bushels per acre, 834,957,000 bushels of wheat were expected. And at 30.2 bushels per acre, 1,145,060,000 bushels of oats were anticipated.

Yielding 668 pounds per acre, the peanut crop was set at 2,801,515,000 pounds. On 136.9 bushels per acre, 460,512,000 bushels of potatoes were expected. At 46.9 bushels per acre, 71,217,000 bushels of rice were forecast.

Combined with meat and poultry production, the crops were expected to boost food supplies over present levels.

DADS' DRAFT:
Army Insists

Lieut. Gen. McNarney

Pointing to the army's admission that 2,700,000 troops will still be in the U. S. at the end of 1944, Senator Burton K. Wheeler pressed for congressional consideration of his bill for the deferment of fathers.

Insisting that the army's program requires the induction of 700,000 men or WACs by the end of this year, Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney assailed the proposed deferment of dads. The general said that each month 75,000 men are needed to replace casualties or discharges.

Declaring that voluntary methods for bringing men into war industries have not filled needs, Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson favored a labor draft, to give an effect, as he said, to an obligation on everyone of working age to render necessary national service.

JAPS:
Woo Subjects

Premier Tojo

In an effort to enlist the active support of the 700 million Asiatics already under her heel, Japan has promised them self-government, taken scrupulous care to respect their religions, invited their young students and leaders to Tokyo, where they have been entertained by the emperor, and exchanged technicians with them.

According to diplomatic advices, the program has had its effect. With the assistance of the natives, the Japs are getting bauxite for aluminum from Burma; iron from North China and Manchuria; oil from Java and Borneo; copper, tin and manganese from the Philippines and foodstuffs from Thailand. In addition, the wily Japs are installing factories in the conquered countries.

Under Tojo's leadership, it was said, the Japs are ready to sacrifice five million men to beat the Allies. They expect the war to be long, but consider present action in the South Pacific as merely outpost skirmishes.

WHISKY:
No Production

Because of a boost of 20 per cent in the estimated requirements of industrial alcohol for the newly established synthetic rubber industry, distilleries will not be allowed to switch to whisky production for the rest of the year. Previously, distilleries nourished hopes of being given two weeks to build up dwindling stocks of whisky and blends.

The decision to place greater reliance on alcohol for synthetic rubber than on petroleum resulted from conclusions that use of the latter would interfere with the aviation gasoline program. Furthermore, it was said, the government objected to the diversion of grain to whisky at a time when it was trying to maintain the nation's food standards.

This Excuses Everybody

As chairman of the house ways and means committee, Rep. Robert Doughton presided over congress' shaping of the present income tax.

Recently, Doughton summoned the committee to a night session to see whether something couldn't be done to simplify the filing of returns.

Doughton, it seems, had to get a "tax expert" to make out his own form!

HOME DELIVERIES:
Cut Oct. 11

Joseph B. Eastman

To assure continuation of motor transportation against wartime shortages of fuel, replacement parts, equipment, tires and manpower, Director of Defense Transportation Joseph B. Eastman ordered curtailment of retail and wholesale merchandise deliveries.

Effective October 11, milk deliveries to homes will be limited to four times a week; meats, fruits, vegetables, fish and bread to three times, and dry groceries, laundry and dry cleaning to two times. Permission was given for delivery of ice every day.

Wholesale deliveries will be cut to six times weekly for bread, bakery products, cream, milk, dairy products and repair parts; five times for meats, eggs, fruits, vegetables, fish, live plants, laundry, dry cleaning and cut flowers; and once for alcoholic beverages, wines and bottled malt beverages.

RUSSIA:
Oil Hopes Blasted

Once set up as the cornerstone of the Nazis' drive for the Caucasus oil, Novorossisk was abandoned by them as the Germans pulled back to the Dnieper river for a last ditch stand in Russia.

The German withdrawal along the whole front to the Dnieper was regular, with the Nazis within 100 miles of the broad, curving river, from Bryansk in the north to Lozovaya in the south. Only along the coast of the Sea of Azov were the Germans any distance from the Dnieper, and here it was believed they were holding deeper defenses to permit their troops in the Crimea to pull out.

Every indication pointed to the Germans' use of the Dnieper as their last strong natural defense in Russia. If the Reds cracked the Dnieper, the Germans would have no suitable defensive terrain left, but would have to fall back on the Dniester river, in Europe itself.

MEXICO:
Tourist Boom

"American tourists are crowding Mexico and buying up everything from gin and electrical appliances to bobby pins and elastics," it is reported.

The people of Mexico are not feeling the war as acutely as are the people of the United States as rationing has not gone into effect there. There is plenty of everything, it is said, but Americans are buying much of the surplus goods. American money is welcome.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

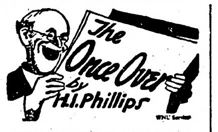
ITALIAN CROPS: Italy is believed to have harvested more wheat this year than she ever did, even before the war, but most of it will probably fall to the German army, say department of agriculture spokesmen. They think the crop may have amounted to 280 million bushels. Indicating that looting of food supplies is taking place, is a report by way of Stockholm.

"PAY DAY": Farm soils working overtime to meet the war's vast production quotas can be restored if farmers will earmark part of their present war bond purchases for peacetime soil rebuilding projects, including the use of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, according to a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement committee made recently.



OUR OWN RADIO DOMESTIC MEDIATION BOARD

(After listening to a famous radio program.)

Q.—Now we come to Case 877. Will you tell the board about your problem?

A.—Well, I've been keeping company with a man for 32 years. I find I am becoming rather fond of him and I think we should be married.

Q.—You think 32 years is too long for a courtship?

A.—Yes. Maybe I'm being unreasonable, but I'm the impatient type.

Q.—What does the man say?

A.—Every night he just comes home, reads the newspaper, finds fault with everything. He shows no interest in me or the children.

Q.—What children?

A.—Our children.

Q.—How old are these children?

A.—The oldest is 36.

Q.—But you said you had only known this man 32 years.

A.—That's one of the things I want to have straightened out by this board!

(The three mediators, Oscar Wimps, jurist; Theodore Spudd, famous psychologist, and O. Duffle Baggs, author, swoon, which is a great disappointment to them as they had counted on making quite a radio hit.)

Q.—(continuing)—Now let's see what the man in the case has to say. You came here so you could be guided by the board's decision?

A.—No; I just jumped at my chance to get on the air.

Q.—What is your answer to this woman's story?

A.—The last 10 years I have tired of her.

Q.—Won't she let you leave?

A.—Yes, but she won't let me take all the furniture and a half ton of coal!

(The interrogator finds the mediators are still out and proceeds with the next case.)

Q.—What is your problem, madam?

A.—It's about my 70-year-old mother. A couple of years ago I got married and we came home to live with her. My husband can't work as he has a mania for crossword puzzles. I tried working once and don't like it either. We were very happy with mother until the last six months.

Q.—What is causing your unhappiness now?

A.—Mother gave up her job at the iron mill!

Q.—Since she is 70 years old, isn't it possible she has some excuse?

A.—No. We had her examined by the family veterinarian, and he says she is still able to work all week if she rests Sundays.

Q.—What do you wish to know?

A.—I want to know if a mother has a right to stop work.

Q.—Now, let's get the other side. Mother, what have you to say?

A.—She's crazy. I would be working right now but she made me quit to come down here on this radio program.

Q.—Why did you do it?

A.—She said if we went over good we might get a regular air engagement.

Q.—Judge Wimps, what is your view in this case?

Judge Wimps—I think the girl should return the $300 and go back to her sister.

Mr. Spudd—Blood is thicker than water. A rolling stone gathers no moss. What we have here is a plain case of glandular disturbance. I recommend a suit for damages.

Mr. Baggs (very thoughtfully)—It was either Napoleon or Henry the Seventh.

The interrogator (rather muddled)—What are you talking about, Mr. Baggs?

Mr. Baggs—Isn't this a quiz program?

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Fifty-three per cent of the cars on highways continue to waste rubber, for officials report that that number continue to be driven over 35 mph. A year ago 91 per cent of the cars traveled faster than the rubber conservation limit.

Kok-Sagyz, rubber-bearing Russian dandelion, was planted and grown in 100 different test localities in the U. S. last year. The B. F. Goodrich Company is aiding in this experiment.

If your tires show undue wear at the center of the tread, it is a signal that you are overinflating. This is as much a rubber waster as underinflation.

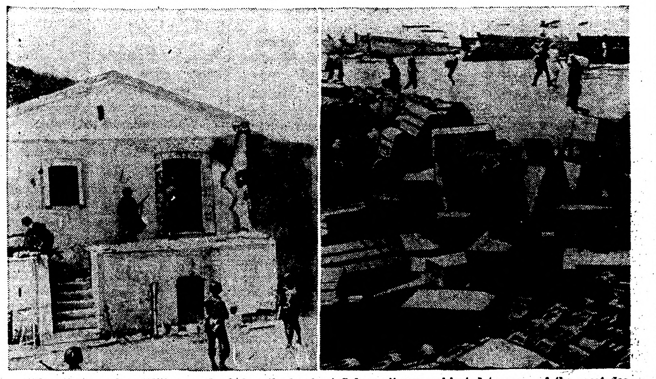
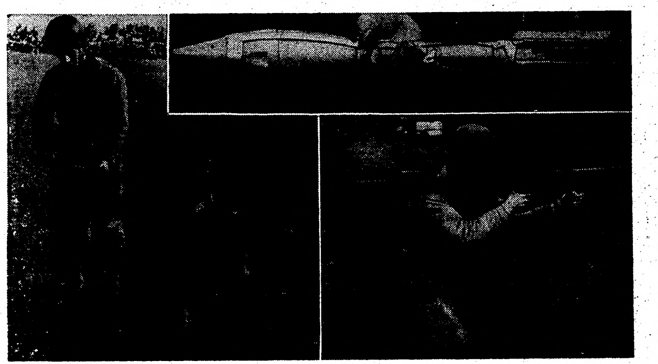
As Allied Troops Battle Nazis in Italy



When the American Fifth army landed on the beach at Salerno it was subjected to some of the most desperate German fighting of World War II. For several days the Germans poured ammunition down on the beach. But the Fifth army held its position. Aided by planes and warships it gained the initiative and, as the British Eighth army rushed toward the fight, the Germans were apparently resorting to defense tactics. Left: U. S. infantrymen hunt for German snipers in this house during their advance in Italy. Right: Supplies for invading troops are unloaded despite constant strafing and bombing by German planes. Soundphoto.

This Bazooka Toots Death at Axis Tanks



The similarity in the appearance of the army's new rocket gun to a popular freak wind instrument caused the gun to become known as the "Bazooka." Its official name is "Launcher Rocket, AT, M-1." It has enough hitting power to disable a tank, yet it can be used by one or two soldiers in places which are inaccessible to regular, large, anti-tank guns. Left: Loading a rocket into the rear of the Bazooka. Top right: This is the anti-tank rocket shell which is fired by the Bazooka. Bottom right: The proper way to hold the Bazooka. The new weapon is more than 50 inches long and approximately three inches in diameter. It is open at both ends.

As Allies Drove Japs From Salamaua

After receiving first aid, American wounded fighters are loaded into barges to be taken to hospitals. Approximately 20,000 Japanese were trapped between two Allied forces in this sector. After abandoning Salamaua, enemy forces were reported fleeing toward Lae, where they apparently faced annihilation unless they surrendered.

African Trophies

Mrs. Mark W. Clark, wife of the commander of the U. S. Fifth army, is shown with some of the souvenirs he sent home from North Africa. His troops were reported to be battling stubborn German resistance at Salerno, on the Italian west coast.

Curtains to Cover Frame of Mirror

A LONG mirror with a table at each side makes an ideal place to dress. Here you have it with the old mirror from the buffet described recently. The mirror is turned end-wise and the irregularities of the frame covered with cream colored curtains of unbleached muslin hung from a rod attached to the picture molding. The turned legs of the buffet are here made into lamps. The base of each is a square piece of one-inch lumber which is screwed through the center to the largest end of the leg piece. An electric fixture such as is often used in candle sticks is then inserted in a hole bored in the other end. The lamp shades and the butter-tub stool are covered with the cream colored muslin.

Dispute Soon Settled, Apparently Satisfactorily

The strong man rode out on horseback to challenge a farmer whose great strength had gained him a reputation. He entered the farmyard, tied up his horse, and approached the farmer.

"Hey," he said, "I've heard a lot about you, and I've come a long way to see which is the better man."

Without answering, the farmer seized the intruder, hurled him bodily into the road.

When the loser had somewhat recovered his breath, the farmer growled, "Anything more?"

"Perhaps you'll be good enough to throw me my horse," was the reply.

Donate to The Boy Scouts

The annual drive for funds to support the Boy Scouts of America movement will take place in the village of Holt on Wednesday, October 13, according to Rev. T. C. L. Hanson, chairman. Rev. Hanson was appointed to organize the drive in Holt by the Lake Agassiz Council headquarters in Grand Forks. Last year the residents of Holt responded very generously to the cause of financing of the Boy Scout movement which has been such an important factor in boys' work here in Holt. A number of business men in the village have been requested by the Grand Forks offiice to contact the residents of Holt relative to this drive. While no quota for the village is set, it is expected that the results will be what the average small town will give to this cause. The Men's Club of Nazareth Lutheran Church is the sponsoring agency and has been issued a charter.

Land O'Lakes News

FIGHTING FOR YOUR INDUSTRY

AT A TIME when dairy products are short in consumer markets, the dairy farmes of the northwest must insure their post war markets . . . and keep the desire for their products alive.

LAND O' LAKES does this. Here are only a few of the ways that Land O' Lakes is fighting in the interests of its members.

—NATIONAL ADVERTISING continues in the major markets of America. Land O' Lakes current ads have won national acclaim for keeping "the farmers' own brand" before the public.

—TIMELY INFORMATION that tells the producers' side of dairying problems--every day, every week, every month--read and heard by thousands.

—NATIONAL AFFAIRS-Land O'Lakes officials are active in helping frame the policies of the Dairy Products Marketing Association and the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation, which policies can greatly benefit not only Land O'Lakes members but the entire northwest dairy industry.

Land O'Lakes "fights" for its members! Have you investigated ALL the advantages of a marketing membership in Land O'Lakes?

Johnson-Swenson Wedding

A quiet candle light wedding was solemnized at the August Swenson home at Newfolden, Monday, Oct. 4th at 8 p. m. when their youngest son Loren Marvin was united in marriage to Angeline Alida Johnson of Holt, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson of Oakland California. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson the bride's pastor, officiated.

The bride was attended by Arlene Swenson, sister of the groom. The bestman was Lester Olson, a close friend of the groom.

The Bride wore a pale blue, floor length gown of Celanese Taffeta and a coronet of rosebuds in her hair. She carried a bouquet of carnations and rosebuds. She also wore a locket, a gift of the groom.

The bridesmaid also wore a pale blue floor lenght gown of chiffon and a corsage of carnations. The groom and best man wore red carnation buttoniers. The grooms mother wore a corsage of rust and yellow pom poms

The reception was held at the home, immediately after the ceremony. The bridal table was adorned by lighted candles and a bouquet of roses, a gift from Miss Carol Anderson, a very close friend of the family. Center of attraction was a beautiful two tiered wedding cake, baked and decorated by the groom's mother.

The only guests from a distance were Miss Carol Anderson of Duluth and Miss Alvina Hushagen of Vergas, who served the bridal reception.

The newlyweds left the next day for a short honeymoon at Duluth and will be home to their friends after October 9th at Newfolden.

We wish them much happiness in their wedded life.

Five Auction Sales

The News Office has been a busy place lately. We have taken care of the printing of several thousand auction sale bills and the advertising of many big farm sales. Some of the large auction sales coming up are: L. F. Larson sale to-day, Friday, Oct. 8. Anton Paulson sale east of Middle River, Tuesday, Oct. 12. Albert Klungness auction southeast of Holt on Thursday, Oct. 14. Mrs. Minnie Black sale southeast of Middle River, Friday, Oct. 15. The Marshall County State Bank is Clerk of all these sales. Another large sale is the Thorval Bredeson sale northeast of Gatzke on Saturday, October 16 with the Greenbush State Bank as clerk.

Ole Brenna, Auctioneer from Middle River will cry all these big farm sales.

Lawrence Reierson and family who have lived on the Atwood farm the past few years, have now moved unto their own farm. Mr. Reierson purchased his old home place some time ago and this summer had the house all remodeled and other buildings fixed up.

A large number of people from here attended the Thief River Falls Circuit Luther League Convention at Thief River Falls over the week end. At the business meeting on Saturday Evelyn and Beatrice Larson were elected Treasurer and Secretary, respectively for the ensuing year. Rev. E. E. Tollefson of Greenbush was re-elected president.

"Victory Scrap Bank" Drive

The "Victory Scrap Bank" campaign, a high-powered drive to collect every available pound of scrap iron and metal remaining in the Northwest, will be staged over the eight-day period, October 23 to 31, inclusive.

Among the reasons for the drive, which is being conducted on a national scale in an attempt to meet the production requirements of 15,000,000 tons of iron and steel for the six month period ending December 31, are the following:

Scrap is needed to meet the increased demands for steel by our armed forces as they swing into offensive action on all fronts.

Scrap is needed at once to replenish the dwindling inventories of the steel mills. The present inventory cannot carry the mills through the winter and stocks must be decidedly increased before transportation is frozen.

Scrap is needed for builing up salvage scrap banks throughout the nation to insure against sabotage, such as demolition of the Soo Locks and the consequent stoppage of iron ore shipments.

Scrap is sorely needed to guard against the possibilities of a battle zone disaster, such as the defeat of our invasion armies attacking Europe resulting in a great loss of war material.

Marshall county done it before and it will it again, in the "Victory Scrap bank" drive which will be held Oct. 23 to 31st, inclusive. Let us all bring in some heavy scrap iron so that we will fill our quota of 500 pounds per person. In our county we have to-day 453.7 pounds per capita. Let us do our best to sell our heavy scrap iron, as our boys are giving their best for our freedom. For a big successful drive, get in touch with your local chairman. O. T. Ness is local chairman and he will buy your heavy scrap during this big "Victory Scrap Bank" Drive.

Those from here who are at Grand Forks picking spuds are: Frank Erickson and daughter, Oscar Johnson, Marvin and Irvin Larson, Willis Sorum, Harley Engen, W. Holst, Elroy Benitt and Kenneth and Duane Larson. Those who are at Hoople N. D., are: Marvin Sandberg and Sylvia Irvin Larson, Oliver Backlund, Ray Gusa and Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Smith.

A big brush and grass fire came up to the village from the south on Saturday afternoon and several town people and farmers who were in for the day went out to check the fire before it could come up to the Sanoden property in the south end of town.

H. Moberg shipped out four cars of stock and sheep from here Saturday and H. D. Inman of the Shipping Association shipped a car of sheep. Wm. Paskewitz and George Johnson accompanied the shippers to the market.

Rev. T. C. L. Hanson addressed the Men's Brotherhood at Middle River on Wednesday evening.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been the driest we have seen for some time. It is getting to the point where it is bad for fires and farmers are stating that plowing is next to impossible at the present time.

Buy That Extra Bond Today

War Bond pledges and sales in Marshall county soared to $620,472.50 during the past week, leaving but $112,627.50 to be raised by country residents in the Third War Loan Drive which has been extended to Thursday, October 14, O. M. Mattson, County War Finance Committee chairman, reported today.

While the 3rd War Loan closed for some securities on October 2, time has been extended to October 14 for the purchase of Series E, F and G Bonds to count in the presents campaign. Persons who have not bought bonds during this drive, or have not bought to the limit, should do so at once in order for Marshall county to reach its $732,500 quota.

Members of the county committee urge the solicitors in their respective districts to renew their efforts during this extension and urge all residents to consider making addiontional purchases in order that the goal might be reached.

Had Large Sale--Large Crowd

Talk about auction sale and crowds. Never before has there been as large a crowd at an auction sale here as there was at the Ingvold Johnson sale on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Johnson had two men helping park ~~cars and it was~~ estimated that about four hundred cars were there and about 1200 people at the sale. Ole Brenna, Auctioneer from Middle River, cried the sale and got top prices for everything sold and some articles went at a premium. The Marshall County State Bank of Holt handled this sale and the good publicity and advertising was done by the Holt Weekly News.

Xmas Seals For Overseas

Tuberculosis Christmas Seals to be used on overseas mail for men and women in service have been placed on sale for convenience of local people Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson announces.

They are available at the Marshall County State Bank and at the local Post Office. They can also be procured by calling Mrs. Hanson.

Christmas gifts for men in the Army overseas are to be mailed between September 15 and October 15, government bulletins annonnce. The gift packages for Yuletide for men in the Navy Marine Corps and Coast Guard must be mailed between September 15 and November 1 to be assured of reaching their destination in time.

"It is hoped that Christmas Seals will decorate every gift and card sent overseas to show that we are keeping up the fight against tuberculosis on the home front," said the local chairman.

This is a special advance Seal sale for overseas mail only. The regular Christmas Seal campaign does not open uniil November 22.

WMF Convention at Viking

A program is being completed this week for the Women's Missionary Federation meeting which will be held at the Lutheran Church at Viking on Wednesday, Oct, 13th beginning at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

The convention theme is "Soldiers of Christ". The main speaker for the day is Mrs. A. J. Stortroen of Mahnomen, who is the Northern Minn. Dist. W. M. F. president. She will speak in the afternoon.

Miss Lenorah Erickson of Badger, who has been a Missionary to China and the Phillipines for three years, coming home just before Pearl Harbor, will be the forenoon speaker. She will wear a native costume of the Phillipines. It is a native Mestiza dress of the Ilacano and Tagolog women. She will also have a collection of articles with her from China and the Phillipines.

An interesting feature of the program will be a tableau entitled "The Hall of Fame" given by a group of women from Ross, Minnesota.

Holt women on the program are Mrs. Oscar Fosholm, who will sing a vocal solo; Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson, who will talk on the Mission Box work; and Mrs. H. O. Hanson, who will give a short response to the welcome.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Eddy Henning, Monday, a girl.

"REGULAR" AGAIN AFTER 2 WEEKS!

"Cereal Brought Relief from Long Siege of Purgatives!"

Here's a sincere, unsolicited letter every disappointed "doser" will want to read:

"I was a sufferer from common constipation. Took pills or medicines of some kind, but got no lasting relief. Finally, I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Have been eating it about 2 weeks now, and have stopped taking pills and things. My bowels move regularly every day. I am a KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN eater from now on!" Mr. Burl Brown, Warren, Ark.

How do scientists explain KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN'S gentle-acting, amazing relief, so familiar to thousands? Simply thus: Lack of certain cellulosic elements in the diet is a common cause of constipation. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's richest sources of these elements—which help the intestinal flora lighten and fluff up the contents of the colon, for easy, natural elimination. Not a purgative, that robs the system of water. Not "roughage" that acts by "sweeping you out"! ALL-BRAN is a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

Eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if it doesn't give you the relief you've dreamed of. Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Heat and friction are the greatest enemies of rubber. Tire treads wear out five times as fast in a temperature of 100 degrees as when the thermometer registers 40 degrees.

Rubber previously used for garden hose will provide for tires on carriages of 8,500 "75's" and 6,800 37-mm. anti-aircraft guns and 600 pontons for Army bridges.

Samuel Peal was granted the first rubber patent in England in 1791. It covered the waterproofing of leather, cotton, linen, etc.

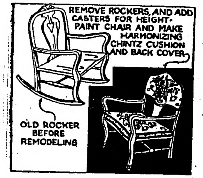
Paint and Chintz Transform Chair

THERE is a knack about selecting the right thing from the assortment of junk in Mother's attic or a second hand furniture store. Here is a rocker not at all quaint but just awkward to have around.

Off come the rockers and on go a set of casters and a seat cushion to make it the right height. That will make it useful but still no beauty. A remnant of flowered chintz will cover the cushion and the objectionable part of the carved back. Paint to match the soft blue background of the chintz will bring the whole thing together and soften too prominent curves.



REMOVE ROCKERS, AND ADD CASTERS FOR HEIGHT-PAINT CHAIR AND MAKE HARMONIZING CHINTZ CUSHION AND BACK COVER.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

NAPLES:
Gutted City

By the time Allied forces had opened their offensive against Naples, the Nazis had turned the big port city into a mass of flames. They wrecked and scuttled every ship that had escaped Allied bombs and destroyed every wharf.

The Fifth and Eighth armies were bringing their full power to bear against their objective. That the Germans had early given up hope of holding the city was proved by the wholesale destruction of all usable facilities. At least 30 ships lay sunk or aground in the harbor as the result of Nazi scuttling and Allied bombs. Bombers had also wrecked railroad yards so thoroughly that no traffic had come into them for weeks.

Corsica

Even as the offensive against Naples began, French troops and American Rangers were driving ahead in Corsica, island of Napoleonic history. They had closed in on Bastia, northeastern port of the island, and Allied naval and air forces had clamped on a tight blockade against German escape.

MILK PRODUCERS:
Get First Subsidy

History was made in the dairy industry with the disclosure that the government has paid its first subsidy to dairymen. The announcement was made as Fred M. Vinson, economic stabilization director, took over the job of arbitrating a widespread milk price disagreement.

Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee stated that Vinson told him a subsidy had been given milk producers in the drouth-stricken area near Memphis. Other official sources said the subsidy would total 50 cents a hundredweight, approximately equal to one cent a quart.

LIFE INSURANCE:
On War Deaths

Deaths in the United States army, navy and marine corps up to the end of June, 1943, have resulted in life insurance claim payments totaling 32 million dollars, the Institute of Life Insurance has reported.

Of 23,700 policies on which payments were made, $15,100,000 was paid out under 11,100 policies in the first six months of this year by American life insurance companies.

"The number of deaths is probably half the number of claims paid," the institute said. The average ownership of life insurance is two policies per policy holder.

RUSSIA:
'Disengaged' Nazis

German troops continued to "systematically disengage themselves" as the Red army smashed on toward Smolensk, captured Poltava, the last Nazi base in the southern Ukraine, and engulfed German defenses along a 300-mile line just short of the middle Dnieper river.

Continuing their drive on Smolensk, the great Nazi eastern front stronghold that once was Hitler's headquarters, the Russian army closed in from the southeast, overrunning 863 villages and killing more than 5,300 Germans.

A Berlin broadcast acknowledged the peril to Smolensk, Kiev and other eastern front bastions. But Berlin was hesitant to paint the overall picture. For instance: The Germans at one time held approximately 500,000 square miles of Russia proper. It is estimated that they now hold only 200,000.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Spring Another Trap

Japanese troops manning the important New Guinea base of Finschafen were hemmed in on three sides by Allied forces following Gen. Douglas MacArthur's master plan of utilizing units to land in strength behind the enemy's key points and work to cut off his supply.

After the pattern of the conquest of Lae farther to the south, big airplane transports landed Allied troops northwest of Finschafen. As these troops pressed in against the Japs from the west, other ground forces moved in on the enemy from the south. Then, the encirclement was made complete when the U. S. navy put troops ashore to the north.

Capture of Finschafen would place the Allies a short distance from the Jap air bases on New Britain island to the east and thus reduce the efficiency of these bases as points for attack on U. S. forces.

WORLD RELIEF:
Plan Proposed

America's participation in an international relief and rehabilitation program to be administered along the lines of the League of Nations was to come up for congressional approval.

Winston Churchill

Congressional approval will be needed for appropriations with which the government will take part in the plan. As shaped along the pattern of a proposal of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, 44 united nations will form an advisory council, with a special central committee composed of the U. S., Great Britain, Russia and China.

Under the plan, the organization established will be authorized to acquire, hold, and convey property; make contracts; undertake obligations; manage undertakings, and perform any legal act appropriate to its object and purposes. Unless the senate ratified further forms of participation by a two-thirds vote, U. S. obligations would be confined to appropriations of funds.

ARMED FORCES:
Ask for Fathers

October 1 was at hand and before congress was the Wheeler resolution which would delay the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers scheduled to begin on that date.

Before the house and senate military committees came the nation's manpower experts. Also before these legislators came the highest officials of the army and navy. And then they heard the voice of Bernard M. Baruch, special presidential adviser. Testimony from all these sources arrived at the same essential fact: Give the armed forces what they want in the way of manpower.

Generally speaking the nation seemed to agree with this viewpoint but those who were opposing the drafting of these pre-Pearl Harbor fathers based their case on the assertion that the whole manpower program was being mishandled and that was why the drafting of fathers "appeared necessary." Agriculture, the armed forces themselves, government agencies and industry were all accused of hoarding manpower while fathers were being asked to get into uniform.

SOAP: More soap is on the way, say spokesmen of the War Food administration, promising a 28 per cent increase in supplies by November 1.

BATTING: Luke Appling of the Chicago White Sox baseball team is leading the American league with a batting average of .324, slightly above the second place man, Dick Wakefield of the Detroit Tigers.

DEBT: Congress may soon be asked to raise the debt limit of the nation to 300 billion dollars, Representative Cannon, chairman of the house appropriations committee, stated recently. He said that at the present rate of spending, between seven and eight billion dollars monthly, the government is approaching its present limit of 210 billions.

Admirals may be admirable, but that isn't where the word comes from. It comes from an old Arabic word "amir-al" meaning "commander of." That's what the Admiral is, the top-ranking officer in the Navy. Top-ranking cigarette with our Navy men is Camel—the favorite, too with men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard, according to actual sales records from their service stores. Camels are a top-ranking gift, too. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. CONSERVE ELECTRICITY

Where to Conserve Electricity

General conservation in unnecessary use of electricity is being asked of all commercial, industrial and residential customers. However, this does not mean that lighting should be reduced to a point below the needs of protection and safety. Eyes should not be strained by inadequate illumination. No effort should be made to curtail necessary police lighting, lighting essential to the public health, plant protection, transportation and production purposes.

Here are a few suggestions on where to conserve electricity:

- Indoor and outdoor advertising signs—Burn 2 hours each evening before 10 p. m.
- Decorative and ornamental lighting—Eliminate non-essential use.
- Show window lighting—Burn only two hours each evening.
- Lighting of marquees—Eliminate in daytime.
- Showcase and store interiors—Eliminate all non-essential use.
- Residential lighting—Eliminate all unnecessary use of various electric appliances and turn off lights and appliances when not actually needed.

★ Uncle Sam asks the cooperation of the electric industry and its customers in a nation-wide conservation program. By saving electricity, you will conserve fuel, manpower, critical materials and transportation—all of which are needed to make electricity. There is plenty of electricity for all essential war, civilian, commercial and industrial needs, but the conservation of it—especially by commercial establishments—will greatly help the war effort.

The Interstate Power Company is glad to do its part in this nation-wide program and we are asking all of our customers to cooperate with Uncle Sam. If you have any questions, contact us immediately.

Marshall Co. Nears Bond Quota

Marshall county is practically over-the-top in the 3rd War Loan Drive and when final figures are compiled at the Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis on Saturday it is expected that the county will have reached or bettered its quota of $732,500.00, O. M. Mattsyn, chairman of the Marshall County War Finance committee, announced today.

Sales and pledges for the county up to yesterday totaled $721,975.00 and with the sales made in the county through Thursday and Friday continuing to count in the drive, it is very possible that the quota will be reached, said Mr. Mattson.

According to a report issued from the Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis on Monday, Marshall county was in 41st place in actual sales of bonds with an even 94 per cent of the quota reached. On this basis, which is official, only six per cent will be needed to reach the quota.

"In behalf of the U. S. Treasury department and the Marshall County War Finance committee conducting the 3rd. War Loan I wish to thank all solicitors issuing agencies for their untiring efforts in this campaign" Mr. Mattson said today. Above all, the committee expresses its thanks to the several thousands of bond buyers located in every community of the county for their generous support of our government during this critical period and feels certain that the dollars subscribed will help to hasten the day when our Johnnies come marching home".

Lon Inman has rented the land on the Edgar Wegge farm for the next year and also took over all the livestock on the place while Mr. Wegge spends a year on the west coast.

FIGHTING FOR YOUR INDUSTRY

AT A TIME when dairy products are short in consumer markets, the dairy farmes of the northwest must insure their post war markets . . . and keep the desire for their products alive.

LAND O' LAKES does this. Here are only a few of the ways that Land O' Lakes is fighting in the interests of its members.

—NATIONAL ADVERTISING continues in the major markets of America. Land O' Lakes current ads have won national acclaim for keeping "the farmers' own brand" before the public.

—TIMELY INFORMATION that tells the producers' side of dairying problems--every day, every week, every month--read and heard by thousands.

—NATIONAL AFFAIRS-Land O'Lakes officials are active in helping frame the policies of the Dairy Products Marketing Association and the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation, which policies can greatly benefit not only Land O'Lakes members but the entire northwest dairy industry.

Land O'Lakes "fights" for its members! Have you investigated ALL the advantages of a marketing membership in Land O'Lakes?

Letter From Chester Larson

Following is a letter written on Sept. 8th to Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Larson from their son Chester, who is a Sergeant in the Armed Forces. Space does not permit us to print all of the letter.

Dear Folks:

I suppose you have been wondering why you haven't heard from me for a while, and I don't suppose that brief note I wrote from the Red Cross helped matters much. You see I have been on "pass", I got back yesterday afternoon. I had 6 V-Mail and 9 regular letters waiting for me.

I suppose you are wondering what and where about my pass. Well, I went to Tel Aviv, Pales-Palestine. We (there was a bunch of us) went by plane (bomber) and traveled in hours what we once covered in days by truck Of course, there is a little difference between 3 minutes per mile, in high gear, and 3 miles per minute!

While in Tel Aviv, I stayed at the American Red Cross Club. They have taken over a large hotel for the use of service men on pass. Rooms are free but it cost us $1 per day for eats. They have a very nice place, altho it is slightly crowded. There were six of us in the room I was in. The "Chow" was pretty good, and, of course, we didn't have to use mess kits, or wash our own dishes either. Just go in the dining room and sit down to a table and a waiter brought the stuff to you. Some of the waiters were female too.

I also took a three day conducted tour through the Holy Land. It was very interesting, even if I dont remember it all. The tour cost $14, which included all necessary expenses, but not souveniers.

I'll send a full report on the tour later, but it included Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Nazareth, Dead Sea, Jericho, River Jordan, Sea of Galilee, Mount Carmel, Jacob's Well, Good Samaritan Inn and numerous other places. The better one knows his Bible History, the more he can get out of the trip. In Jerusalem we visited the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, Garden of Gethsemane, Church of All Nations, Mount of Olives, the Mosque of Ohmar, the Garden Tomb and others. In Bethlehem we visited the Church of Nativity, where Christ was born. It's hard to visualize it as most of the important places have churches built over them to commemorate them.

I went swimming in the dead Sea. It's about 1200 feet below sea level and very hot down there. It is the saltiest body of water in the world. A person has no trouble at all in floating in that water.

However, most of the places have been commercialized pretty much. I bought a few souvenirs and several pictures of different scenes along the way.

On his return from southern Minnesota, Herb Johnson brought along some very fine samples of hybrid corn raised near Austin. He left the samples at the News office and we transferred them to the lobby of the Marshall County State bank where they can be seen.

G. O. Erickson's lost three large stacks of hay on Monday when a grass fire had crept up there before anyone saw it. The neighbors all turned out to fight the fire and got it under control and saved the buildings on the farm.

An Appeal

Look! Young men are DYING—being KILLED—their blood spilled—and flowing on enemy soil!

What is it to you? Are you content at home — satisfied—taking it easy—while lives are being laid down? And that for You!

Nothing is quite so important to help—to hasten the end of this killing—right now—as that you do this one thing — Farmers—Businessmen—Scrap, Scrap, Scrap—Bring in the Scrap.

For Shame—should any return from the front line of fire and death to see that you still have Scrap — Scrap that would have made amunition and equipment — that would have saved the life of—say—his own buddy!

One thing you can do! It is even more important than your money—there's lots of that—but your Scrap Iron—where is it? Still lying around? Get it in Today. Tomorrow may be too late—for some one soldier, sailor, marine—whose life—yes—might have been saved—but wasn't—because you delayed.

Life of Sherman Johnson

Funeral rites were conducted Tuesday, Sept. 28, at the Thief Lake Lutheran church for Sherman Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Johnson with Rev. G. T. I. Berge officiating. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson sent a beautiful message which was read by Rev. Berge. Burial was made in the Thief Lake cemetery.

Little Sherman was born March 23rd, 1940, and at the time of his death was 3 years, and 6 months old. Left to mourn his early departure from this world of sorrow are his parents Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Johnson, a sister Adrienne and a brother Eldon; his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Otto Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wegge.

While out hunting geese on Monday morning, Alton Carlson was one of the lucky boys to bag a large Canadian honker.

Clarence Ness, who arrived here from Oregon a few months ago, left on Friday for Idaho where he will be in the Naval training service. Mrs. Ness will remain here for the present.

Jerome Sorum of Grand Forks spent the week end here at the home of his grandparents. He leaves today for the Armed Services.

Mrs. Eddy Henning and baby came home Monday from the hospital at Thief River Falls.

County Commissioner V. F. Kruta of Gatzke was a Holt visitor Monday.

Esther Mossbeck of Hazel visited at the Alfred Larson home Saturday and Sunday.

Leo Horien has added to his line of farm machinery by buying a new Ford Ferguson System tractor and hydraulic lift plow.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fricker and children, A. O. Aspelin and Caroline were supper guests at the H. O. Hanson home Friday evening.

School Carnival at Manor School, Dist. 20, Saturday evening, October 23. 2½ miles south and 2½ miles east of Holt. Entertainment and lunch for everyone.

Many Going To West Coast

There is a heavy movement of people to the west coast this fall. Just recently Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Burtness left for Tacoma, Wash. and on Sunday, the Paskewitz and Wegg families and Mrs. Anna Carlson left for Seattle, and Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Hovrud are getting ready to go out to Oregon. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Klungness who sold out at auction yesterday, will go out west for the winter. Two more farmers selling out to go west are Thorval Bredeson north of Gatzke and Anton Paulson east of Middle River. Mr. Paulson had his sale on Tuesday and he is shipping out a full carload of new tractor machinery and furniture to Lafayette, Oregon about 30 miles west of Portland where they will make their home.

Organize Farmers Union Here

A local Farmers' Union was organized in Holt on Monday evening at a meeting at which D. D. Collins of St. Paul was the main speaker. The following officers were elected:

Henry Nohre, President; Leo Horien, Vice President; Walter Wegge, Sec'y-Treas.

Mrs. C. A. Davis was given a birthday party at her home on Thursday evening. About 25 ladies were present. Mrs. Davis received a cash purse.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

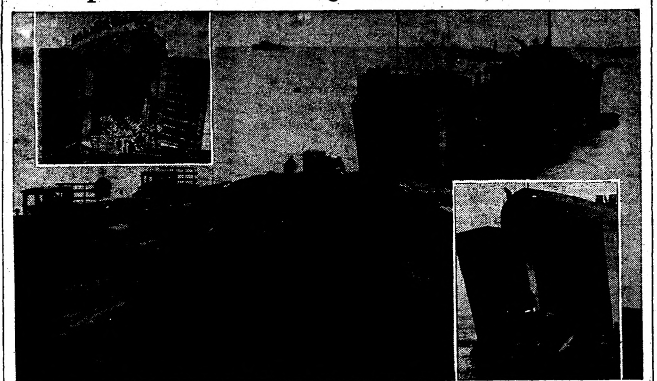
Marshall—American Leader in Two World Wars

The report that Gen. George C. Marshall was under consideration for the post of global commander in chief of all Anglo-American armed forces, caused widespread comment in both military and political circles. He has distinguished himself as an outstanding military leader in both World War I and II. When he was appointed to the post of U. S. chief of staff, Marshall was jumped over more than 30 senior officers. Top left: General Marshall with President Roosevelt at the Casablanca conference. Bottom left: Marshall with Gen. Sir John Dill of the English army. Right: With Gen. John J. Pershing, head of the AEF during World War I.

Troops March Thru Huge Jaws of Sea Monster



Wherever American fighting men have carried the battle to the foe, our forces have marched ashore between the huge shielding jaws of a landing ship tank. It is the ultimate of space conservation in ship building. It carries troops, ammunition, jeeps, tanks and 3 landing crafts. In picture above, piled up dirt was the only landing strip needed on Attu island. Top left inset: Troops going to Sicily march into an LST. Lower right inset: an army tanks rolls from the opened doors of an LST.

Paratrooper Over Italy
By Frank Herkness

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with The American Magazine.)

We jumped at midnight. For 30 minutes the jump door had been open, and the lieutenant, our jump master, had been standing there looking out into the moonlight and waiting for the red-light flash which meant to stand up and hook on chutes.

We had been flying a long time—much longer than actually needed to come from the African camp to Sicily. But, to throw the enemy off, we did not fly there directly.

Maybe there will never be such a night again. I've heard that 2,000 planes and 4,000 boats took part in the invasion, and I can believe it. The sky around us was filled with cargo transport planes, all loaded with paratroops, all heading for the same place, like a billion bees.

All of us were excited. For exactly one year and three days we'd been training for this, our first battle action. Three days before, we'd celebrated the anniversary by killing three beef cattle for dinner. And now the target was a few minutes ahead of us. We passed over the Sicilian coast and knew it wouldn't be long now.

The red light flashed. All of us stood up, fastened our chutes to the jump cable, and waited. Waited for what seemed hours for the green jump signal from the pilot. The plane was rocking from side to side, much worse than it ever did in the 15 practice jumps we'd made—I still don't know why.

Directly ahead and behind us we could see faintly glowing green lights—formation lights of planes ahead and behind.

Lieutenant Disappears.

The pilot's light suddenly flashed. Officers always jump first. The lieutenant yelled, "Let's go!" and leaped out into the moonlight. We never saw him again.

We followed him instantly. The plane emptied in ten seconds. I was the last to jump. The plane seemed to be going unusually fast. My chute snapped open with a terrific jerk, and my carbine disappeared. So the only weapon I had was a long trench knife.

I should have been able to see all the other chutes in our party, but I could only see one, and realized something had gone wrong. Plans called for us to be dropped at 600 feet, with the plane slowed down to almost stalling speed—about 100 miles an hour. This was so we would spend less vulnerable time floating down, and also so we would be close together when we hit.

As it turned out, we were dropped at full speed—almost 200 miles an hour—and from 1,500 feet. That's why I could see only one other chute. I kept my eyes glued on it and pulled at my shrouds to follow it.

I landed hard but safe in an orchard. The rest of the boys landed nearby. Comparing notes, we were convinced that we had been dropped in a comparatively strange country, nowhere near our target area. Actually, we were at least 50 miles off—some time I'd like to know why.

This was all orchard country, which seemed dotted with enemy troops, forcing us to move carefully. There was spasmodic firing everywhere, but we managed to avoid the enemy. We spotted the main road and headed for it. We had crept along it about 500 yards when we were challenged. It was another American, posted there in the bushes to lead anybody to a nearby farmhouse which was being used as an assembly point and first-aid station. We went in.

From prisoners we learned that we had landed a few miles from Avola, a coastal town which the British even then were attacking. There was a little hill about 200 yards from the farmhouse where, as soon as it got light, we could see the whole scene. I'll never forget it. British landings being made against airplane and artillery opposition. We could help those boys by hitting the enemy in the rear. That's what we did. Maybe it was a good thing we landed where we did. I think we did more valuable work than we would have done if we had been dropped right on the bull's eye.

From the hilltop, as far as I could see, British ships were lying just offshore, with lines of little boats moving back and forth, bringing in more British Tommies. They were getting plenty of enemy attention.

From the hills, Italian artillery was going full blast. Shells and bombs were bursting among the ships, but the little boats kept coming anyway.

It was about eight in the morning when we reached Avola and it took us until 2:30 in the afternoon to advance a little more than a mile toward the town square.

We never dreamed Avola was as big as it was. We learned later that it was a place of about 22,000 population. And we were trying to mop it up with 75 men!

Suddenly, a block away from us, some British Tommies appeared and opened fire on us. We dived for cover. Then a couple of Americans waved helmets from a doorway, and we were recognized.

I'll never forget the look on an English guy's face when he yelled: "What are you Yanks doing here?" There were supposed to be no Americans within 25 miles of Avola.

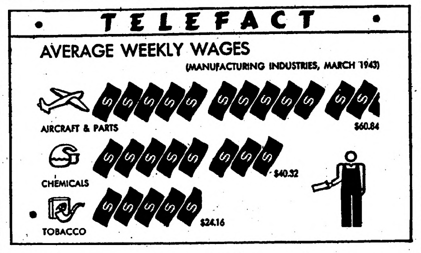
German Forces Hurled Back to Rome As Yankees Take Italian Port City; Russian Troops Near Polish Border; Senate Studies Dad Draft Problems

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

TELEFACT



ITALY:
Take Big Base

The once beautiful port of Naples smoked in ruins as Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army clattered through its streets. To the north of the city, long German columns made their way toward Rome, 135 miles away, where they were expected to make their next stand in the hills.

Before giving up Naples, the Germans destroyed the elaborate docks and warehouses and other installations that had made the port one of Europe's finest. As a result, time will be required to reopen the port for Allied use in supplying the armies marching northward.

The German retreat at Naples also was influenced by Gen. Bernard Montgomery's flanking movement along the Adriatic sea coast to the East. By working its way northward, Montgomery's army had pushed behind the Germans, threatening to cut them off from the rear by crossing the mountains to the west.

WORLD AVIATION:
Seek U. S. Share

Returning from a 40,000-mile tour of the battle fronts, Senators James Mead, N. Y., Richard Russell, Ga., and Ralph Brewster, Maine, declared U. S. commercial aviation companies would be denied use of airports built in foreign countries by America.

The senators called upon congress to make provisions now for U. S. use of the airdromes by including agreements in lend-lease assistance. The senators also declared that while the U. S. was supplying the Allies with 65 per cent of their oil, Great Britain was not fully exploiting her tremendous petroleum reserves in Persia. At the present rate of consumption, they said, our oil will be used up in 11 years.

Senators Russell, Brewster and Mead.

Any attempt to reduce the importance of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command in the South Pacific by placing him under the supreme direction of Lord Mountbatten would be bitterly resisted by Australian Prime Minister John Curtin, the senators said.

RUSSIA:
Near Poland

Russian troops drove within 100 miles of the old Polish border in the northern sector of the long front, while other Red forces assaulted prepared German positions on the west bank of the broad Dnieper river to the south.

Failing to hold their new line, the Germans would be pushed out of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, and they would lose substantial control of their Baltic sea route to Finland.

Stiffening German resistance and appearance of massed artillery along the west bank of the Dnieper, indicated that the Nazis were determined to make use of the broad river as one of their last natural defense lines along 750 miles. Russian crossings to the west bank in some sectors were met by prompt German counterattacks in an effort to prevent the organization of sizeable Red forces for continuation of their drive.

GAS:
New Rations

Because the Midwest and Southwest were exceeding their gasoline allotments by 75,000 barrels a day, the OPA reduced their "B" and "C" coupon rations from three to two gallons. Similar reductions were made in the Southeast.

At the same time, "B" and "C" coupon rations in the Northeast were cut from 2½ to 2 gallons, while "A" coupons in the East were boosted from 1½ to 2 gallons.

In announcing the new rations, OPA declared that it was intended to force the use of at least one gallon out of the three gallons on the "A" coupon for occupational driving.

FARM:
Guarantee Payments

Appearing before a congressional committee, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones asked for an additional 500 million dollars for the Commodity Credit corporation to provide farmers with guarantee payments in the 1944 production program.

The CCC now has a fund of 500 million dollars. It is intended to use this money for loans on major crops like wheat, cotton, corn, wool, tobacco and potatoes. With the extra 500 million dollars, guarantee payments would be advanced on vegetable oil crops, dry beans and peas, sugar beets, fresh truck and fruit crops, and canning crops.

Jones sought authority to buy surplus crops and absorb loss through resale at lower ceiling prices. He also asked power to resell perishable commodities like fruits and vegetables which the government might obtain through price-supporting purchases, at less than parity.

DRAFT:
Asks New System

Tightening up of deferments of men under 30 years of age and the draft of dads by age groups was proposed by Senator Robert A. Taft during debate on Senator Burton Wheeler's bill for postponing the induction of fathers until January 1.

Taft's proposal would grant deferments of men under 30 only if the deferment were approved by the men's own draft board and the draft board having jurisdiction in the territory where the deferment would be granted. Fathers under 25 would be called into service before those over 25 but under 30. Those over 30 would be called last.

Taft also proposed that the President establish a medical commission to study the possibility of lowering physical standards to draw more single 4F's into the service.

For Higher Allowances

Higher allowances for children of service men provided for in a senate bill, were supported by the army.

The bill would raise the monthly payment for one child from $12 to $18, and for every child thereafter from $10 to $11. The present payment of $50 to wives would be continued, with the government contributing $28 and the service man $22.

An army spokesman also advocated higher allowances for other dependents. Where a service man is not supporting a wife or child, it was recommended allowances to one parent be boosted from $37 to $50 monthly, and for two parents from $47 to $68. In cases where the service man is supporting a wife and child, allowances for a parent would be raised from $20 to $27, and for two parents from $30 to $68.

The army said it was in no position to withhold payments to financially independent or unfaithful wives.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

WAVES: Members of the WAVES, the navy's woman auxiliary, will not be permitted to serve overseas, by a provision in a bill reported out by the senate naval affairs committee.

JEWS: A separate force of Jewish soldiers may be established by Great Britain for service in Burma, it is announced from London. One or more divisions may be recruited in Palestine and the Near East.

MUSIC: Radio broadcasting stations can now get the benefit of recordings made by union musicians. By agreement the 14-month ban has been ended.

COWS: Reason for the drop in milk production, according to the secretary of the National Co-operative Pure Milk association, is that the cows "get tired" when excessively milked.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
Success of the Dutch in transplanting the quinine tree from Peru to Java helped encourage interest in the development of rubber plantations in the Far East in the early 1870's.
With all the discouragements of rubber and gasoline restrictions, automobile registrations at the end of 1942 were only 5 per cent lower than in 1941, a record year. Commercial vehicle registrations were down 5.5 per cent.
It is estimated that at one time there were between 300 million and 500 million wild rubber trees in the Amazon Valley and that less than 10 per cent have been tapped to date.

SOME people have a talent for making guests comfortable and they are not always the people with big houses and what used to be called a spare room. Many a homemaker today is graciously sharing limited space in a house or apartment because war conditions make her feel that is part of her contribution.

This sketch shows an ingenious frame under which a folding cot may be stored in a hall or other out-of-the-way corner. The frame has a full skirted cover of denim trimmed in bands of flowered chintz. On top there stands a medicine closet with feet made by gluing spools in place. This cabinet gives a convenient place for toilet articles and the mirror door is well lighted with wall brackets connected with a floor outlet.

Soldier Knew Not What He Was Dickering For

We have heard a bit about the freedom with which American soldiers in India spend their money. Here is a story which well illustrates the point:

This doughboy, having hired a tonga (a light two-wheeled cart usually drawn by a pony or bullock) for a distance the ordinary fare for which would be half a rupee, magnanimously handed the driver a 50-rupee note.

The man shook his head violently and demanded 60.

"No," said the American, "that's enough. I shan't pay any more."

The Indian thereupon accepted the money and walked away, leaving the tonga and pony with the purchaser.

One thing a soldier is afraid of is a display of emotion. That's why his slang so often sounds derogatory. For example, he refers to the silver eagles on his colonel's shoulder straps as "buzzards." But when he speaks of his favorite cigarette, he says: "Camels." They're first with men in the Army as well as with Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen. (According to actual sales records in service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

FRESH... BECAUSE CAMEL CIGARETTES ARE PACKED TO GO ROUND THE WORLD!
● It's Camel's job to see our soldiers, sailors, and Marines everywhere get their cigarettes fresh—cool smoking and slow burning, the way they like 'em.
● That's why Camels are packed to go around the world—packed to seal in that famous Camel flavor and mildness—anywhere, for months at a time.
● The Camel pack keeps your Camels fresh and full-flavored, too—preserving for you the extra goodness of Camel's matchless blend of costlier tobaccos.
CAMELS
FIRST IN THE SERVICE
The favorite cigarette with men in the Army, the Navy, the Marines, and the Coast Guard is Camel. (Based on actual sales records.)

CONSERVE ELECTRICITY

Where to Conserve Electricity

General conservation in unnecessary use of electricity is being asked of all commercial, industrial and residential customers. However, this does not mean that lighting should be reduced to a point below the needs of protection and safety. Eyes should not be strained by inadequate illumination. No effort should be made to curtail necessary police lighting, lighting essential to the public health, plant protection, transportation and production purposes.

Here are a few suggestions on where to conserve electricity:

- Indoor and outdoor advertising signs— Burn 2 hours each evening before 10 p. m.
- Decorative and ornamental lighting— Eliminate non-essential use.
- Show window lighting— Burn only two hours each evening.
- Lighting of marquees— Eliminate in daytime.
- Showcase and store interiors— Eliminate all non-essential use.
- Residential lighting— Eliminate all unnecessary use of various electric appliances and turn off lights and appliances when not actually needed.

★ Uncle Sam asks the cooperation of the electric industry and its customers in a nation-wide conservation program. By saving electricity, you will conserve fuel, manpower, critical materials and transportation—all of which are needed to make electricity. There is plenty of electricity for all essential war, civilian, commercial and industrial needs, but the conservation of it—especially by commercial establishments—will greatly help the war effort.

The Interstate Power Company is glad to do its part in this nation-wide program and we are asking all of our customers to cooperate with Uncle Sam. If you have any questions, contact us immediately.

Navy Day Proclamation

Whereas, the United States Navy is fighting for freedom against aggressors on the seven seas, and

Whereas, by national tradition, the debt of the people of the United States owe their Navy for protection of their homeland is annually signified through the setting aside of one day to acclaim that branch of the armed forces.

Therefore, I, A. P. Thomgson, Mayor of the Village of Holt, do hereby proclaim Wednesday, October twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred and forty-three, as "Navy Day" and call upon all citizens of Holt to take part in observance of this day through the many channels open to them and to join in a salute to the United States Navy and its coordinated sea power.

Whereunto, I have set my hand this 14th day of October, nineteen hundred and forty-three.

A. P. Thompson,
Mayor, Village of Holt.

A novelty social and carnival will be held Thursday evening, November 4th. at the Sunshine School District number 30, located ½ mile north, 4 miles west, 2 miles south and ½ mile west of Holt.

Ladies bring a novelty and lunch for two.

Everybody Welcome!
Marian Johnson, teacher.

Farmers Union Co. Convention

The Farmers Union Locals of Marshall County will hold their County Convention at Middle River on Friday, October 29th. All members are urged to come to this important gathering.

Delegates to the convention from the newly organized Holt Local of the farmers Union are: Leo Horien, Geo. Wegge, Albert Neilson and Ludvig Monson.

The Holt Local will have its first regular meeting Oct. 25th.

T-Cpl. Irvin Hagglund was guest of honor at a farewell party given for him at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Reed at Thief River Falls on Monday evening. The following were present: Mrs. Leo Horien, Mrs. Bertha Hagglund, Mrs. L. Hams and Larry, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hanson and Dorothy. A two course luncheon was served. The table was beautifully decorated in red. white and blue with the American Eagle motif.

Miss Marian Johnson and Mrs. Florence Borg were among those who attended Teachers' Institute at Warren this week.

On Thursday morning the War Fund Drive had exceeded its $100 quota by $57.50 in that $157.50 had been raised with still a number of contacts to be made. This quota was for the village of Holt.

Mayor's "Victory Scrap Bank" Proclamation

WHEREAS the valiant leaders of the Armed Forces of the United States and her Allies, and those in charge of the vast productive enterprise on the Home Front, urgently appeal for cooperation in the collection of available scrap metal, and

WHEREAS the use of this scrap metal is absolutely essential to maintain the production necessary to properly supply the courageous men fighting our battles in a global war, and

WHEREAS every loyal American must do his or her part in this world struggle for the preservation of Democracy,

NOW, THEREFORE, the period of six weeks following Oct. 1, 1943, has been set aside throughout the nation for the development of what will be known as "Victory Scrap Bank."

Every citizen possessing scrap metal on his premises is urged to assist in the collection and disposal of every pound.

His Excellency, The Governor of Minnesota, has proclaimed Wednesday, October 27th, 1943, as ZERO DAY. On that day it is urged that every business man in this Village declare a holiday to permit them to cooperate with the citizens in the rural areas in the collection and disposal of scrap metal.

I therefore urge every citizen in our community to join patriotically in this great undertaking, and thus contribute to the glorious success of our Armed Forces and the realization of the noble ideals for which we fight.

A. P. Thompson, Mayor of Holt.

O. T. Ness, Marvin Sandberg, A. P. Thompson, Julien Meyer, Ludvig F. Larson and Rev. T. C. L. Hanson attended Thief River Falls Circuit Brotherhood and Circuit meeting in Roseau on Sunday. On Saturday, Rev. Hanson, Ludvig F. Larson and A. E. Nelson attended the Circuit meeting at the same place.

When Your Back Hurts -

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

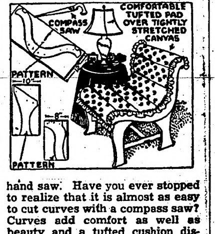
ON THE HOME FRONT
with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE war is bringing many changes in the things we use and the things we do. Women as well as men are learning to handle tools. If a chair is lacking we make one. If we cannot have springs we find a way to make it comfortable anyway. That is the spirit of the times.

Perhaps you have made lawn chairs all with straight cuts of the hand saw. Have you ever stopped to realize that it is almost as easy to cut curves with a compass saw? Curves add comfort as well as beauty and a tufted cushion distributes the weight so that springs are not missed so much. The curved pieces of the charming chair sketched here are shown at the left. You can see how easy they are to cut out of odds and ends of one-inch lumber that you may have on hand. The reinforcing pieces are all straight cuts.



NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared an actual-size pattern for all the curved sections of this chair. Complete dimensions and directions for the chair construction and for making the tufted cushion, with list of materials included. This is pattern 265 and costs 15 cents. Send your order to:

29 Per Cent of Major Leaguers Are Southpaws

Household Hints

When making a dress sew the collar and collar-facing in place before closing the under-arm seams, so that the work lies flat on the machine.

* * *

Clean powder puffs are handy for cleaning silverware; use one to apply the polish and another to do the buffing.

* * *

A little horseradish and lemon juice mixed with mayonnaise makes a good sauce to serve with tongue.

* * *

For the children's sandwiches add chopped raisins to peanut butter, also a speck of salt, and use as a filling between slices of whole-wheat bread.

* * *

Oilcloth covering for cupboard and pantry shelves is a real work-saver. To keep crumbs and dust from collecting under the edges, seal them with cellulose tape.

* * *

Dried fruit, if cooked in the oven, need not be soaked first. Cover fruit with water. Bake in a covered dish. Slow oven cooking seems to bring out the sweetness of the fruit. If sweetening is needed, add a little sugar or honey.

* * *

If coconut is a little hard for desserts, soften it by soaking several minutes in milk or fruit juice.

MOTHER-IN-LAW CHEERS LONG SOUGHT RELIEF!

Had Been "Irregular" for Years!

Have you often despaired of ever finding normal regularity? Then, by all means, read this unsolicited letter:

"For many long years, my mother-in-law had suffered from common constipation. She used to take all kinds of pills and medicines, but got no lasting relief. Upon starting to use KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, her trouble cleared up. She feels like a new person, she says. She wanted me to tell the world how your product helped her." Mrs. Poline Balis, 734 East 160th Street, Bronx, N. Y.

How do scientists explain the apparent "magic" of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN's relief? Simply thus: ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of "cellulosic" elements — lack of which in sufficient amounts in the diet is a common cause of constipation! These elements help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and lighten the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN doesn't work by "purging"—or by "sweeping you out." It is a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If this is your trouble eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water! See if you don't find the welcome relief you've hoped for! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

South America supplied 65 per cent of the world's rubber needs in 1890, while in 1922 only about 6 per cent came from that section. Far East plantation development accounts for the drop in the demand for Amazon Valley rubber.

Synthetic rubber is defined as a man-made combination of molecules that form a substance having the chief characteristics of crude rubber.

In 1938 the total of American-controlled rubber plantations was about 260,000 acres, mostly in the Far East. These plantations produced 40,000 tons annually, or about 8 per cent of U. S. imports.

Marines Landing on South Pacific Isle

Marines are shown during the initial steps of the occupation of the island of Nanumea in the South Pacific. Destroyers patrol in the background as men, guns, tractors and trucks leave the landing craft standing at the edge of a reef offshore. This landing was made at low tide so the men could walk ashore.

'Dusting' Gold Coins Was Racket in the Early Days

Because gold as it comes from the mines is somewhat soft, it was not at all uncommon for gold coins or nuggets of the early days to wear down in actual value. "Dusting gold" also became a racket. In Chinatown, San Francisco, elderly Chinese men with infinite patience sat by days shaking sacks of gold coins over a pan. Gold dust rubbed off on sacks and filtered through, and this was salvaged for resale at the mints. Coins were then passed on at their full marked value. Today hardening alloys are added to gold.

If you know a Navy man, don't ever call him a "gob"—sailors consider the name an insult. You can get on the right side of him though if you offer him a Camel—or better yet, send him a carton. Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in the Navy (Army, Marines, Coast Guard, too, for that matter) based on actual sales records from the service men's stores. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

HOW WE IN

HOLT

Can Help Win the War and Peace

We who are not in the armed services, often ask the question, "How can I help shorten this terrible war?"

We can help in many ways. The American Army is only as strong as the home front. Our continued cooperation, sacrifice and work is vital to victory. The following are six definite things we can do:

1. Buy and hold war bonds.
2. Pay cheerfully our share of taxes.
3. Comply with the rationing rules to conserve scarce things.
4. Buy only what we need and make that last longer.
5. Write often and keep our letters cheerful to the service men.
6. Protect our American liberties in our own community.

American Armies are winning victories, but every hour this war lasts means more casualites. Don't let down, don't rest, our efforts can help shorten the war, let's carry on!

Railway over Kasserine Pass, blown up by retreating Axis forces, was quickly rebuilt and put in operation by Military Railway Service. Note caves which were occupied by enemy. Insert shows soldiers of the railway service assembling an American-built locomotive.

IDAHO or ITALY

it takes the same stuff to run a railroad!

It's a whole lot tougher over there, of course, with machine guns strafing and bombs and cannon blasting at trains and tracks and shops.

But the same things that make the Great Northern a dependable, efficient railroad are producing bang-up results wherever the [redacted]★Railway Grand Division is sent.

For the officers and men of the [redacted] were recruited, for the most part, from every part of the Great Northern system—trackmen, shopmen, clerks, telegraphers, signalmen, switchmen, trainmen, enginemen, superintendents, and so on.

They have demonstrated that they have what it takes—experience, resourcefulness, determination, endurance and courage. Often under fire and always under desperate pressure, they keep the military trains rolling toward the battle fronts.

Pride in the achievements of the [redacted] and the other military railway outfits extends far beyond mere expressions of admiration here at home. It inspires railroad workers on the home front to keep those Victory-laden cars speeding along.

Here at home trains are hurried over crowded rails. Tanks and jeeps, shells and guns and bombs are rushed night and day from factories to docks. Food and raw materials are sped over the ribbons of steel in endless procession.

Overseas the job is continued by the Military Railway Service. Theirs is the responsibility of rushing troops and supplies to the fighting fronts—the job of taking a railroad—any kind of a railroad—and making it run, even in the face of enemy attack.

The highest hopes and best wishes of the whole Great Northern family accompany officers and men of the [redacted] wherever they go.

Weed Cutting Notice

Notice is hereby given that all land owners and renters in Holt Township cut the weeds along the roads adjacent to their lands at once. This was voted on and carried at the last township election that this should be enforced or the weeds would be cut and the cost of the work charged against the taxes of the parcels of land along which the weeds had to be cut.

Mission Ladies Aid Sale

The Free Mission Ladies Aid will have their sale at the church parlors here on Tuesday evening, Nov. 2 at 8 p. m. They have a large assortment of fancy articles, woolen mittens, stockings and woolen quilts.

The following visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Smith on Sunday afternoon helping the former celebrate his birthday: Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Toren and family of Middle River, Mr. and Mrs. John Ness, Mrs. Clarence Ness, Donna and Glenn Thomasland and Dale Grondahl. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Larson and family, Marian Backlund and Ray Gusa were there.

We are in receipt of a letter from Wm. Paskewitz saying that they have all arrived in Washington OK. He writes that they have settled in Seattle and their new address is 1107, 98th St.N. Seattle 3, Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Smith and family visited at the Toren home Monday evening.

Half Million Dollar Footings

We are this week publishing the bank call for the Marshall County State Bank for October 18th and it shows this institution to be in the finest of financial conditions. Here we have this fine bank nestled in the heart of a dairying and farming community with bank footings now over a half million dollars. $539,684.15 are the actual figures. This speaks well for the community with that amount of money left after war bonds have been bought and much other business transacted this fall.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been of as fine a quality as could be ordered. The people are cleaning up fall work.

Rev. and Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson and Luther drove to Viking on Sunday evening. Rev. Hanson spoke at the Centennial commemoration services in the Zion Lutheran Church. They were entertained at the home of Rev. and Rev. P. M. Bratlie for supper.

The final report of the War Fund Drive in the Village of Holt was $166.50. The quota was $100.00. There were 64 people contacted in the village and not a single one refused to give. The response was 100%.

Otto Johnson has been on the sick list. His daughter, Mrs. R. F. Smith, took him out to her home until he was better.

Ralph Ness spent the week end at So. St. Paul. He took part of a carload of livestock from his farm down there.

New Type Oats For 1944

Under present conditions the question of producing enough feed in 1944 to take care of the livestock needs is of great importance. The oat crop in Marshall county this year was disappointing except to the farmers who were fortunate enough to be growing Tama or Vicland Oats.

These two varieties of oats were bred from the same parentage. They are resistant to both Black Stem rust and Croion rust and also to smut. They are early oats and have stiffer straw than any of the old varieties. In three years of trials at the various state experiment stations they have both out yielded Gopher.

Farmers should by all means attempt to obtain either Tama or Vickland seed oats for their 1944 acreage.

The County Agent's office is very interested in promoting these varieties of oats for 1944 and requests any farmer who grew either the Tama or Vicland oats in 1943 not to feed these oats but to distribute their supply for seed purposes. The county agent would appreciate having 1943 growers advise the Extension office as to how much seed the growers might have.

Farmers should endeaver to obtain their seed stock immediatly. A list of Iowa growers is on file at the County Agent's office in Warren.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Peterson and family, who have been living on the O. H. Nohre farm the past few years, have now moved to the Carl Ellestad farm.

Carol Grondahl of Goodridge and Lorraine Peterson, who are teaching near Gatzke, spent the week end at the Walter Peterson home.

Mrs. J. A. Sorum and Esther visited with Mrs. L. Wegge on Saturday evening.

Melvin Bottem arrived home on Sunday from the Alcan highway where he spent the summer months working.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Nohre have now moved off their farm here and are living in their new home in the village. They recently purchased the Mrs. Brunsvold residence here.

Killed By Train Wednesday

August Bring, prominent Newfolden farmer, was killed at Newfolden on Wednesday morning at 9 a. m. by a fast northbound Soo Line thru freight. Mr. Bring was driving a truck which was totally wrecked as it was hurled about 200 feet and hit the depot. He was thrown out of the truck and spun thru the air for 200 feet, his body going thru the one inch plank covering the bottom of the foundation of the depot. He was rushed to Thief River Falls where he died a few minutes after arriving at a hospital. Mr. Bring was married and leaves a family to mourn his passing.

On Tuesday we received a card from Edgar Wegge saying that they had reached their destination, Seattle, OK, and that they saw a lot on the 1700 mile trip out there and that they enjoyed it very much. The men expected to go to work at once at a Naval Station. Their new address is 9801, Aurora Ave. Seattle, 3, Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nohre arrived here on Saturday from Pembina, N. D. where they spent several years in the store business. They have now purchased the O. H. Nohre farm and stock and machinery and will take up active farming here. They moved here last week.

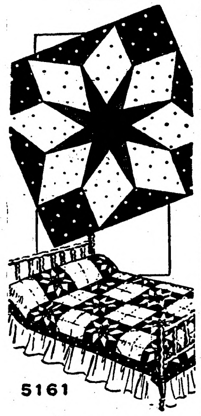
Sunflower Quilt Is Fascinating to Make



Sunflower Quilt

THE "Sunflower" is one of the easiest of the quilt designs to make—the diamond-shaped pieces are easy to cut and a block works up quickly. Use brown-flecked percales, tiny patterned cream and yellow calicoes, grass-green and leaf-green cottons. Do the center in vivid yellow. Quilt has 12 pieced blocks, each 14 inches square—12 plain blocks.

Hot Box, Flat Car, Morgue Are Battlefront Exchanges

The WACs are gradually taking over the telephone switchboards in North Africa, thus releasing the men operators for service in the fields of battle. These girls are doing a vital job, operating some of the most important war equipment in the world. And according to the various generals, their efficiency is unsurpassed.

The wartime phone systems have exchanges also. But G. I.'s don't give them sedate names such as "State" or "Plaza." When they put a call through to the battle front, they ask for: Grizzly Bear, Gypsy Lee, Morphine, Hot Box, Flatcar, Morgue, Girdle, Hellzapoppin.

Italian Scenes Preceding New War Declaratio

Thirty-five days after surrendering to the Allies, Italy declared war on her former Axis partner, Germany. Marshal Pietro Badoglio announced the declaration and said that German ferocity had "surpassed every limit of human imagination" at Naples. In picture above, British anti-aircraft units are shown covering the arrival of troops near the Chiunzi pass, gateway to that city. Inset: After the fall of Naples, Italians mobbed a car carrying three fascist generals who had been in charge of defenses there. The generals had co-operated with the Germans and required Allied protection from the angry Italian masses.

Yankees in Germany Fare Better Than Civilians

A visiting delegate of the War Prisoners Aid of the YMCA made these photographs of captured American soldiers at a German prison camp southeast of Berlin. The prison camp fare plus weekly 1½ pound food packages from the American Red Cross give the interned Yankees a better diet than that of German civilians. AMERICA'S PLACE IN POSTWAR WORLD

Straight from the front comes evidence now which will prick more bubbles of American wistful vistaing on the war and postwar world. This time, it is in a new book, "Report on North Africa," by Kenneth G. Crawford, a sincere, superior reporter.

The troops in the field are encountering minor experiences with the British, French, Arabs, Italians, and others, which will make them even more isolationist this time than before, Crawford thinks.

They will look upon "only Americans as good people, and only America as a good country, and only complete isolation from the rest of the world as a good national policy," he writes. He does not want this, but he is a good enough reporter to recount faithfully the facts he found.

Crawford warns America to steel itself again for the reaction experienced after the last war when we became Uncle Shylock to the world.

"It will be the same again," he says.

The British Tommy is inclined to think we came in a bit late, and he has done most of the fighting. The French are thankful for another chance of national existence, but apparently are politically dismembered and confused.

The American soldier looks upon the war, he says, as "an unpleasant job to be got over with, and to quarrel about for years to come—about the question of whether we were suckers or really had to do it. But the British Tommy thinks only of Dunkirk and is fighting for his homeland."

The evidence of this discerning reporter substantiates again in its broad aspects the reports of the five senators from the far Pacific.

It calls again for development of more American self-interest in dealing with allies and more realism in both war and postwar preparations. It completes the picture, the new undeniable, realistic picture which supplants the grandiose notions drawn for us by propagandizing leaders in the early stages of the war.

Mr. Crawford is no propagandist. He was sent abroad by the leftist-winged of all American newspapers, opposed to state department policy, pro internationalist, etc. What Mr. Crawford found at the front was so irrefutably opposite that he resigned his position with that newspaper and now is associate editor of Newsweek (no propagandist sheet either).

HOW HOME FRONT REACHED CONFUSION STAGE

How we got into a confused condition on "the home front" is shown in another new book by that name, written by the New York public relations genius extraordinary, David Hinshaw. Books have been raining out of the skies for months, mostly bearing panaceas for postwar or reciting exciting individual adventures.

What this war needs is some good straight reporting and straight thinking, and it seems to me that what the liberal Mr. Crawford has done with North Africa, the conservative Mr. Hinshaw has done at home. From journals, speeches, announcements, and actions, Hinshaw has accumulated a disillusioning record.

His main point is that the Henderson era was founded on distrust of the government for the common sense and integrity of the people and his testimony calls for a renewal of democratic faith.

AMERICAN SELF-INTEREST

The theme of a postwar peace based on American self-interest and neighborly negotiation without too much trust in Utopian formulas is developing fast. Another globe-trotter, President Johnston of the United States Chamber of Commerce, has returned with a speech advocating just such a course.

Mr. Johnston wants recognition of "our immense stake in law and order, in decency and prosperity all over the planet" but not on the basis of disarming alliances, or tailor-made plans for new world orders. He says a strong, prosperous, self-reliant America can serve as a mighty bulwark of world peace and progress—and he could have said the mightiest.

The plan which would be adopted he rightly predicts will come slowly, painfully, and on a basis of evolution in collaboration among the nations. My own guess is the main inspiration of such an evolution will be a gigantic Hull trade program.

Senate defeat of the Wheeler Draft Fathers Exclusion bill was due to circumstances foreseen. Neither house dare stand firmly against the military leaders on a point of military necessity.

On no important phase of the war effort has congress ever overridden the plans of army and navy directors. Farthest congress has gone in that way was in the farmer draft directive last session, but this involved the vital matter of feeding the United Nations.

ON THE HOME FRONT

with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT ALL started with a bright idea for making a painted coffee table out of odds and ends of lumber. The sketch gives dimensions and shows the simple construction used to make the frame reinforced by useful shelves at the ends. So far the table was substantial but crude and that is where the lady with the needle came in.

The table was to be painted cream color and then waxed. She bought a yard of slightly darker tan sateen and appliqued a design of blue and red morning glories with green leaves on it. This was placed over the top of the table and tacked around the edge. A piece of glass was cut to fit and the finishing boards were then screwed around the sides. Any interesting fabric could be used under the glass of the table top, or bright flower prints or a map would give a good effect.

Dust storms have been recorded as reaching to a height of three miles in the United States.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
In the 45 years between 1889 and 1934, the output of rubber produced by the Far East plantations jumped from half a ton to 98 per cent of the world's supply — 1934 shipments were 1,000,000 tons. The first official record, that for 1899, shows that four tons of rubber were produced from 4000 acres under cultivation.
The greatest enemies to the long life of natural rubber are sunlight, heat, oils, greases and solvents. The ultra-violet rays of the sun penetrate the surface of rubber, causing it to oxidize; heat causes deterioration, and oils develop swelling and softening, making the rubber more susceptible to damage.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Formal Declaration of War by Italians Adds Impetus to Allied Drive on Rome; Heaviest Air Raids Blast Nazi Plants; Action Increases in Southwest Pacific

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

FORTRESS EUROPE:
Hit From All Sides

Even as Allied forces crossed the swollen Volturno river under the cover of heavy artillery fire in southern Italy, hundreds of Flying Fortresses escorted by speedy Thunderbolt fighters delivered a hard blow at the Nazis' huge roller-bearing plant in Schweinfurt, Germany.

In crossing the Volturno, Allied forces chose to span the narrow river at its eastern point, where they began working northward toward the mountains overlooking the communication lines used by the Nazis to supply their embattled legions.

While the Germans held to the west flank of the river, they were brought under increasing pressure of Allied fire from land and sea. Hovering offshore, U. S. and British warships pumped big shells into German positions inland.

In blasting Schweinfurt's roller-bearing plant, a record number of 60 Flying Fortresses were reported missing. More than 100 of fighter planes upon which the Nazis are depending to check Allied air raids, were brought down by the raiders.

Italy Now on Own

Allied consideration toward Italy will be greatly influenced by the degree of assistance she lends British and U. S. armies in the war against Germany.

Marshal Badoglio

When Badoglio declared war on the Nazis, the Allies accepted his Italian government as a partner on the strength of its ability to help beat back the Germans and thus spare U. S. and British lives.

It was made clear, however, that Badoglio's regime, as it now is, would not be accepted as a political partner; and the Allies would only give Italy political recognition upon the formation of a liberal democratic government.

Because of Italy's weakened industrial and agricultural position, it was presumed that some sort of assistance, possibly through lend-lease, would have to be given her to equip and maintain her for fighting.

SUBSIDIES:
To Dairy Farmers

To offset the increased cost of feed, the government will pay subsidies ranging from 30 to 50 cents per hundredweight on whole milk sales, and from 4 to 6 cents a pound on butterfat.

Based on increased feed costs, the different rates were fixed to assist farmers who have to purchase more feed than formerly, with maximum payments going to farmers in drouth counties where feed crops suffered damage.

Subsidies will be paid after farmers submit such satisfactory evidence as creamery statements as to the amount of milk or butterfat sold to their AAA county committee. In all, 3½ million dairy farmers are expected to qualify under the 60-million-dollar program.

The whole subsidy question appeared to be headed for a thorough going over again, with the house banking and currency committee advising congress to allow subsidy payments to producers only, and not to reduce retail food costs.

RUSSIA:
Battle Rages

The great battle for the Dnieper river raged.

With Russian forces across the river at several points, German troops fought desperately to prevent their organization for full scale encircling attacks, which would trap the Nazi armies from the rear.

Far to the south of the 750-mile front, the Reds assaulted Nazi positions protecting their forces in the Crimea. Since the Germans held shortened defense lines in this sector, any Russian breakthrough would compel them to fall back to the Dnieper river and thus extend their battle front, or else trap at least 100,000 Nazis.

Standing behind prepared positions, the Germans bitterly resisted the Reds' repeated attacks on their northern lines guarding the Baltic states and old Poland.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Strike Jap Air Posts

Now that Allied ground forces have driven the Japs from most of their Southwest Pacific outposts, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command is concentrating on the elimination of all enemy air bases which might be used to harass further drives to the north toward the Philippines.

Gen. MacArthur: Blasts Rabaul.

For this task, imaginative General MacArthur is using large air fleets. Hundreds of Liberator and Mitchell bombers poured 350 tons of bombs on Rabaul, leaving that important Japanese supply depot for their entire Southwest Pacific front, smoking in ruins.

After Rabaul, General MacArthur's bombers trained their sights on remaining Jap air bases in the Solomons, and with U. S. fighters, attacked the main airdromes from which the enemy has been raiding Allied posts to the south.

Southwest China Periled

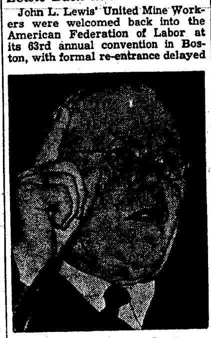
Trying to seal off the back door of China, three strong Japanese columns drove toward Yunnan province's capital of Kunming.

The Japs attacked along the Burma road, which leads into China at the point of the enemy's new attack. Chinese forces bitterly resisted the Japs' drive, with the aid of the 14th U. S. air force, which pounded the invaders' gas and oil dumps and military installations.

With the Japs dominating much of the eastern coast of China, key to the entrance of the country lies in the southwestern section, known as Yunnan province. This section assumes important significance with talk of Allied plans of driving into China from Burma.

LABOR:
Lewis Back in AFL

John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers were welcomed back into the American Federation of Labor at its 63rd annual convention in Boston, with formal re-entrance delayed until settlement of disputes between certain AFL unions and the UMW's District 50, which organized in their fields.



William Green: For Lewis.

Once ridiculed by Lewis as an "Old Lady," AFL President William Green swallowed his pride and, pleading for unity in labor, led the fight for the UMW's re-admission against opposition from the floor of the convention, mustered by the Progressive Miners Union, which stayed in the AFL when the UMW bolted it in 1935.

Re-entrance of Lewis' 700,000 miners into the AFL will boost the organization's total membership well over the seven-million mark.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

BASEBALL: It is reasonably certain that major league baseball will continue to be played in the 1944 season, club presidents agree. There are between 30 and 40 players in the two leagues who have been rejected by the armed forces on physical grounds, and several others are over 38. With this nucleus, it is expected that satisfactory teams can be organized.

CHECKS: A million checks every working day, or 300 million a year, will soon be the rate of issue of the federal government, according to W. A. Julian, treasurer of the government. He explained that payments to families of service men account for the huge number of small checks. Expenditures are now running around seven and a half billion dollars a month, he said.

Destruction of Hamburg

By Walter Taub

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

Four hundred refugees from Hamburg are now in Sweden, eyewitnesses of the greatest havoc that ever smote any human settlement. The first attack on Hamburg was delivered on the night of July 24. The attack was concentrated against anti-aircraft batteries, with excellent results. Most of the batteries were silenced in a few minutes.

Then, say these eyewitnesses, came an absolute novelty in the history of bombing—bearing witness to the scientific care devoted to planning the attack. Special reconnaissance planes appeared over the city, picking out certain industrially important sections with green flares dropped by parachutes.

These flares hovered like bunches of grapes in the air and aided the bombers coming in afterward to drop their explosives in a square around the section thus marked, so that buildings for whole blocks collapsed and all roads and communications between that section and the remainder of the city were choked off.

This was not done to prevent the inhabitants from getting out, but to hinder the transfer of firemen and fire-fighting apparatus from other sections in the effort to save war-important buildings and their contents.

When communications were thus closed, there began a rain of incendiaries that spread fires over such a large area that practically the whole section was drowned in flames. The work of air defense on this and the following nights was enormously hampered by this simple but effective means which, as far as I know, was applied here for the first time.

'Dazzling Paper' Dropped.

Mrs. Anna Johansson, a refugee in Malmoe, refers also to "sheets of paper, black on one side and dazzling silver on the other, dropped by thousands from the bombers." Twenty-five other Hamburg Swedes attest to the correctness of her statement. Air-defense searchlight beams were reflected all ways from these sheets, thus being prevented from reaching the raiding aircraft with full intensity and making the job of locating them much more difficult.

The first assault was directed at the inner town. The free port, covering an area of more than 3,500 acres, naturally was not spared during this 90-minute attack, but not until the next raid on Sunday, a day raid, was the most devastating blow directed at this pride of Hamburg.

That Sunday, Hamburg displayed an unusual appearance. Even in the forenoon, giant clouds of smoke and dust enveloped the whole town, darkening the sky.

Then the sirens screamed, and a big formation of American bombers reduced to ashes the continent's biggest shipyards.

These were the plants of Blohm and Voss, Vulkanwerft and Howaldswerft—where the biggest steamers are built, repaired and docked.

Monday night, during the fresh British attack, the big gas plant in the harbor section received a direct hit. That terrible explosion deprived the city of gas.

RAF Keeps Promise.

That evening, none among Hamburg's 1,700,000 inhabitants was willing to retire to bed, for the RAF had dropped leaflets promising a repetition of Sunday's raid on Tuesday. Hamburgers, from whom Hitler was once compelled to admit he had received the most "no" votes, always listen to the British radio and they know, therefore, that "the British keep their promises."

On Tuesday morning at 11:30, the few remaining sirens screamed. The attack began at 12:30. The raid lasted only half an hour, but it sufficed to convert Hamburg into a veritable sea of fire. With the central mains destroyed, hundreds of thousands of those leaving the shelters would have given a fortune for a glass of water. The heat was unbearable, in a wind storm like a typhoon. The giant bonfire resulted in a rapid consumption of oxygen. Terrible fire storms resulted in areas where a few minutes earlier complete calm had prevailed.

Wednesday morning, the city like a mass of fire lay in ruins and ashes. Sections housing 300,000 people were razed to the ground.

The main railroad station, Saint Georg, was a terrible sight on Wednesday, with charred railroad cars on sidings and unrecognizably smashed automobiles.

A Swedish girl saw people blazing from phosphorus cast themselves into water—but the phosphorus burned there equally well. Lime was strewn on the corpses scattered about the streets, and the odor of death lay heavy over the whole town.

Refugees Unwelcome.

Why is it people don't decide to leave town earlier when bombings are announced well in advance? A number of formalities are necessary, and the refugees are badly received at their destinations. They feel themselves strangers and are treated like strangers.

The frightened refugees, when evacuated, often have no baggage. Their unwilling hosts contemptuously called them the "nightshirt brigade." They carry their own terror to new homes. The inner front of Germany has started to sway.

Soldier Benedicts

One-third of the men in the U. S. army today are married.

Do you know the new regulations on packages sent to men in the service? Here they are: You can send packages to soldiers anywhere in the U. S., although there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men; and you can send packages to men in the Navy, Coast Guard, and Marines, wherever they are. And when you send that package from home, remember—the gift men in the service always appreciate is cigarettes. And the favorite with men in the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, and Marines is Camel (based on actual sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens). So stop in at your local dealer today—and mail him a carton of Camels.—Adv.

Relief At Last For Your Cough
Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.
CREOMULSION

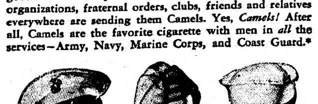
IF YOUR DEALER IS OCCASIONALLY OUT OF CAMELS
—it's because hundreds of millions of Camel cigarettes are now being sent to men in the service. In addition to the government's own purchases for our fighting men, veterans' organizations, fraternal orders, clubs, friends and relatives everywhere are sending them Camels. Yes, Camels! After all, Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in all the services—Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard.*



First in the Service
—AND THE SERVICE COMES FIRST!
WHILE we have pushed Camel's production to new peaks to meet this overwhelming demand from Uncle Sam's fighting men and from the folks at home, yet if your dealer does not always have Camels for you, he asks you to be patient while he is temporarily out of them, believing you will agree that the men in the service should come first.

Congress Is Awake

Newspaper war-maps in each successive edition show the United States and her allies closer to victory. Pardonable pride expands the chest of every patriotic American. But there is even better news: Our own national freedoms for which the choicest men of this nation are fighting seem less in danger than for many months. Congress, the legal and traditional custodian of national welfare, is wide awake.

Useless, non-defense, federal bureaus are falling before congressional fire. The old WPA and the CCC are gone. The NYA has the rest of this year and what's left of $3,000,000 to liquidate, and lo, an ominous silence has fallen over the AAA. No longer are its employees openly planting sentiment in the farm states to influence Congress. A House sub-committee stopped that.

A Wholesome Sign

A most heartening piece of news broke on Capitol Hill in the early days of July. The Senate Committee on Post-War Planning headed by Sen. Walter F. George of Georgia launched an investigation of restraints placed on business, to forecast their probable effect on the nation's shift from a war-time to a peace-time economy. The job is in good hands.

My confidence in Senator George is enormous. He has been called the greatest intellect in the Senate. I believe he wants to steer America back to permanent prosperity such as is possible only under the Private Enterprise system, and I believe he knows how. It will not likely take his committee long to foretell calamities that will result if today's restraints on the petroleum industry are continued.

OPA On Defensive

Rep. Wesley E. Disney of Oklahoma quoted some figures to the House of Representatives on July 8 which made the oil industry's restraints clearly understandable. "The nation is rapidly approaching a man-made oil shortage," he said. Then he declared that only one agency remains complacent in the face of grave public concern; only the OPA opposes the idea that America should safeguard its oil supply by maintaining prices in keeping with the cost of obtaining supply.

A serious oil shortage, even though it came after the complete defeat of America's enemies, would be the next worse thing to losing the war. With automobile factories and oil refineries idle, with automotive and tire service dead, with highway traffic practically paralyzed, what would America be? With four major industries shackled, how could 30 million jobless war workers and service men be put to work? In an oil famine are fertile seeds of revolution, and this nation (not just Oklahoma) may thank Disney for his good work. Depending on imported oil has too many obvious disadvantages for consideration.

Too Many Cooks

That homely proverb, "Many cooks spoil the broth," might serve as a terse review of a masterful 41-page report (Senate Document No. 66) off the press June 18. It has to do with Federal Personnel; prepared by the Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures of which Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia is chairman. This committee's activities to the end that representative, constitutional government shall not perish from the earth are reassuring to every American who loves his country.

The Byrd Committee recommends bluntly in Document No. 66 that all departments and agencies of the federal government promptly reduce personnel by 300,000 persons. It sounds like a lot. It's the equivalent of ten army divisions, but it is only 10 percent of the federal government's 3,000,000 civilian employees, more than half of whom don't have anything to do with the war effort. These government-paid civilians amount to one for every 45 other civilians in the country—one federal employee for every eleven families in the United States! Income taxpayers' hats off to Byrd.

Long Range View

Rep. Hatton W. Sumners, chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House, recently proposed two amendments to the United States Constitution. One would remove the two-third majority requirement for passing a law over the President's veto. The other would prohibit appointing any member of Congress to office during the term for which he was elected, and for two years thereafter. The calm Texan offered one more of his rich contributions to the cause of Democracy.

What the people's representatives have done recently, giving the nation cause to rejoice, is not a story to be told in a 20-inch column; these are only a few examples. Some say that Berlin laughs and London shudders when our Congress opposes the Executive Department, friend and foe both calling it "the weakness of democracy." There is a short answer for that one: Congress makes our government a democracy and it's up to Congress to keep it so. May the democratic mule continue to kick at every autocratic shadow that falls across his path, whether at home or abroad.

WHERE WILL YOU MARKET YOUR TURKEYS?

TURKEYS, like all other foods, are in such demand that selling is no problem today. But it was yesterday and will be tomorrow, as all thinking farmers know.

THE LAND O'LAKES turkey pool has a long record of fair prices, a reputation for financial soundness, and Land O' Lakes advertised turkeys are always in great demand in the largest markets in America.

BUT THE BIGGEST ADVANTAGE of marketing your birds through the Land O'Lakes turkey pool is the opportunity to participate in the patron's equities . . a PLUS over and above the regular market price.

BUT THIS POOL is only one of the many diversified Land O' Lakes operations. You and your cooperative organization should investigate ALL the advantages of a marketing membership in Land O' Lakes.

Weed Cutting Notice

Notice is hereby given that all land owners and renters in Holt Township cut the weeds along the roads adjacent to their lands at once. This was voted on and carried at the last township election that this should be enforced or the weeds would be cut and the cost of the work charged against the taxes of the parcels of land along which the weeds had to be cut.

Enlist In The SRU

Enlistments in a Ship Repair Unit of the United States Navy started November 1 by the Grand Forks Navy recruiting station according to A. L. Rognes recruiter in charge. The setup is similar to that of the Navy Seabees for which recruiting was closed last week.

The new SRU will be under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Ships whereas the Seabees was under the Yards and Docks bureau. Duties of enlistees will be to repair and rebuild ships damaged in action. They will work in this country and abroad at large Naval bases.

Opportunities are offered for instrument men, watch repair men, typewriter repair men and other skilled ratings for men 18 to 50. Ratings are generally higher; with qualifications in proporation.

Pay for ratings will be the same as for Seabees. Complete information is available at the Navy recruiting office, second floor of the Post Office in Grand Forks or at Elks clubs who are assisting the Navy's recruiting programs.

Farmers Make Good

Though beset by shortages of help and machinery, with less favorable growing conditions than last year, Minnesota farmers have harvested greater areas during 1943 than in 1942 and increased production of many vital food items, Governor Edward J. Thye said in a speech paying tribute to contributions of Minnesota citizens to the war effort.

Minnesota farms produced more than 235,000,000 bushels of corn in 1943, or 28,000,000 more than last year, the Governor said. The total pig crop should run well over 8,000,000 pigs, a substantial gain over last year's 7,500,000. Egg production for 1943 is up 20 per cent, compared with last year, he added; dry bean production, up 100 per cent, and potato production, 5,000,000 bushels higher. In other lines, he said, Minnesota will come close to equalling last year's record prodnction.

Mrs. Fred Larson and Ludvig visited at G. Erickson's Sunday.

Gilbert and John Erickson made a trip to Fargo last week.

The Nazareth Ladies Aid Sale was well attended last Thursday with the proceeds of the sale of articles and lunch amounting to $302.85.

Odd Wedding Costumes

Weddings among the Maori natives of New Zealand are a lot of fuss and feathers, principally feathers. The bride and bridegroom look like huge birds with human heads when they are decked out to "plight their troth." The man's garb is made of kiwi, pigeon and parrot feathers; the girl's entirely of kiwi feathers.

Just in case anyone objects to the union, the bridegroom totes as a weapon a pole of hard wood, decorated with a carved head and wild dogs' hair.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

To maintain the nation's essential motor transportation system, the American rubber tire industry will be called upon to make 30 million synthetic passenger car tires in 1944. The synthetic rubber program is being geared to permit such an output without hindering the military needs for rubber.

More than 65 per cent of the war materials reaching factories in Michigan travel on rubber-tired trucks, and 67 per cent of the finished products move out by truck. Proof that our national economy is closely bound with rubber.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made especially for women to help relieve periodic pain with its weak, tired, nervous, blue feelings—due to functional monthly disturbances.
Taken regularly—Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such symptoms. Here is a product that helps nature and that's the kind to buy! Famous for almost a century. Thousands upon thousands of women have reported benefits. Follow label directions. Worth trying!
LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

From an old French word "mes" derived from the Latin word "missus" meaning a course at a meal, comes the Army's name "mess" for its breakfast, dinner and supper. Favorite meal with the soldier is chicken dinner—his favorite cigarette, Camel. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) A carton of Camels, by the way, is a gift that's always welcome. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Kidneys Must Work Well—
For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Smart Wool Dress

WHEN the mornings turn brisk it is time to think of a smart wool dress. Today we are showing a design which is generally first choice for this new season's dress—it is right for all materials, all figures.

* * *

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1757-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20; 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 14 (32) with short sleeves, requires 3⅛ yards 39-inch material.

Circle Yoked Frock

"TOO cunning for words" is the way you'll feel about this circle yoked frock, once it is made up and on your small daughter! Be sure to add the ric-rac perky bow and all, as a finishing touch!

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1867 is designed for sizes 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. Size 2 dress, 1¾ yards 35 or 39-inch material, panties ⅝ yard, 3½ yards ric-rac to trim.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Those extra unused paper doilies will stay clean and wrinkle-proof if rolled up and placed inside a mailing tube. Tie paper or cloth over each end.

* * *

Save all old leather from high-top shoes for mending leather gloves, mittens, overshoes. It is soft and pliable.

* * *

Dates filled with cheese, nuts or peanut butter make a good sweet to top off lunch. Serve them with crackers.

* * *

Do not allow cover crops in the vegetable garden to attain too much top growth before digging under, as then decomposition is often very slow.

* * *

Keep a dishpan of warm soapy water handy when cooking and wash each pan as you empty it. You will cut actual dishwashing time in half as the utensils are much easier to wash if done immediately before foods have had an opportunity to dry on them.

Best-Known For Externally Relieving Miseries of Baby's Colds

Mothers, when a young child catches cold—be modern—and relieve distress without dosing, without upsetting the stomach. At bedtime rub Vicks VapoRub on the throat, chest and back. It is what most young mothers do because VapoRub works direct two ways at once—and keeps on working for hours to bring relief—to ease coughing—relieve muscular soreness or tightness—and invite restful, comforting sleep. Often by morning most of the misery of the cold is gone! Try it tonight.

When you see how VapoRub relieves distress of children's colds you should understand why it is the best-known home remedy of its kind in the world. It's just as good for grown-ups, too. Time-tested VICKS VAPORUB

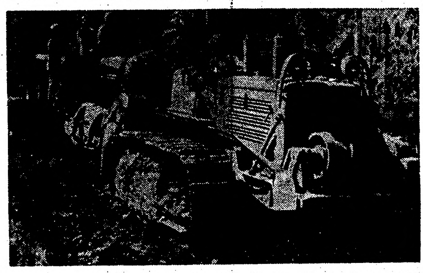
Muddy Terrain Slows Drive in Italy As Nazis Strengthen Mountain Posts; Germany Rushes Troops to Bolster Broken Defense Lines on Red Front

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



Marines are shown hauling 155 mm. rifle through mud to new position on tropical Rendova island in the central Solomons. Known as "Long Toms," these 155 mm. field pieces soon went to work to hurl shells into Jap posts seven miles away.

ITALY:
New Difficulties

To add to the Allies' difficulties in Italy, heavy rain has slogged the countryside, and new burdens have been imposed on the lines of communication bringing supplies to the front.

Because of the inability of motor vehicles to operate over the muddy and mountainous terrain, the Allies are relying increasingly on horses, burros and mules. But they are finding it hard to obtain them since the Germans took most of these animals out of southern Italy or shot those they could not take, and the Fighting French have been unwilling to give up the horses, etc., they have in North Africa for fear of breaking up their mounted units.

Encouraged by Allied difficulties, Nazi Marshal Kesselring reportedly has reinforced his army fighting a dogged delaying action in the rugged country. After retreating from the Volturno river line, the Germans took up positions on the 2,500-foot-high Massico ridge, where they were expected to make another stand before dropping back to the mountains farther north.

Try to Maintain Morale

On October 17, 1918, Germany's General Eric Ludendorff declared: "The tension of the individual man has reached a degree which cannot be increased."

Not long after Germany cracked under the strain, and steely, dynamic General Ludendorff fell apart with the rest. Today, Germany's Hitler, Goebbels and Goering remember 1918, and the Nazis are working feverishly to hold up the people's morale against the Allies' shattering air attacks.

Hitler has ordered the construction of underground concrete hospitals in battle zones, as well as first aid posts and auxiliary hospitals in the cellars of the most solid buildings. Newspapers are carrying on a concerted campaign to educate the people in treatment of eye injuries caused by the heat, smoke, dust, glass-splinters and phosphorus clouds generated by bombing raids.

HOME FRONT:
FDR Meets Labor Leaders

Answering labor's complaint against the stabilization of wages in the face of 5 per cent increase in the cost of living since last year, President Roosevelt promised AFL and CIO leaders that the retail prices would be rolled back through producers' or processors' subsidies.

FDR met with the labor leaders even as there were rumblings of discontent among the railway unions over wage raises. The non-operating railway union was kicking because Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson had set aside an eight-cents-an-hour pay boost recommended by a government mediation board, while the operating railway unions claimed they were "insulted" by another mediation panel's award of a four-cents-an-hour increase after they had asked for three dollars a day.

In hearings before the War Labor board, Alabama and eastern coal operators objected to a new contract between Illinois operators and the United Mine Workers, which would boost daily wages between $1.50 and $1.75 by increasing the working day to 8½ hours, including all travel time to and from the pits.

RUSSIA:
Nazis' 'Darkest Hour'

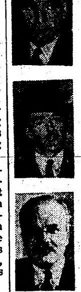
As Russian troops poured across the Dnieper river and promised to trap 1,000,000 German soldiers from the rear, word came from Berlin that the Nazis admitted they faced their darkest hour.

Upon the shoulders of Hitler's army fell the gigantic task of blunting the Russian drive before it could roll southward across the southern Ukraine's broad plains and trap the Germans from behind while they held the line against other Red forces attacking from the front.

As the German lines sagged, the Nazis were reported rushing thousands of troops from the Crimea, immediately to the south. In Melitopol, German and Russian soldiers fought in the streets of the ruined city, with enemy machine gunners operating from charred buildings to delay the Reds' advance.

Both sides sustained heavy losses in men and materiel.

Big Three Meet



(Top to bottom) Hull, Eden Molotov

Behind the high walls of Russia's forbidding Kremlin, U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden and Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov started conferences designed to bring their countries closer together in the military, political and economic fields.

While Molotov was expected to raise the issue of the U. S. and Britain opening a second front in western Europe to draw off some of the 200 German divisions facing Russia in the east, it was said Hull and Eden would attempt to persuade the Reds to reconsider their demands for postwar annexation of the Baltic states and parts of Poland, Rumania and Finland.

As the conferees met, it was announced the U. S., Britain and Canada had entered into a new lend-lease agreement with Russia, promising her additional food and military supplies this winter.

48-HOUR WEEK:
For More Production

To meet the demand for record production, the War Manpower commission ordered 71 different areas to go on a 48 hour week, and advised 112 others to prepare to shift to the longer work period.

To make up for the shortage of manpower, the WMC determined on the 48 hour week to get more production per person. Previously, the 48 hour week had been in effect in 40 out of 71 areas where the WMC had declared a labor scarcity existed. Now, the remaining 31 areas must go on the longer week.

In the other 112 areas, the WMC saw the possibility of a labor shortage. If such a shortage impends, preparations will be made to meet it before it occurs to interfere with production.

The 48-hour week already has been instituted in such industries as logging, non-ferrous mining and smelting, and iron and steel.

TELEGRAPH: Because of its merger with the Postal Telegraph company, the Western Union Telegraph company is closing 1,800 offices.

SURGERY: A new "thread" for suturing arm and leg nerves and for other delicate operations, is being used by army surgeons. The "thread" is extremely fine wire, almost invisible to the naked eye. It is made of tantalum, a rare metal. Surgeons say one of the advantages of tantalum wire sutures is that they can be observed by X-ray during the healing process.

Fair Play

Farmers of the United States are bearing the brunt of this war. Examples of unselfish patriotism can be found in all walks of life but the agricultural industry this year is offering double portions of sacrifice.

Along with other patriots the farmer contributes freely of his sons and his substance, but he goes further. Almost unaided he is holding the line against inflation and deserves assurance of better times.

Farmers have the best market this year that most of them ever saw but farm income is sagging conspicuously out of line. Government, through the Office of Price Administration, is holding farm prices down in the face of a labor shortage and scarcity of tools. Let's review some modern history briefly:

Memories of 1932

For the benefit of persons under 25 years old, on whom life's responsibilities rested but lightly in 1932, it was a poor year, especially for farmers. Herbert Hoover was president. Kidnapping news dominated the headlines. "Bring beer back" was the big political issue and automobile horns came out playing "How Dry I Am." Men had fights over places in lines where free meals were served and farm income reached "bottom." It had come down by a rough path from the peak of World War I.

The unfair ratio is easy to see by comparing farm earnings with wages of factory workers. During the war with Kaiser Bill, farmers earned 80% as much as laborers in industry; while the average worker was earning $5 the farmer had been able to earn $4 and didn't complain. But in 1932 the average farmer got only $1 while the laborer earned $5, and farmers did complain. They had cause.

Walls Were Heard

Agriculture's sad plight in the ten years just before World War II almost cost the United States her Free Enterprise system, a risk to be shunned forever. Braintrusters, wise and otherwise, set about to coax prosperity back to the farm. The motive was good but the plans were varied and visionary. Some that reached the stage of actual try-out were worse than useless.

There is no doubt whatever in my mind that another ten years of hand-to-mouth existence on the farm would ruin this country. America's most important task, next to winning the war, is making arrangements for farm prosperity to start with peace. Please remember I said "arrangements." Plans will have to work this time. Crackpottery is out. There is a way to get farm prosperity and it is no secret.

Price Parity Rot

In the Decade of the Braintrusters "price parity" was invented. It meant that farmers ought to be able any time to buy as much with the price of their crops as they did just before World War I. Parity was a wishing-bone with no meat on it. By plowing under young crops and paying shiftless people to let fields go to weeds, government finagled $2 to farmers for every $5 earned by industrial workers. But parity never came until 1942. War brought it, not boondoggling.

Farmers today are getting about 60% as much as industrial workers—$3 to $5. Farmers earned an average of $1,100 last year. If that's parity it is the same average income that industrial workers found too little to live on, back in cheap 1935. Study of the past proves one thing: War improves farm incomes. Something happens in war years that booms farm markets. Whatever the secret of farm income was in 1918 and 1942 is what farmers need in peaceful years.

Quantities Count

Farmers prosper when they grow all they can and sell it at fair prices on a ready market. It happens in war-time, but why? Is it because there is an Army and Navy to feed? Certainly not! These young men didn't just begin eating as they entered the service; our farmers have always fed these defenders. Moreover servicemen make up only about 4% of our population and eat only 6% of farm output.

Then what does make this demand? Is it Lend-Lease? Some people think so but they are wrong. Only about 6% of America's farm production moves that way. Our servicemen and our allies combined use just a little more food than we used to export; 10% before the war. The answer will be found near the smoke-stacks of America. War has put 10 million more workers in industry and raised their pay 60%. Farm prosperity results from industrial employment at good pay.

When a factory worker earns $1,000 a year he spends about $300 of it to feed his family, buying low-priced, bulky food. When his earnings reach $2,000 a year his grocery bill is nearer $600. His family eats better food, more costly things, and maybe a little more of it. That's when the farmer prospers. And peace-time farm prosperity depends on two things: (1) Unrestricted prices and (2) industrial activity; full employment at good wages. Not on Government subsidies, and not on scarcities, created by destroyed production.

Holt School Notes

First, Second, Third

We had our Hallowe'en party on Friday. We enjoyed the program in Miss Lee's room very much. The boys and girls were dressed in Halloween costumes and marched thru Mr. Meyers room. Gary Meyer and LaRue Fricker were chosen as the funniest dressed boy and girl. Our guests were Mrs. L. Swendby, Sharon Wegge, Danny Meyer, Donny Peterson, Marlene Larson, Lavern Reierson, Leon Horien and Roselie Luoto.

The first graders are reading in their Pre Primer books Dick and Jane

The following had perfect attendance for the 1st six weeks: Janice Fluke, Ione Larson, LaRue Fricker, Marlene Holst, Arlene Horien, Norma Horien, Carol Reieeson.

Arlene Horien was chosen Room Leader for November.

Marlene Holst and Sylvia Luota had 100 in Spelling Friday.

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

We had perfect attendance in our last week.

Last Friday we enjoyed our Halloween party. We wore masks which we had made in art class. George Fricker and Ruth Larson were dressed the funniest.

Our perfect papers in spelling last week were written by Betty Ness, Robert Johnson, Dorothy Sagstuen, Vernon Reierson, George Fricker and Gloria Johnson.

We were especially interested in the movie last Friday which showed two ways of mining salt. The United States has six of the seven salt mines in the world.

Seventh, Eighth

Jerome Horien built a model electric motor last week. The boys have been having fun experimenting with it and watching it run.

A special Christmas Seal drive program will be given at the school on Monday evening, Nov. 15. Details of this program will appear in the next issue of this paper.

The High School Business Training class is held in our room now between 3:30 and 4:45.

The film scheduled for this week is "Explosive Engineer"

Mae Fluke finished sewing a Mexican design on a dish towel this week and Eleanor Grondahl sewed a luncheon cloth in similar design.

Victory Scrap Bank

In order to get out a carload of scrap for the October scrap drive, we will pay $10 a ton for the heavy scrap. Bring it in.

WHY ISN'T THERE ENOUGH BUTTER?

THAT WAS THE HEADING of a page ad run by Land O' Lakes recently in Washington and other Eastern Markets, and called to the attention of our national representatives and Senators.

THE REASONS, as outlined by the ad, included the following: (1) production decrease — due to official lack of understanding, rather than poor farming management; (2) Government storage holdings; (3) increased buying power in America; (4) unequal distribution because butter is not rationed seperately . . . like sugar; and (5) lack of price or rationing control on fluid cream used in making butter.

THOUSANDS of grocers, other milk and butter companies, and national figures have praised Land O' Lakes for its efforts—as typified by this ad—in explaining the butter shortage to the public and advocating the logical methods that the Government should take to help the situation.

THIS LEADERSHIP not only for the good of the Northwest dairy farmers, but for the entire industry is but another reason why YOU should investigate the many advantages of a marketing membership in Land O' Lakes.

Over the Top In Fund Drive

Eight Minnesota counties have gone over the top in the Minnesota War Service Fund campaign and the drive itself has reached 39 percent of the out-state quota, J. Cameron Thomson, the state chairman of the Fund, reported.

Second progress report to be issued from state headquarters showed a total of $429,709 subscribed in 85 counties where $1,100,000 is being sought for the 17-war-related agencies in the War Service Fund.

As a stimulus for the campaign throughout the state, county chairmen Wednesday had the knowledge that Duluth, with a War Service Fund quota of $100,000 had gone over the top; that Minneapolis and Hennepin county with a quota of $75,000 were almost to the top; and that St. Paul and Ramsey county with a quota of $450,000 were half way.

The eight counties over the top are: Becker, Douglas, Grant, Clearwater, Martin, Olmstead, Rock and Marshall.

Rev. and Mrs. Karsten Kristenson of Pembina, N. Dak. and Anna Listug of Roseau were over-night guests at the Harold Nohre home Saturday nite.

The Weather

So far we have been lucky here this fall in drawing nice weather. Most of the other parts of the state has had snow storms. The Twin Cities and area had a heavy storm Sunday which piled the snow in drifts five feet high in Minneapolis.

This storm which raged on till Monday afternoon caused several deaths from cars and trucks that crashed head-on or ditched, by trains hitting cars and pedestrians being hit. Thousands of dollars worth of damage was done to telephone and telepraph system when the wet snow piled high on wires that snapped poles and cables as they were swung hard by heavy winds.

Jerome Horien, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Horien, fractured and dislocated the elbow on his left arm while playing on the school grounds on Tuesday afternoon. He was taken to Thief River Falls for medical care and according to the X-ray pictures, the physician premised full and complete recovery.

Mrs. Lyle Gilbertson left by bus on Tuesday for Marysville, California to join her husband who is in the Armed forces in a camp near there.

Mrs. Walter Wegge attended the Farmes Union state convention at Alexandria last week as a delegate from the Holt Local.

Fairmont Farmer Acquitted

Arshur Stade, wealthy 43-year old Fairmont, Minnesota farmer, who was in court 11 days fighting the charges that he shot his wife last spring, was acquitted last Friday when a jury of 11 men and a woman brought in a Not Guilty verdict in his case.

Rumors have it that his attorney had $20,000 fee for fighting the heavy court case.

A wedding reception was held at the Nazareth Lutheran church parlors on Wednesday for Mr. and Mrs. Loren Swenson. The newlyweds received many beautiful gifts from their many friends and relatives who attended the occasion.

Mrs. Hjalmer Peterson returned home on Tuesday evening from the St. Lukes hospital at Thief River Falls where she had spent several days taking medical treatments.

Mrs. Herman Peterson returned home Wednesday from the hospital at Thief River Falls where she had undergone medical care.

Supt. and Mrs. A. E. Nelson were enteriained by Rev. and Mrs. Hanson on Saturday eve.

Friends and relatives of Pfc. and Mrs. Kenneth Larson gave them a wedding reception last Thursday evening at the Nazareth Lutheran church parlors.

DECIDEDLY CHEAP !

SOMETIMES IT'S A COMPLIMENT TO BE CALLED CHEAP

With prices going up and up, "cheap" is a rare word these days. Yet in spite of the rapid rise in the cost of living, the price of electricity has remained the same—it's still CHEAP.

Even though the costs of coal, equipment, taxes and service have risen, experienced business management has made it possible for you to receive good electric service at the same low pre-war prices, and this Company is doing everything possible to see that these prices remain low.

So the next time you receive your electric bill, compare it with the cost of other commodities and services. Then you'll see why Reddy Kilowatt, your electrical servant, considers it a compliment to be called cheap.

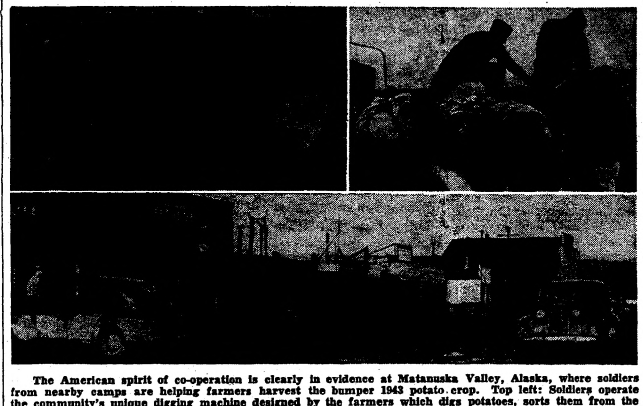
Marines Celebrate 168th Birthday—Fighting

"In the air, on land, and sea" the men of the United States marine corps are fighting at America's battlefronts over the world as they celebrate their 168th birthday. Left: On Guadalcanal marine artillery experts shell a Japanese position. Their weapon is a 75-mm. pack howitzer, a favorite with marines because of its mobility. Center: Lieut. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, the highest ranking officer ever to command the marines. He served in much of the heavy fighting of World War I. Right: On a lonely hill overlooking one of the numerous Alaskan inlets, a marine machine gun crew is on the alert for any attempted landing by enemy troops.

'Khaki Farmers' Help Gather Matanuska Harvest



The American spirit of co-operation is clearly in evidence at Matanuska Valley, Alaska, where soldiers from nearby camps are helping farmers harvest the bumper 1943 potato crop. Top left: Soldiers operate the community's unique digging machine designed by the farmers which digs potatoes, sorts them from the dirt, and drops the spuds in sacks. Top right: Two soldiers aid a farmer load sacks of potatoes onto his truck. Bottom: Nestled in the valley is the town of Palmer. Its main street is pictured here.

Here's Gift for One Who Reads in Bed

THIS bag was planned as a gift for someone who was finding days in bed difficult enough without having books, magazines and writing materials scattered about.

The bag shown here was made of a remnant of heavy cotton upholstery materials in tones of green with a touch of red in the pattern. The red was repeated in the sateen lining. The sketch gives all the dimensions and shows how the lining and the outside part were made. A coat hanger was cut down to measure 12 inches from end to end and was placed between the lining and the outside; these being stitched together around the top, as illustrated.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Ceylon, Africa and tropical America are expected to provide the U. S. with 54,000 long tons of crude rubber during 1943. In 1939, it is estimated, 499,473 long tons of crude were imported by this country.

Para, Brazil, was the first great rubber center. Founded in 1615, it became an important port for foreign trade about 1775. A hundred years later it was the rubber capital of the world.

Rubber obtained from a native wild vine in the Belgian Congo made Leopold II of Belgium wealthy during the 1890-1910 period. Plantation rubber development killed the Congo vine boom.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allies Prepare Heavy Blows in Italy; Jugo-Slav Guerrillas Threaten Nazis Despite Outbreaks of Factional War; New Cattle Subsidy Plan Is Announced

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Riding in jeep, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower (left) and Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark pause during front line tour to chat with British soldiers on Bren gun carrier.

EUROPE:
Prepare Attack in Italy

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army edged into position for a grand assault upon the Germans' new defenses along the 2,500-foot high Massico ridge in southern Italy, while the Nazis prepared to meet the charge by massing artillery and mortars on the front.

On the Adriatic side of the battleline to the east, Gen. Bernard Montgomery's Eighth army also drew up into position for the next big blow by crossing the short Trigno river at several points.

Meanwhile there were indications that the Germans might be planning a strong counter-offensive of their own somewhere in central Italy. Allied reconnaissance reported the steady flow of Nazi troops and materiel from the north toward the battle zone. No such counter-offensive was expected, however, unless the Germans' defense weakened Allied attackers and drew them into open country where Tank Specialist Erwin Rommel could maneuver armor.

Nazis Fight Guerrillas

Pesky guerrilla activity in Jugo-Slavia commanded the attention of the Germans, with Marshal Rommel dispatching strong mechanized forces to quell the armed bands disrupting communications and destroying industrial plants.

But the effectiveness of Jugo-Slav guerrillas was threatened by another outbreak of factional dissension between the forces of King Peter's government and the new so-called "freedom army" of Tito Broz, which fought independently.

While the two political organizations reportedly have been harassing the Germans from one end of Jugoslavia to the other, they also have been accusing one another of collaborating with the Nazis. Broz' faction sentenced 17 persons to death for such collaboration, including a former Jugo-Slav general.

In attempting to wipe out the two guerrilla armies, the German armored columns drove into the hilly country to which Jugo-Slav riflemen retire for cover.

TAXES:
Plan 2 Billion More

Opposed to any form of sales tax, the house ways and means committee was prepared to report a new tax bill for congressional approval, yielding only two billion dollars of revenue instead of the 10½ billion dollars asked by the treasury.

Of the two billion dollars, 600 million would be raised by new liquor taxes. Levies on spirits would be boosted to $10 a gallon, on beer to $8 per barrel, and on wine from five cents to $1 a gallon.

Other revenue would be obtained by increasing postal rates to three cents on local mail, air-mail to 10 cents an ounce, money orders 10 to 37 cents, insured mail 10 to 70 cents, and COD mail 24 cents to $2.40. General admissions would be raised to three cents for every 10 cents; electric light bulbs and tubes would be taxed to 15 per cent of the retail price, and there would be a levy of 20 per cent of the charge on bowling, and $20 per billiard table.

If a sales tax were enacted, the CIO had warned that it would demand wage increases to cover additional purchase costs.

CATTLE:
New Subsidy

To stabilize livestock prices at present market levels, the government announced a new subsidy plan for processors and slaughterers.

Under the program, subsidies of 50 cents will be paid on common cattle selling between $10 and $11 per hundredweight, and for cutter and canner classes ranging from $7.45 to $8.45 per hundredweight.

For good grade cattle selling between $14.25 to $15.25 per hundredweight, a $1.45 subsidy will be paid, while for medium class stock bringing from $12 to $13, a 90 per cent grant will be made. To discourage production of choice to prime beef, a subsidy of $1 will be paid on grades from $15 to $16 per hundredweight.

To slaughterers who do not process by-products, a new subsidy of 80 cents per hundredweight was established. Slaughterers buying cattle below or above the stated prices will have their subsidies reduced by a similar amount.

PACIFIC:
New Blows

While Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney's air force continued pounding Japanese outposts in the Southwest Pacific, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz promised the seizure of islands which would give the U. S. fleet control of the enemy's home waters.

Adm. Nimitz

No sooner had Admiral Nimitz, as commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, made his statement than it was reported that U. S. forces opened a drive on the Japs' last important stronghold of Bougainville in the Solomons by landing on Mono island to the south of the big base.

Gen. Kenney

Aiming at feeder points which have been supplying Jap positions in the Southwest Pacific, Lieutenant General Kenney's airmen have pulverized such strategic shipping centers as Rabaul on New Britain island, on which 500 tons of bombs were dumped in a five-day period.

PAY BOOST:
Offered Miners

With 48,000 miners out on wildcat strikes, the United Mine Workers policy committee was summoned to meet for consideration of the War Labor board's proposal for granting the nation's 550,000 miners a $1.12½ daily wage boost.

The WLB's proposal differed from the contract drawn between the Illinois Coal Operators and the UMW under which the miners would receive a $1.50 daily pay increase, with compensation for underground travel time.

Acceptance of the WLB proposal would result in wage increases of as much as $10 per week for 46½ hours, it was said, while it was feared rejection would lead to a general mine strike with presidential intervention.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

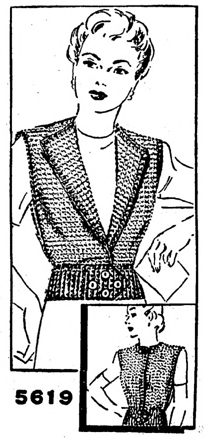
ORE: Low-grade mines producing metals other than iron and copper were ordered closed down by the War Production board. Officials explain that production of several vital metals has outstripped the need. Premium prices to some mine owners were withdrawn, and imports of some ores banned. Hardest hit are "war baby" mines yielding bauxite, lead, chrome and molybdenum.

FRUIT: The air lines will haul fresh fruit in quantity after the war, predicts Sigmund Janas, president of Colonial Airlines. He believes that this swift transportation will eliminate the need of heavy packing and icing.

NORMANDIE: The former French luxury liner, the Normandie, has been completely refitted and turned over to the navy.

For you to make



Large-Sized Vestee

THE older woman sometimes has difficulty in finding instructions to make a smart crocheted sleeveless vestee. This one was especially designed for sizes 38-40 and 42. It is comfortable, well-fitted and can be worn in the house in our winter heat-rationed rooms and is equally comfortable for out-of-door wear under a heavy coat. Make it of wool sport yarn in American Beauty, navy blue, brown or dark green.

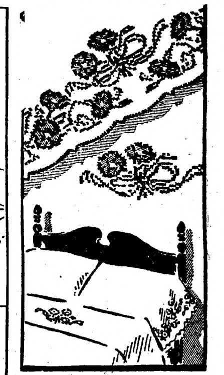
For complete crocheting instructions for the Larger Woman's Vestee (Pattern No. 5619) sizes include 38-40 and 42, send 16 cents in coins, your name and address and the pattern number.

Morning Glory Bed Linens—No. 5502

BUY some pillowcase tubing at the January white sales—embroider this lovely shaded blue and pink morning glory design on them—you'll have a springtime set of bed linens. All done in easy cross stitch.



To obtain transfer designs for two pillowcases and extra design for bedsheet of Morning Glory Cross Stitch (Pattern No. 5502) send 16 cents in coins, your name and address, and the pattern number.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Robot Radio Operator

The lives of many torpedoed seamen may be saved by a new invention.

It is an automatic wireless transmitter. The ship's name and code mark are inscribed on a film, and the vessel's position is inserted on the film as often as conditions demand.

When a vessel is torpedoed or mined, the transmitter comes into action and continues to send out the ship's name as long as the ship remains afloat without the radio operator standing by. The inventor is Captain Espeseth, a Norwegian seaman.

When the soldier talks about "the skipper" he means his captain, the head of his company. And that's just what the title "captain" means. It comes from the Latin word "caput" meaning "head." Another leader high in the Army man's favor is Camel cigarettes—they're first choice with men in the Army. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) When you're sending gifts from home, keep in mind that a carton of cigarettes is always most welcome. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

It's a Threat

If a quick return to good living conditions in America after the war can truly be said to depend on a single commodity, petroleum is that commodity. A post-war oil shortage would be a catastrophe. Automobile manufacturers and dealers are expected to lead the way back to prosperity, but they can't do it with crude oil scarce, even temporarily scarce enough to make gasoline costly or hard to get. An oil famine can be created but it need never come.

How America's war effort depends on petroleum was discussed recently in this column but a post-war oil famine would be equally serious, and it is more probable. For example, it is possible, with vandalous haste, to increase oil yields from known pools. In a war emergency this might be tried, but such methods waste more than they get. If they do postpone an oil famine they make it worse when it comes.

Not Hopeless

Something can be done. If an oil shortage were inevitable there would be no point in dwelling on the subject after the news was told, but an oil famine is avoidable. Facts are lacking to prove that our national economy, in so far as it is based on oil, has to undergo a revolution, now or any time soon. We have good reason to believe that American engineers can keep on designing and building better automobiles, planning and constructing better highways and using them for generations to come.

It was the eminent geologist Ralph Arnold who, in 1914, estimated America's crude oil reserves at six billion barrels. The American Association of Petroleum Geologists raised the guess to nine billion in 1921. The American Petroleum Institute in 1925 ventured that five billion barrels more would be all. The U.S. Geological Survey set the grand total of un-pumped oil at 13 billion barrels in 1934. Now, in 1943, the going estimate is 20 billion barrels to come. Meanwhile America's enormous oil needs have been supplied.

Draping The Crepe

Records show that every so often in the petroleum industry, all the known fields are looked upon as old fields; there are no new pools being developed with freely flowing wells. Such is the case now; known reserves are declining. And always at times like this somebody feels an urge to put on sackcloth and prophesy about how much oil is left. Sometimes they can almost make car owners hear Uncle Sam scraping the bottom of his barrel. Just the same, estimates seem to be getting bigger right along.

"Oil is where you find it." The petroleum industry is 80 years old. Since it started, 50 or 60 billion barrels of oil have been discovered. Experts estimate that the United States will need to find about that much more to meet needs of the next 20 years. Unfortunately, oilmen don't know where more than a third of it is; but they know where to find untold acres of untested land, right in the United States, land that ought to be tested.

Need A Discovery

Finding a new oil field somewhere is necessary, just as it is necessary for a dairyman to add a fresh cow to his herd occasionally to offset the dwindling strippers. We are told that the 20 billion barrels of known oil reserves are enough to last 15 years at the present rate of consumption, but that's no help. It will take perhaps 30 years to get that oil out of the ground, and rushing it would ruin the field.

There is no sane substitute for a new oil field in America's national economy, nothing to take its place in the war effort or in post-war prosperity. But prospecting is costly. By the time an oil man searches jungle and wilderness for a likely spot to make a wildcat test, protecting himself all he can with good engineering advice, buys a lease and drills a hole deep enough to prove what is (or is not) there, he has spent approximately $100,000.

To find a new oil pool it is necessary to drill, so a failure costs as much as a discovery. And failures are much more numerous. Records covering 20 years prior to 1940 show that it took about 600 dry holes a year to find each major oil field. Obviously quite an incentive is necessary to get anybody to take such long chances with such large amounts. That's what's the matter now. Oil is too cheap to tempt prospectors to drill, except close to other oil where their chances are better.

The OPA is holding the crude oil price under 60 percent of normal, although many other prices are up. Oil men say a price boost of 50 cents a barrel (less than 1¼c a gallon) will revive wildcatting; the quickest and surest way to find a new field. The government offers a subsidy instead, which, if accepted, would be another encroachment upon private enterprise. For my part, I'd rather pay a little more for gasoline than weaken further the very foundation of American prosperity, or (as the government suggests) depend on imported oil after the war. Full employment at good wages depends upon exporting, not importing.

Holt School Notes

First, Second, Third

Marlene and Sylvia had 100 in spelling Friday.

The second graders have new books—Adventures with Faces and Places.

We are studying about Indians. We made looms and plan to weave a rug.

Sharon Wegge, Danny Meyer and Donny Peterson visited our room on Friday.

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

Our stamp sale last week was up to $7.65.

The fourth grade has started drawing maps. They think it is hard to get the right shape to them.

Here are some facts that we learn from our "question box" on Friday.

Did you know—

1. That the Statue of Liberty was a gift to the United Stated from France?
2. That books were once written on clay tablets?
3. That the Assyrians gave us the first set of written laws.
4. That the mouth of the Amazon river is 200 miles wide?

That the Star-Spangled Banner was written during the War of 1812?

The following had 100 in spelling last week: Ruth Larson, Betty Ness Evelyn Wegge, Vernon Larson, Vernon Reierson, Gloria Johnson, Amelia Anderson, George Fricker and Dorothy Sagstuen.

Our November news reporter is George Fricker.

Seventh, Eighth

Dale Grondahl was absent Monday.

Friday evening we had our magazine party. We played games and had lunch served to us by the losing team.

The 7th graders have gotten new work books in Geography. We are hoping our Geography texts will be coming soon.

In science the 8th graders have been experimenting with different kinds of soap.

In 7th arithmatic we are learning about angles and how to use protractors.

High School

Members of the honor roll for the first six weeks period are:

Alice Peterson, Myron Sorter, Eleanor Ueland, Violet Erickson, Irvin Larson, Maxine Olson, Margie Ueland, Joyce Movick, and Evelyn Sagstuen. To secure a place on the honor roll a student must have gained nive or more points on a basis of twelve points. Each A secured by the student earns two points and each B earns one point. Marks below B were not counted.

In comparing the total number of six week's marks the Freshmen secured 19.2 points and the Sophomores 16.7 and the Juniors 16 points. A's counted 4 points B's 3 points C's 2 points and D's 1 point. The total number of points for each class was determined and this number was divided by the Class enrollment. Therefore the figures first given indicate the average number of points per pupil in each of the three high school classes.

The losing team in the magazine campaign gave the winning team a party last Friday night. Everyono had a nice time and a delicious lunch was served.

Enlist In The SRU

Enlistments in a Ship Repair Unit of the United States Navy started November 1 by the Grand Forks Navy recruiting station according to A. L. Rognes recruiter in charge. The setup is similar to that of the Navy Seabees for which recruiting was closed last week.

The new SRU will be under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Ships whereas the Seabees was under the Yards and Docks bureau. Duties of enlistees will be to repair and rebuild ships damaged in action. They will work in this country and abroad at large Naval bases.

Opportunities are offered for instrument men, watch repair men, typewriter repair men and other skilled ratings for men 18 to 50. Ratings are generally higher; with qualifications in proporation.

Pay for ratings will be the same as for Seabees. Complete information is available at the Navy recruiting office, second floor of the Post Office in Grand Forks or at Elks clubs who are assisting the Navy's recruiting programs.

Muskrat Trapping Season

Muskrats may be taken only by trappine during the period beginning at 12 o'clock noon on December 1 and ending at 12 o'clock noon on December 31, 1943, in all portions of Minnesota except upon state game refuges, according to an order issued by Chester S. Wilson, Commissioner of Conservation.

The state-wide season on the muskrats is, however, subject to the following restrictions:

No person shall set or use more than 50 traps for muskrats at any one time.

No person shall set, visit, or remove any trap for muskrats between the hours of 9 p. m. and 7 a. m. war time.

No trap shall be set for muskrats within 50 feet of an active beaver house, burrow, den, dam or other abiding place of such beaver.

No opening shall be made in any muskrat house for the purpose of inserting or removing traps, unless the same shall be sealed by replacing all material removed and wetting it down.

Officials of the Division of Game and Fish revealed that it is probable that the Talcot Lake and Thief Lake public hunting grounds will be open to muskrat trapping.

Four Cars Smashup Saturday

Last Saturday evening three cars and a pickup figured in a smashup on the trunk highway about three miles north of Holt. According to reports reaching here covering the accident, it was caused when Albin Anderson of Middle River was driving north with his pickup. The radiator was steaming so he could not see well, and he crashed head-on into the car of Basil Elseth of Newfolden who was coming south. Right after this happened Lloyd Johnson of Middle River came along and parked behind the Anderson pickup and Dr. Snyder of Thief River Falls, also going the same direction was blinded by lights of another car which had arrived on the scene and he crashed into the rear of the Johnson car. This was unfortunate for the entire party and worse yet to think that so many good automobiles were figured in the wreckage. The cars as we are told were pretty much wrecked and twisted. But at that the number of people involved were lucky as no one came out of it with more than a bump or two and a few bruises.

Governor Heads Pulp Rally

International Falls— Northern Minnesota citizens on Saturday (Nov. 20) will mark the most unusual effort in the history of Koochiching and adjoining counties with a Victory Pulpwood Festival. It is part of a campaign being conducted nationally by newspaper to stimulate cutting of war-vital pupwood.

A milestone in the campaign, the event will emphasize the tremendous cutting job that has been done this fall -- and that which must be carried on this winter. In this area the campaign is guided by the Koochiching County Victory Pulpwood committee, headed by Melvin Johnson, farm leader and pulpwood cutter.

Gov. Edward J. Thye will be the No. 1 guest of Koochiching county with representatives from more than 30 other surrounding communities also present.

Clad in a lumberjack outfit presented by the fsstival committee, Gov. Thye will pilot a trainload of pulpwood from northern Minnesota communities into International Falls as a highlight of the day's program. He also will lead a pulpwood truck parade through the city to the Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company woodyard for unloading. His appearance here will be preceded by a day's inspection tour of surrounding pulpwood camps.

The governor also will participate in a public meeting on the future of Minnesota's forests, sponsored by the county committee and the Minnesota Forest Industries committee. In the evening he will participate in a nationwide broadcast from the school auditorium and meet with labor union representatives here.

Seal Campaign Begins Here

Plans are complete for the 37th annual Christma Seal Campaign which opens Monday, November 22.

Posters urging the purchase and use of Christmas Seals are being placed this week in store windows, schools and public buildings. The distribution is in charge of Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson local chairman.

The same Christmas seal that will be sold here will be on sale in every part of the United States and its possessions and also in England, Canada, Brazil, and Mexico. This is the first time the United States Christmas Seal has been used as an international seal.

The local committee in planning for the sale of Seals aims to give every one in the community a chance to buy.

The school sale of Christmas Seals is in charge of Mr. Meyer.

Solicitation of the business places will be made by Marian Backlund and Mrs. Hanson. Christmas Seals will be on sale at the Bank and Postoffice.

Let every greeting card and gift package that goes forth come from post-office, carrying their small decorations, attesting that our community is alive to its responsibilities and is doing its part in a great national drive.

Farmers Union Meeting

Farmers Union will meet at the Holt School Monday evening, November 22. Mrs. Henry Nohre Mrs. Walter Wegge and Mrs. Leo Horien will serve lunch.

Mrs. C. L. Heinze Died

Mrs. C. L. Heinze of Thief River Falls 77 years old, passed away on Wednesday morning at a hospital there. Funeral services will be held on Monday afternoon at the Trinity Lutheran Church at 1:00 and at Nazareth Lutheran Church at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Heinze, with her family, was a Holt resident for many years and a member and officer of the Nazareth Ladies Aid. A complete obituary will be published next week.

Church -- Wood Cutting Bee

To the members and friends of Nazareth Lutheran Church: Another wood cutting Bee will be held on Friday afternoon, Nov. 26th, beginning at 1:00 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of cutting dry wood. DECIDEDLY CHEAP!

SOMETIMES IT'S A COMPLIMENT TO BE CALLED CHEAP

With prices going up and up, "cheap" is a rare word these days. Yet in spite of the rapid rise in the cost of living, the price of electricity has remained the same—it's still CHEAP.

Even though the costs of coal, equipment, taxes and service have risen, experienced business management has made it possible for you to receive good electric service at the same low pre-war prices, and this Company is doing everything possible to see that these prices remain low.

So the next time you receive your electric bill, compare it with the cost of other commodities and services. Then you'll see why Reddy Kilowatt, your electrical servant, considers it a compliment to be called cheap.

The Rubber Shortage is behind us but the Tire Shortage is still here!

Less than two years ago America faced as frightening a situation as any country at war ever faced.

Unless something was done, and done quickly, we would soon be without rubber.

And without rubber, no plane could fly, no tank could move, no ship could sail, no truck could roll, people could not get to work, materials could not move to and from plants.

That was the situation the Government and the rubber companies had to lick inside of two years if America was to stay in the war.

Did the "impossible" really happen?

Let's see what you think. Right now, there is nearly enough rubber to meet our essential needs.

Today, this threat to American victory is merely an unpleasant memory, because Government, the Rubber Director, and a group of industries—rubber, petroleum, chemical, alcohol—working together, compressed into less than two years a job that would normally have taken a dozen years. But . . .

Because the public saw huge synthetic rubber plants shoot up almost over night, and heard that synthetic rubber was in large-scale production, they figured the tire headache was almost over.

Now—a warning!

This is the situation today—the rubber supply crisis is past, but the long predicted and anticipated tire shortage is with us.

Why is this so, when thousands of tons of Government synthetic rubber are now being made?

Why is this so, when the rubber industry is producing a tremendous tonnage of rubber products and more airplane and truck tires than ever before?

Because, as the Baruch Committee foresaw—the fact that few tires could be made until we had our synthetic rubber supply well on the way, resulted in millions of tires going out of service without replacement—and those remaining have less mileage in them. Inventories of prewar tires are gone.

Because our military needs are way beyond anyone's anticipations.

Because the rubber companies must use a lot of their manpower and machines to make bullet-sealing gas tanks and hundreds of other rubber products for war, in addition to tires.

Because half of today's requirements are for heavy-duty, large-size truck, bus, combat, artillery, and airplane tires, requiring many, many times the labor and materials of peacetime needs . . . and finally . . .

Because the manpower shortage hangs over the tire industry as it does over all industry, and there are just too few hands for the job.

Straight from the shoulder

These problems will be licked when our enemies are licked. Meanwhile, we want to tell you frankly that unless you, and all tire-owners continue to make the preservation of tires a vital personal problem . . . our home-front transportation will break down and slow up the war production of America.

The way out is for you to conserve the tires you've got—stretch their life in every way you can.

How to make tires last longer

Do no unnecessary driving.

Live up to the government regulation—don't exceed 35 miles an hour.

Keep your tires inflated up to recommended pressure, and check them every week.

Avoid hitting holes in the road, or bruising your tires on curbs or stones. Don't start or stop suddenly. Slow down for sharp corners.

See that your wheels and axles are in line.

Switch your tires from wheel to wheel every five thousand miles, and have them inspected regularly for removal of foreign objects and repair of cuts.

And—most important of all—recap your tires as soon as they become smooth.

• • •

Though not all civilians will be able to get synthetic rubber tires in the near future, you may be one of those who will. Therefore, you should know . . . and remember . . . these facts:

FACTS ABOUT PASSENGER CAR TIRES

The synthetic rubber tire is not yet an improvement but it will keep your car rolling through the emergency.

In many respects, the new synthetic rubber tires are an unknown quantity.

How they would behave at the phenomenally high speeds of prewar days is purely academic. The patriotic citizen knows that high speeds wear out his treads far faster than the recommended speed of 35 miles per hour, and drives accordingly.

Under-inflation, driving over rough roads, and other abuses are bad for all tires—but today's evidence is that synthetic tires will stand less of these abuses than the tires you have been used to.

But, since these tires will be rationed to you in trust for the nation, it will be your duty to take every possible care of them, and to prevent misuse and abuse.

As we gain more experience with synthetic rubber tires, more and more things will become known about them, and the public will be kept informed.

If you use synthetic rubber tubes, be sure they are properly installed. They should be put into the tire, then inflated, deflated, and inflated again. And they should never be mounted on rusty rims.

FACTS ABOUT TRUCK AND BUS TIRES

On truck and bus tires, particularly in over-the-road, inter-city service, the situation is less satisfactory.

Truck and bus tires are operated under more severe conditions than passenger car tires. They are heavier, thicker—generate more heat. They are all too frequently overloaded, must travel on any kind of highway their work requires.

Again we'll be perfectly frank about it: synthetic truck and bus tires now built will not stand all the abuse that the prewar tire would take, especially overloading. Progress is being made every day—but overloading which damaged a prewar tire can ruin today's synthetic rubber tire.

The Tire Industry is bending every effort to solve the serious problems of furnishing satisfactory and sufficient tires to the truck and bus field.

But a serious threat still exists to our most vital transportation.

So remember this—while the treads of present truck and bus tires are vitally important, the carcasses of these tires have a value to our truck operators, and to the nation, that is beyond price. Unless these tires are made to last and last, there is almost certain to be a breakdown of truck service.

Every one of these tires must be recapped the very minute it needs it—before any damage is done to the carcass.* Speeds must be cut down, especially on hot roads. Overloads must be eliminated. Proper inflation is a necessity.

Operators, garage men, drivers, all have a heavy responsibility that they cannot now avoid. These are straightforward statements. The warning must not go unheeded. A new tire warranty recognizes these conditions, but the real job is conservation!

A new warranty—

With conditions as they are, and synthetic rubber in its present stage of development, a new tire warranty has become necessary and has been adopted. It applies to all tires. Under its terms, injuries such as bruises, body breaks, cuts, snags, and heat failures, as well as tread wear are not subject to adjustment consideration.

Nor are injuries or failures which result from improper tire care or misuse or abuse. This includes failure as a result of overload, excess speed, improper inflation, or other non-defective conditions. Or when tires are used on rims not conforming to Tire and Rim Association Standards.

Remember—the tire industry, the Rubber Director, everyone is working together with all their energy, as they have from the outset, to keep America's wheels turning.

Do your part—take care of the tires you've got now!

The gaily enameled unit insignia you see on a soldier's lapels and overseas cap are reproductions of his regimental shield displayed in the center of the eagle on his regimental flag. It's a part of U. S. Army tradition. Traditional, too, is the Army man's preference for Camel cigarettes. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) It's a gift from the folks back home, that always rates cheers. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

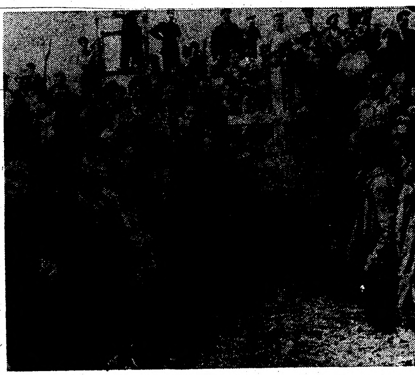
16 Italians Die for Shooting of Nazi



Mourning relatives gather around the fresh graves of 16 Italians who were killed by the Nazis in retaliation for the shooting of a German soldier. The soldier had stolen a chicken from a local family. Inscription on the cross reads: "They died from the forces of Naziism and Fascism." According to reports from Italy, this scene is common in many towns through which the Nazis are retreating before the might of Allied armies which were steadily rolling toward Rome and Berlin.

When called upon to transport as many as 60,000 soldiers and all their equipment in a single troop movement, the largest so far, American railroads were obliged to use 1,350 passenger cars, 3,600 freight cars and 330 baggage cars, the last group being employed as kitchens.

DIONNE QUINTUPLETS use MUSTEROLE for CHEST COLDS
To Promptly Relieve Coughing and Make Breathing Easier

At the first signs which may warn of a cold—the Dionne Quintuplets' chests, throats and backs are rubbed with Musterole—a product made especially to promptly relieve coughs and sore throat due to colds, to make breathing easier and break up local congestion in the upper bronchial tract.

Musterole brings such wonderful relief because it's MORE than just an ordinary "salve." It's what so many Doctors and Nurses call a modern counter-irritant. Since Musterole is used on the Quints—you can be sure it's just about the BEST cold-relief you can buy!

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Of the 125,000 communities in the United States, 54,000 have no rail connection. They depend on rubber tires for their existence and their contacts with other communities. They rely solely on buses, trucks and passenger cars.

Reduction of the national average mileage of passenger cars to 5,400 miles a year through rationing has proved an important factor in rubber conservation. An idea of how this mileage is regulated will be understood when it is known that 55 per cent of the country's cars are operated on "A" gas ration books alone; about 25 per cent have "B," and 20 per cent have "C" books for supplementary supplies.

Old Salt Had Turned Tables on the Captain

The old sailor had retired from the sea.

Each morning a youngster living in the village knocked at his door, went in, and soon came out again.

After this had gone on for some time the curiosity of the villagers was aroused.

"Tell me," said one of the more inquisitive ones to the youngster, "why do you visit that old sailor every morning?"

"Well, sir, he gives me a dime if I say to him, 'The captain wants to see you immediately on the deck.' "

"And what does he say to that?"

"He says, 'Tell the captain to go jump into the briny deep!' "

Cautious Rulers

Because death was commonly inflicted by food or wine poisoning in the early days, members of royal families took special precautions at the dining tables. Charles IX of France was particularly cautious in this regard and even suspicioned his own servants. Before drinking wine, he always tested it with a "Unicorn's Horn"—if poison was present the horn was supposed to change color.

As a second precaution he carried with him a bezoar—a growth from the intestines of a herbivorous animal—which was believed to absorb poisons.

Why VICKS VAPORUB Is So Good
For Relieving Miseries of Childrens Colds

More than two generations ago—in grandmother's day—mothers first discovered Vicks VapoRub. Today it is the most widely used home-remedy for relieving miseries of children's colds. And here is the reason . . .

The moment you rub VapoRub on the throat, chest and back at bedtime it starts to work two ways at once—and keeps on working for hours—to ease coughing spasms, help clear congestion in cold-clogged upper breathing passages, relieve muscular soreness or tightness. It promotes restful sleep. Often most of the misery of the cold is gone by morning! That's why VapoRub is so good to use when colds strike. Try it!

Trappers Supplying New, Vital Need

Illustration reproduced by permission of Photo Section, Philadelphia Q. M. Depot

America's trappers—including the youngsters and the women who are carrying on for absent sons, brothers and husbands—may rightfully smile with pride as they keep the nation's traplines going. For the product of their endeavor, fur, is playing a new role today.

Always valued as a source of income and as an article of high fashion and warmth, fur is now doing its part in outfitting Uncle Sam's Arctic fighters—so that they may better withstand the rigors of cold. As an example, parka hoods for the uniforms of our ski troopers (see illustration) are among the items whose production depends upon the output of the country's traplines. Also the fur vests worn by the men who sail our ships through Northern waters. With increased attention being paid to materials for warm clothing, furs are becoming more and more important to a fighting victory-bound America.

The raw fur crop is here—along the streams, in the woods and fields—literally waiting to be taken. Practically no investment is required—only some traps and the effort needed to run the trapline. And as for the effort, if desired it can be limited to spare time—a feature which fits in beautifully with either schoolboy's or housewife's daily routine.

Looking Ahead

Vigilance

Forms of government never have been static. Dominions rise and they fall. History shows that democracies and republics are especially short-lived. Some change by revolution, quickly; some by degree, more slowly; others by indirection, deviously. Many a nation has lost its power of self government. The immediate causes differ, but fundamentally they all had the same trouble—apathy.

Liberty demands attention! Even in America with a system that fosters the best living and working conditions any segment of mankind ever knew; even in America where a vast majority of people appreciate their opportunities, eternal vigilance is the price of freedom. Self-seeking, short-sighted minorities can play havoc with any democracy whose loyal majority is off its guard.

Signs of Danger

Little groups of opportunists play pressure politics. They cultivate class hatreds, they stimulate unlawful ambitions and magnify resentment at offenses, real and imaginary. These things are at work now in America. The form of government which is ours in the United States has no more assurance of endless life than had the Roman Republic or the Athenian Democracy, both of which died young, as did a score of more recent ones.

Consider Adolf Hitler, arch opportunist. It is told that before the present war he used silly confusion to accomplish astounding things. Once when he wanted to take another cherished liberty away from the German people, and feared trouble doing it, he sent orators throughout the empire as government representatives to brag about the value of the very privilege he planned to abolish. Then when he abruptly took it away, the people were too stunned to resent it or know who was to blame.

Our Own Troubles

Nearer home, circumstances are developing gradually which certainly threaten America as "The Land of the Free." Quietly the freedom of Private Enterprise is being paralyzed; the American way of life endangered. Choking Private Enterprise looks less serious than if, say, elections had been abolished and the press gagged. It would seem worse if the right of assembly were withdrawn and the privilege of worship denied. It would only seem worse, being more drastic.

Actually, a threat to either of the other freedoms would bring much quicker and more vigorous opposition. Unfortunately the public seldom recognizes the seriousness of an attack on business, but the fact remains that Private Enterprise is one of the four corner posts of human liberty; pillars that will stand or fall together.

The Four Pillars

1.—Popular Vote: the right of every man to a voice in the government under which he lives.

2.—Free Speech: man's inalienable right to have thoughts and express them to other people.

3.—Free Enterprise: man's right to work, earn, save, buy, own property, trade and get gain.

4.—Worship: the right of every intelligent being to worship God as his conscience dictates.

Assaulting one of these cardinal rights is to attack them all. A shot fired at the ballot-box is no worse than a thrust at free competition. As certainly as Private Enterprise fails the ballot-box will topple with it, for they are all one structure. Unfortunately the first siege is on Private Enterprise which many people consider the least sacred of our liberties. Observe how little disturbed the consuming public has been about conditions in the coal industry.

This Is Apathy Too

Big business has been obliged to stand for a lot of unfair bemeaning since the relatively mild administration of a former Roosevelt, the "Trust Buster." Villification of big business was recognized as good vote-getting ballyhoo as long ago as 1910 and office-seekers have started new epidemics of it every campaign year since. This, I believe, accounts for the public's indifference when coal mine operators, oil producers or meat packers find themselves maneuvered into an untenable position by some political group with more power than judgment.

Government price stabilization is forcing oil producers to make a failure in a crucial year and take the blame for it, when oil men insist that fresh oil could be found now as it has always been found, if crude oil prices permitted. Packers have a record of giving America good meat in abundance at fair prices, but the public whistles suspiciously while black markets compete effectively with packers who observe the law.

Extreme Measures

Production of critical materials certainly ought not to drag for want of government help or intervention where needed. Just the same, a fictitious demand for government aid can be set up like stage scenery. National security is fully recognized as a proper government responsibility but, in America, authority to conduct a war is vested in government for preserving democracy, not to cripple freedom and lay the foundation for a socialist state.

Do Mailing In November

Delivery of the annual flood of Christmas gifts and cards on time, always a serious problem, "will be more than a problem this year - - it will be an impossibility - - unless Christmas mailings are made largely in November," Postmaster General Frank C. Walker warned today.

"Transportation facilities are burdened to the limit with war materials and personnel, and the Postal Service has sent more than thirty-one thousand experienced employees into the Army and Navy," Mr. Walker said. "The only solution to the Christmas problem is: Mail in November. Mark your parcels, "Do Not Open Until Christmas".

HERE'S A STEADY MARKET FOR YOUR DAIRY PRODUCTS

IN ONE GENERATION, Land O'Lakes has become the world's largest selling sweet cream butter. And, today, after twenty years of national advertising, the demand and reputation of this quality product is at an all time high.

TO DAIRY FARMERS, this means a steady market for their products . . . through depressions, wars, reconstruction and prosperity. And thinking dairy farmers are looking beyond today's scarcity. They want a steady marketing arrangement over which they have control of products all the way to the grocery store.

THAT IS WHY today more and more cooperative creameries and their members are investigating ALL the advantages of a marketing membership in Land O' Lakes.

HOLT WEEKLY NEWS

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, Nov. 26, 1943. Volume [illegible], Number 30

Muskrat Trapping Season

Muskrats may be taken only by trapping during the period beginning at 12 o'clock noon on December 1 and ending at 12 o'clock noon on December 31, 1943, in all portions of Minnesota except upon state game refuges, according to an order issued by Chester S. Wilson, Commissioner of Conservation.

The state-wide season on the muskrats is, however, subject to the following restrictions:

No person shall set or use more than 50 traps for muskrats at any one time.

No person shall set, visit, or remove any trap for muskrats between the hours of 9 p. m. and 7 a. m. war time.

No trap shall be set for muskrats within 50 feet of an active beaver house, burrow, den, dam or other abiding place of such beaver.

No opening shall be made in any muskrat house for the purpose of inserting or removing traps, unless the same shall be sealed by replacing all material removed and wetting it down.

Officials of the Division of Game and Fish revealed that it is probable that the Talcot Lake and Thief Lake public hunting grounds will be open to muskrat trapping.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been of choice variety. Some of the old hunters must have been in close touch with the weather man in respect to getting such a treat for the game season.

Austin Lindholm arrived here last Thursday from Oakland, California, for a visit with his mother-in-law Mrs. C. Sandberg and also other relatives. He also took in deer hunting.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Morris Johnson of Duluth on Tuesday, twin girls.

Salvage Clothing-Rags

A new type of salvage is before us. A national campaign for the collection of discarded "clothing and rags" has been scheduled for the two weeks period beginning November 22 and ending December 4th. The period has already started. It is ordered by the Textile division of the War Production Board. The discarded heavy clothing available in this section of the country is most desirable for this drive.

Clothing and rags are urgently needed both for domestic and foreign use, and for war purposes. Clothing is needed to help clothe and rehabilitate peoples in the liberated countries abroad and for relief purposes in the United States.

Only discarded clothing is wanted, clothing out of the attic which the owner no longer intends to wear. Clothing is needed for men, women, boys, girls, infants. Unwearable clothing should be reduced to rags and sorted into woolens, cottons, rayons and miscellaneous and sold locally, if possible, to rag dealers

All clothing must be dry-cleaned. Therefore, after the clothing has been gathered at local points the dry-cleaners are to call for it. The dry-cleaner will be paid six cents a pound by the Defense Supplies Corporation, so there will be no expense to the one who donates the clothes or to the organization which does the collecting. Clothes need not be mended nor pressed. They will be packed in bales and shipped.

A clothing collection depot is to be established in each community, to which clothing and rags can be brought. The selection of the business firm or organization to conduct the depot is in the hands of the local salvage chairman.

Mrs. A. A. Trost of Warren began teaching in the local high school this week. For the time being, Rev. Hanson will continue to teach Algebra and Geometry.

WE IN HOLT

Can't Win the Purple Heart but . .

There's a lot we can do on the Home Front that will help shorten the war, and bring our boys home quicker.

Yes, believe it or not, our morale and our cooperation here at home has a lot to do with the actions of our fighting men across the sea. There are several things we can do to combat the evils that arise in a wartime economy, black markets . . . false rumors . . . inflation, and discouragement among our soldiers. The following are six suggestions as to definite things we can do:

1. Buy and hold war bonds.
2. Pay cheerfully our share of taxes.
3. Comply with the rationing rules to conserve scarce things.
4. Buy only what we need and make that last longer.
5. Write often and keep our letters cheerful to the service men.
6. Protect our American liberties in our own community.

War is a job that occupies our soldiers twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week. There are no days off on the battle-front. We here at home must not let our boys down by relaxing for one minute in our contributions to the War Effort.

Life of Mrs. Elma Heinze

Funeral rites were conducted here on Monday afternoon from the Nazareth Lutheran Church for Mrs. Elma Heinze, wife of Charles L. Heinze of Thief River Falls. Mrs. Heinze passed away at the Mercy Hospital at Thief River Falls on Wednesday, Nov. 17 at the age of 77 years.

Funeral services were conducted from the Trinity Church at Thief River Falls the same after noon at 1 o'clock with Rev. G. S. Thompson officiating and from here at 2:30 with Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiating. Interment was made in the Holt cemetery.

Surviving Mrs. Heinze, besides her husband are a son Frank Heinze of Thief River Falls; a brother, Oscar Hanson of Mahnomen; and four grandchildren. She was preceded in death by a son, Harry, in 1934.

Mrs. Heinze was born near Oslo, Norway, June 24, 1866. At the age of fifteen she came to the United States and lived in Chicago, later moving to Excel Township, in Marshall county where she lived until May 19, 1900 when she was united in marriage to Charles L. Heinze at Holt.

Mrs. Heinze will be remembered in Holt as an outstanding worker in both church and social life. She was for many years an officer of the Nazareth Ladies Aid and at one time a member of the Holt School Board. Her home was always open for Luther League meetings and she was well known for her hospitality. She together with her husband and sons developed one of the finest farms here and an outstanding living place here when they moved to Thief River Falls in 1923 and built up another beautiful place south of the Greenwood Cemetery.

Newfolden Junior Class Play

"Pistol Packin Mama" and "Ragtime Cowboy Joe" arranged and sung in costume by the girls' triple trio, will be featured between acts of "Cyclone Sally", a comedy, to be given by the junior class of the Newfolden High School, Dec. 3rd at 8 o'clock. The girls will also sing "Oh What A Beautiful Morning", "Paper Doll", and "Wait For Me Mary".

Included in the cast are Phyllis Windahl as Cyclone Sally; Sheldon Mortrud as Jack Webster; Philip Barr as Reginald Manners; Gladys Johnson as Vivian Vernon; Eunice Ness as Jenny Thatcher; Lois Greene as Ruth Thatcher; Evodia Halvorson as Effie Varden; Loren Moen as Ole Olson and Lester Sorenson as Willie Glump.

Marville Flodstrom, Gordon Thompson, Stuart Sathre, Edith Farstad and Dorothy Haugen make up the production staff. Miss Irene Huglen directs the play.

A few of the local sportsmen have been lucky in bringing home some very fine deer. Next week we will try and have a complete list of those who broght home a deer including the publisher of the News.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nohre entertained at a goose dinner on Friday evening the following guests: Mrs. Robert Starr of Delhi, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Nohre, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nohre, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Peterson and family, Mrs. S. H. Nohre, Harriet Lufkin, Mr. Peterson and Lloyd Larson.

Donate Your Deer Hides

The Izaak Walton League of America has made a plea for every hunter to send in his deer hide as a donation to war needs. With each license was issued a shipping tag, which should be attached to the hide and shipped "express collect" to the League. War demadds have created a shortage of all types of hides. The shortage is so acute that the WPB has issued a Conservation order which provides that all deer skins, with certain exceptions, are frozen for specific use.

Rev. Myhrer held services at the Hans Ness home in East Valley. Mrs. Ness and Mrs. Swan Carlson served lunch.

Farmers State Bank of Gatzke had their statement published here and had bank footings of $94,721.10 and the Middle River State Bank had their statement published here with footings of $330,742.14.

J. A. Sorum received word from the State Supreme Court that said court had sustained the order of Judge Grindeland, and that the promoters of ditches No. 102 and 193 would have to pay all costs.

The original plan called for three main ditches going east from the Thief River to the divide in Beltrami county, and including several miles of dredging of the Thief River east of Holt.

The county spent between $30,000 and $40,000 in preliminary surveys, and the opposing taxpayers spent about $6,000 to fight the case.

Editors Note 1943 — This was the second round on ditching and dredging in the area east from Holt.

P. L. Anderson attended the the Dairymens Convention.

A lot of dressed turkeys were shipped out from here.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

It was not until almost 300 years after Columbus that first commercial use was made of rubber. Native rubber articles — play balls, bowls, bottles, hats, capes and shoes—were brought to Spain and Portugal from various parts of Central and Northern South America years before the commercial merits of rubber were realized.

A rapidly growing army of more than 500 rubber-growing specialists from the U. S. is now in the Amazon rubber district expediting the collection of crude rubber and conquering the leaf disease that has taken severe toll of the jungle trees.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

"In their winter quarters, the patriarch of the circus' elephant herd finished his morning airing and returned to his luxurious box-stall. In one corner, sitting up and hunched back as far as it could get, was a little mouse. The elephant glared at him, and then with swaying trunk and rolling eyes, remarked:

"Of all the pusillanimous, insignificant, ineffectual-looking creatures I have ever seen, you are the tops."

The little mouse looked up at him and said:

"Vital to Victory"

The Service Flag in the lobby of the Great Northern's General Offices at St. Paul shows that 5,644 employees have been called from their work and their homes to fight for their country.

With more than a fourth of its experienced personnel now in the armed forces, and without the replacements of equipment or materials and supplies which ordinarily would be available, the Great Northern, in common with other American railroads, has been called upon for an unprecedented volume of transportation service.

That the army of railroad workers on the home front has met this challenge successfully is attested by the following letter addressed to the American Railroads by Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, and James Forrestal, Under Secretary of the Navy:

> "The War and Navy Departments would appreciate it if you would express to the men and women who work on America's railroads the gratitude of the Army and Navy for the splendid job they are doing.
>
> "Since the outbreak of war the railroads have hauled 76 million carloads of freight, most of it destined for battle fronts. Millions of fighting men have been transported to training camps and embarkation ports.
>
> "The Army and Navy realize that to perform this big job, crews on trains, in shops, in yards, and along rights of way have had to work long and hard. To the men and women who have made this record movement of men and weapons possible, the Army and Navy are deeply grateful.
>
> "Keep up the good work—for railroad work is war work, railroad service is vital to victory."

The Great Northern is proud of its representation in the fighting forces of our Country and equally proud of its nearly 30,000 men and women who are doing their utmost to assure that the sacrifices of our fighting forces shall be of lasting worth to humanity.

Responsibility

Over two billion people walk daily on the earth. Probably 75% of them never do any broad thinking. They keep so busy trying to earn food, clothing and shelter that vague notions about social, scientific and governmental progress seem hopelessly high and rarefied. Of course these generalities don't apply to the United States. We do things better in this country.

Realizing what a big share of the human race struggles daily for a bare existence, one may ask—Why don't their governments do something about it? The shameful answer is that they do. Government restrictions are themselves responsible for most of the poverty and ignorance in the world.

Freedom at Work

Good ideas put into execution benefit a great many people. Henry Ford had a good idea, for example. It enriched him; it benefited thousands who helped him execute it and made broader horizons for millions of others. But if a man with an idea can't do anything about it (not having enough learning or enough capital or enough freedom) everybody loses, nobody benefits. The more liberty people have to solve their own problems, plan their own work and determine their own destinies, the more abundant lives they lead.

China, where I spent 20% of a normal lifetime, is a much governed country. For centuries, literally, Chinese war-lords consumed the fat of the land and managed to keep the masses poor, groping in ignorance. Coolies toil from sun to sun with crude tools, live on half rations and earn less in a month than a Detroit welder draws in two hours. Living standards in any two countries differ as their measure of freedom differs.

Fruits of Liberty

Individual liberty in America has been greatest; governmental supervision the smallest ever known since the history of nations has been recorded. And what has been the result? Living standards in America reached a much higher plane in ten generations than they attained in China in forty centuries. Americans are all free to have ideas and develop them, so our gain from constructive thinking and working has been enormous. Already America is rich, and Oriental countries are still poor.

There is more to good living, of course, than simply being at liberty to live well. Prosperity such as America has (such as no other country ever had) is a direct result of volume production which is characteristic of America. The hod carrier drives a car and the farmer's wife, far from the city's noise and soot, has an electric refrigerator and washing machine. The fact that makes our country marvelous is that most people can afford such things, that retail prices are within their reach. And it is volume production that keeps prices down, along with the competition afforded by Free Enterprise.

Our Wealthy Poor

It is also volume production that keeps wages high and working people prosperous. The Chinese peasant produces little and therefore earns little, working as hard as he can and using all the knowledge he possesses, which is not much. The American worker can master one skill and draw $1 an hour for the obvious reason that he produces much and actually earns $1 an hour; nor does he hurt himself working.

American workers know more than Coolies because they are permitted to know more, not because they have better brains. American workers produce more because they have better tools. Plant owners who provide the jobs are interested in production, so they also provide the tools at an average investment of $6,000 per job. Some industries, railroads, for example, invest as much as $25,000 in equipment per one-man job. It is no accident that an American workman produces three times as much as a German and six times as much as a Japanese. Freedom of progress does it—Private Enterprise.

Holt School Notes

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

The fourth grade has made colonial cabin and furniture out of cardboard.

The fifth grade made a picture of life on the frontier at the time of the pilgrims.

Monday we started selling Christmas Seals. We hope we can sell more seals this year than in previous years.

The people who had 100 in spelling are Dorothy Sagstuen, Arthur Peterson Ruth Larson and Gloria Johnson.

We have ordered library books and are anxious to start reading them

Seventh, Eighth

The following had 100 in Spelling last Friday: Shirley, Delores, Lavern and Gordon.

Wilma Movick, Jerome Horien and Jean Wegge were absent from school last Friday.

The 7th grade drew maps of Africa in which they colored the natural regions.

A 2 reel comic movie, Big Business, was shown on Friday, which we all enjoyed.

Original poem written by Shirley Larson, 8th grade.

We have Thanksgiving Day, because
The Pilgrims didn't mind their loss,
They killed many a wild beast,
And celebrated with a feast.
They invited lots of Indians, too
Their way of saying to them, "Thank You"
For all the food and all the care,
The Pilgrims got when they came there.
We should also thankful be
For all our food and liberty.
And on our own Thanksgiving Day,
Be just as thankful, we as they.

In Memoriam

In memory of Ernest Conklin who passed away four years ago Nov. 18.

The sun and moon are shining
On a lone and silent grave;
Beneath lies one we dearly loved,
But whom we couldn't save.
Friends may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile;
Little do they know the sorrow,
That our smile hides all the while.

Sadly missed by his mother Agnes Nohre and his grandmother Mrs. S. H. Nohre.

Seal Campaign Begins Here

Plans are complete for the 37th annual Christma Seal Campaign which opens Monday, November 22.

Posters urging the purchase and use of Christmas Seals are being placed this week in store windows, schools and public buildings. The distribution is in charge of Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson local chairman.

The same Christmas seal that will be sold here will be on sale in every part of the United States and its possessions and also in England, Canada, Brazil, and Mexico. This is the first time the United States Christmas Seal has been used as an international seal.

The local committee in planning for the sale of Seals aims to give every one in the community a chance to buy.

The school sale of Christmas Seals is in charge of Mr. Meyer.

Solicitation of the business places will be made by Marian Backlund and Mrs. Hanson. Christmas Seals will be on sale at the Bank and Postoffice.

Let every greeting card and gift package that goes forth come from post-office, carrying their small decorations, attesting that our community is alive to its responsibilities and is doing its part in a great national drive.

Lufkin-Larson Wedding

Miss Harriet Lufkin, daughter of Mr. Fred Lufkin, and Lloyd Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Larson, were married on Thanksgiving Day at five o'clock at the Henry Nohre home. The ceremony, performed by Rev. T. C. L. Hanson, took place under an arch of white streamers and three wedding bells with lighted tapers on both sides. The bridal party entered as the wedding march was played by Mrs. H. Nohre. Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson sang "O Perfect Love".

The bride was dressed in white gaberdine with black accessories and wore a corsage of roses and white mums. Miss Esther Lufkin of Hibbing, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a two piece brown crepe dress and wore a corsage of pompoms, asters and yellow mums. The groom was attended by his brother, Clifford Larson.

A turkey and duck dinner was served to 23 guests following the ceremony. A pink and white wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, graced the table. Those present besides the bridal party were: Rev. and Mrs. Hanson and sons Harold and Luther, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Larson, Delores and Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lufkin, Gary, Dean and Judy of Crookston, Mrs. Fred Larson and Ludvig, Mr. Fred Lufkin and Rachel Helm.

The newlyweds left on a short wedding trip to Crookston and Fargo. They will reside on the L. F. Larson farm east of Holt.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Saastad entertained at Thanksgiving dinner Mr. and Mrs. Harold Saastad and Jerry, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Maruska, Joey, Billy and Mary Ann of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Henning, Jerome and Jeanelle.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Babcock and children of Humboldt returned to their home Thursday after a few days visit at the home of the latters parents Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Moberg.

Bertha and Gerald Moberg, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lunke and Maxine and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ness visited at the Hilmer Moberg home Tuesday evening.

Salvage Clothing-Rags

A new type of salvage is before us. A national campaign for the collection of discarded "clothing and rags" has been scheduled for the two weeks period beginning November 22 and ending December 4th. The period has already started. It is ordered by the Textile division of the War Production Board. The discarded heavy clothing available in this section of the country is most desirable for this drive.

Clothing and rags are urgently needed both for domestic and foreign use, and for war purposes. Clothing is needed to help clothe and rehabilitate peoples in the liberated countries abroad and for relief purposes in the United States.

Only discarded clothing is wanted, clothing out of the attic which the owner no longer intends to wear. Clothing is needed for men, women, boys, girls, infants. Unwearable clothing should be reduced to rags and sorted into woolens, cottons, rayons and miscellaneous and sold locally, if possible, to rag dealers

All clothing must be dry-cleaned. Therefore, after the clothing has been gathered at local points the dry-cleaners are to call for it. The dry-cleaner will be paid six cents a pound by the Defense Supplies Corporation, so there will be no expense to the one who donates the clothes or to the organization which does the collecting. Clothes need not be mended nor pressed. They will be packed in bales and shipped.

A clothing collection depot is to be established in each community, to which clothing and rags can be brought. The selection of the business firm or organization to conduct the depot is in the hands of the local salvage chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hanson were supper guests at the John Reed home at Thief River Falls on Saturday evening, in honor of Diana Rae Reed who was one year old that day.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Vogen made a business trip to Crookston on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Moberg, Mrs. Geo. Moberg and Bertha Moberg were Sunday dinner guests at the Arnold Sannes home at Thief River Falls.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been very mild. On Thanksgiving morning we had the first snow that had come to stay.

One of the main items of business to be taken up at the Annual Meeting of the Nazareth Lutheran church will be the accepting of the new Constitution.

Irvin Larson scratched up his fingers while sawing wood on Wednesday. He had a doctor dress the wounds and considered himself lucky to escape with such slight injury.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Larson and family were entertained at the Emil Larson home near St. Hilaire on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Sophie Kolden of Middle River spent a few days last week at the home of her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Birger Borg.

Mary Ann, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Maruska of Thief River Falls, who was born August 6, 1943 was baptised at the home of her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Saastad on Thanksgiving Day, Rev. Myhrer officiating. Her sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Saastad of Holt and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Saastad of Thief River Falls.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to the friends and neighbors for their floral offerings and memorials for our wife and mother, Mrs. C. L. Heinze. Also to those who showed their kindness in any way during her illness and death. Especially do we thank Rev. Hanson and Rev. Thompson for their comforting words; Mrs. Arvid Folden and Marvin Sandberg for special songs.

C. L. Heinze, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heinze, Mrs. Harry Heinze and Oscar Hanson.

Donate Your Deer Hides

The Izaak Walton League of America has made a plea for every hunter to send in his deer hide as a donation to war needs. With each license was issued a shipping tag, which should be attached to the hide and shipped "express collect" to the League. War demands have created a shortage of all types of hides. The shortage is so acute that the WPB has issued a Conservation order which provides that all deer skins, with certain exceptions, are frozen for specific use.

About seven weeks ago a fine white cow strayed from the Ole Tveit farm east of the Mud Lake refuge. The other day one of the Gullickson boys from Middle River, who is trapping on the reserve saw the cow and thought he had found what many a hunter would like to see— an Albino moose—but it was the white cow and she had gotten way up in the northwest corner of the refuge from where she was rescued and is now back at her home farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sagstuen entertained the following at Thanksgiving dinner at their home: Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Larson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Peterson and Donnie, Mr. and Mrs. Ludvig Sagstuen and Dorothy, Lowell Larson and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Meyers and family.

Tverstol Farmers Union Head

Oscar Tverstol of Argyle was elected president of the Marshall County Farmers Union at an organization meeting of the board of directors held at Newfolden on Nov. 9.

Other officers elected include Clarence Tromsness, Middle, vice president; Edwin Teimnity, Stephen, secretary; A. O. Engen, Warren, treasurer; V. F. Kruta, Gatzke, secretary of legislation; Orris Halvorson, Viking, secretary of organization; J. P. Augustine, Holt, secretary of cooperatives and Mrs. Frances Kruta of Gatzke and Mrs. Theodore Ranstrom of Warren as educational leaders.

The Marshall County Farmers Union is opposed to a sales tax and the poll tax and urges a higher tax on oleomargarine. The union also urges establishment of a support price on No. 2 potatoes, compensatory with the price of other grades and urges the re-establishment of crop insurance.

Jeanelle Mayre, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Henning who was born Oct. 4, 1943 was baptised at the home of her great-grandparents Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Saastad by Rev. Myhrer on Thanksgiving Day. Her sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peterson of Holt and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Saastad of Thief River Falls.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Brazilian Farmers Lasso, Slay Gators With Axes

Lassoing crocodiles is the astonishing pastime of farmers of Marajo, an island in the mouth of the Amazon river, Brazil. Because the beasts menace livestock, the farmers engage in a seasonal "crocodile battle," when the creatures are trapped and shot.

Shooting does not assure their death, however, so after the "sport" is over, the farmers lasso them, pull them ashore, and kill them with axes.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Group riding is a rubber-saving procedure which is rapidly gaining acceptance. The average number of persons per car throughout the country prior to July 1, 1942, was 2. In six months it jumped to 2.44, and at the beginning of May it had increased to 2.66. The greatest gain has been in rural industrial areas, where the average is now 3.17 persons per car.

Bottled air may be a regular accessory in the postwar automobile, making the car owner independent of roadside stations when emergency tire inflation is necessary. The air bottles, now used by the Army, can be refilled at any air line.

Stockholm Is the Center Of War, Political News

As Stockholm, Sweden, is today the chief center of war news and political information, more than 100 foreign correspondents are stationed there, about 10 times the normal number, says Collier's. Some 40 are from Axis territories and the remainder from the Allied nations and neutral countries.

Excepting the Germans, who rent a private suite, all these correspondents and their assistants use one pressroom maintained by the Swedish foreign office.

The Japs were wrong

Let's keep them wrong!

The Japs were wrong.

Cutting off our rubber supply in the Pacific didn't take us out of the war—or even slow us up.

For Government, the Rubber Director, the rubber industry, and the petroleum, chemical, and alcohol industries pooled their patents and ideas, worked together, and accomplished the seemingly impossible.

Today, there is no shadow of a doubt that our planes will continue to fly, our ships to sail, our tanks to roll.

For America now has nearly enough rubber to meet our essential needs!

But our tire worries are still here!

The American people saw the new synthetic rubber plants spring up like mushrooms. They heard of large-scale production of synthetic rubber. And they applauded. Unfortunately, they also jumped to the conclusion that they could stop worrying about tires!

It is true that the RUBBER supply crisis is past. But the long-expected TIRE shortage is with us!

"But," you may say, "how can this be when thousands of tons of Government synthetic rubber are being made . . . when such a tremendous tonnage of rubber products is being turned out, as well as more airplane and truck tires than ever before."

One reason is that—as the Baruch Committee foresaw—few tires could be manufactured until our synthetic rubber supply was well on the way. This resulted in millions of tires going out of use at a time when there were no replacements. Meanwhile, tires left in service have less mileage in them, and prewar inventories are gone.

Another reason is that our military needs are far greater than anyone anticipated.

Also, the rubber companies are using a lot of their machinery and manpower to turn out life rafts, bullet-sealing fuel tanks, and hundreds of other urgently-needed army and navy products, in addition to tires.

And you should know that half of today's requirements are for large-size, heavy-duty bus, truck, artillery, airplane, and combat tires, requiring much more labor and materials than peacetime products.

Finally, the tire industry, like every industry today, is feeling the manpower shortage, and there just aren't enough hands for the job.

Face up on the table!

These problems will be overcome when our enemies are overcome. Meanwhile, we want to put our cards face up on the table.

We've told you frankly why there is a serious tire shortage. Now we want you, and every other American who owns a set of tires, to know that this country's transportation system can still suffer a serious blow . . . unless you make it your personal duty to take care of the tires you now own.

How to make tires last longer

Do no unnecessary driving.

Live up to the Government regulation—don't exceed 35 miles an hour.

Keep your tires inflated up to recommended pressure, and check them every week.

Avoid hitting holes in the road, or bruising your tires on curbs or stones. Don't start or stop suddenly. Slow down for sharp corners.

See that your wheels and axles are in line.

Switch your tires from wheel to wheel every five thousand miles, and have them inspected regularly for removal of foreign objects and repair of cuts.

And . . . most important of all . . . recap your tires as soon as they become smooth.

HOW GOOD ARE PASSENGER CAR TIRES OF SYNTHETIC RUBBER?

It may be a long time before all civilians can get synthetic rubber tires. Meanwhile, if you should be one of the few who do get them, you will want this information:

Synthetic rubber tires for passenger cars are good tires, and will give you satisfactory service if you take care of them.

You should not think of synthetic rubber tires as improved tires . . . but as emergency tires. And remember that they have not yet had time to prove what they can do.

It is beside the point to theorize on how they would react to the phenomenally high speeds of prewar days. Every patriotic American knows that tire treads . . . all tire treads . . . wear out faster at high speeds, and so drives at today's recommended speed of 35 miles an hour.

As time goes on, we will learn more about the effects of under-inflation of rough roads, and of other abuses. They damage all tires. Indications are that they do proportionately more harm to synthetic rubber tires.

Meanwhile, all tires are rationed to you in trust for the nation, and it is your duty to take every possible care of them, to avoid misuse and prevent abuse.

As experience teaches us more and more about synthetic rubber tires, we will pass the information along to you. Meantime, play safe. Be careful!

If you use synthetic rubber tubes, be sure they are properly installed. They should be put into the tire, then inflated, deflated, and inflated again. And they should never be mounted on rusty rims.

TRUCK AND BUS TIRES ARE A DIFFERENT STORY

Truck and bus tires, being larger and heavier, generate more heat. They are given long, hard usage on all kinds of highways. They are all too frequently overloaded.

Frankly, today's synthetic rubber bus and truck tires will not stand the abuse that prewar tires would stand, especially overloading. Progress is being made daily—but overloading which would have damaged a prewar tire can ruin today's synthetic tire.

The Tire Industry is doing its utmost to solve the serious problem of providing the nation's trucks and buses with satisfactory tires in sufficient quantities.

But until this problem is solved, a dangerous threat exists to America's most vital transportation.

Therefore, while treads of present truck and bus tires are immensely important . . . the carcasses of these tires have a value beyond all price to America, and to America's truck and bus operators!

Unless tires now in use are made to last, these two essential services will almost certainly break down!

These tires . . . every one of them . . . must be recapped the instant the tread wears smooth . . . before any damage is done to the carcass.

They must be recapped not once, but again and again! High speeds must be done away with . . . especially on hot roads. Overloads must be avoided. Tires must be properly inflated at all times.

The responsibility to take care of these tires . . . to make them last as long as possible . . . is a vital necessity! It must be shouldered by all operators, by all drivers, by all garage men!

No American can fail to heed this warning! The situation is so serious that it is recognized in a new tire warranty. But the real job is to conserve all tires now in use!

A new warranty—

With conditions as they are, and synthetic rubber in its present stage of development, a new tire warranty has become necessary and has been adopted. It applies to all tires. Under its terms, injuries such as bruises, body breaks, cuts, snags, and heat failures as well as tread wear are not subject to adjustment consideration.

Nor are injuries or failures which result from improper tire care or misuse or abuse. This includes failure as a result of overload, excess speed, improper inflation, or other non-defective conditions. Or when tires are used on rims not conforming to Tire and Rim Association Standards.

Don't forget that everyone . . . the Tire Industry, the Rubber Director, and many others, are working together with all their energy, as they have worked from the beginning, to keep America rolling.

And remember that, while the Japs were wrong . . . you must help keep them wrong! Take care of the tires you now have!

"Vital to Victory"

The Service Flag in the lobby of the Great Northern's General Offices at St. Paul shows that 5,644 employees have been called from their work and their homes to fight for their country.

With more than a fourth of its experienced personnel now in the armed forces, and without the replacements of equipment or materials and supplies which ordinarily would be available, the Great Northern, in common with other American railroads, has been called upon for an unprecedented volume of transportation service.

That the army of railroad workers on the home front has met this challenge successfully is attested by the following letter addressed to the American Railroads by Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, and James Forrestal, Under Secretary of the Navy:

> "The War and Navy Departments would appreciate it if you would express to the men and women who work on America's railroads the gratitude of the Army and Navy for the splendid job they are doing.
>
> "Since the outbreak of war the railroads have hauled 76 million carloads of freight, most of it destined for battle fronts. Millions of fighting men have been transported to training camps and embarkation ports.
>
> "The Army and Navy realize that to perform this big job, crews on trains, in shops, in yards, and along rights of way have had to work long and hard. To the men and women who have made this record movement of men and weapons possible, the Army and Navy are deeply grateful.
>
> "Keep up the good work—for railroad work is war work; railroad service is vital to victory."

The Great Northern is proud of its representation in the fighting forces of our Country and equally proud of its nearly 30,000 men and women who are doing their utmost to assure that the sacrifices of our fighting forces shall be of lasting worth to humanity.

Looking Ahead

Just Taxes

There was one policeman in the town where my father's family went shopping in my boyhood days. I can still see his silver badge of authority, his white oak club and leather holstered gun. How distinctly I remember my disappointment in this important personage at seeing him one Saturday morning take a generous handful of raw peanuts from a wire basket at the grocer's store-front.

He didn't ask the grocer's leave. He didn't even look to see if the grocer was near enough to be thanked. He just took the treat and walked away. To my youthful eyes, it looked very wrong. The strong arm of the law had taken something that did not belong to him! If the grocer protested, he would surely lose the officer's friendship which was worth more than peanuts.

A Little Thing

What was it, theft, robbery, extortion, bribe-taking? I was not able to classify the offense, neither could I justify it because it was plainly immoral in principle however trivial in nature. Since that time I have acquired more worldly experience but I am still convinced that this is America's national sin: In our prosperity, we Americans have a bad habit of ignoring offenses that are trivial in nature although they may be very wrong in principle.

Precisely this is what's wrong with our system of taxation in the United States, especially right now. It is wrong in principle. In the past, nobody cared because tax was "peanuts." Outwardly there seems to be great variety among tax laws in America but in one respect they are much too nearly uniform: Most tax bills are born wearing false faces. Each one seems to have been drawn up to achieve some popular aim but actually its real purpose was something else. The tax laws of this free and prosperous country are full of deception.

Look Behind Them

Everybody who can multiply understands (or can figure out) that our government can't run without taxing poor people. There are not enough rich ones to pay the cost, even if we taxed away their every penny. Before the present war America's poorest families were paying $1 of hidden taxes out of $5 earned; only they didn't know it.

Import duty is paid by consumers at home, not by foreign manufacturers. Even the ancient land tax once was pointed at a few, but finally had to be borne by many. Gasoline taxes were popular in 1922 when automobiles were scarce, not in 1942 when everybody had a car. Now look what the income tax, aimed at war profits back in 1920, is bringing home to us all this year—a financial burden and a mathematical headache.

A Growing Menace

In years gone by, revenue bills did not arouse much popular protest because rates were low. The average easy-going American's annual taxes amounted to so little that he looked upon them as trivial items, but this situation has changed. Taxes are high now. Taxing methods that are wrong in principle (which formerly "made no difference" because they didn't hurt) are beginning to cause pain at unexpected places. Actual motives behind taxes are coming to light. A change is in process; we may as well look facts in the face.

With taxes high, and likely to stay high, they must of necessity be fair or cause trouble. As long as "the law" is content with peanuts, nobody squawks if he makes off with six from a small merchant and two from a large one. But when government's fingers reach the cash drawer and begin fumbling with the folding money, "takes" ought to be in proportion to something; something simple that makes sense to everybody. College graduates are having trouble with this year's income tax rules.

One Suggestion

It is my sincere and studied conviction that most of today's complicated tax mechanism ought to be junked and replaced with an honest sales tax, for one main reason: The fairness of a sales tax is so obvious. Paying a sales tax, everybody knows, is in proportion to the taxpayer's spending. He can lower his taxes by saving money, raise them by foolish spending. Sales taxes have many advantages and here are five of them:

1.—Sales taxes are not hidden taxes. They are not drawn up to fool anybody. We can all see how big they are and who pays them. In short, they are out in the open; no false face.

2.—Being out in the open, in plain view of every voter, certain features can be abolished when no longer needed. Sales taxes are easiest of all revenue measures to repeal.

3.—Sales taxes resist inflation. Inflation is not mysterious. It is nothing but spending power that people have, over and above the available supply of things to buy.

4.—Sales taxes indirectly build cash reserves. Whereas an income tax is a draft on savings, a sales tax throws a brake on spending. After this war America will need savings; so will her citizens.

5.—A sales tax is the only perfect pay-as-you-go tax ever devised.

Holt School Notes

First, Second, Third

Last week we had an Indian Village display on our sand table.

We read the story of the little Indian by Hiawatha. We also made pictures of him and his animal friends for our booklets.

We read the story of the First Thanksgiving then we made cut out pictures of the Pilgrim family.

The second and third graders made pictures to illustrate the Fables they have read in Language class.

The First graders are making cut out pictures to illustrate some of the stories they have learned so far.

The first graders are learning the Christmas song by Lydia Ward.

The Second and Third graders are learning the poem The Christmas Tree by Mary A. McHugh.

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

Last Wednesday we used a projector Mr. Meyer made and we looked at pictures of the Mountain and Pacific States, pictures of British possessions, and pictures dealing with sixth grade history.

As part of our Thanksgiving party we looked at humorous post cards. What we liked the best was to look at baby pictures which some of us brought. We must have changed a lot because Rev. Hanson could not guess who all of were.

The fourth and fifth grades have geography work books.

Vernon Reierson made the best Thanksgiving booklet.

The following had 100 in spelling Dorothy Sagatuen, Betty Ness, Vernon Larson.

Our stamp sale last week was $8.60

Seventh, Eighth

The following had a 100 in spelling: Jean Wegge, Delores Sandberg, Eleanor Grondahl, Mae Fluke, Shirley Larson, Wilma Movick, Marian Sorum, Donna Tonnestan, and LaVerne Holmos.

For every dollars worth of Christmas Seals we sell we get a booklet.

Our movie for Friday is "Conquering the Desert."

The 7th and 8th grade girls are learning how to crochet, the boys are working on radios.

High School

At a meeting of the teachers which was held on Monday evening after school it was decided to take a ten day Holiday vacation beginning on the 23rd of this month and convening school on Jan. 3rd.

Preparations are being made for Christmas program, Dec. 21st.

Each pupils is urged to bring each day some kind of a dish that can be heated so that part of the meal will be warm at meal time.

A girls speaking chorus was started in High Scool with Freshmen and Sophomores girls taking part. Its purpose is improvements of speech and interpretation of prose and poetry in unison.

CORRECT PELT HANDLING MEANS BETTER PRICES!

It is our responsibility to make full use of, and get maximum value from, the natural resources at our disposal. The rich American fur crop provides a source of income to those in all parts of the country who are interested in harvesting it.

If FURS are worth trapping at all, certainly they are worth the time and effort needed to prepare them properly, so that they will bring you maximum cash returns!

The mink and skunk pelts shown give eloquent testimony to this creed. The fact that the correctly handled ones brought from $1.00 to $7.50 more per pelt than the incorrectly prepared ones, indicates that careful pelt handling pays.

By taking the pains to follow pelt handling standards, you are preparing the goods you have to sell in the manner in which the user prefers. It is easier for him to make up uniform lots when all pelts are shaped correctly. Thus, you are following the standards preferred by your customer—the manufacturer of fur garments. By doing that, you aim at TOP prices for your skins!

At the same time, you are protecting your pelts from spoiling. Insufficiently dried skins, or those upon which too much fat is left, are likely to reach the market in a tainted condition. Naturally, such furs bring considerably less money.

Annual Church Meeting Held

The annual meetings of the Nazareth Lutheran Congregation and Nazareth Lutheran Ladies Aid were held in the church and church parlors, respectively, on Tuesday evening. The usual routine business prevailed in both organizations. The congregation voted unanimousls to adopt the constitution as it was proposed to them by the Constitution Committee. Final vote on this constitution will take place at least two months later when a ⅔ majority will be required to make it final. The officers were elected with the view that the constitution will be finally ratified. The following were elected officers: Trustee for three years, Ole M. Larson; Deacon for one year, Alfred Anderson; Deacon for two years, J. P. Augustine, Deacon for three years, Henry S. Nohre. Holding over as Trustees are Wm. Holst and O. H. Nohre. Hjalmer Peterson was elected Treasurer for two years and George Johnson, Secretary for one year. Ushers elected were Oliver Backlund, Marvin Larson, Lowell Larson and Duane Larson

The Ladies Aid transacted the routine business. Mrs. H. O. Hanson was re-elected president; Mrs. L. M. Larson was elected Vice President; Mrs. Wm. Stienhauer was elected Secretary and Mrs. John E. Ness was elected Treasurer. Rev. Hanson was voted a substantial bonus for 1943 by both organizations.

Justice of the Peace for the term of One Year, Walter Larson

Constable for the term of Two years was tied by seven men getting one vote each for that office.

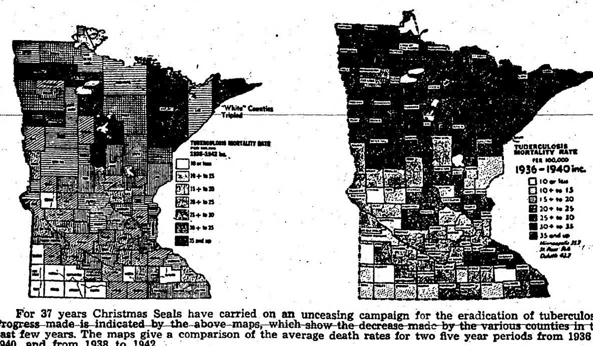
Constable for the term of One year Richard Lorentson.

It was one of the quietest village elections in the history of Holt with only 19 people turning out to vote. This is the first time that we can remember in the 23 years we have been here, that there has not been a single name of a candidate on the ballot.

Otto Johnson and John Hagberg were the judges and A. O. Aspelin Clerk.

Carolyn Kaye, infant daughter of Mr. and Mr. Stanley Lysne was baptised at the parsonage on Tuesday evening. She was born on Oct. 16 and her sponsors were Mrs. Fred Larson L. F. Larson and Arthur and Hazel Lunke.

MINNESOTA COUNTIES GAIN IN CONTROL OF TB



For 37 years Christmas Seals have carried on an unceasing campaign for the eradication of tuberculosis. Progress made is indicated by the above maps, which show the decrease made by the various counties in the past few years. The maps give a comparison of the average death rates for two five year periods from 1936 to 1940, and from 1938 to 1942.

Although the average death rate for the state of Minnesota is 25.5, a total of 58 counties have rates below this. The "white counties" are those with death rates less than 10 per 100,000. Eight Minnesota counties have now been accredited for the control of human tuberculosis. They are: Lincoln, Olmsted, Murray, Stevens, Nobles, Pipestone, Rock and Waseca.

Christmas Seal programs are in progress in every county, working towards the eradication of tuberculosis.

Backlund-Gusa Vows Spoken

The Nazareth Lutheron Church was the scene of a beautiful wedding, Sunday afternoon, December 5th at 4:00 p. m. when Marion Lucille, daughter of Mrs. Inga Backlund, and Raymond William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gusa, exchanged marriage vows before an altar banked with spruce boughs and white carnations. There were lighted tapers on the altar and in the windows. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiated at the single ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother Oliver. She wore a white slipper satin gown fashioned with a full skirt falling to a long train, long sleeves puffed at the shoulder and fitted bodice. A fingertip veil of tulle with a chantilly border fell from a beaded crown. She carried a white testement with white streamers and carnations. Her only jewerly was a gold locket, a gift of the groom, which she wore at a sweetheart neckline.

Sylvia Sandberg, a neice of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a white satin gown and carried a white testement with white streamers, a gift of the bride.

Linda and Edna Gusa, sisters of the groom, were bridesmaids. Linda wore a silk marquisette pale pink gown and Edna a pale blue satin gown. Each carried white testements with streamers to match their gowns. The testements were gifts of the bride

The groom was attended by his brother James. Ushers were Irvin Larson and Marvin Sandberg, brother and brother-in-law of the bride. They all wore boutineires of white carnations.

Marlene Larson was flower girl. She wore a white silk net gown over a satin slip and carried a basket of pink carnations. She preceded the bride down the isle strewing petals.

Harold Hanson was ring bearer and wore a white suit and carried the ring on a white pillow.

A quarter hour of prenuptial music was played by Mrs. Marvin Sandberg, sister of the bride. The bridal party entered to the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin Mendelsshon's Wedding March which was also played by Mrs. Sandberg at the organ. Before the ceremony, Lucille Williams, a friend of the couple, sang "Because". She was accompanied by Delores Sandberg, niece of the bride. The soloist wore a blue silk net over satin gown. Marvin Sandberg sang "Crown With Thy Benediction" while the couple were kneeling.

The brides mother wore a dark green silk crepe dress. She wore a corsage of white carnations. The grooms mother wore a black silk dress and a corsage of white carnations.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors to about 40 relatives and friends. Waitresses were Betty Johson and Vernice Smith, friends of the couple. A beautifuly decorated wedding cake topped with a minature bride and groom served as center piece for the table.

The bride is a graduate of the Holt school completing the course at Newfolden High School. She has been employed at the Ben Franklin Store at Thief River Falls since July. The groom is employed on his fathers farm where they will make their home.

The newlyweds left the same evening to spend their honeymoon in Minneapolis and St. Paul The bride chose for her travel a dark green crepe dress with sequins, and accessories of black.

The News joins their many friends in wishing them much happiness.

Scrap Drive Was Huge Success

Arvid Carlson, Marshall County Salvage Chairman, this week announced the results of the recent scrap drive. A total of 1,067,910 pounds was collected in the county. This represents 58.18 pounds per capita. To date, Marshall county has collected 9,409,726 pounds or 511.88 pounds per capita.

Mr. Carlson said "It has been my desire to reach a goal of 500 pounds for each resident of Marshall County by the end of 1943. We are well over that now. I want to thank the local captains for their fine work in making this goal possible. I also want to express my appreciation to the business men and farmers of the county for their unselfish work I know that in the coming year Marshall county will continue to 'Back the Attack' ".

DO YOU know the Kaleidoscope quilt pattern? A block is shown here. It is put together so that from every angle it makes a different design. One of these fascinating quilts made in two tones of blue and white started all the sewing and sawing for the attractive bed nook you see in the sketch. The bed and woodwork are painted white. The built-in closets and book shelves at each side of the bed are connected with a scalloped cornice of thin wood. Widths of blue gingham are stitched together for the full curtain at the head of the bed and for the under spread.

Army-Navy 'E' Awards

After a manufacturing plant has held an Army-Navy "E" pennant for six months, the company's record is reviewed by a government awards board, says Collier's. If the plant has equaled or exceeded its previous six-months performance, a service star is added to the flag; if it has not maintained both quality and quantity through the fault of either the management or the employees, the flag is withdrawn and has to be earned over again.

PRESIDENT AND NEWSPRINT

Some of the President's newspaper friends who have been consistently for him over a long period of years are now suggesting that this is a good time to turn the other cheek regarding his constant feud with the press. They suggest that he personally could step into the current newsprint shortage and take a strong stand on an issue which seriously threatens one of the basic freedoms of the country—freedom of the press.

Actually, a good many bureaucrats have been nibbling at the newsprint problem, but no one has stepped in with any forthrightness to cut red tape and solve the problem. It now looks as if only the White House could do this.

Not generally realized is the fact that newsprint shortage is due not so much to decreased woodpulp production in the Canadian forests, but to much greater use of cardboard and packing material in sending war supplies abroad. This is a terrific drain and, though U. S. publishers have patriotically cut their newsprint, they will have to cut to the bone unless energetic moves are made by the government.

The plan put forward by newspaper executives friendly to the White House includes:

1. Greater use of war prisoners in the Canadian and Maine forests.

2. More equitable distribution of newsprint among publishers. At present, the papers with the big Sunday editions have scarcely suffered at all, being able to aborb their paper cuts out of their Sunday "fat." On the other hand, medium-sized papers may have to take terrific punishment.

3. Stricter supervision of cuts by throw-aways, dodgers, comic magazines and newsprint users who have not kept such accurate records of their past consumption. The newspaper industry has suffered by its past efficiency, having kept very accurate records.

4. More emphasis on the paper salvage campaign. At present, only 35 per cent of the nation's waste paper is being collected and salvaged. The waste paper reclaiming machinery is running at only 51 per cent of capacity. Approximately 6,000,000 tons of waste paper are normally collected and sold for paper board but now only two million.

The newspapers stepped in and did a great job of collecting scrap iron when the nation needed it, but now, when the newspapers need newsprint, they themselves are somewhat handicapped in blowing their horn.

What the White House will do remains to be seen.

GOOD NEIGHBOR PEACE

Ten years ago, there was a very serious war between Bolivia and Paraguay in the jungles of the Gran Chaco. Last week, the presidents of Paraguay and Bolivia met at the border of the two countries in the Chaco, erected a large cross, and pledged themselves and their countries to everlasting peace.

The bitterness which animated these two South American countries has been wiped away, and they are Good Neighbors in every sense of the word.

Some diplomats hope this incident is a forecast that the bitterness actuating the enemies of World War II may likewise be eliminated after the passage of time.

INSIDE STORY OF HORNET

The navy department has okayed publication of the inside story of the famous airplane carrier Hornet, written as a book, "A Ship to Remember," by Alexander Griffin of the Philadelphia Record.

For the first time it reveals the spectacular operation of the ship which carried General Doolittle's bombers within a stone's throw of Tokyo. Among other things, the navy okayed publication by Griffin of the fact that, at one time, the Hornet practically acted as a substitute for Henderson Field in the Solomons. That badly messed-up airport, on the night of October 14, 1942, had only five planes left and gasoline to send out only four. So the Hornet came alongside the island, threw her planes into action and, for 36 hours, substituted for Henderson Field.

Even more astonishing is the revelation that, at one time during the low point in the South Pacific battle, the U. S. navy had only one aircraft carrier left undamaged in that entire expanse of water—the Hornet.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Origin of Goodby

Our goodby is a shortened form of "God be with ye." "So long" is thought to be an American corruption of the word salaam ("peace") as heard in the Moslem greeting "Salaam alei-kum," meaning "May peace be unto you," perhaps brought to America by Moslem slavers, or African slaves.

Mrs. Newlywed's Secret Didn't Help Matters Any

Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed were silent as the train bore them swiftly homewards at the end of their honeymoon.

Mr. Newlywed had spent every available penny on the holiday and his next pay day was a full two weeks off.

But as they neared home the young wife gave a merry laugh.

With a frown her husband asked the cause of her merriment.

"I'm going to tell you a secret that will cheer you up, Billy," she said. "Before we went away I hid a ten dollar bill in a jar in the pantry."

"Yes," moaned the dejected spouse, "I know. I found it."

This Fish Uses Its Mouth As Incubator, Nursery

Some fish have curious breeding habits. The curious haplochromis, for example, uses its mouth as an incubator, meanwhile going on a self-denying diet. This fish is only two to two and a half inches long, as a rule.

When the time comes for spawning, the male will make a hollow in the sand, and in this the eggs are deposited and fertilized. The female then picks up the eggs in her mouth, carrying them about this way for about two weeks until the young hatch out.

The mouth of the female continues to act as a refuge for the little fish until they are able to forage for themselves. During the period of hatching the mother does not take food, but after hatching she chews food particles fine enough for her offspring to devour.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Military requirements take the major portion of available rubber supplies for tires (for planes, trucks, and other war vehicles), treads for tanks, boats, balloons, raincoats, pontons, shoes, surgical supplies, and hundreds of other essential military items. That's why patriotic civilians take the restrictions on their rubber use in an understanding spirit.

According to the court historian to Philip II, and recorded in 1615, Columbus was credited with having found natives bounding rubber play balls (1490-1500) and to have brought some back from Hispaniola to Queen Isabella.

"Vital to Victory"

The Service Flag in the lobby of the Great Northern's General Offices at St. Paul shows that 5,644 employees have been called from their work and their homes to fight for their country.

With more than a fourth of its experienced personnel now in the armed forces, and without the replacements of equipment or materials and supplies which ordinarily would be available, the Great Northern, in common with other American railroads, has been called upon for an unprecedented volume of transportation service.

That the army of railroad workers on the home front has met this challenge successfully is attested by the following letter addressed to the American Railroads by Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, and James Forrestal, Under Secretary of the Navy:

> "The War and Navy Departments would appreciate it if you would express to the men and women who work on America's railroads the gratitude of the Army and Navy for the splendid job they are doing.
>
> "Since the outbreak of war the railroads have hauled 76 million carloads of freight, most of it destined for battle fronts. Millions of fighting men have been transported to training camps and embarkation ports.
>
> "The Army and Navy realize that to perform this big job, crews on trains, in shops, in yards, and along rights of way have had to work long and hard. To the men and women who have made this record movement of men and weapons possible, the Army and Navy are deeply grateful.
>

Meet Uncle Sam

Two mature women, each with a liberal education and some travel in her background, carried on a short, spirited dialogue in my hearing recently, and the high points of the tilt are still with me. One was an English woman of culture on her second extended visit in the States. The other was her niece, born and schooled in America. They were talking about national differences.

"You Americans enjoy a great many privileges that we English people do not have, even in peaceful years," said the older woman. "They are liberties which I dare say you will not be able to keep. Liberties are pleasant but there is always someone to abuse them and when they are abused too much, they are withdrawn. America is so very young! Years of experience have taught Britain much."

What Is Youth?

Said the niece: "America's form of government is actually older today than that of any big country in the world. . . Of course the United States is a younger country than England in a number of ways but, by comparison with certain other empires, Britain is quite young, too. China, for example, is a really old country with almost no liberty at all. Surely civilization does not destroy its freedoms as it advances and lead back at last to its starting place—tyranny and oppression of the unlearned masses."

There followed a brief silence. The minds of two thoughtful people had met. Obviously age and long struggles with governmental problems can not be used as indexes to a nation's progress. Age does not bring prosperity nor enlightenment. These choice blessings are lavished on free peoples. America's high standard of living for plain people is the net gain from her investment in freedom long ago.

A Good Investment

All governmental authority in America originates with the people themselves. The people are the government. Whenever a liberty is taken away from a people by some authority that rests in nobody but the governing class, that's a step toward totalitarian rule. Such yielding of power by the many to the few leads straight to dictatorship. It tends to create two distinct classes: the rulers and the ruled.

A tendency occasionally appears in sections of Washington's alphabetical bureaucracy to identify government as a thing entirely apart from the people—something different now from the well-known institutions we used to consider our government. A radio speaker who currently possesses great executive authority used this language recently: "Your government is making some specific plans to present to Congress," thus implying that Congress is no longer an integral part of our government.

Not Two Things

All of us may well be thankful, however, that Congress still considers itself a vital part of the federal government. It is, in my opinion, the most important part because it directly represents the people in whom all governmental authority rests. Actually there has been no recent remodeling of the United States' governmental structure. All three parts, legislative, executive and judicial, still exist and are empowered to exercise their constitutional functions.

American citizens who give the matter a serious thought know they neither need nor want a government set wholly apart from themselves and their elected representatives.

Our forbears bought with their blood the liberties which have paid us (their rightful heirs) richer dividends of happiness and prosperity than any other nation ever knew. The only way a dictatorship could ever be imposed upon us is for a large segment of the American people to forget that we ourselves are the government.

Tests Search Out TB

Tuberculin tests of kindergartner and primary grade children form a part of the Christmas Seal program to search out unknown cases of tuberculosis. Through the examination of these youngsters, it is often possible to find the trail to unsuspected cases of tuberculosis to which they have been exposed. Christmas Seals made possible a far-reaching effort to find, treat and prevent tuberculosis.

Holt School Notes

First, Second, Third

We have a Christmas Spelling tree for the third graders. For daily hundreds each child can place a candle or ball to trim the tree. On Friday a test is given. Each child who gets a hundred places a star on the tree. Marlene, Arlene, Vivian, Carol and Joyce placed gold stars on the tree last Friday.

The second graders have individual trees. Last Friday LaRue, Gary and Sylvia placed gold stars on their trees

We made snow flakes in Reading Class.

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

The fourth grade is studying about Eskimos. They have read many librarybooks about them.

Due to colds there were many absent last week.

We can hardly wait for the skating rink to be ready so we can skate at recess.

We have a new globe in our room We are going to use it a great deal.

The following had 100 in spelling: George Fricker, Dorothy Sagstuen Ruth Larson, Gloria Johnson and Vernon Larson.

Dorothy Sagstuen is our December raporter.

Seventh, Eighth

Those who had 100 in Spelling last week were Eleanor, Shirley, Jerome and Wilma.

Marion and Shirley have finished crocheting their "doilies" and have started on others.

The parts were given out for the play called Jake Snyders Christmas that will be given by our room at the Christmas program December 21.

The movie on archeology was very interesting.

Several are absent due to colds.

High School

Spare time last week was spent on fixing the skating rink. On Friday it was flooded for the first time.

In all English classes a period is given to the study of public speaking

CORRECT PELT HANDLING MEANS BETTER PRICES!

It is our responsibility to make full use of, and get maximum value from, the natural resources at our disposal. The rich American fur crop provides a source of income to those in all parts of the country who are interested in harvesting it.

If FURS are worth trapping at all, certainly they are worth the time and effort needed to prepare them properly, so that they will bring you maximum cash returns!

The mink and skunk pelts shown give eloquent testimony to this creed. The fact that the correctly handled ones brought from $1.00 to $7.50 more per pelt than the incorrectly prepared ones, indicates that careful pelt handling pays.

By taking the pains to follow pelt handling standards, you are preparing the goods you have to sell in the manner in which the user prefers. It is easier for him to make up uniform lots when all pelts are shaped correctly. Thus, you are following the standards preferred by your customer—the manufacturer of fur garments. By doing that, you aim at TOP prices for your skins!

At the same time, you are protecting your pelts from spoiling. Insufficiently dried skins, or those upon which too much fat is left, are likely to reach the market in a tainted condition. Naturally, such furs bring considerably less money.

Trapping 10,000 Muskrats

One of the biggest muskrat trapping harvests in northern Minnesota is now on at the Mud Lake National Wildlife Refuge east of Holt. Eight men have leases from the Federal Government for trapping muskrats and many of these men have two and three men helping them so there is a crew of about twenty men engaged in catching the little furry fellows. These rats are trapped on a half and half basis with the government furnishing the buildings for processing of the skins.

Carl B. Vogen, Refuge Manager anounced that up to the present time over 4000 pelts had been processed since the season opened Dec. 1.

Those who have trapping leases are, Peter Becklund, Rude Christenson, Oscar Christenson, Hilmer Davidson, Martin Holte, Thomas Gullickson, John Cwikla ann Stanley Cwikla. H. O. Hanson is Trapping Inspector.

Letter From Johnson Family

Following is a letter from the Ingvald Johnson family who is spending the winter at Turlock, California.

Dear friends: Just sending you greetings from California to let you know we arrived in Turlock Nov. 1st after enjoying a pleasant trip out here. We found the folks here feeling fine and the weather here since we came has been just wonderful, sunshine every day, only a little frost last night.

We spent Armistice Day, Nov. 11th up in the Mountains on a picnic with some of the relatives, a trip about 90 miles from here and had a most enjoyable day. Scenery was beautiful and we cooked our dinner in the open. Also picked Holiberries and Mountain apples.

Thanksgiving Day we had a family reunion at brother Dehards who most of you remember. He is constable in this district and seems to be very busy.

I am inclosing money for a subscription to the Holt Weekly News.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas. Sincerely,

Ingvald Johnson and family.

Those who wish to have Christmas Greeting ads in the paper please bring them in not later than Monday.

County Has Large Death Rate

Marshall County is one of the seven counties in Minnesota having the largest death rate from tuberculosis. Christmas seals work in every county for the control of tuberculosis. Let us put forth every effort to make our country the most healthful in the state.

A gratifying response in the Christmas Seal Sale has been made by local residents.

Persons who have not as yet purchased their share of tuberculosis Christmas Seals are asked by the local committee to do so at once. Every school child would be happy to sell you Seals. Larger contributions may be made to Mr. Meyer or Mrs. Hanson.

"Let no one sit town to Christmas dinner this year without first having contributed to the campaign that protects every home from tuberculosis" says the committee. "Every penny, dime and dollar spent for Christmas Seals helps safeguard our own families, our state and our nation from tuberculosis."

Given Wedding Reception

Friends, neighbors and relatives gathered at the Nazareth Lutheran church parlors on Monday evening and gave Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Larson a wedding reception. A program consisting of songs by the Peterson sisters, reading by Hazel Lunke and a talk by Rev. Hanson was given. Mr. and Mrs. Larson responded with thanks. Centering the table at which the honored couple were seated was a beautifully decorated wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom and also lighted tapers. They received many gifts.

Army Gets Another Recruit

The story goes that a father, who desired to avoid induction in military service, took a letter to his draft board written by his wife in which he attempted to prove that he maintained a bona fide family relationship and that his deferment was necessary. The man's wife wrote the following letter which he presented to the draft board:

Dear United States Army:

My husband asked me to write a recommend that he supports his family. He cannot read, so don't tell him. Just take him. He ain't no good to me. He ain't done nothing else but raise hell and drink lemon essence ever since I married him eight years ago. and I got to feed seven kids of his. Maybe you can get him to carry a gun. He's good on squirrels and eating. Take him and welcome. I need the grub and his bed for the kids. Don't tell him this but just take him as far as you can.

The draft board complied — the husbund was sent up for induction.

USELESS SPENDING

Senator Harry F. Byrd, in a recent press release, said in part:

"The United States Civil Service Commission reports as of August 31, 1942, that there were 2,606,300 employees of the United States government . . . On Armistice Day, November 11, 1918, there was a total of 917,760 civilian federal employees. We have three times that many now. In the last World War we had one civilian employee for every four and one-half members in the armed service. In this war, we have so far one civilian employee to every one and three-fourths members of the armed forces, the ratio being two and one-half times more per soldier, and we are still increasing our civilian personnel at the rate of over 3,000 daily . . . On November 11, 1918, there were thirty agencies of the government. Today there are 81 distinct agencies, many of these making no direct contribution to the war effort."

This remarkable statement should receive the careful consideration of every American citizen. When we consider that, since the release by Senator Byrd, the President has submitted his budget to Congress for the fiscal year, calling for 100 billion dollars for our war effort and nine billion additional for civic expenditures, we gain some idea of what the conduct of this war is going to mean in the tax burden of the next generation.

Curtail Civic Spending

No one wants to limit a single activity necessary to win the war, but just ordinary common sense and economy indicate that every unnecessary civic expenditure should wait until the emergency of war has passed.

Right now our new Congress is confronted with the problem of preventing excessive profits on war contracts. Present law provides for "renegotiation" of their separate contracts by the Army and Navy departments and the Maritime commission. There are some three million of these contracts, but probably not 5 per cent will show excessive profits after taxation.

The Internal Revenue department will find every case of excessive profits and, where such profits remain after taxes, can report such cases for "renegotiation." This is practical economy and does the job the most efficient way.

Industry and agriculture, both of which feel the pinch of shortage of manpower, should support Congress in any method it decides upon as practical and economical. Preventing new additions to the payrolls and cutting out useless civic expenditures and payrollers who have nothing to do that is constructive in the war effort will help solve the manpower problem and ease the burden of taxes.

Save Income Tax Records

Don't throw away any records you used in making your December 15 income tax declaration. These papers will be indispensable for figuring the final tax on March 15, says S. B. Cleland, university Farm extension economist in farm management. On that date every married person with a gross income of over $624 or single person with a gross income over $500 must make a final return.

Farmers will not be penalized for under- or overestimating their income tax, says Cleland, if their estimate of net income is not more than 33⅓ per cent under actual amount. There is no penalty for estimating the income too high, since the December 15 is really a payment on account, the real settlement for the 1943 tax to be made on or before March 15. The farmer who pays too much will get credit toward the March payment, which will include the final settlement on the 1943 tax and a partial payment on the remainder of the 1942 tax. Any additional credit the farmer may have can go toward his 1944 settlement.

Since figuring the income tax will probably be a regular part of farm business from now on, Cleland urges all farmers who are not now keeping farm records to start doing so at once. Copies of the Minnesota Farm Record Book, either the regular edition or the special Income Tax Section are available at the county extension office. Farmers who get the book now and take their inventory will be ready to start making entries on January 1.

$55,000 Cattail Crop

The entire Mud Lake National Wildlife Migratory refuge east of Holt is open to any citizen for the purpose of gathering cattails for market purposes and pickers will get the entire receipts from the sales, Carl B. Vogen, refuge manager announces. The government does not get anything from the cattail harvest, with the pickers receiving the entire proceeds of 4 cents a pound. It is estimated that there are about $55,000 worth of cattails on the refuge that can be picked and marketed. Up to the present time several parties have been picking cattails and some have made good wages.

County Sold Much Proparty

Spirited bidding for numerous parcels of city and village property featured a sale of forfeited tax properties at Warren on Monday, Dec. 6th, when 40 parcels of land were sold for a total of $9,049, according to O. J. Johnson, county land commissioner. Cash sales totaled $3,894.00. The farm land sale was light.

All officers of the Marshall County Fair were reelected at their annual meeting held recently. W. H. Holbrook of Warren was elected as a new member and assistant secretary. The organization is in fine financial standing.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The war and the crude rubber shortage have given emphasis to synthetic rubber, but for more than 70 years prominent chemists in Europe, Russia and the United States have been working on the development of this substitute for natural rubber.

One tapper can collect about six gallons of latex from a morning's tapping on a rubber plantation. This yields about 20 pounds of rubber.

The first scientific or commercial interest taken in rubber was evidenced in 1745, when Charles Marie de la Condamine made a report on this substance to the Paris Academy of Sciences.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Razor Not in Demand In China; Whiskers Few

Many Chinese men never use a razor, for little, if any, hair is found on their faces. If a Chinese fails to shave, he may grow a thin mustache and scraggly beard, but he can hardly hope for more. Except in rare cases, the beard will grow to a length of only a few inches.

To explain these facts, it can only be said that nature does not give the Chinese a rich growth of hair. The hair of the head is a different matter. It grows well on both women and men in China. It is black and stays that way until it turns gray in old age.

NEEDED CARS NEED WEED CHAINS

Uncle Sam would have used TIRE CHAINS

Whenever Uncle Sam's military vehicles run into snow, ice, mud or sand, tire chains are put on to get them through safely and on time. • The government also recognizes the importance of tire chains for farm cars and trucks under WPB Order L-201. But military needs are so great, we urge you to repair usable old chains so long as they are safe. • If you must have new ones, buy WEED CHAINS. For the best buy ask for WEED AMERICAN BAR-REINFORCED—longer mileage, better traction, greater safety, thanks to the bridge of steel on each contact link.

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

Washington, D. C.

SUPPLY OF U. S. PLANES

WASHINGTON.—Army Air Chief General "Hap" Arnold was called before a closed-door meeting of the senate Truman committee the other day to explain, among other things, why more planes weren't reaching the fighting fronts.

Arnold, while being cross-examined by the committee's number one aviation expert, Sen. Mon Wallgren of Washington, admitted one significant fact:

That the number of planes of all descriptions on our Pacific and European fighting fronts is lower than most people realize and lower than he desires, despite the fact that we are producing combat planes—bombers and fighters—at the rate of 8,000 a month.

For a while, the cross-examination of Arnold made the sparks fly.

"I'm amazed to learn that the British have more combat planes in action than we have," grilled Senator Wallgren, "though we are producing more planes than the British. Why is that?"

"We're doing the best we can," retorted Arnold angrily. "You can't expect us to send planes to combat areas unless we have trained crews to operate them. However, I can tell you that we have many more planes on the way, and ready for shipment, that will soon give us a great numerical advantage."

"That's fine," said Wallgren, "but why has it taken so long? It seems to me that we should have more than the number of planes you mention on the battle fronts when we are producing at the rate of 96,000 a year."

Arnold replied that some planes had been cracked up or damaged in training accidents in the United States, though trainer crashes were being reduced considerably. Also, many planes coming off assembly lines have to undergo "modification." For instance, planes slated for Alaskan duty have to be "winterized." Also, it takes longer than most people realize to deliver planes to combat areas.

"I'm not trying to interfere in your business, general," said the Washington senator, "but it seems to me that a pitifully small number of planes have been delivered to the fronts, considering our rate of production."

"I don't agree with you," responded Arnold hotly. "I think we've done very well under the circumstances."

The air chief went on to explain that most American pilots have a training course of 500 flying hours, compared to 150 hours for German pilots. One reason the Nazis have shortened their pilot-training courses is because they are running low on aviation gas reserves, Arnold said.

However, he did not entirely convince the committee that the ratio of planes delivered to the fighting fronts could not be considerably increased.

SYNTHETIC TIRES

Early next year, the American public will get its first real test of synthetic tires. These will not be passenger, but bus and truck tires, which will begin to come out of tire factories some time in January.

They will be hurried to the wheels of buses and trucks, now limping along on sharply reduced rations. Even in September, the allocation of 550,000 civilian bus and truck tires was inadequate. But now the figure has been reduced still further to 335,000 for November and December.

Operators of trucks and buses are worried about the new tires, knowing that early tests have shown they do not stand up under heavy loads. This in spite of the fact that they are only 70 per cent synthetic, with an admixture of 30 per cent natural rubber.

Result will be that truck and bus loads will have to be reduced all over the country. Since they are already operating above normal capacity, reduction of loads will mean reduction in the total performance of trucks and buses.

Of course, the synthetics may prove to be better than tests have shown, but the trucking industry has its fingers crossed.

BLOOD DONORS

Red Cross officials estimate that Americans are giving their blood for transfusions at the rate of one every two seconds. "We are bleeding 100,000 people a week."

But donations might be much larger if donors could be reached all over the country. Actually, there are only 33 cities where centers have been established.

"Vital to Victory"

The Service Flag in the lobby of the Great Northern's General Offices at St. Paul shows that 5,644 employees have been called from their work and their homes to fight for their country.

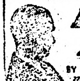
With more than a fourth of its experienced personnel now in the armed forces, and without the replacements of equipment or materials and supplies which ordinarily would be available, the Great Northern, in common with other American railroads, has been called upon for an unprecedented volume of transportation service.

That the army of railroad workers on the home front has met this challenge successfully is attested by the following letter addressed to the American Railroads by Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, and James Forrestal, Under Secretary of the Navy:

> "The War and Navy Departments would appreciate it if you would express to the men and women who work on America's railroads the gratitude of the Army and Navy for the splendid job they are doing.
>
> "Since the outbreak of war the railroads have hauled 76 million carloads of freight, most of it destined for battle fronts. Millions of fighting men have been transported to training camps and embarkation ports.
>
> "The Army and Navy realize that to perform this big job, crews on trains, in shops, in yards, and along rights of way have had to work long and hard. To the men and women who have made this record movement of men and weapons possible, the Army and Navy are deeply grateful.
>
> "Keep up the good work—for railroad work is war work; railroad service is vital to victory."

The Great Northern is proud of its representation in the fighting forces of our Country and equally proud of its nearly 30,000 men and women who are doing their utmost to assure that the sacrifices of our fighting forces shall be of lasting worth to humanity.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY



LOOKING AHEAD

BY GEORGE S. BENSON

Searcy, Arkansas

Human Frailty

There are many things I will never be quite able to understand of course, but the one puzzling me now is a rather general impression that political appointees are, by nature, honest whereas business men just naturally have to be watched. Anybody who gives the matter a serious thought knows it's not true, but the idea exists just the same.

War contracts, and how they can be handled to keep business men from picking Uncle Sam's pockets while he fights a far-flung war, has been a lively topic in Washington for two months. One of the first things the 79th Congress had to think about was repealing or revamping the famous Renegotiation Law.

An Old Subject

Renegotiation has been discussed at length three times in this column and the facts can't be reviewed in one paragraph but, in extreme brief: The law sets numerous political appointees re-figuring manufacturers' war contracts to be certain (by revising the contracts if necessary) that none of the contract holders makes too much profit.

Do you ask "How much is too much?"

Well, it is seldom more than 16 per cent or less than 1½ per cent of sales. Between these two indefinite rates the man who comes to check up is the judge. The law says so.

As you have guessed already, I am opposed to the so-called "recapture" feature of this law. I think that part of it ought to be repealed. If I may indulge in a little irony, let me say it this way: I don't think the New Deal's highly trusted scrutators ought to/be exposed to such temptations. Some naughty business man is almost certain to corrupt one of them. Money bends men's principles sometimes.

A High Ratio

The foregoing sentence is not a pointed indictment. Jesus of Nazareth, highly regarded even among his enemies as a judge of human nature, selected twelve men and one of them was (putting it mildly) irregular. I don't believe any expert working for the Army, the Navy or the Maritime Commission can hire many renegotiators and average eleven out of twelve who are strictly honest men.

My sympathy goes out to any man who finds within his grasp a lot of money he can not honorably take. For years I have served an unendowed college, working at a rate to tax human endurance. But I suspect that if I might head a renegotiation board for three months and manage to block off my conscience with novocaine, Harding College could have an endowment that would make Harvard jealous.

Nothing Fantastic

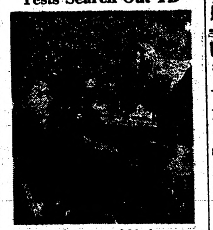
There exists one corporation, I am told, with a billion dollars of war contracts. Many much smaller firms have more than 100 million dollars in government business. Mr. Renegotiator holds the whip on profits. He can permit a firm to earn six per cent or cut it to one per cent. One fifth of his generosity, a paltry million dollars, might tempt a weak character.

If the Weak One's prospect should show no interest in such monkey-business, he need not lose heart. He can mark time and make delay. The very fact that a firm is being renegotiated may cause its stock to go down. Friends of the renegotiator then can buy a block of it on a thin margin and sell at a profit after the firm has been treated more liberally than was expected. . . . Just an idea.

Germs of Hunger

In all seriousness, I am opposed to the present working of renegotiation. I have reasons apart from bribery and corruption. Renegotiation eats up cash reserves earned by manufacturers in war work, without which they will be obliged to start laying off men as soon as the war is over. And jobless men don't buy much of the good products farmers grow. The recapture feature of this law contains the seeds of depression and poverty and want.

Tests Search Out TB



Tuberculin tests of kindergartner and primary grade children form a part of the Christmas Seal program to search out unknown cases of tuberculosis. Through the examination of these youngsters, it is often possible to find the trail to unsuspected cases of tuberculosis to which they have been exposed. Christmas Seals made possible a far-reaching effort to find, treat and prevent tuberculosis.

Holt School Notes

First, Second, Third

Marlene, Arlene and Norma in the third grade placed gold stars on the tree on Friday.

LaRue, Gary and Sylvia placed gold stars on their tree Friday.

Several have been absent in our room due to colds.

Jona Larson, Carol Wegge, LaRue Fricker, Norma Horien and Arlene Horien have perfect attendance for the second six weeks period.

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

We are disappointed because we cannot have a Christmas program but we are glad we can have the usual room party.

Many are absent due to "flu".

We are beginning our study of Australia in sixth grade.

Six weeks tests have been written.

We are making gifts for our mothers and also Christmas cards.

Some of thl new library books are here but we will not read them until after Christmas.

The following had 100 in spelling last Friday: Gloria Johnson, George Fricker, Gladys Ness and Robert Johnson.

Seventh, Eighth

We are sorry we cannot have the Christmas program.

We will have a movie called "Coast to Coast by Plane"

We are looking forward to next Thursday and Christmas vacation.

High School

High school report cards will be delayed for a few days in order to give time for completion of makeup work.

Several highschool students have succeeded in raising their grades, showing an improvement over the marks of the first six weeks. On the other hand the average student mark has decreased, and even a few F's are to be placed in red ink on the report cards.

The holiday vacation will begin December 23rd and will last until Tuesday, January 4th.

In the absense of Mrs. Trost, Mr. Nelson will take charge of the English classes,

Mr. Meyer has again become instructor in Business Training and Rev. Hanson is again teaching mathematics and history.

The flu is responsible for a higher percentage of absences in the grades and high school presenting a troublesome "make up "problem.

The Christmas progom, which was to have been given on the evening of the 21st has been indefinitely postponed on account of the many cases of illness.

HOW TO PACK AND SHIP FURS FOR BEST RESULTS

When the trapper ships his furs correctly, he aims for speedy delivery, which means quicker returns. Follow these suggestions for best results:

See that all the heavy grease and surplus fat have been removed from pelts so they won't spoil while enroute, either in warm weather or in warm express or postal rooms.

In packing, it is best wherever possible to place skins flat, one on top of another. Never slip one pelt inside of another; the one inside may be overlooked. Don't let grease or skin-side of pelt come in contact with fur-side of other pelts.

Ship furs in burlap or cloth wrapping, or in box with a few holes punched in sides to allow ventilation, which helps prevent spoilage. Never wrap green furs in paper. It prevents circulation of air and is likely to make them spoil. Do not ship furs in air-tight containers.

Follow the illustrations in shipping—always attaching to your bundle any instructions regarding your shipment. Insert them in a sealed envelope carrying first-class postage. Sew or glue envelope to the outside of the package. This applies either to express or parcel post shipping. Make certain your name and address appear on the shipment.

Ship by Express or Insured Parcel Post.

HOLT WEEKLY NEWS

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor

Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, Dec. 24, 1943.

Volume [illegible] Number 34

Minnesota Frontier Christmas

A Swedish traveler, Hugo Nisbeth, arriving in Minnesota in December, 1872, found St. Paul stores aglitter with articles for the Christmas trade. The public schools were busy with preparations for their Christmas trees and parties.

Nisbeth's description of the Christmas season in Minnesota is given in his Tva Ar i Amerika (Two years in America) published in Stockholm in 1874, a copy of which is one of the rare books in the library of the Minnesota Historical Society. The book has been translated by Roy R. Swanson of the St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch.

Nisbeth stopped in St. Paul en route to visit some of his country men on the Minnesota prairies, After traveling on a St. Paul and Pacific train to Litchfield, Nisbeth hired a sled, and set out across the roadless snow-covered prairie, with only a pocket compass and the blue smoke columns from the scattered cabins as his guide. Toward nightfall on the day before Christmas Eve, he perceived a sod house, "one of the very best of its kind" which proved to be the home of the man he was seeking.

"The owner had only half dug himself into the groumd " writes Nisbeth. Light was admitted through a single small window. "I was received by him and his friendly wife with that cordiality which I have been accustomed to find among my countrymen on the prairie." and an invitation to stay over Christmas Eve was immediately forthcoming.

On the day before Christmas the chores were finished early and a huge ham was soon sputtering over the fire. A small sheaf of unthreshed wheat, too, was set out for the birds' Christmas. The noon meal was then spread. "The bread that we dipped in the kettie was freshly baked and tasty, and the fat chicken that was later served in sort of a stewed pie form" awakened the delight of the children.

Then came the celebration! No Christmas tree was to be had in that treeless region, but two candles stood on the white covered table and round these were placed a multitude of Christmas cakes in various shapes made by the housewife, and such small presents as these pioneers were able to afford. The ham stood in the place of honor.

The gifts were distributed and the three year old son was soon happily galloping over the dirt floor of the sod house on a wooden horse brought by Nisbeth. The reading of the Christmas story from the Bible concluded the evening.

"And later, from the corner of the room where the housewife's kind hands had made my bed, I heard the small voice of the youngest child. still clutching his wooden horse, repeating after his mother, 'Good night, kind Jesus."

MERRY CHRISTMAS

WHAT two words on human tongue are more heart-warming than those! They not only represent a friendly greeting, but in them are summed up the whole spirit of the Yuletide—brightness and laughter, joy of living and joy of giving, health and happiness, peace on earth and good will to all men.

It is a greeting which we will hear often in this community of ours during these happy days of the Christmas season. We will hear it on our streets, in our stores, along our country roads and in our homes. For ours is a friendly community and nowhere is that friendly greeting more sincere. It is not possible, however, for each of us to say "Merry Christmas!" to everyone and thus complete the happy circle of Yuletide good cheer.

But there is one who has that rare privilege, one who has been a welcome visitor at the firesides of the homes in this community throughout the year and who now claims the right to be the first to wish you joy at this joyous time. That one is your Home Paper.

So your Home Paper carries from you to all the community and from all the community to you this friendly greeting:

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Stigler-Skjerping Wedding

Lucille M. Stigler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stigler of Milwaukee, became the bride of Sgt. Adolph Skjerping, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Skjerping on Tuesday, December 14.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 10 o'clock by Rev. H. J. Lofy in the Holy Apostle church, the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's gown was of white slipper satin with a sweetheart neckline. The crown of her long veil was set with rhinestones. She carried white roses and sweet peas.

The grooms sister Gladys, who was maid of honor, wore light blue taffeta princess style gown and a light blue tiara in her hair. She carried yellow roses. Her only jewelry was a gold cross a gift of the bride.

The grooms attendant was the brides brother, Joseph Stigler Jr.

After the ceremony a dinner and supper was given by the brides grandmother Mrs. Emma Small at her Hales Corners home The couple spent their honeymoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Skjerping.

The bride is a graduate of Wisconsin State Teachers College. Mrs. Skjerping will continue her position at Blackhawk Mfg. Co. while the groom returns to his station at March Field, California. The groom just recently returned from foreign services in the Armed Forces.

LouAnn Muriel, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lubitz, was baptised at her parental home on Sunday evening with Rev. Hanson officiating. She was born on Nov. 15, 1943. Her sponsors were: Delores Larson, JoAnn Benitt, J. P. Augustine and Reuben Benitt. In honor of the occasion, the following besides the officiating parties were entertained at supper: Mr. and Mrs. John Benitt, Evelyn Stienhauer and Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson and sons Harold and Luther.

A Becoming Frock Changes That Chair

IF A chair is all legs, angles and curves in the wrong places, a slip cover in the right colors and cut to bring out graceful lines and cover defects, will give any dining room chair set a new personality.

That was the treatment given a set of old chairs like the one shown here. A two-piece frock was planned to repeat tones in the wall paper of the room in which the chairs were to be used. The bold stripes of the putty tan, green and wine red material gave just the right contrast with the flowered pattern on the wall. Narrow green fringe was used for edging and the sketch shows how the two pieces of the slip cover were made.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Water used in a rubber water bottle should never have a temperature higher than 140 degrees Fahrenheit. Boiling water ages rubber prematurely. There should be no air in the bottle when in use if long service is to be expected.

The Amazon Valley, once the world's chief source of rubber, is expected to produce about 35,000 tons of crude in 1943, during which year 50,000 laborers will have been established in the rubber forests. Their contribution will be but a small but important part of our nation's rubber requirements.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Steady Progress Marks Allied Drive In Italy; Repulse Nazi Counter Blows; Steel Producers Open Wage Parleys As CIO Asks 17c an Hour Pay Boost

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CONGRESS:

Surplus Funds

Government agencies with unspent appropriations would have to turn their surpluses over to the U. S. treasury under an amendment adopted by the U. S. senate.

Sponsored by Sen. Kenneth McKeller (Tenn.) the amendment was part of a $308,000,000 deficiency appropriations bill later sent to a joint senate-house committee for settlement of differences between the two congressional branches.

The amendment was directly aimed against the budget bureau, which recently took control over $13,000,000,000 saved by the army out of its $71,000,000,000 appropriation. The amendment also prohibited the army from transferring 10 per cent of appropriations to other funds.

Said Senator McKeller: ". . . We (congress) don't want to surrender our power to appropriate and designate the purpose for which . . . money shall be spent."

Remove Feed Duties

Frank Carlson

To encourage additional feed imports for shortage areas, the house passed a resolution removing duties on wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye, flax, cottonseed and hay for a 90-day period.

Although approved by a 255 to 55 vote, the resolution was bitterly contested by many middlewestern congressmen, spearheaded by Representative Frank Carlson (Kan.) who said: ". . . It will set a dangerous precedent by removing tariffs. It places the American farmer in competition with farmers of every nation of the world that produces these crops." Furthermore, they contended the action would not increase present imports, already hampered by shipping difficulties.

In advocating passage of the resolution, proponents declared current feed shortages are causing a loss of millions of pounds of milk and poultry production.

LABOR:

Open Steel Parley

With the United States Steel company leading the way, more than 150 steel producers agreed to enter into wage negotiations with the CIO, representing 500,000 workers in the industry.

Employing 166,000 workers, the United States Steel company is the nation's greatest producer, operating through five subsidiaries which turned out 21,064,000 tons last year.

CIO demands a 17 cents an hour pay boost to offset rises in living costs which have allegedly increased 23 per cent since January, 1941, while wage raises have been limited to 15 per cent. Present hiring rates are 78 cents an hour.

In the meantime, the independent union of the National Steel company asked a minimum wage of $1 an hour for 20,000 employees, who thrice previously had been granted wage increases while CIO and other steel producers haggled over terms.

Senate Votes Boost

An eight cents an hour raise for 1,100,000 non-operating rail workers was approved by the senate by a vote of 74 to 4 and sent on to the house for consideration.

Composed of clerks, machinists, and cleaners, the unions originally asked for a 20 cent increase. A special board appointed by the President recommended an over-all eight cent raise, but Economic Stabilizer Vinson opposed it, proposing a substitute plan embracing a sliding scale ranging from four to ten cents more per hour. This latter schedule would cost the railroads 18 million dollars a year less than the flat eight cent raise.

Opposition to the raise in congress was based on the anti-inflation policy of the administration, Vinson stating that in his opinion, the eight cent increase is a violation of the "Little Steel" formula, limiting wage increases to 15 per cent over January, 1941, levels.

Sen. Clyde Reed (Kan.) said that if the senate rejected the plan the workers would set a strike date, and then the government would have to seize the railroads "within four or five weeks."

Battleship Wisconsin

As more than 30,000 cheered, the navy's 52,600 ton super-battleship, Wisconsin, was launched at Philadelphia, Pa.

In the making for 33 months, the Wisconsin cost $90,000,000. With a speed of 33 knots, the huge warhorse will pack nine 16-inch guns, and carry as many antiaircraft fighters in an area less than one-tenth the size of an average city block as an entire antiaircraft regiment.

With a bow towering higher than a five-story building, the Wisconsin is one of the navy's three super-battleships, the others being the New Jersey and the Iowa.

ITALY:

Overlook Rome Road

Having fought their way to the crest of mountain ridges overlooking the road to Rome, doughboys from Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army slowly pushed down the slopes toward the flatlands around the enemy's key bastion of Cassino.

But in this sector, as well as the British sector along the Adriatic coast to the east, the Nazis bitterly counter-attacked, throwing in strong armored forces against Gen. Bernard Montgomery's men in an effort to slow his march toward the important center of Pescara, with its highway leading eastward to Rome.

As General Clark's doughboys edged forward, they left scattered points of resistance behind them, necessitating further action to remove these hot-beds and secure their lines. Continuing action, the Allies' air force pounded Nazi supply depots above Rome, which were being used to stock the enemy in his winter line.

Mihailovitch vs. Broz

Mihailovitch

While it was reported that Jugoslavia's Chetnik leader Gen. Draga Mihailovitch intended to throw his forces against his fellow-countryman Gen. Tito Broz's Partisan guerrillas for setting up a state in opposition to King Peter's government-in-exile, it was revealed that the British were favoring Broz because he allegedly was offering greater resistance to the Germans.

Broz

Thus did the garbled Jugoslav situation take a new twist. Britain's support of the communist-backed Broz came after its formal recognition of King Peter's government, but in explaining its about-face, Britain said its policy was to let the people of occupied countries select their own leadership, and late reports indicated Broz had 300,000 behind him compared with Mihailovitch's 30,000.

SUITOR: A 95-year-old war worker in St. Louis says that after the war he is going to seek another wife. He has been married five times so far.

DRUGS: The Red Cross has arranged for shipment of drugs worth $97,000 to neutral Switzerland, whence they will be trans-shipped to Holland for distribution by Red Cross units.

CHEWING GUM: A cud of chewing gum is credited with averting a bomber crash over Italy. Flak punctured the gas tank of an A-26 medium bomber, and the crew prepared for a risky belly landing, as the precious fuel drained away. But two gunners patched the hole with chewing gum, adhesive tape, and gauze bandages, and the plane landed safely at its home port.

First Choice in the Service

If you've ever noticed the top of a Marine Officer's visor cap, you've seen on it something you won't find on any other cap worn in Uncle Sam's service—a neat "X" of looped braid.

There's a story back of that braided "X", and it goes back more than 150 years, to a time shortly after the U. S. Marines were first organized.

In those days of sailing ships, naval battles often ended in close hand-to-hand fighting, as the crew of one ship tried to board the other—and Marines, of course, were in the thick of the fight. Some were in the boarding party, and some were posted in the rigging to fire down on the enemy. It was because of those men firing from high on the masts that Marine officers—whose uniforms from above resembled the enemy's — fixed "X'S" on their hats.

In other words, that braid meant to the Marines in the rigging, "X marks the spot—not to shoot at!"

Since those days, the "X" on the cap has become a standard part of the Marines' uniform. Another piece of "standard equipment" you'll notice among Marines these days—whether they're wearing dress uniform or combat dungarees—is the American cigarettes they carry with them wherever they go. In all those news pictures you've seen of Uncle Sam's fighting men, snapped as they are relaxing while "off duty," you'll find that in most cases they will be smoking a cigarette. And what brand do they prefer? Well, actual sales records show that the favorite with men in the Marines—as in the Navy—is Camel. Likewise, according to the sales records, Camels are first choice with men in the Army.

Fighting men who have come back from jungles, deserts, and mountains—wherever Uncle Sam's forces are stationed — give one pretty good reason for this choice. They say that Camels stay fresh—that out in the jungles of Guadalcanal, for instance, the Camels they get are actually just as fresh-tasting and full-flavored as the ones they used to get back home.

Of course, the millions of men in training camps here at home want their cigarettes just as much as soldiers. Your dealer now has Camels in special Christmas cartons, gay and colorful—and he will be glad to wrap them for you for mailing.—Adv.

PROMPT BUYING OF PLANT FOOD IS KEY TO BIGGER '44 CROP

CHICAGO.—The wartime slogan, "Food will win the war," might logically be amended to "Plant food will win the war," since our nation's fertilizer supply has taken such an important role in agricultural production, according to a statement made public by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Farmers, as well as food production experts, realize that the use of fertilizer is one of the most effective means of obtaining an increased agricultural output to meet the great war needs of the present," says the statement. "The acreage available for food production is limited. Farm help is so short as to make another vital hazard. And, finally, present machinery can handle only a given number of acres.

"High yields per acre are thus necessary to obtain the greatest possible output from the land, the available labor and the machinery that is usable. This increased production can be aided by equitable distribution of available plant food resources where they will make the greatest contribution to the food growing campaign. Farmers are accepting their responsibility for the success of such a program. In fact they are taking on the extra load with cheerfulness and forethought.

"As matters now stand, the fertilizer supply is limited by lack of certain mineral elements, as some scarcities already exist in the amounts of potash and superphosphate available. Lend-lease commitments, military needs and the requirements of industry have reduced the quantities of these materials which can be delivered to producers of mixed fertilizers or to farmers.

"Added to this situation are labor shortages in fertilizer factories and the transportation crises faced by rail and truck lines that haul supplies to the factories and the finished product to the farms.

"Only thru very close cooperation among farmers, fertilizer dealers and producers can the fullest benefits of this present plant food supply be secured for coming wartime crops. Fertilizer producers are doing their part by trying to turn all available raw goods into the properly processed and mixed seasoned grades as rapidly as they can. They further are distributing the prepared materials in the most effective manner and adjusting their production schedules to a year-around rather than a seasonal basis—a practice which crowds factory storage space beyond capacity.

"Farmers can do their part by listing their needs early, placing their orders promptly, taking shipments of their plant food well in advance of the crop season, and storing the fertilizer on their own farms until it is needed for use on the soil."

All the Holt women gathered at the church parlors Thursday evening for their annual Christmas party sponsored by Circle 5 and 6. A social evening was enjoyed, with refreshments and exchange of gifts. The Dorcas girls held a similar party on Monday evening and the Luther League Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hanson
Holt, Minnesota

Dear Friends:

Please accept this little token of appreciation for sending me the Holt Weekly News. I enjoy the message it brings from the place that has so many dear memories. The names and places mentioned in the Holt Weekly link me and my family to many dear friends back there in those early years.

Something interesting came up this week that brought Dagny and me back to our parsonage home in Holt. Dagny was asked to sing a couple of lullabys at the Ladies Aid gathering and she wished she had something with a Christmas message. I told her about the lullaby that she always loved to have me sing for her when she was just a little girl, and wouldn't take her afternoon nap unless I rocked and sang for her. This one was a Christmas Lullaby telling of the Angels hovering over babies when mother put them to bed and how a mother in Bethlehem long ago laid her baby in a manger. He who was the Lord of all had to come here, a stranger. It tells of His love for little ones and how He watches them from His Heavenly home and wants all little children someday to be with him there forever. She got the music for it and sang it for the Aid here at Portland Central Lutheran. Dagny told the group that one of her numbers would be a lullaby that her mother sang to her when she was a little girl in Holt, Minnesota.

Evangeline and I are spending the winter here in the west with Mr. and Mrs. Vasvig, (Dagny) of Portland, and Mr. and Mrs. Nace (Florence) of Tacoma, Wash., a distance of about three hours by train. Evangeline is attending High School here in Portland.

I now have three granddaughters and three grandsons.

Myrtle is in her third year of Nurses training at Minneapolis.

Esther is in the Army Nurse Corps now somewhere in India. She in with the evacuation corps bringing wounded from the hospital there back to the homeland.

You and many others of the Holt people have children now in service too and know what it is to be concerned about their whereabouts. May they be courageous and strong and faithful in serving their country, and may we all often meet at the Mercy Seat in prayer for our dear ones asking God's guidance and watchful care over them wherever they are on land, sea or in the air. For with Him they are in good hands even in the greatest of danger.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Hanson, if you have space, I would like to put in a New Years greeting together with the news of our whereabouts to the people in Holt and vicinity who know and remember us.

The children join me in wishing them all a very Happy and Blessed New Year.

Sincerely,
Mrs. M. B. Ordahl

Fourth War Loan Drive

Marshall County's quota for the Fourth War Loan drive will be $557,000.00 or $175,500 less than for the Third War Loan when the quota was $732,500.

This new quota was announced to the Marshall County War Finance committee at a meeting at Hotel Warren Friday evening following a dinner when plans for conducting the campaign which opens on January 18 will continue through February 29, were discussed.

The state quota for the Fourth War Loan will be $200,000,000, of which amount $194,000,000 is expected to be sold to individuals and $96,000,000 to corporations. The State quota of Series E Bonds is $64,000,000 which is $4000,000 more than the E Bond quota during the September drive.

Marshall county residents have another big job ahead of them in meeting this new assigned quota during the Fourth War Loan, but residents of the county have established a habit of meeting its obligations to the war effort with a smile, whether it be Red Cross, Salvage, War Fund campaigns or food production goals, and we feel certain that Marshall County will again go over the top next month" said O. M. Mattson, chairman of the county committee.

Following is the quota for Holt district of which George Fricker is chairman.

Agdar	$6,000
East Valley	3,000
Excel	15,000
Holt Twp.	5,000
New Solum	7,000
Holt Village	3,000
District Total	$39,000

FARMERS ARE TOLD REASONS FOR BUYING PLANT FOOD AT ONCE

CHICAGO.—Threats of a possible freight car shortage plus a traffic jam menacing the nation's already overloaded trucking facilities, were cited as reasons why farmers should place their orders as soon as possible for supplies of fertilizer for their wartime crops.

"The tightness of the freight car situation," says a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, "is matched by the difficulties faced by motor truck transportation. The result is that freight shipping facilities of both rail and truck lines are dangerously overloaded.

"But transportation is not the only complicating factor affecting fertilizer distribution. Labor is so scarce at factories that manufacturers face unheard of difficulties. At the same time shortages in supplies of available materials are becoming more serious because of munitions' requirements and the demands of lend-lease.

"In view of these facts, the cooperation of farmers in determining their fertilizer needs and ordering their plant food at once is essential if vital supplies are to be made available when and where they are most needed for winning the battle on the food front. Buying fertilizer early is simply good business these days.

"Victory for American arms depends as much on farm production as it does on guns."

Jap Defensive Positions in Pacific Crumble Under New Allied Invasion; Senate Studies Revised Tax Measure; Government Acts to Halt Rail Tie-Up

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Goin' Back—Brought to the Ukraine following its capture in 1941, these German farmers left with their possessions when Nazi armies fell back before the Reds' 1943 offensive.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:

New Landing

One day after U. S. bombers had dumped 350 tons of explosives on Arawe on New Britain island, U. S. warships moved shoreward to the enemy base and pumped big shells into the defenses, even as planes returned to assist in the bombardment.

After this terrific crescendo, U. S. doughboys swarmed ashore to establish a beachhead on this strategic island, center of Japanese shipping for supplying its embattled forces on New Guinea and Bougainville.

By landing on Arawe, U. S. forces drove a wedge into Jap positions on Cape Gloucester to the west and Gasmata to the east, where the enemy has established airfields to help cover the barge operations with which he feeds supplies to his troops in this area by traveling along the jungle shorelines by night.

While the U. S. stormed Arawe, heavy bombers continued to smack the Marshalls, small Jap island holdings in the central Pacific.

RAILROADS:

Strike Called

With 97.7 per cent of the operating railroad union members voting to strike to enforce their demands for higher wages and with the walkout date set for December 30, the government acted quickly to prevent transportation interruption.

Said spokesmen for the 350,000 trainmen, firemen, enginemen, engineers, conductors and switchmen who have demanded a 30 per cent wage increase with a minimum boost of $3 daily: "It is a strike against inflation for the privileged few and deflation for the many."

To meet the crisis which was provoked by the unions' rejection of an emergency board's award of a 32-cents a day increase, the government's national mediation board summoned both union and rail officials to meet to settle differences.

Meanwhile, over 1,000,000 non-operating rail union members awaited final congressional action on a resolution granting them an eight-cents-an-hour pay boost over the U. S. stabilization director's objection.

BRITAIN:

Miners Ask Raise

Seeking to boost average weekly earnings from $16.60 for underground employees to $24, and from $13.40 for surface employees to $22, Britain's Mine Workers federation planned to take their case to a government panel if employers rejected their demands.

Because of possible coal shortages, the government recently cut home rations for the fuel by 20 per cent, and it was anticipated that any strike by the 690,000 miners might result in further reductions.

Child Delinquency

Like the U. S., Britain has its juvenile delinquency, and most of it is attributed to lack of adequate supervision because of parental occupation in the war effort.

Juvenile delinquency has increased from the prewar rate of 4 per 1,000 to 9 per 1,000, principally because thousands of fathers are in the armed forces, one out of four mothers are holding full time jobs, and inadequate rations compel families to eat at least one meal away from home.

ITALY:

Action in Air

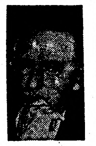
Connecting link between Germany and Italy, Europe's historic Brenner pass was pounded by waves of U. S. bombers, seeking to disrupt the rail lines feeding Nazi armies to the south.

By striking at the pass, the bombers countered a successful Nazi air raid on the southeastern Italian port of Bari, in which 30 German planes whizzed in at low level and sank 17 Allied cargo vessels lying at anchor in the harbor.

On the ground, U. S. and British troops clambered forward over mountainous country toward Rome in sleety weather. Fighting bitterly from strong defenses in the hills, and throwing armored formations into action on the level plains, the Nazis succeeded in slowing Allied advances.

CONGRESS:

Tax Bill



Sen. George

Tacking on an additional 144 million dollars, the senate finance committee approved a new 2 billion, 284 million dollar tax bill which, if passed by congress, will boost U. S. revenues to 43 billion dollars yearly.

Written under Sen. Walter George's chairmanship, the senate bill requires payment of the 3 per cent Victory tax by everybody with income over $624 a year, and raises levies on amusements, travel, alcoholic beverages, cosmetics, furs, luggage, toilet articles and other luxuries.

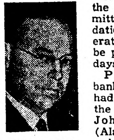
Also included in the bill was a provision requiring labor organizations and farm co-operatives to file financial statements annually.

More Whisky

As the senate's liquor investigating committee charged that big distilleries ". . . are using the war emergency to get control of the wine and beer industry," a federal grand jury called on Hiram Walker & Sons, Seagram & Sons, National Distillers Products Corp. and Schenley to present records of the companies' stock organizations, including their wineries and breweries, and their distribution and merchandising practices.

Subsidies

Action in the senate on the tangled subsidy question became further tangled with the banking committee's recommendation that consideration of subsidies be postponed for 60 days.



Sen. Taft

Previously, the banking committee had turned down the proposal of Sen. John Bankhead (Ala.) to abolish subsidies under which the government reduces consumers' retail prices by paying processors the difference for their charges, and had also tabooed the suggestion of Sen. Robert Taft (Ohio) to limit subsidies to a half billion annually instead of one billion.

RUSSIA:

Drive in North

While Russian and German troops slugged at each other in the central and southern sectors, the Nazis reported 100,000 Reds attacked to the north, in what they said was a preliminary move to a major winter drive for the Baltic sea.

By driving to the Baltic, the Reds would split the Germans' northern armies from those of the south, and also give them a base from which to attack enemy shipping making use of the sea to supply its armies in the area.

In the Ukraine, both sides gave ground grudgingly under heavy blows. The Nazis pressed forward toward picturesque and domed Kiev, while the Reds pounded out gains, farther to the south in the Dnieper bend.

* * *

As of December 1, 176,045,000 pounds of butter were in cold storage, and other stocks included 177,110,000 pounds of American cheese; 197,382,000 pounds of poultry; 376,072,000 pounds of pork; 183,096,000 pounds of beef; 31,074,000 pounds of lamb and mutton, and 1,762,000 cases of eggs.

TRANSPORTATION:

Parts Needed

Trucks, railroad equipment, buses and tires are wearing out and replacements must be made if the nation's transportation system is to carry record loads in 1944, the Truman investigating committee asserted.

Particularly acute is the reduced stock of truck parts, especially in view of the longer use of vehicles and greater demand for repairs, the committee said. Low inventories further were aggravated by the government's scrap drive, in which many cars were junked from which parts might have been salvaged.

Railroads have been hampered by lack of enough new rails and slowdowns in locomotive production because of priority regulations, the committee declared. Because of the critical situation in lumber brought about by military purchases, price controls affecting operations and labor shortages, ties available for railroads will fall below needs in 1944, the committee said.

* * *

On September 30, 2,960,026 civilians were on the government payroll, a drop of 32,121 from the previous month. It also was revealed that 263,637 persons were serving without compensation or as $1-a-year men.

CIVILIAN GOODS:

Study Output

Following the War Production board's initial announcement that 15 per cent more civilian goods would be manufactured during the first three months of 1944 than in the last quarter of this year, it was later revealed that WPB was changing certain aspects of its program after a survey of needs of 7,000 homes.

Studies have been made to determine what quantity of electric irons, washing machines, refrigerators, trucks and automobiles can be made, and what plants will be able to produce the goods.

It was also revealed that the civilian requirements agency of the WPB will play an important role in determining policy when industry is faced with reconversion. Although reconversion is expected to create unemployment, much hardship should be relieved because the shift will be gradual, and consumers' demands should result in quick rehiring by reconverted plants.

Taking advantage of the lowest level of prices for the year, corn belt buyers purchased an almost record volume of stockers and feeders during November. In eight states, in-shipments totaled 383,000 compared with the all-high of 391,000 in 1942.

ARMS OUTPUT:

Keeps Soaring

Despite a reduction in output of ammunition, U. S. war production in November soared above the previous record month of October, with the present rate 550 per cent over 1941.

Declaring problems of manpower, design changes and material shortages have been largely overcome, the War Production board said gains in terms of dollar value were recorded for aircraft, communication and electronic equipment, shipbuilding, guns and combat motor vehicles. Ammunition output was down 2 per cent, chiefly reflecting a 13 per cent drop for small arms.

Indicative of the emphasis on production of heavy bombers, average air frame weight per plane in November was 8,130 pounds, compared with 7,560 pounds during preceding months. Output of aerial bombs increased 11 per cent, reflecting the intensification of the Allies' bombing operations on the world fronts.

INFLUENZA:

Cases of influenza in the nation increased 500 per cent in the week ended December 11, according to U. S. Public Health figures. Reports for the week from every state department excepting Maine's showed a total of 23,724 cases, five times as many as in the week before.

Federal health service officials stated that there was no particular cause for concern, as the new cases are of the same mild type of the disease that has been prevalent since the epidemic began in the fall.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

FLU: Almost a thousand people died of influenza in Great Britain last week, the highest since the epidemic began. In the previous week 709 succumbed.

NURSES: Plans to conscript registered nurses for service with the armed forces have been dropped, Representative Bolton said, after a conference with war department officials.

HONESTY: A 43-year-old Briton of American descent has been sentenced by a London court to nine months' imprisonment for receiving stolen goods. His name is Abraham Lincoln, and he claims to be a grandnephew of "Honest Abe." Lincoln was charged with receiving a calculating machine which he knew was stolen from U. S. army headquarters.

Sensational New Dry Yeast Now on the Market

An amazing new fast-rising dry yeast for baking that keeps without refrigeration has been placed on the market here by the Fleischmann people whose fresh yeast has been a household favorite for four generations.

The new yeast, called Fleischmann's Fast Rising Dry Yeast, is simple to use and because of its fast action, does away with old-fashioned, over-night baking methods. Moreover, it is especially suited to these times because since it keeps without refrigeration, housewives can keep a supply for weeks or even months right on their pantry shelves to be used when needed.

In an area where the product was recently placed on the market, according to a recent survey, eight out of ten housewives voted this new yeast the best dry yeast they had ever tested. They discovered that it saved baking time and gave consistent, dependable, uniform results. The new yeast comes packed in small air-tight packages and is inexpensive.—Adv.

Birds as Masons

Some birds show great ingenuity in the handling of clay and mortar.

The widely distributed baker-birds build oven-shaped structures of clay, planted in the most blatant manner in exposed positions, where they are taken to be lumps of stone by the hungry night-prowling beasts. These clay nests take several months to construct, and become so hard that a hammer must be employed to get at the eggs.

The cock-hornbill incarcerates his lady in a hollow tree and bricks up the opening with clay, leaving only a space sufficient for the passing of food through to her.

Kidneys Must Work Well-
For You To Feel Well
24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.
If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.
Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Indexing Names

The latest system for indexing personal names enables a clerk to locate quickly even those that sound alike but are written differently, says Collier's, such as Kelly with 14 spellings, Snyder with 29, and Burke which is also written Bork, Byrk, Bhourque and 36 other ways. Each entry is listed alphabetically under the first name in the section containing all surnames with the same chief consonant sounds. Hence, the card for Lily "Burke," however spelled, would be filed in section Brk under Lily.

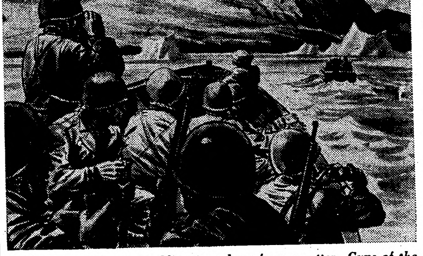
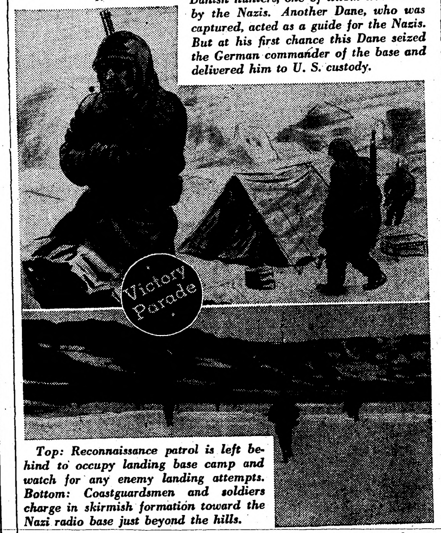
Kicking Nazis From Greenland

Vital war information was reaching Germany from a post not far from the North American continent. A Nazi radio and weather base was operating in the Arctic off the coast of Greenland. It was solidly built and its occupants, hidden by blizzards and arctic wastes, expected to remain permanently. But the Nazis were surprised by vigilant Danes who spotted the base, battled its occupants and got word to the United States. Soon U. S. troops penetrated the arctic wastes and smashed the Nazi nest. The campaign is shown in the following sketches by Norman Thomas, coast guard combat artist, and photographs taken at the base.



Coastguardsmen and soldiers go ashore from a cutter. Guns of the cutter cover the landing. This landing was preceded by a heroic fight by Danish hunters, one of whom was killed by the Nazis. Another Dane, who was captured, acted as a guide for the Nazis. But at his first chance this Dane seized the German commander of the base and delivered him to U. S. custody.



Top: Reconnaissance patrol is left behind to occupy landing base camp and watch for any enemy landing attempts. Bottom: Coastguardsmen and soldiers charge in skirmish formation toward the Nazi radio base just beyond the hills.

Besides a radio station, the enemy post included a power house, emergency generator, machine gun emplacements and food caches.

German equipment is examined by U. S. soldiers. Some Germans got away in planes, it was believed.

12 DESIGNS

NOT all the Pennsylvania Dutch were free-hand artists and you may not be either. The early Dutch artisans often used stencils for the main part of a motif and added a few flourishes to give a free-hand effect. You may do that too or you may stencil the scrolls and flourishes on chairs, chests and gay gifts until you get the feel of this type of decoration.

All of these quaint motifs are symbolic. That is the Dove of Peace that you see in the upper left corner of the sketch. The tulip symbolizes Lily Time or the golden age of peace and plenty promised the Dutch settlers in the New World. The pomegranate bud and fruit symbolized God's bounty. The blade, the flower, the seed and the heart of man were symbols used in decorating furniture, pottery, glass and tin. "Hex" signs were for luck and to keep away evil.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears has prepared stenciling designs for 12 authentic Pennsylvania Dutch motifs with color guide and directions. There is a large design for cupboard doors, designs for chairbacks, dresser drawers and chests. Also borders and small motifs for decorating bottles, boxes, jugs and tinware. These designs may be used many times for gifts and for bright touches in every room in the house. Ask for Pattern 262 and enclose 15 cents. Address:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
By the end of this year almost 50% of the tires now on war workers' cars in Ohio are likely to be completely worn out under normal use, according to a survey which showed that war workers faced a crisis in their motor transportation. Failure to have tires recapped in time is one factor responsible for this situation.
Use of nylon cord instead of cotton or rayon has made possible the manufacture by B. F. Goodrich of an airplane tire that conserves materials, yet provides extra strength and light weight. Nylon cords in motor vehicle tires are well advanced in the experimental stage.

Looking Ahead

First Resource

One great general, however heroic, is something less than an army. It takes more than one progressive farmer to make a rich agricultural country. One illustrious scholar is no substitute for an enlightened people. Average greatness is what counts when you compare nations, and America has average greatness.

The crisis has passed in the cruelest of all wars because of American competence. Italy has changed sides, the Germans are falling back and Japan is waxing pale. Turning the tide of battle on tropical island, Russian plain and African desert was achieved in the factories of the United States of America where today half the arms and munitions made in the world are being turned out.

Not Super-Men

Ours is an exceptional people. Four years ago the United States, a nation at peace, was making only one percent of the arms and munitions used in the world. Now we are producing as much as our allies and our enemies combined. The gain is startling. Such a changeover would have been impossible anywhere but in America. Alert resourcefulness born of freedom and self-reliance has grown robust under the competitive system of Private Enterprise.

Uncle Sam's most valuable resource is, if you please, resourcefulness. America's vaunted superiority in fertile crop-land and rich veins of ore is largely oratory. Our natural resources are great but they can be approximated in three or four foreign countries. Moreover our population is small among world powers. Yet we turn the tide of battle: Why? Because no other nation has more than half of America's ability to produce.

The Power to Win

May I repeat a few figures? They are worth repeating!

America's industrial production per man-hour is twice as big as England's and three times that of continental Europe, six times Japan's and more than ten times as great as that of India or China. Our average worker is competent and so is the farmer who, under handicaps, has kept workers and fighters fed. Private Enterprise has developed a great middle class which makes a great nation.

Historians will glorify the resourceful shop-worker and farmer for indispensable contributions to victory. Our people have done an amazing job, fighting with Private Enterprise. The next real contest (equally important and maybe harder to win) will come when we start fighting for Private Enterprise; a struggle that is certain to come. Already some people are advocating stricter government management of industry after the war.

Worth Defending

It behooves us to protect our economic system as a soldier protects his weapon. When our enemies have lost their war, the world will know that Private Enterprise won it. Power-crazed people at home and abroad will understand that Americans can't be forced to accept dictatorship until Private Enterprise has been crippled.

Our system is not perfect. Private Enterprise is subject to criticism; no doubt to improvement. Just the same, measured by results, there is no better economic system anywhere in use or on record. Private Enterprise has made America great with a prosperous, enlightened and resourceful people able to do big jobs in a hurry and turn defeat into victory. Every suggested change should be studied with critical caution and discreet deliberation.

PROMPT BUYING OF PLANT FOOD IS KEY TO BIGGER '44 CROP

CHICAGO.—The wartime slogan, "Food will win the war," might logically be amended to "Plant food will win the war," since our nation's fertilizer supply has taken such an important role in agricultural production, according to a statement made public by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Farmers, as well as food production experts, realize that the use of fertilizer is one of the most effective means of obtaining an increased agricultural output to meet the great war needs of the present," says the statement. "The acreage available for food production is limited. Farm help is so short as to make another vital hazard. And, finally, present machinery can handle only a given number of acres.

"High yields per acre are thus necessary to obtain the greatest possible output from the land, the available labor and the machinery that is usable. This increased production can be aided by equitable distribution of available plant food resources where they will make the greatest contribution to the food growing campaign. Farmers are accepting their responsibility for the success of such a program. In fact they are taking on the extra load with cheerfulness and forethought.

"As matters now stand, the fertilizer supply is limited by lack of certain mineral elements, as some scarcities already exist in the amounts of potash and superphosphate available. Lend-lease commitments, military needs and the requirements of industry have reduced the quantities of these materials which can be delivered to producers of mixed fertilizers or to farmers.

"Added to this situation are labor shortages in fertilizer factories and the transportation crises faced by rail and truck lines that haul supplies to the factories and the finished product to the farms.

"Only thru very close cooperation among farmers, fertilizer dealers and producers can the fullest benefits of this present plant food supply be secured for coming wartime crops. Fertilizer producers are doing their part by trying to turn all available raw goods into the properly processed and mixed seasoned grades as rapidly as they can. They further are distributing the prepared materials in the most effective manner and adjusting their production schedules to a year-around rather than a seasonal basis—a practice which crowds factory storage space beyond capacity.

"Farmers can do their part by listing their needs early, placing their orders promptly, taking shipments of their plant food well in advance of the crop season, and storing the fertilizer on their own farms until it is needed for use on the soil."

Fourth War Loan Drive

Marshall County's 275 U. S. War Bond solicitors are receiving final instructions this week in preparation for the Fourth War Loan Drive which officially opens on January 18, when county residents will be asked to subscribe at least $557,500 as its share of "Backing the Attack" O. M. Mattson, county chairman, announced today.

Every resident of the county will be approached to purchase extra War Bonds during the campaign and all solicitors are being schooled to contact every wage earning or income earning individual in every family in order that the county quota be reached.

All solicitors of the county are bona fide representatives of the United States Treasury and are doing their time and effort as a part of their contribution to speed Victory for the Allies.

Bank deposits in the county will remain at approximately the $5 million mark in spite of oversubscribing all previous War Bond quotas and making substantial income and property tax payments. U. S. Bonds provide the safest investment in the world for any individual, and the Series E bond, when held for 60 days, may be redeemed for currency at any time in cases of emergency. The bond, if held until maturity will yield nearly 3 per cent interest on the original investment, and at no time will depreciate in value.

Marshall county residents realize the investment qualities of the government securities, and are buying bonds to serve as a nest egg to purchase desired goods and matials when they become available after the war. County residents also realize that through their purchases of bonds they are investing in the future of America and are backing their sons in the armed forces who are fighting the war for all of us, said Mr. Mattson.

We cannot fail our fighting sons during the Fourth War Loan and the county War Finance committee feels certain that the large quota will be reached early in the campaigh if roads and weather conditions are such that solicitors may carry on their work

Tire Quotas Are Cut More

The continuing shortage of new tires and tubes is reflected in the rationing quotas for January, OPA says.

5,773 grade L and 9609 grade 3 tires have been allotted to the Fargo-Moorhead District. This is a slight increase over the December quota.

The quota for new truck tires is down from the December quota, 1964 tires having been alloted to the distrtct. For new truck tubes the quota is 1215, also a reduction from December.

These reductions are in line with the policy of rationing the number of tires being currently manufactured for civilian consumption.

Similarly lower quotas for farm tractor and farm implement tires and tubes have been given. 674 tires and 550 tubes is the quota for this district for January.

Bergman Heads County Board

Ole Bergman, Alvarado, veteran third district commissioner, was elected chairman of the Marshall Cfunty Board of Commissioners at the opening session of the annual meeting which began yesterday. He succeeds Arthur Anderson, Newfolden, fourth district commissioner, as the presiding officer.

John Rapacz of Argyle, second district commissioner, was chosen as vice-chairman.

Commissioners were busy during the first day of the session setting auctioneer license fees, approving bonds of officials and selecting jury lists for the spring term of district court, all routine functions prescribed by law.

The Warren Sheaf was designated as the official newspaper of the county for 1944, in which all official publications including commissioners', delinquent tax list, notices and the financial statement will be published. The second publication of the financial statement was awarded by contract to the Stephen Messenger. The statement will also be circulated in all of the newspapers of the county without extra charge. The accepted bids were for legal rates as prescribed by law.

Commissioners also discussed investment of some of the county's funds in government bonds during the Fourth War Loan drive after a brief presentation by O. M. Mattson, county War Finance Committee chairman. The amount to be determined later.

Chairman Bergman announced the appointment of the following committees for the year:

Buildings — A. W. Sommers, John Rapazc and Ole Bergman.

Health— Ole Bergman, John Rapacz and Dr. C. H. Holmstrom

Stationery and Printing — A. W. Sommers and V. F. Kruta.

Roads — Mr. Bergman, Mr. Kruta and Mr. Anderson.

Bridges —Mr. Rapacz and Mr. Anderson.

Ditches — Mr. Sommers, Mr. Bergman, Mr. Kruta, Mr. Rapacz and Mr. Anderson.

Warm Winter In 1887

The Minnesota winters are not always as frigid as they are imagined to be by residents of other parts of the country is emphasized by plans announced by the government late last fall for the maintenance of navigation on the Mississippi until December. As a matter of fact, navigation on rivers of this area has often been possible far beyond the normal November closing date. An annual steamboat excursion was a feature of the St. Paul Christmas holidays for no less than nine years before 1878, according to items in the St. Paul Pioneer Press preserved by the Minnesota Historical Society. Five such excursions were made in 1877 between Christmas and New Year's. The last of these was a gala event.

New Year's Day, 1878, was propitious for the excursion, and, according to the newspaper account, "the rich mellow light of a midwinter's sun shining as only a Minnesota sun can shine, gave life and joy to the occasion." The steamboat "Aunt Betsy" crowded with happy excursionists, left the St. Paul levee shortly after noon, and headed up river for Fort Snelling and Minnehaha creek.

When "nearing Mendota and the Minnesota River" continued the account, "several passenger trains on the half-dozen roads that cross and twist around that locality came in sight. This was the signal for steamer and engines to open their whistle throats with shrieks loud, long, and unearthly that reverberated among the rocky bluffs and down the valleys of the two rivers." Cheers and waving handkerchiefs from every train greeted the tourists. Just as the sun set the steamboat saluted gallant old Fort Snelling and swung her prow downstream towards St. Paul. This trip was fittingly concluded with a round of speeches and New Year's resolutions.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Crude, or natural, rubber has been defined as a substance found as liquid latex in many types of trees and plants and being characterized by the physical qualities of stretch, bounce, and impermeability to water.

In 1939 crude rubber was the most important single commodity imported into the United States on a dollar basis. Gross imports then were 499,616 long tons, valued at $178,489,142.

A small test plot of land in a Pacific Coast experimental project last year produced at the rate of 50 pounds of rubber per acre from Russian dandelion.

Dismal Italy

By Frank Gervasi

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

Already the words "sunny Italy" have for the American doughboys of this war the same hollow sound that "La Belle France" had for their fathers in the last one. In terms of rain, mud and misery, Italy has become the France of this war—France, however, without Paris, for the only major city the Allies have captured thus far is Naples, a dark, sad city.

The next big town on the road to victory, Rome, promises only more waterless water closets, and children crying for biscuits and sourballs, and black-market prices spiraling out of an inflation partly influenced by the arbitrary Allied pegging of the lira at one hundred to the dollar, and partly out of an ancient Italian aptitude for gypping foreigners. And nowhere from here to Rome and beyond, is there even a faint promise of a hot bath.

Win and Go Home.

Ever since they volunteered or were drafted, two thoughts have been uppermost in the minds of the men variously known as doughboys, doughfeet, jeeps, dogfaces and G.I. Joes. The first is to whip the pants off the Germans; and second, but not secondarily, to return home to double features, hamburgers, beer, baseball, girls, families, firesides, and Sunday clothes. A year in North Africa, Sicily, and more particularly, Italy, has accentuated those American desires.

That isn't so completely true among those more highly organized intellects known as officers. Among them, I have found many who believe that America's responsibilities go beyond mere victory. But it's overwhelmingly true among the common soldiers (and I have talked with hundreds of them in and out of battle) in the militarily stagnant Middle East and on the active fronts in Italy. Here they cry, with one voice: "Let's get it over with and let's go home. Let's leave Africa to the Arabs, Sicily to the dagos and Italy to the wops."

Their state of mind is attributable to the fact that, in the broader sense, they don't know what they are fighting for, and anything beyond the necessity of defeating Germany will be one for the gentlemen in striped pants to contend with when they gather around the green baize tables to draft plans for the postwar world. In even the most inarticulate Britons, I have found yearnings, however vague, for the creation of world order wherein there shall be peace and justice, and work for all people, so organized that opportunities for tyrants again to raise their heads will be reduced to a safe minimum.

Britons Fight Professionally.

Here on a front which is roughly half British and half American, it is possible to compare the British attitude toward war and its end, with the American. The British seem to understand war and to fight it almost daily and certainly professionally. They seem to know that war and politics are inseparable. The Americans fight much as they play football—intensely and enthusiastically, but with the sole idea of winning. There's nothing gay about Americans in battle. They fight dutifully, doggedly, bravely, but animated solely by the desire to win.

The Englishman knows he's not going to find the same old England when he returns to Limehouse and Leicester Square, and he's not at all sorry, but rather glad. The American doesn't want anything changed. To him social progress or change of any kind is synonymous with Communism, and he wants no part of Communism, preferring, as one doughboy put it, as he stood in the blood and muck of the battlefield after he had crossed the Volturno: "At least, under our way, every guy got the same chance of being President. Yeah, sure, it's dog eat dog, but you've got an even chance of being the dog that wins."

None of this is cabled in the spirit of viewing with alarm, but merely to set down what constitutes a major problem confronting the architects of peace, a problem which is drawing closer now with every hard-earned mile of conquered or liberated Europe. The problem is simply what to do about "I wanna go home."

The mentality of the American soldier and how to fit what that state of mind implies—isolationism—into, for example, the Willkie world is the problem. Unfortunately, although the defeat of Germany is assured, Doughfoot or Dogface won't be able to go home as soon as he would like or, worse still, as quickly as citizens in the United States widely believe.

The fall of Rome doesn't mean that Italy has been conquered. There is the prospect of a long, hard winter fight, and only the disintegration of Germany, like a flywheel gone wild, will bring victory early in 1944.

The German, once a genius on the offensive when his blitzkrieg tactics were crushing all opposition from Norway to Greece, is proving himself equally strong on the defensive. The Fortress Europa is no figment of the imagination.

The Russians on the Dnieper are denting the walls, but are still hundreds of miles from Berlin. The RAF and American bombing raids are battering at the cities and factories of the Reich, and the combined British and American forces are pushing toward Rome, but the inner defenses of Germany are not yet menaced.

Red Army Drives Toward Baltic Sea; Partisan Forces Ban Jugoslav Ruler; Allied Heavy Bombers Smash German Gun Installations in Northern France

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

PACIFIC JITTERBUG:—Doughboys on captured Makin island in the Central Pacific watch somber little native hula dance.

EUROPE:

Blast Rocket Guns

While U. S. and British troops battled the Nazis at close quarters in southern Italy, waves of Allied bombers rumbled over northern France to smash at German rocket gun installations.

Both on the U. S. Fifth and British Eighth army fronts in southern Italy, doughboys and Tommies engaged the Germans in hand-to-hand fighting, Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's men fighting for mountain peaks flanking the road to Rome, and Gen. Bernard Montgomery's warriors striving to clear the path to the highway hub of Pescara.

As reports continued to seep into Britain and the U. S. of the Germans' new rocket gun capable of hurling an explosive charge of from 7 to 21 tons about 20 miles, Allied bombers combed the French channel coast around Calais to blast at the installations for the new weapon.

Ban King

King Peter

Charging that the war minister of the Jugoslav government-in-exile had made a "lasting" deal with the Germans and organized civil strife against patriotic elements, Josip (Tito) Broz's communist backed Partisan forces forbade King Peter's return to the country until after the war.

Broz's action followed the attachment of U. S., British and Russian officers to his staff, as a result of the Allies' preference for the Partisan forces over King Peter's Chetniks because they have been offering the Germans more resistance.

Further, Broz's political council canceled all treaties and international obligations of King Peter's government, on the supposition it no longer was representative of the people.

VETS:

Discharge Pay

To every vet discharged after 18 months of service overseas would go $500 under provisions of a bill passed by the senate and sent to the house for consideration.

Vets serving abroad for [illegible] 18 months would be paid $400 and those less than 12 months, $300. Vets with 12 months or more service in the U. S. would get $300, and those with less than 12 months, $200.

In the house, 44 representatives have organized for higher discharge payments, favoring Rep. William Lemke's bill providing $100 on release and up to a year's pay.

RUSSIA:

Match Wits

Russian and German generals matched wits along an 800-mile front as winter fighting flared to major proportions in the east.

While the Reds surged into German lines guarding the Baltic region, the Nazis threw strong tank forces against the Russians on a 400-mile stretch further to the south. Thus did one attack act as a lever against the other.

The Russian drive was concentrated on reaching the shores of the Baltic sea: (1) to cut off Nazi armies in the Leningrad region from those to the south, and (2) to cut off shipping at present helping supply them over Baltic lanes.

RAIL STRIKE:

FDR Intervenes

Seeking to avert a strike of 1,450,000 railroad workers which threatened to tie up the nation's whole transportation system, President Roosevelt acted to bring the unions and owners together, while orders were drawn for U. S. operation of the lines in case negotiations failed.

Following a suggestion of FDR, the basis for compromise seemingly lay in payment of overtime to the rail workers after 40 hours, instead of after 48 hours as has been the case.

For the 350,000 operating employees of the roads, the overtime pay coupled with a flat four cents an hour wage increase, would result in an average hourly boost of eight cents.

Besides the eight cents an hour for which they threatened to strike, the 1,100,000 non-operating rail employees also proposed overtime pay over 40 hours. Under their terms, their average hourly increase would exceed eight cents.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:

Things to Come

A thorn in the Allies' shipping lanes to the Southwest Pacific, Japan's Marshall islands took heavy poundings from U. S. army and navy planes, while off to the New Britain area, Yankee airmen blasted the enemy's supply centers of Wewak and Cape Gloucester.

In both cases the destructive aerial bombardment presaged ground action. As a springboard for future ground operations, U. S. troops stood on the Gilberts, to the south of the Marshalls, and in New Britain, doughboys recently landed at Arawe consolidated their positions and poised to the north, looking toward the Cape Gloucester region from which the enemy has been supplying its embattled troops on New Guinea to the east.

To meet the Allies' challenge to their whole defensive system in the Southwest Pacific, the Japs strengthened their air forces throughout the area, and poured in supplies for their troops.

Stays on Job

"MacArthur for President!"

A rallying cry for some politicians, a popular topic for the man on the street, these three big words have tended to color the 1944 presidential picture.

General MacArthur

Recently MacArthur talk received two strong stimulants:

First, there was the war department's ruling that there was no bar to any officer accepting a political nomination.

Second, the rumor gained currency that the cocksure chieftain of the Southwest Pacific was preparing to return to the U. S. for conferences in Washington, D. C.

It was pointed out that MacArthur's reigning goal is to lead Allied armies back into the Philippines.

However, from General MacArthur's advanced headquarters in New Guinea's jungles, a spokesman for the general said: "There is no foundation whatsoever for the statement that General MacArthur expects to go to Washington in the near future for conferences."

RICE: This year rice production reached the highest level in history at more than 70 million bushels, 48 per cent above the ten-year average, 1932-42.

BOMBER: A new "super" bombing plane that is called better than the B-29, itself a new wonder, is now in production, according to the chairman of the house military affairs committee.

EGGS: So splendidly have American hens responded to the call for more production that eggs are coming into wholesale markets in greater volume than they can be sold or stored, dealers report. They attribute the increased supplies partly to the fact that last spring's pullets are now beginning to lay. Another factor is the lack of a government program for dried eggs.

New Jersey Farmer Sets Good Example

Describing his October feed subsidy as a "dole," Thomas C. Sanderson, Sussex County, Glenwood, N. J., dairy farmer, sent the entire amount to the Republican National Committee, Washington, D. C. With the check for $95.50, Mr. Sanderson sent a letter which read in part:

"I am sending this to your organization asking if you will please use the proceeds to elect some one with brains enough to understand the farmer's problem. I do not believe the consuming public wants to see my two boys, who are in the service, and who volunteered, when they are released after the war, have to pay the cost of living in the form of taxes for these fellows who have stayed back home."

Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party, continues in public addresses to declare that "the voters of America should cry out in clear and loud voices to force President Roosevelt to run for a fourth term in 1944." In a recent speech at Bridgeport, Conn., Communist Browder is credited with asserting that "the only important issue of the 1944 campaign will be the question of the support of the Teheran Declaration."

Drafting Labor

The United States has a manpower shortage. Farmers all over the country met it more than a year ago and one by one since then other types of employers have felt the pinch. Now the ebbing human tide can be noticed in essential war plants. The highest wage scales ever known are failing to bring industry enough labor. The situation is serious and the solution is not yet.

Factors in the problem are three: (1) Our Commander-in-Chief has called faster industrial production essential to the war effort. (2) A public speech of Paul V. McNutt, manpower tzar, has touched off agitation about conscripting labor. (3) Increased production is possible but drafting workers will not accomplish it. There is a proven better way that does not stink of Hitlerism.

Single Objective.

In a recent message to congress, President Roosevelt said, with especial reference to airplane production: "A high rate of increase must be maintained . . . and that means constant stepping up of our production at home here." And there's no disputing the correctness of the President's analysis. Even the Germans say it is our air force that enables American troops to advance against superior numbers. Planes and more planes are vital to victory.

Surely it is fair to assume that what the war effort needs is what the President asked for: more production, not more men on the government's payroll. After all, there is a difference. Interpreting the President's plea for more planes as a signal to put U. S. civilians in lockstep is, to say the least, getting off ahead of the starter's gun in a race for dictatorship.

The American Way.

A few weeks ago I visited the Beech Aircraft Corporation's plant in Wichita, Kan., where workers and owners together had launched a plan to improve production and developed it in one year to a degree of efficiency that increased factory output 325 percent. They found ways to turn out more than four times as much as formerly. It required no additional help and no bullying.

Common sense and patriotism did the trick. The vehicle was a rational incentive plan that divided profits 50-50 between the employees and the corporation on all increased business. Each worker's effective income accordingly was raised more than 50 percent in 12 months. Similar things have been done in other war production plants and might be done in many more. The idea is truly American in character. It is tried and effective.*

The Hitler Idea

Der Fuehrer works forced labor. He has 2¼ times as much population to draw from as we have, and regularly gets less done. For an example, consider steel, ever needful in war. All the warring countries are producing every ton of it they can. Germany, with 300 million people, is able to produce 50 million tons a year; the United States, with 120 million people, produces 90 million tons. Slaves never do their best. Look at the contrast:

ANNUAL STEEL PRODUCTION

	Million People		Million Tons
In America	120	produce	90
In Germany	300	produce	50

So far, no high government man has actually come out boldly for labor conscription. McNutt said to the A. F. L. in Boston, "It is not beyond the realm of possibility that labor and management can . . . take new and more stringent steps under their own steam." What it takes to speed up production when working with free American people is not a stringent step, if that means compulsion.

*Last August this column carried an account of prompt and amazing production gains achieved by the Howard Radio Company of Chicago, through incentive wage payments. Howard makes signal equipment for the Army. The management instituted an incentive plan by consent of the War Labor Board.

Marshall County's quota for the Fourth War Loan drive will be $557,000.00 or $175,500 less than for the Third War Loan when the quota was $732,500.

This new quota was announced to the Marshall County War Finance committee at a meeting at Hotel Warren Friday evening following a dinner when plans for conducting the campaign which opens on January 18 will continue through February 29, were discussed.

The state quota for the Fourth War Loan will be $200,000,000, of which amount $194,000,000 is expected to be sold to individuals and $96,000,000 to corporations. The State quota of Series E Bonds is $64,000,000, which is $4000,000 more than the E Bond quota during the September drive.

Marshall county residents have another big job ahead of them in meeting this new assigned quota during the Fourth War Loan, but residents of the county have established a habit of meeting its obligations to the war effort with a smile, whether it be Red Cross, Salvage, War Fund campaigns or food production goals, and we feel certain that Marshall County will again go over the top next month" said O. M. Mattson, chairman of the county committee.

Following is the quota for Holt district of which George Fricker is chairman.

Agdar	$6,000
East Valley	3,000
Excel	15,000
Holt Twp.	5,000
New Solum	7,000
Holt Village	3,000
District Total	$39,000

Cattail Harvest Is Now On

The cattail harvest on the Mud Lake National Wildlife Refuge east of Holt has yielded one of the biggest takes of any such crop in the country. Hundreds of people have gotten permits from C. B. Vogen, refuge manager, to pick the fluff out there and never before in all history has there been so many people on that big area of land as there has been the past three weeks.

During the nice weather every body and his brother were out picking cattails and several tons of the fluff was picked and hauled out of the refuge.

Up to date, O. T. Ness, local buyer, has taken in about 200,000 pounds from the pickers who bring theirs in here. Others are bringing theirs to Grygla, Middle River and Gatzke

It is estimated that local pickers have taken out over $10,000 worth up till yesterday and before the season is over that much more will be picked. So figuring all the cattail coming out of the refuge there has been $25,000 worth out of the estimated crop of $55,000.

Rev. T. C. L. Hanson expects to leave next week for a brief visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hanson at Milan. He also plans to attend the Convocation at Luther Theological Seminary in St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Nelson and Rev. and Mrs. Hanson and sons Luther and Harold were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Julien Meyer on Friday evening.

Trapped 9,593 Muskrats

One of the greatest harvests to come out of Mud Lake in so short a time was completed on December 30th when the muskrat trappers completed their take of rats which started December 1st. A total of 9,593 muskrats were taken by eight men, who had leases for trapping, and their helpers. Half of these rats went to the government for the right to trap on the refuge and the trappers got the other half. Prices obtained by the trappers for their rats averaged $2.00 per pelt and they really made a harvest that will be hard to duplicate in so short a time.

Carl B. Vogen, manager of the Mud Lake National Wildlife Refuge, had set an estimate of 10,000 rats to be taken, and if the weather had not been bad a few days in the early part of the season this goal would have been reached. However, Mr. Vogen was very much pleased with the trapping and the amount of rats taken as this was the first time they have been trapped since the refuge was completed.

The trappers sold their pelts to local fur buyers and the government shipped theirs to New York.

Sylvia Pauline, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Selmer Sorter, was baptised at the parsonage on Friday evening. She was born on November 6, 1943, and her sponsors were Mr. and Mrs Elief Sorter and Helen and Raymond [illegible].

Norman Peterson left Monday for Minneapolis where he will undergo an operation.

Thanks You!

Minnesota needed pulpwood to manufacture the requirements of both the home front and the war front. We asked you to help us supply that need.

Your answer came in the pulpwood NOW rolling into the mills. For this we thank you.

Our mills can still use pulpwood. We are counting on you, as patriotic citizens, to continue supplying "a cord or a carload" as long as our boys are fighting on foreign shores.

Holt Went Over The Top

Thru the splendid co-operation of the people of the village of Holt, Geo. Fricker, local Chairman of the 4th War Loan Drive has advised us that the $3,000.00 quota of the village for the coming drive was raised on Monday January 10th.

Although this quota was raised, Mr. Fricker also advised that there are certain parties that have not yet been contacted and every effort should be made to buy to the limit in order to help Marshall County reach its quota. The extra cash received thru the sale of cattail fluff has been a big factor, and with over 200,000 lbs. bought thru the O. T. Ness Agency all the adjoining Townships should be able to raise their quotas. The Government needs the money, it is a good investment so let "Back the Attack" with bonds from any extra cash that we may have.

Holt School Notes

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

Some earned money during vacation by picking cattails. That made our defense sale go up last week we were proud to buy for $44.55.

The sixth grade made maps of Australia on wrapping paper.

The attendance since Christmas has been good. We are glad that Ernest Bottem is back at school now.

The fourth and fifth grades have just started their Elson Basic Readers.

The following had 100 in spelling last week. Donna Hanson, George Fricker, Dorothy Sagalsen, Ruth Larson, Betty Ness, Vernon Larson, Emery Horien, Gloria Johnson, Vernon Reierson Harold Ness, Arthur Peterson and Gladys Ness.

High School

The high school honor roll for the second six-weeks period includes the following names with score attached: Eleanor Ueland, 24; Myron Sorter, 23; Alice Peterson, 22; Blanche Erickson, 22; Violet Erickson, 21; Margie Ueland, 21; Irvin Larson, 21. Each A counts four points; B, 3 points; C, 2 points and a D, 1 point. Only those receiving over 20 points were placed on the honor roll.

Five high school students have not yet received their report cards because of incompletes in one or more subjects. The class averages, in points, were as follows: Freshmen, 17.7; Sophomores, 17.5; Juniors, 14.6.

Mrs. Trost, who has been confined to her home in Warren on account of illness, has fully recovered and on Tuesday continued her work with the English and History classes. Mr. Nelson will teach the Business Training class which has been under the supervision of Mr. Myers during the past three weeks and Rev. Hanson will continue to teach the Plane Geometry and the Elementary Algebra.

Students who accumulate a certain number of unexcused absences will find themselves in serious difficulty, for they will be expelled and forced to appear with their parents before the board of education in order to reinstate.

Dr. Stilaf Anderson left Monday for Seaton, Illinois, where he will be stationed.

Made $4500 Fur Shipment

The largest individual shipment of raw furs ever to be shipped out of Holt in the history of the village was sent from here to the New York market on Saturday by C. B. Vogen, manager of the Mud Lake Refuge when he shipped out the last of the Government's share of the muskrat pelts. 2187 pelts were packed in one large box weighing about 385 pounds and with the pelts bringing at least $2.00 each this had a value of about $45,000. Mr. Vogen had made a previous shipment of 26,000 pelts

Harriet Louise Engen Died

Harriet Louise, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Engen, passed away Thursday morning at the age of four months and 11 days. The little girl had been taken to a hospital at Thief River Falls and everything possible done for her but she passed away at five o'clock a. m. Funeral services will be held at 2:00 p. m. Saturday at the Nazareth Lutheran Church. The News joins the community in extending sympathy to the family in the loss of their dear little girl.

Money From Mud Lake Again

So far the take of muskrats and the take of cattail of the Mud Lake refuge has brought local people about $40,000. It may not happen again as we may may not always be favored with so beautiful a winter as it has been so far, but nevertheless it has been the greatest pay day that area has had in so short a time since this country was settled and will go down in history as the winter when the "tail went with the hide".

Kenneth Baker arrived here this week after several months spent at war work.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Low costs prevailing, post-war world consumption of natural and synthetic rubber may total 2,000,000 tons a year, is the prediction made recently by John L. Collyer, president of The B. F. Goodrich Co. This would be nearly twice as much as ever consumed in a record year to date.

Some 32 million pounds of rubber will be needed by the Army Signal Corps this year for insulating W-110-B wire used in maintaining direct communications. An additional 4 million pounds will be required for friction and splicing tape. Just two of the many rubber-using items of this Army branch.

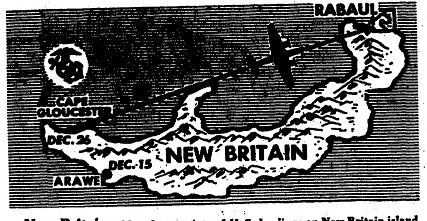
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Nazis Reel Under Combined Pressure Of Heavy Air Attacks and Sea Losses; New Air Blows Strike Japs in Pacific; Fifth Army Steps Up Assaults in Italy

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.



New Britain—Map shows points of U. S. landings on New Britain island at Arawe on south and Cape Gloucester on north. (See: Southwest Pacific.)

INVASION:
Eisenhower Commands

Hitler's high command shuttled troops in western Europe as America's four-star Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower assumed command of Allied forces and the stage was set for the big second front.

Britain's Air Chief Marshal Arthur Tedder stood at General Eisenhower's side as deputy commander, with Britain's Adm. Bertram Ramsay as the leader of naval forces, and Britain's Air Marshal Trafford Leigh-Mallory in charge of all air forces.

As the Allies' supreme command buried itself in the mass of invasion detail, the tensed Germans reported heavy aerial bombardment of their channel fortifications and Commando attacks along the French coast to test their defense. As the Germans awaited the grand assault, said Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel: Our defenses are technically correct.

FORTRESS EUROPE:
Step Up Action

Bringing heavy artillery into play, Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army blasted the Nazis from strong points blocking the 75-mile road to Rome, while farther to the east, the British clambered past the enemy's Adriatic bastion of Ortona, won after more than a week of vicious street-to-street fighting.

As U. S. and British troops punched their way through the Nazis' stiff mountain defenses in southern Italy, aerial and naval warfare in Europe stepped up.

Germany's Scharnhorst.

Fleets of Allied bombers winged their way over the English channel to pound Nazi fortifications along the French coast, and the RAF rained another 2,234 tons of explosives on battered, hapless Berlin.

Following the British home fleet's sinking of the 26,000-ton Nazi battleship Scharnhorst off North Cape, Norway, light Allied and German naval units tangled in the Atlantic off the French coast, with airplanes being called into play to help sink three enemy destroyers and a speedy blockade runner.

RUSSIA:
Reds Advance

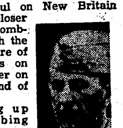
Delivering trip-hammer blows all along the 800-mile Russian front, Red armies surged forward again in the south as Germany's harassed high command shifted forces to check the big push.

The Reds' heavy blows in the south fell as German resistance stiffened in the north around Vitebsk. Quickly shifting the gravity of their attack, the Russ struck on a 110-mile front in the south, first punching hard at Zhitomir, then punching still harder above that railway hub at Koresten.

This winter's Russian offensive was a real slugging match, with each side in the south primarily concerned with exhausting the other.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Bombings Jar Japs

Japan's great air and shipping base of Rabaul on New Britain came within closer range of U. S. bombing planes with the marines' capture of two air strips on Cape Gloucester on the western end of the island.



Gen. Krueger

Following up heavy bombing which helped crumple the enemy's strong line of pillboxes, the marines stormed remaining Jap positions with flame throwers. As the marines advanced at Cape Gloucester, elements of Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth army encountered heavy resistance at Arawe to the south.

The Allies made increasing use of air power to jar the Japs loose on the wide Pacific front, dropping gasoline tanks on enemy strong points on Bougainville and sending fleets of bombers to pound installations on the Marshall islands.

AGRICULTURE:
Meat Production

Farmers received an all-time high of four billion dollars for livestock slaughtered under federal inspection in 1943 as meat production also reached an all-time high of more than 24 billion pounds.

Fifty per cent more meat was produced than during the 10-year prewar average, but after allocations to the government, civilian consumption was held to the prewar rate of 132 pounds per person. Because of rationing, however, supplies were more evenly distributed than formerly.

Meat output for 1944 was estimated at 25 billion, 600 million pounds, of which 8 billion, 500 million pounds will be required for military and lend-lease purposes.

CCC Program

To help stimulate production and fulfill commitments to support crop and livestock prices, the Commodity Credit corporation spent 3½ billion dollars during the 1943 fiscal year.

As of December 18, CCC possessed 32,898,338 bushels of wheat under 1942 loan, while 96,101,516 bushels were redeemed. CCC wheat stocks at that date totaled 86,928,000 bushels.

Principal objective of the CCC's 1943 program was to increase the production of vegetable oils, dairy and poultry products and meats, and at the same time to underwrite OPA price ceilings.

U. S. NAVY:
42 Carriers

The U. S. finds itself well equipped as naval operations throughout the world quicken, with Uncle Sam's navy boasting of 42 aircraft carriers, including sleek destroyer-escorts for protecting convoys. The U. S. started the war with seven.

Corsair and Hellcat fighter planes taking off from the carriers' decks have increased their striking power, and a deadly new dive bomber has been put in service. During 1943, the navy trained twice as many pilots as in 1942, and three times as many combat planes were sent to the front.

During 1943, arming of merchant ships was speeded, 4,000 now being outfitted with weapons.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

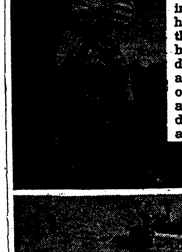
INSURANCE: British maritime insurance companies have reduced the war risk rates on cargoes to and from the United Kingdom to about half the former rate, reflecting the greater security of the seas.

RESTAURANTS: The nation's restaurants, hard pressed by food restrictions and difficulties in keeping employees, are serving 25 million persons daily.

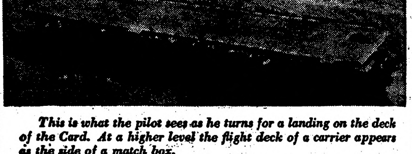
PRESSURE COOKERS: The government has taken pressure cookers off the ration list, but all purchasers will be required to specify that they intend to use the cookers for preserving food. Retailers have been instructed to take the customer's word for it. Those wanting cookers for other purposes must make application with the War Food administration office in Washington.

This Card Is an Ace

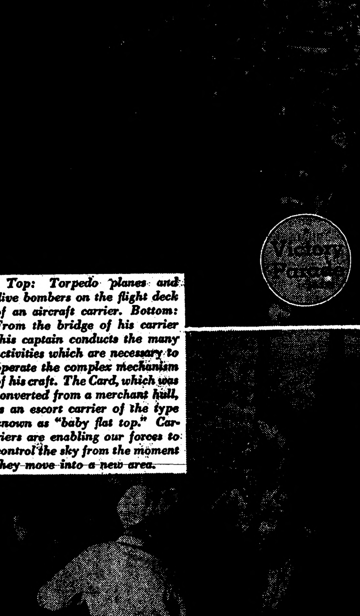
U. S. navy task forces, spearheaded by modern, hard-hitting aircraft carriers, are ranging the Pacific, blasting Japanese island fortifications from Wake to Rabaul and destroying German submarine activity in the Atlantic. At this writing we have 40 such carriers. Tops among them is the U. S. S. Card which, with her planes and escort vessels, has destroyed more submarines than any other unit in naval history. One of the Card's escorts was the overage destroyer Boris which sank after disposing of two Nazi submarines in a stormy sea.



Left: Signal officer at stern of carrier orders pilot of an incoming plane to cut throttle. "Talker" in foreground relays orders from the captain.



This is what the pilot sees as he turns for a landing on the deck of the Card. At a higher level the flight deck of a carrier appears as the side of a match box.



Top: Torpedo planes and dive bombers on the flight deck of an aircraft carrier. Bottom: From the bridge of his carrier this captain conducts the many activities which are necessary to operate the complex mechanism of his craft. The Card, which was converted from a merchant hull, is an escort carrier of the type known as "baby flat top." Carriers are enabling our forces to control the sky from the moment they move into a new area.

Another take-off is under way. This navy Hellcat is going to help ruin a Jap Pacific base.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

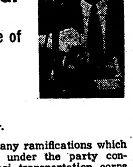
Germany's 'Second Army' Is Nazi Way of Total War



Storm Troopers, Elite Guard Are Backbone of Hitler's Special Military Forces; Every Third German in Uniform.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

As I walk down Pennsylvania avenue these brisk winter days with all the sharp reminders of history about me—General Jackson there on his horse, tip-tilted in the air with his charger pawing the heavens, in the center of Lafayette park; the theater on the spot where Seward was attacked as part of the plot that laid Lincoln low; and across the road, the White House with its kaleidoscope of history—I wonder about the year ahead of us.

Are we going to face a casualty list of 400,000 Americans in the next 2½ months?

I have watched the President closely at the last press and radio conferences since he returned from Cairo and Teheran. I have noted a seriousness in his mien that I have not seen before. He said, when he was asked what Stalin was like: he is a realist, like me.

And in the last few days, as I have talked with officials, I find this same note creeping into their conversations. Is America standing at Gethsemane, with the supreme sacrifice to come?

The great boast of Americans is that we are realists, that we are not to be led astray by starry-eyed dreamers. And yet the last thing that America is willing to look at is the bare facts.

Here are some of them: the Allies have one army apiece—the armed forces. The Reich has two—the armed troops and the uniformed "second army" (as early as 1939, an association of German tailors admitted that every third German was in uniform).

The Storm Troopers

First there is the "SA"—"Sturm Abteilung"—storm troopers.

They started from a nucleus of "bouncers" who kept order when the Nazis had their early meetings before they came into power. By 1932, this group had grown to three million men — Roehm's "brown shirt" army. Roehm, you recall, was purged. This great organization was then theoretically liquidated but the forces which made its organization possible remained. In 1936, there was still a great organization (disarmed, except for a dagger inscribed "all for Germany") which had a well-organized administration with 637 regiments—perhaps less than 700,000—still a goodly "second army" in itself. In 1939, this group, with nothing really official to do, was given specific duties, among them "responsibility" for the military training of all German youth, as well as "responsibility" in catastrophes and any national or local emergency.

But that is only the foundation of the Nazis' "second army."

The "SS" is the elite. "SS" stands for "Schutzstaffeln" — usually referred to as the "elite guard." These are the men whom Hitler has tried to forge into a new aristocracy. I can best tell of their training in the words of a former prisoner in an Austrian concentration camp, whom I know personally. He is not a Jew, but a full-blooded Teuton. He told me that from personal observation, when he had been forced to work in an "SS" training camp, the training of the "SS" men was just as brutal as the discipline of the prisoners except, of course, the bodies of the "SS" cadets were not injured to the point of rendering them useless. Strong anti-Nazi prisoners were hung up by their wrists with their hands behind their backs until their chest and shoulder muscles were torn apart. This, of course, would not be done to an "SS" man since it would render him unfit to serve the Fuehrer. But the "SS" cadets were beaten in the face with riding whips and pounded as mercilessly with whips and staves.

Backbone Groups

A part of the "SS" is part of the fighting army too. With complete divisions, infantry, armor, all the rest.

There is bitter rivalry between the "SS" and the army high command. It is "touch and go" as to who will be there to surrender Germany to the Allies in the end.

These are the backbone organizations of Hitler's "second army" but there are many ramifications which are strictly under the party control—the Nazi transportation corps—three separate air groups, the famous "Todt" organization ("todt" means death in German but in this case it is a man's name). This is a great construction (and now, after the bombing, reconstruction) organization, the boys who parade with shovels instead of guns.

There are several others—the Labor service, trained in camps (something like the old CCC camps in this country); then come the various welfare, women's and youth organizations.

This deep regimentation (remember, one out of three in uniform) is the Nazi way of creating a total war that is total. When the German armies are beaten, these organizations will still remain. They can work on after defeat unless they are uprooted.

A fuller realization of this problem may make it easier for Americans to understand why, after his latest trip to Europe, the President is in sober mien, why the high army officials and the civilians who know this problem intimately, hope that civilian America will not wax overconfident on the eve of military victory.

Status of Fascism In Spain

One of the things that was not discussed by the "Big Three" or the "Big Four" in the recent meetings at Cairo and Teheran, as far as the world knows, was Spain.

The President, in answer to a direct question when he returned, said he did not see Franco. He admitted, however, that something delayed his return. He never said what.

There have been signs that someone has been whispering into Generalissimo Franco's ear just the same.

He has disbanded the Falangists. They are the uniformed party members, a real military and hard-fisted bunch of uniformed fascists, the active party members of the Spanish fascismo.

I saw a few in Spain. They were polite to me as a foreigner but they were not pleasant people. The ones I met in the ranks were raw, untutored youths, anxious for tips; glad, I would imagine, in that wrecked nation, to get food and a suit of clothes from the government.

There is nothing more hardboiled, of course, than a hardboiled youth. Take away from him the decent outlets for his animal spirits—on the ball field, in the school yard, anywhere where he can whoop and holler and be himself—and what happens? A terrific, pent-up force, all the primitive emotions seeking an outlet. The Nazis and the fascists knew this and their strength is still in the strength of the youth they perverted: the primal instincts of the caveman, which lurk within all of us, turned to the base uses of the party.

Well, Spain, a nation of individualists, has at last been able to shake itself loose from part of this bondage. The iron hand of Hitler, and the now withered hand of Mussolini, have been withdrawn. Spanish fascismo is almost an empty shell.

It is an axiom that fascism can only live on blood, the blood of its enemies and when they are not within reach, its own people. It has no other sustenance—it represents that group which, in the lower animals, produces the outlawed, the locoed, the mad. We have these phenomena among the wolves, among elephants, even among horses—the "bad elephant," the tiger which kills for pleasure and not for food.

Starved to Death

So Spanish fascism has been starved to death and the essential, decent instincts of civilized man are again coming to the surface.

In this great struggle of the ideologies, it has taken force to beat down force. It has taken a realization that human beings, banded together in an honest cause, have a chance against the beast, only if they can outwit him at his own game. Once the active element of evil is conquered, the natural decencies of the civilized man rise again and dominate.

WHY TAKE HARSH LAXATIVES?
Simple Fresh Fruit Drink Makes Purgatives Unnecessary for Most People
Here's a way to overcome constipation without harsh laxatives. Drink juice of 1 Sunkist Lemon in a glass of water first thing on arising.
Most people find this all they need—stimulates normal bowel action day after day!
Lemon and water is good for you. Lemons are among the richest sources of vitamin C, which combats fatigue, helps resist colds and infections. They supply valuable amounts of vitamins B_1 and P. They pep up appetite. They alkalinize, aid digestion. Lemon and water has a fresh tang too—clears the mouth, wakes you up, starts you going.
Try this grand wake-up drink 10 mornings. See if it doesn't help you! Use California Sunkist Lemons.

MORE HELP FOR DAIRY FARMERS?

ONE BIG FARM PROBLEM is the drastic shortage of labor. And, this this year, LAND O' LAKES has done everything possible in the way of advertising and and public relations to call this to the attention of public officials. In fact, two Land O' Lakes ads entitled: "The Greatest Mass Production Job in History" and "Why Isn't There Enough Butter?" have been reprinted in the Congressional Record.

THIS TYPE OF ACTIVITY is only one of the many ways that Land O'Lakes serves its members. Besides public relations work in the interest of the dairy farmer, Land O' Lakes also serves members and member creameries by supplying valuable information and services on creamery equipment, supplies, feed and seeds.

New Jersey Farmer Sets Good Example

Describing his October feed subsidy as a "dole," Thomas C. Sanderson, Sussex County, Glenwood, N. J., dairy farmer, sent the entire amount to the Republican National Committee, Washington, D. C. With the check for $95.60, Mr. Sanderson sent a letter which read in part: "I am sending this to your organization asking if you will please use the proceeds to elect some one with brains enough to understand the farmer's problem. I do not believe the consuming public wants to see my two boys, who are in the service and who volunteered, when they are released after the war, have to pay the cost of living in the form of taxes for these fellows who have stayed back home."

Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party, continues in public addresses to declare that "the voters of America should cry out in clear and loud voices to force President Roosevelt to run for a fourth term in 1944." In a recent speech at Bridgeport, Conn., Communist Browder is credited with asserting that "the only important issue of the 1944 campaign will be the question of the support of the Teheran Declaration."

To the People of this Community

YOU ARE IMPORTANT

There is no such thing as a "little" investment in the Fourth War Loan.

Your $25 or $50 or $100 Extra War Bond may not have great importance in your mind in making up a 5½ billion dollar total for individuals.

4TH WAR LOAN

But multiply yourself by 130,000,000 and then you see in real perspective how truly great each citizen becomes in massing national strength against the Nazis and the Japs.

Capt. Maurice Witherspoon, Navy chaplain aboard the Carrier Wasp when she sank, tells of a rescued wounded sailor, who, as he regained consciousness, asked: "Did I do my best?"

That's the only question you, too, have to ask yourself when you decide the extent of your personal participation in the Fourth War Loan.

There undoubtedly will be large single purchases of War Bonds in this community, but yours—if it is "your best" will deserve equally the red, white and blue shield you are privileged to display in the window of your home.

Tire Quotas Are Cut More

The continuing shortage of new tires and tubes is reflected in the rationing quotas for January, OPA says.

5,773 grade L and 9609 grade 3 tires have been allotted to the Fargo-Moorhead District. This is a slight increase over the December quota.

The quota for new truck tires is down from the December quota, 1964 tires having been alloted to the district. For new truck tubes the quota is 1215, also a reduction from December.

These reductions are in line with the policy of rationing the number of tires being currently manufactured for civilian consumption.

Similarly lower quotas for farm tractor and farm implement tires and tubes have been given, 674 tires and 550 tubes is the quota for this district for January.

Keeping Busy

Foreign trade is a tricky topic. Open a discussion on the subject and you are sure to let out a surprising number of positive opinions, differing widely. Some people look on foreign trade as the mother of international disputes and think the United States could get along as well or better without any. I never saw a survey dealing with the subject but I believe relatively few people, even in America, know how foreign trade affects them.

Foreign trade helps this country a great deal. If busy factories and plenty of good jobs are helpful, so is foreign trade because it keeps factories busy. If ready markets for farm products at good prices help the country, so does foreign trade because foreign buyers make prices good. Capturing and holding foreign markets is a matter of efficiency in manufacturing. Whoever gets foreign trade competes with the world on a price basis.

Lowering Prices

Keeping down prices on American-made goods so they can compete with merchandise made by half-starved European and Asiatic labor calls for minimum costs. A large part of the cost of any manufactured article is wages of the workers who make it, and wages in America are high—twice to ten times as high as elsewhere. The United States would be hardly better than any other land if wage scales had to be the same, so how can we compete in foreign markets? There is only one way: through efficiency.

Factories of the United States are faced with a challenge to outproduce all foreign countries after the war—to turn out more manufactured goods per man-hour than the plants of any other nation. Unless they manage to begin this promptly after the fighting stops, some other industrial nation will take the lead. And when sales volume justifies the investment, any country can cut costs with mass production and hold on tight to world commerce.

Do We Want It?

If Americans wish to dominate world trade after this war, they can capture the prize with ease. No question of ability is involved. American manufacturers found a way, on very short notice, to produce more arms and munitions than all the rest of the world combined. They can do the same with products of peacetime demand. It's all a matter of whether the American people, farmer and worker and you and I, will cooperate wholeheartedly to secure maximum production at minimum cost—in other words, top efficiency.

Several years ago when jobs were scarce, a philosophy of extravagance spread through American mills and shops under the charitable slogan of "Share the work." Presently three men were doing no more than two had done before and manufacturing efficiency declined. Costs increased in such cases, and prices advanced accordingly. Many items of American goods disappeared from foreign markets. Sales fell off, and each new day brought fewer jobs to share. Extravagance never benefitted anybody.

What does foreign trade mean to somebody who is not in the exporting business? It means keeping busy. To the manufacturer it is extra volume to cut the unit-cost of whatever he makes; to the worker, more regular employment; to the farmer, better prices. To the small business man it means improved general prosperity.

Current Problem

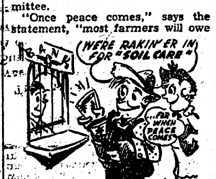
"But," somebody says, "that's a post-war problem. Let's win the war now and cross that bridge when we get to it."

We are crossing that bridge now whether we think we are ready or not. Incentive plans to boost factory production without hiring more people have been tried and proved effective, but some people don't like them. Instead, out of Washington come rumblings of labor conscription, something nobody even imagines can improve production per man-hour. We will win or lose our foreign trade by the spirit developed during the war. If it is lost, our standards of living must be lowered.

WAR BONDS TO HELP PAY FOR PEACETIME SOIL BUILDING JOB

CHICAGO.—"Pay day" for farm soils now working overtime to meet the war's vast food production quotas can be readily faced if farmers will earmark part of their present war bond purchases for peacetime soil rebuilding projects, according to a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Once peace comes," says the statement, "most farmers will owe their soil considerable back pay in the form of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash now being removed much faster than it can be replaced.



BANK
WE'RE RAKIN' ER IN FOR "SOIL CARE"
FOR WHEN PEACE COMES

War bonds will provide cash for postwar soil restoration.

"Money to pay for the prime job of soil replenishment that lies ahead can be accumulated NOW, in this sunshiny time, when farm cash income is at the highest level in history and farm debt is at the lowest point in many years. Most effective method of assuring this is to set aside a portion of war bond purchases and build up a soil 'bank account.'"

Planless Planners

COLD COMFORT

Secretary Ickes told Congress recently that the country faces a fuel crisis unparalleled in its history as a result of the loss of 40 million tons of coal production through miners' strikes. He made this statement in asking for a $3,550,000 special supplemental appropriation to carry out a plan of allocating available coal supplies this winter. The plan involves setting up offices in about 85 strategic cities throughout the production fields and in consuming areas. Wiser planning could have prevented this coal shortage crisis, the need for an additional appropriation from the federal treasury which is already heavily in the red, and the creation of more offices and more federal employes.

Species of Salmon

There are only five species of salmon in North America, although many are the names of the salmon fish. The five species are chinook, silver, sockeye, dog and humpback. Under the chinook specie are the king, chinook, tyee, spring and blackmouth. Jack salmon is a young male salmon of any species which matures a year earlier than normal. It is only found as a chinook, a silver salmon or a sockeye. A Blueback is generally accepted as another name for sockeye, although it has different local meanings. Coho is another name for silver salmon.

March Of Dimes Is Now On

St. Paul, Minn. — Minnesota, one of the most active states in the fight againt polio, is now in the midst of the annual March of Dimes campaign to raise funds for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Arthur D. Reynolds of St. Paul, state chairman, announced today.

Because of the outbreak of an epidemic of infantile paralysis in the West and Southwest last year medical authorities fear that there may be other flareups of the disease in various sections of the country, possibly Minnesota, the coming year.

For this reason Minnesota's 87 county chairmen are making a great effort to collect more money than in the past so that there will be funds with which to fight such an epidemic should it occur, Chairman Reynolds, who has headed the Minnesota drive for six years, said.

He emphasized that 50 percent of all the money collected remains in the community which gives it for its personal infantile paralysis needs and that 50 percent is turned over to the National Foundation, which makes research into the disease and treatment possible.

Thousands of dollars have been spent for equipment for hospitals in the state, Mr. Reynolds said. Such things as portable pools, tanks,, walkers, special beds and lights have been purchased with the March of Dimes money and many Minnesota people treated.

Big Crew Picking Cattails

The biggest crew of cattail pickers to go into mass production on the deal was a group of farmers from Ringbo community who have spent the past two weeks in one giant patch of fluff. They picked 400 bags before they made any delivery to the local buyer, Mr. O. T. Ness. Those who were in on the picking were the following families: Rude Christenson, H. D. Inman, Hilmer Davidson, Orviile Gillispie and Carl Johnson. So far they have sold about $500.00 worth of fluff that they had picked and are still busy getting more for the market.

HOW WE IN HOLT CAN JOIN THE INVASION

It's coming sometime soon now—we all know that. In the cold grey dawn thousands of young men will be leaping off invasion barges onto some foreign ground, with tense faces and bayonets set. You and I can't be with them—much as some of us would like to.

But here's the next best way we can help—by subscribing as generously as we possibly can in the 4th War Loan Drive which starts January 18, 1944. Every cent we put into War Bonds means that out sons and brothers and husbands will be better fed, better equipped, and better protected when their turns come to jump off that invasion barge. It's little enough to ask of us—they offer themselves, while we only loan out money. Let's really get behind the drive this time and JOIN THE INVASION!

Red River Valley Winter Shows

Climaxing the Red River Valley Winter Shows to be held at Crookston January 31 through February 4 will be one of the biggest sales of purebred livestock in the history of the Valley event, says Andrew Johnstad of Beltrami, chairman of the livestock sales committee of the Red River Valley Livestock association. At the sale which will be held this year on February 3 and 4. a total of 208 head of registered livestock will be sold at public auction.

Sale offcials say it is the best array of registered breeding animals ever offered in a Valley event. Animals are consigned by 87 breeders from Northwest Minnesota and the Valley section of North Dakota. Applications were received from 359 breeders, but the number of consigners, as well as the number of head of livestock, was whittled down to insure best possible quality and better service to buyers.

The number of animals is about the same as last year when the sale grossed $25,000 ane consigners turned 40 per cent of the total into war bonds.

Animals consigned to the sale include 15 dairy bulls and cows, 59 bred gilts, 45 bred ewes, 17 beef Shorthorn bulls and cows, 25 Aberdeen Angus bulls and cows, 48 Hereford bulls & cows.

The auctioneer this year will be Fred Chandler of Chariton.

Breeding livestock to be sold at the sale will be on display during the week at the Winter Shows. The combination show and sale has been responsible for placing superior stock on hundreds of Red River Valley farms in the past 34 years. The sales committee representing tne livestock association has this especially in mind in setting high standards of quality for animals that are sold on the last two days of the show this year.

Holt School Notes

High School

According to the daily attendance register two high school students registered below 70 per cent in attendance during the first ninety days of school. Seven were in the seventies and five in the eighties. The remainder registered ninety percent or above. Maxine Olson was perfect in attendance. The names of those who registered ninety percent or more follow in order: Maxine Olson, Violet Erickson, Lois Larson, Eleanor Ueland, Joyce Movick, Joyce Peterson, Alice Peterson, Evelyn Sagstuen, Kenneth Rafteseth, Blanche Erickson, Florence Johnson, Elaine Johnson, Margie Ueland, Delores Engen, Myron Sorter and Vernice Smith.

In the absence of Rev. Hanson Mr. Nelson will teach the Algebra class and the Plane Geometry class will follow a plan of recitation prescribed by Rev. Hanson.

A record supply of new books for our library has been supplied. Pupils are urged to take advantage of the opportunity to secure good books, both fiction and reference material.

Seventh, Eighth

We are having quite a few absent in our room this week due to illness.

Mae Fluke is recovering from an appendicitis operation. We understand she is coming along fine and we hope to have her back in school soon.

We have a new chart in our room entitled "My Book Shelf". By means of this chart we are keeping record of library books read by pupils of our room during the year.

The seventh and eighth grades are working together on an Arithmetic project. The project gives each pupil practice in handling money, buying property, writing checks and making out notes. It also gives them work on all kinds of taxes we have been studying.

We are pleased to hear that we soon shall have some new library books on our shelves.

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

The stamps sale last week was $16.45. Many of us filled our books last week so we are ready to buy bonds.

Perfect spelling papers last week were written by: Arthur Peterson, Boy Fricker, Vernon Larson, Dorothy Sagstuen, Evelyn Wegge, Vernon Reierson, Donna Hanson, Amelia Anderson, Betty Ness, Gloria Johnson.

We drew free hand winter scenes in art class. Some of them got very nice.

The fourth grade is trying to get many gold stars in reading.

Mrs. Trost divided us into high and low voices for choral reading. Sometimes we will have choral reading as part of our reading classes. We are working on a selection called Winter.

The Weather

The weatherman looks as if he has had orders from someone to regulate the fine weather we are having in favor of everyone. Tuesday we had a rain with a light trace of snow and the day was warm with a reading of 40. Wednesday was also warm and Thursday the temperature was around 30.

Mud Lake Cattail Crop Is Big

The cattail business has turned out to be one of the greatest midwinter harvests in all history. It is reported that over 600,000 pounds have been picked on the Mud Lake National Wildlife Refuge east of Holt. This is also reported to be the biggest cattail marsh in the United States. With such a grand take of fluff here the pickers have sold for over $24,000 so far and there are a few spots left yet to be picked. This huge figure makes about 300 tons that have been sold to buyers at Gatzke, Middle River, Grygla, Thief River Falls and Holt. Mr. Ness, local buyer, has purchased the bulk of the fluff with about ten carloads coming in here.

Never in all history has Mud Lake paid so much money in so short a time as it has the past two months. The Muskrat trappers just got thru trapping over $20,000 worth of fur there, and now the great cattail fluff picking added another $25,000. Many families have taken in $500 for their share of the crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Horien and family visited Mrs. L. Hams and Larry Wednesday evening helping Mrs. Hams celebrate her birthday.

Mrs. O. B. Johnson and Mrs. C. L. Sandberg visited relatives at St. Hilaire Saturday.

Over Half Million Bank Footings

Last week we published the statement of the condition of the Marshall County State Bank of Holt. The footings at this time were $557,612.44. With a bank like that in our community with over half a million dollars in money is something of which we all can feel mighty proud.

Report On Christmas Seal Sale

The amount raised through the sale of Christmas Seals was $50.91. The largest contribution was $5.00 from the the Marshall County State Bank.

The Christmas Seal Committee extends thanks to all those who sold seals and all who helped in one way or another to make the campaign a success.

Your Christmas Seal Contribution will immediately go to work in the big job of preventing a wartime rise in tuberculosis.

So far nothing definite has been decided by the farmers in many towns around here on the Milk Drying Plant that has been so widely discussed at many meetings. According to reports, there are to be more meetings held to make the final decisions on this great change over to whole milk sales.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The peak of tropical American rubber production, including guayule, was in 1912, when about 62,000 tons were produced in all countries. In 1940 the world's production of rubber was 1,389,695 tons, more than came out of the Amazon Valley in all the years from 1837 to 1939 inclusive.

By the use of bud-grafted trees, the yield of rubber on Far East plantations in some cases has been increased from 500 to 1,500 pounds per acre a year.

One type of four-motored bomber requires more than 2,000 pounds of rubber; pursuit planes require over 100 pounds each.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

Dear Paddy:

Our loss must have indeed been a shock to you; it was to me. We both loved her so much. I only wish that I could be with you but you are indeed fortunate to have your grand-parents to watch over you. I made a broadcast recording to you last fall. Do hope

In your mother's letter she said you were doing well in church and school. Keep up the good work. You will find both extremely necessary in later life.

Your mother wrote that you were "throwing your weight around" the post on account of the Wake Island Marines. They did quite well and I am proud of them but remember that it just so happened that we were there. Anyone else would have done the same. You must remember that the work done behind the lines is often more vital than that at the front.

Be sure and write everyone saying you have heard from me and give them my love.

PROHIBITION:
Before Congress

Prohibitionists lined up in support of Rep. Joseph R. Bryson's bill forbidding sale or manufacture of all beverages containing more than ½ of 1 per cent of alcohol for the duration as a congressional committee prepared for hearings on the measure.

As prohibitionists organized support, Rep. Emmanuel Celler said it was rumored that they had raised $10,000,000 for lobbying in Washington.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the Anti-Saloon league would remain on the sidelines during consideration of the bill, devoting its efforts to persuading President Roosevelt to declare prohibition as a war measure under his present vast powers.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL:
No Deaths

For the second time in the 12 years he has compiled statistics on college football deaths, Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood of Purdue U. announced no fatalities due to football in 1943.

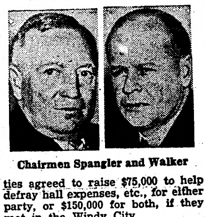
Possibly because of a lack of sufficient amounts and quality of equipment, nine deaths were recorded in high school football, Dr. Eastwood said.

Fatalities in the sport have gradually decreased since he started his survey in 1931, when 31 deaths were announced, Dr. Eastwood said. Since most deaths have been due to head injuries, he suggested that grid leaders look into possible use of new crash helmets designed for military use during the present war.

'44 CONVENTIONS:
Chicago Bids

With 10,000 visitors expected at both the Democratic and Republican national conventions this year, Big Business in Chicago bid to have the conclaves held there, with New York also reportedly interested.

In Chicago alone, representatives of hotels, restaurants, realty and financial concerns, banks and utilities agreed to raise $75,000 to help defray hall expenses, etc., for either party, or $150,000 for both, if they met in the Windy City.



Chairmen Spangler and Walker

As the national committees under Frank Walker of the Democrats and Harrison Spangler of the Republicans studied convention sites, the Office of Defense Transportation declared Chicago was the city least likely to upset train schedules, since regular line sleeping cars with 11,368 beds terminate there, compared to 7,129 in New York.

CANADIAN WHEAT:
To Increase Imports

With approximately 350,000,000 bushels of U. S. wheat expected to be fed to livestock during the current feeding season, an additional 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 bushels will be brought in from Canada, according to government sources.

Because U. S. railroad cars will be sent into the interior of Canada this winter, from 25,000,000 to 50,000,000 more bushels of wheat will be imported than otherwise possible, due to the freezing of the Great Lakes.

Although the heavy dairy and poultry producing areas of the Northeast have bettered their feed situation, feed grains are needed in the drouthy south central regions, and protein meals are scarce in the southwest range districts. The total supply of feed concentrates was estimated at 169,000,000 tons.

SOLDIERS' VOTE:
Urge Uniformity

While congress wrangled over whether the federal government or the individual states should control soldier voting in 1944, the war and navy departments recommended that applications for absentee ballots be distributed by the services and local officials accept such applications any time before election.

Other recommendations made by the army and navy were that voting material be designed for air carriage, and that a serviceman's vote be acknowledged by an officer no lower in rank than sergeant.

Ballots must be distributed to the servicemen by mail, the departments said, and although it is the army and navy policy to assist soldiers and sailors in voting, "nothing must interfere with the . . . primary obligation to wage a victorious war."

RAIL TRAFFIC

The nation's railroads broke all transportation records last year both for passengers and freight. Volume of freight hauled was 14 per cent above 1942, the previous high, and passenger traffic shot up 58 per cent over the preceding year.

Average load of freight per train was 1,116 tons, another record. Per car load was 41 tons. Average volume of passengers per car was greater than ever before. An increase of about 20 per cent in gross revenue is expected.

WITH food production one of our most important war production programs, you need the tractor tire which gives—Extra Pulling Power In All Soil Conditions.

That tire is the Firestone Ground Grip. Here's why:

The Firestone Ground Grip is the only tractor tire that has a patented tread design which provides up to 215 extra inches of traction bar length per tractor, providing a full traction bite, greater drawbar pull—and less fuel is used.

The Firestone Ground Grip is the only tractor tire that has the triple-braced tread design. There are no broken bars in the tread to cause traction leaks which make the tire slip and spin.

The Firestone Ground Grip is the only tractor tire that has a scientifically designed tread with tapered bars at just the right angle for the tread to clean automatically as it pulls. And Vitamic Rubber provides longer life by resisting the action of the sun and the weather.

No wonder Firestone Ground Grip tires are first choice of farmers everywhere! No other tire has these exclusive extra values—and they cost no more than ordinary tires. See your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Store today and get the tires that give you most for your money.

To the People of this Community

YOU ARE IMPORTANT

There is no such thing as a "little" investment in the Fourth War Loan.

Your $25 or $50 or $100 Extra War Bond may not have great importance in your mind in making up a 5½ billion dollar total for individuals.

But multiply yourself by 130,000,000 and then you see in real perspective how truly great each citizen becomes in massing national strength against the Nazis and the Japs.

Capt. Maurice Witherspoon, Navy chaplain aboard the Carrier Wasp when she sank, tells of a rescued wounded sailor, who, as he regained consciousness, asked: "Did I do my best?"

That's the only question you, too, have to ask yourself when you decide the extent of your personal participation in the Fourth War Loan.

There undoubtedly will be large single purchases of War Bonds in this community, but yours—if it is "your best" will deserve equally the red, white and blue shield you are privileged to display in the window of your home.

Here is a crowded division terminal "somewhere" along the Great Northern railway. Day and night a procession of long freight trains roll into these terminals from east and west. Trains are inspected, repairs effected, cars regrouped. A carefully groomed engine backs on, and the train resumes its journey with a new crew. Most of the freight is destined to cause many varieties of trouble for Uncle Sam's enemies.

Swollen Profits?

There has been so much talk about wages and profits that perhaps you would be interested in knowing how much money the Great Northern Railway is making out of the war.

Its net income for 1943 will be about 18 million dollars. This amount is less than the railway's net income for 18 of the 20 years from 1911 to 1930, a period which included good years and poor ones and the first World War.

But most surprising is the fact that the Great Northern's business in 1943 was just about double what it was for the average of the years of the first World War and for the average of the 20 years from 1911 to 1930.

War taxes, of course, are the principal reason for the smaller net income. The Great Northern's taxes for 1943 come close to 50 million dollars. That is one-fourth of the railway's gross income for the year. During the first World War, the Great Northern's taxes averaged about 7 million dollars a year.

Besides the smaller net income for the past year, huge expenditures must eventually be made to repair locomotives, cars, tracks and other property that is being worn out by the heavy war-time traffic. These expenditures ordinarily would be made from current earnings, but they have had to be deferred because of the shortage of materials and manpower. Meanwhile the money represented by these deferred expenditures appears as "profit" and is being syphoned off by war-time taxes.

Dividends paid by the Great Northern during the years from 1911 to 1930 averaged $6 per share. During 1943 the owners of the Great Northern received $2 per share, the same as in other recent years. Thus, while the volume of services performed by their railway has doubled, their returns have shrunk to one-third of what they received over the earlier 20-year period.

The Great Northern would like to have these facts known by the people who live in the communities served by its lines, and particularly by those who depend upon its facilities for their transportation requirements and favor it with their patronage.

Species of Salmon

There are only five species of salmon in North America, although many are the names of the salmon fish. The five species are chinook, silver, sockeye, dog and humpback. Under the chinook specie are the king, chinook, tyee, spring and blackmouth. Jack salmon is a young male salmon of any species which matures a year earlier than normal. It is only found as a chinook, a silver salmon or a sockeye. A Blueback is generally accepted as another name for sockeye, although it has different local meanings. Coho is another name for silver salmon.

March Of Dimes Is Now On

St. Paul, Minn. — Minnesota, one of the most active states in the fight againt polio, is now in the midst of the annual March of Dimes campaign to raise funds for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Arthur D. Reynolds of St. Paul, state chairman, announced today.

Because of the outbreak of an epidemic of infantile paralysis in the West and Southwest last year medical authorities fear that there may be other flareups of the disease in various sections of the country, possibly Minnesota, the coming year.

For this reason Minneseta's 87 county chairmen are making a great effort to collect more money than in the past so that there will be funds with which to fight such an epidemic should it occur, Chairman Reynolds, who has headed the Minnesota drive for six years, said.

He emphasized that 50 percent of all the money collected remains in the community which gives it for its personal infantile paralysis needs and that 50 percent is turned over to the National Foundation, which makes research into the disease and treatment possible.

Thousands of dollars have been spent for equipment for hospitals in the state, Mr. Reynolds said. Such things as portable pools, tanks, walkers, special beds and lights have been purchased with the March of Dimes money and many Minnesota people treated.

Federal and State Seed Laws

Every Marshall county farmer should be familiar with the state and federal seed laws so that he may get the full benefit of their protection.

Requirements of the state law are specific and can easily be checked.

The county agent suggests pasting these five points on your granary door:

1. Look for a label on the container. Don't buy unlabled seed.

2. The label should give per cent of germination.

3. It should give the per cent of weed seeds in relation to grain

4. It should list by name primary noxious weeks present such as field bindweed (jenny), leafy spurge, thistles.

5. It should give name and address of seller.

Labels ought to be kept for at least a year. Marking on them the date the seed is bought and where it is used will help in tracing the source of unclean seed.

Farmers who want to check up on questionable seed, or who wish to make tests of their own seed may avail themselves of the service offered by the State Seed Laboratory at University Farm, St. Paul.

Mail a pint of large seed or a cupful of small seed to the seed laboratory for analysis. Do it now Don't wait until the spring rush.

Only The Worthy Remain Free

As the calendar heralds 1944, grim predictions of allied political and military leaders rank foremost in the minds of all people. 1944 is the year or decision. It is the year of total war and destruction, death and suffering. It may well be the year of military victory, thanks to the courage of our fighting men and the American production miracle.

Armament production in the United States has reached staggering proportions. In November every five minutes saw the birth of one complete new plane. The month's total was 8,789, of which 1,000 were heavy bombers. More than 150,000 war planes have been built since the start of hostilities.

19 million tons of merchant ships were launched in 1943, compared to 1,193,000 tons in 1941.

Naval and shipbuilding has outstripped the imagination of the wildest dreamers. About a dozer aircraft carries were turned out in November alone. Warship tonnage in 1941 was 2,182,000. Out of the ashes of Pearl Harbor it rose to 5,000,000 tons in the year 1943, a colossus bent on the destruction of Japanese aggression and Nazi tyranny.

Tanks, guns and supplies are being produced in unbelievable quantities.

These things were made possible by the productive genius of free enterprise. in the hands of 10,000,000 American men and their companions in arms, they are America's answer to the warped leaders of Europe and of Japan who challenged our freedom.

But we have no cause to rejoice Tens of thousands of cur men must die in 1944 to meet the challenge of the dictators. Usual year-end speechmaking and editorial phrase-making are out of place. The people were told when the war started that they would have to make sacrifices. They were told that this was total war. And yet, other than those who have given their men, no one has so far made an iota of real sacrifice. It is not in the cards for such a condition to continue.

Sometime in the not-too-distant future we, at home, are going to find out what total war means, even tho we may never feel the impact of huge bombs on our cities.

A pretty good indication of how we are going to find out can be seen in the gusts of bitter controversy sweeping through the land over strikes, taxes, subsidies and inflation. When it hits in full fury, the test of our love of freedom will be upon us.

No person in this nation can ever shut from his mind the awful vision of the last days of 1943 in which a thousand marines lay dead on beaches of one little South Pacific island, Those men died for the right to be free. We at home have yet to prove worthy of the freedom for which they died.

4TH WAR LOAN

Our United States is truly the Land of the Free. The American system of free enterprise, equal opportunity—based upon free labor and free business—has brought to Americans the most freedom of any nation on earth.

Your electric company—the Interstate Power Company—is one example of this free American system. It is a taxpaying company, managed by experienced business men. Many of the men who manage the Company today were clerks, meter readers and service men, ordinary folks who saw a job to do, rolled up their sleeves and pitched in. Result? Better service at low prices. Yes, they had the initiative, they acquired the know-how, they were allowed to work in freedom.

That's the type of freedom our men and women are fighting for—fighting to keep America the Land of the Free. You, too, can help in this fight. Buy an EXTRA War Bond during the 4th War Loan.

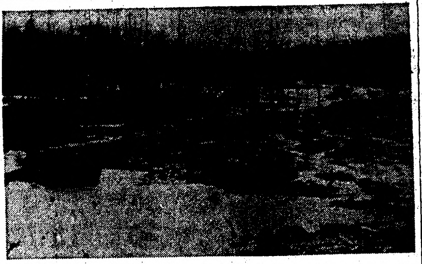
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Congress Debates Labor Draft Issue; Red Army Forges Deeper Into Poland; FDR Asks 100 Billion Wartime Budget; House Group Studies Prohibition Bill

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



Italy—Torrential rains have turned Italian battlefront into goo, slowing Allied drive. (See: Europe.)

WAR BUDGET:
100 Billion Asked

Assuming that fighting will continue throughout the fiscal year ending in June, 1945, President Roosevelt asked congress for an appropriation of $100,000,000,000 to cover the period.

At the same time, the President asked congress to prepare for demobilization by (1) planning public works; (2) providing mustering-out pay to servicemen; (3) expansion of the social security program to tide over the labor force during the reconversion period, and (4) study ways of boosting foreign trade.

Declaring that war spending since 1940 will have swelled to $397,000,000,000 by 1945, the President forecast a national debt of $258,000,000,000 by next year. Such a debt, the President said, would require annual interest charges of $5,000,000,000, which could best be paid with a national income of $125,000,000,000 annually, far over the pre-war level.

To help whittle the debt, the President urged a minimum of $10,000,000,000 in new taxes this year, coupled with present collections of $40,000,000,000.

Ask Labor Draft

No sooner had President Roosevelt's message to congress calling for a labor draft been read, than Sen. Warren Austin (Vt.) and Rep. James Wadsworth (N. Y.) introduced legislation making all men between 18 and 65 and all women between 18 to 50 subject to compulsory service.

As congress moved toward consideration of the controversial labor draft issue, the senate went toward approval of most of its new $2,000,000,000 tax bill, far below the administration's demand for $10,000,000,000 of new revenue. The senate also voted to keep the present social security tax rate at 1 per cent each for employer and employee, instead of doubling the rates as automatically provided by the original law.

In introducing his labor draft bill which would enable the government to place people in employment, Senator Austin said approximately 6,000,000 4-F's, all men over 38, and an estimated 21,000,000 women would form a huge workers pool which could be channeled where needed into industry.

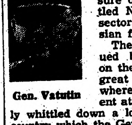
EUROPE:
Biggest Loss

Fighting through swarms of Nazi fighter planes which pressed home their attacks in close ranks, and running into new rocket antiaircraft fire that threw up shells "as big as a house," 700 U. S. Liberators and Flying Fortresses protected by almost 500 light combat escorts smashed hard at German airplane factories in southwestern Germany.

As the big U. S. aerial fleet fired the machine shops and assembly plants with a record loss of 64 planes, other Allied bombers struck at the big Greek port of Piraeus outside of Athens, supply center for German strongpoints in the Aegean sea, guarding the near eastern water route to the Balkans.

Although heavy weather turned the ground into goo, U. S. doughboys beat down Nazi mountain posts in southern Italy in their advance on Cassino, key to the 70-mile road to Rome. In bearing down on Cassino, doughboys were overrunning hill positions to the north, west and south, giving them a commanding view of the town which lies in a plain astride the prized highway.

RUSSIA:
Advance in Poland



Gen. Vatutin

Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's First Ukrainian army bit deeper into prewar Poland in hard fighting as other Red units maintained heavy pressure on the embattled Nazis in other sectors of the Russian front.

The Reds continued bearing down on the Nazis in the great Dnieper bend, where their persistent attacks gradually whittled down a long stretch of country which the Germans held to prevent the Russ from cutting through it and trapping 650,000 of their troops to the south.

As General Vatutin's forces pushed forward in prewar Poland, the Polish government-in-exile considered Russia's proposal for a postwar adjustment of the old eastern border between the two states. Under the proposal, Russia would keep the former Polish provinces of White Russia and the Ukraine, while Poland would be compensated by taking over Eastern Prussia.

PROHIBITION:
Open Hearings

"Use Your Bible to Battle the Bottle."

"Two Resolutions: I Will Keep Sweet and I Will Not Drink Alcohol."

As leaflets containing these slogans were passed out by ardent prohibitionists, a house judiciary subcommittee opened hearings on a bill by Rep. Joseph Bryson (S. C.), for limiting alcoholic content of beverages to 1½ per cent for the duration.

Heading the Dry delegation was Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Mrs. Smith asserted that hangovers from week-end drinking sprees result in war plant absenteeism, and she further said that liquor manufacture channels grains, sugar and other products from food uses.

Opposing the prohibitionists, Representative Forand (R. I.) described himself as a teetotaler. But, said he, that "does not give me license to tell my neighbors what they should eat and drink."

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC:
Batter Forward

As U. S. doughboys battered their way slowly through Jap jungle defenses in New Britain, other Yankee units pushed southward for a junction with Australian troops fighting up the eastern coast of New Guinea.

While Yank and Aussie alike ploughed through the Japs' strong brush and mountain cover, U. S. bombers continued their raids on the enemy's central Pacific Marshall islands, guarding the ocean highway to the orient. Airdromes and shipping in the cluster of coral islets were battered by roaring Liberators.

Following strengthening of their beachhead at Arawe in southwestern New Guinea, doughboys moved inland against the Japs after heavy artillery bombardment, while to the north, other U. S. elements gradually were pushing the enemy back from around the captured airdrome at Cape Gloucester. In eastern New Guinea, Jap bases behind U. S. positions were bombed heavily to slow movements against doughboys fighting to join hands with the advancing Aussies to the south.

CIVILIAN GOODS:
Hold Back Steel

Although curtailment of orders has resulted in a reduction of steel operations, the War Production board refused to lift its ban on use of the metal in 646 civilian items, except in special instances to improve substitutes.

WPB's decision, it was said, was based on:

1. The army and navy's position that limitations on the use of materials should not be removed until war needs are clear;

2. WPB's conclusion that expanded civilian production would result in shortages of coal, petroleum, lumber for crating, packaging paper and transportation, all of which are not sufficient to even meet war requirements.

Because of a typographical error by the OPA, Monnett, Mo.—population 4,099—became the corn capital of the U. S. A.

While the corn top was set at $1.16 for Chicago, it stood at $1.19½ in Monnett, so the latter town had no difficulty getting 25 carloads of the grain, or 2,000,000 bushels.

HIGHWAYS:
Urges U. S. Network

Construction and improvement of 34,000 miles of roads which would provide employment for 2,000,000 workers, was recommended to congress by President Roosevelt after more than two years of study by a national interregional highway committee.

To cost about $750,000,000 annually over a period of years, the plan embraces creation of a system of country and urban roads that would connect every part of the nation.

In general, the new system would follow routes of existing federal aid highways, with costs shared equally by local, state and U. S. government agencies. Quick congressional action was asked to help acquire land, draft detailed plans and accomplish other preliminary work.

FATS AND OILS:
Output Larger

Keeping up with increased demands, fats and oils output in the U. S. for 1943-'44 will approximate 11,200,000 pounds to top last year's production of 10,600,000 pounds.

Despite an easing of the supply situation for the current year, it was pointed out that stocks might be severely drained to fill needs abroad in case of an Allied victory in Europe in 1944.

Soybean production for the 1943 season was set at 187,000,000 bushels, for peanuts 2,500,000 pounds, and for cottonseed 5,500,000 tons.

Because of decreases in lard and grease output, overall fat and oils production for the 1944-'45 season should drop below this year's figures.

STRANGE LETTER:
Hopkins Involved

While Harry Hopkins was recuperating in the Bethseda naval hospital, C. Nelson Sparks appeared before a Washington, D. C., grand jury and turned over a letter which he alleged proved that the President's No. 1 advisor was in close contact with Wendell Willkie, G. O. P. leader.

C. Nelson Sparks

Former mayor of Akron, Ohio, when Willkie was a utility lawyer there, and manager of Frank Gannett's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940, Sparks first published the letter in a book, in which he assailed Willkie's methods in the G. O. P. national convention.

In the alleged letter, Hopkins was to have written to a prospective Democratic senatorial candidate in Texas, promising that he could get Willkie to swing Republican support over to him in the primary election. Claiming the letter was a forgery, Hopkins asked the FBI to investigate the matter.

NAZI PRISONERS:
Suicides Reported

In the Nazi war prison compound at Concordia, Kan., four stern-faced German officers escorted one Capt. Felix Tropschuh to a room with a bed, a chair, a table and a rope. While two of them stood outside for 30 minutes, Tropschuh hanged himself.

Investigation revealed that the prisoners had set up their own court to try Tropschuh for anti-Hitler talk and exposing a plot for escape, and, having found him guilty of disgraceful conduct for a German officer, left him with the traditional Prussian alternative of killing himself.

Another Nazi suicide at the camp was 39-year-old Franz Kettner, who took his own life when he feared violence because of the discovery of his belief in a free Austria.

READY FOR VETS

The veterans' administration is expanding its facilities to take care of the soldiers of this war. Hospital capacity is being increased to 300,000 beds. Six months ago it was around 80,000. The financial departments are also being reorganized to handle the immense volume of disbursements of all sorts that will be necessary.

The department is still paying pensions to the widow of a War of 1812 militiaman, and to 81 widows of Mexican war veterans.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

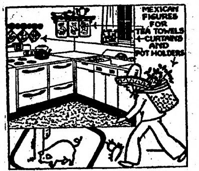
PICKLES: In the midst of an all-time-high demand for pickles by the armed forces and civilian sources, directors of the National Pickle Packers association, at a wartime meeting in Chicago, forecast a shortage of pickles for civilians unless farmers increase cucumber acreage in 1944. Available pickle stocks are reported to be 1½ million bushels less than a year ago.

CHINCH BUGS: The prolonged drouth is adding a new danger in the corn belt—the threat of a much larger number of chinch bugs next season. Dry fall weather is favorable to the pests, as they can go into hibernation with small losses. An open winter also preserves many of the insects, who would ordinarily be killed by cold, it was said by entomologists.

ON THE HOME FRONT
with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE corner shelf with towel rack screwed to the bottom and red cut-out scallops across the front is an idea for a kitchen brightener. The scalloped strip of wood over the stove with cup hooks for pan holders is another. It is the Mexican pan holders, towels and curtains that will interest the gift maker with needle and thread.



MEXICAN FIGURES FOR TEA TOWELS CURTAINS AND POT HOLDERS

A whole set of amusing Mexican figures may be embroidered in simple outline stitch in bright colors. Some of the transfer designs are large and some are small so that they may be used for many different purposes. Try them on a luncheon set of coarse turquoise linen.

Musical Filipinos Play Flute With Their Nose

"Singing through the nose" is a common criticism of some vocalists, but only the Filipinos are known to be able to play a flute with the nose. The difficulty of producing a sufficient volume of air to make musical notes by this method may readily be imagined. Evidently these natives have greater lung power than most people.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
Inflatable rubber barges for the U. S. Navy are "cured" at B. F. Goodrich in a steam vulcanizer that is 42 feet long, 10½ feet in diameter, weighs 35 tons and has a door that alone weighs 10 tons. It's a record for size and turns out the 25-foot barges at a rate of one every 50 minutes.
Synthetic rubber plants already completed and those scheduled for construction will have an annual rated capacity of 850,000 long tons. Before the war the United States consumed about 600,000 long tons of rubber annually. Now, however, our supplies must be shared with the United Nations.

'Expert' Apparently Had Efficiency on the Run

Desirous of bucking up business, the proprietor of a large store engaged an "efficiency expert," whose chief delight was changing the departments around.

One day a section would be on the top floor of the building; the next day it would be in the basement or where the restaurant used to be.

After three weeks of this an old lady approached a worried-looking floor clerk and asked if he could tell her where the chinaware department was.

"No, ma'am, I cannot," he replied, wearily; "but if you'll stand here for a few minutes, I'm sure you'll see it go by."

Land O'Lakes News

TWO PROFITS FROM YOUR MILK

"NOBODY'S FRIEND" was the role skim milk played in the dairy picture until someone recognized the real value in the human diet of the proteins, minerals and vitamins with which it is so richly supplied. But now, skim milk has taken its place alongside butterfat as a source of farm income.

LAND O'LAKES has pioneered in making better use of this product and in marketing of Milk powder — the form in which it is most widely used.

MILK POWDER sold by Land O'Lakes means more benefits to the cooperative member creameries and larger returns to the individual members of those creameries. Farmers selling whole milk to Land O'Lakes actually receive two payments . . . one for the butterfat and the other for the defatted milk solids.

FUTURE MARKETS are being established to guarantee a steady market for both butterfat and defatted milk solids after the war. Members of Land O'Lakes will reap the benefits of these market connections. This is just one of the many advantages membership in Land O' Lakes offers you and your neighbors.

Holt School Notes

First, Second and Third

We are studying about the Eskimos and making Eskimo pictures and booklets. Mrs. Fricker read us The Eskimo Twins.

Our attendance is better this week. We are happy to have Joyce back with us again.

The following had 100 in Spelling on Friday: Marlene, LaRue, Sylvia and Norma.

The 2nd and 3rd graders are learning the poem Winken, Blynken and Nod.

The 1st graders are learning the poem The Huntsmen.

Many of our new library books are here. We keep a record of all the books read.

Tuesday morning we had a most interesting program. Our first graders entertained us by each reading a story. Marlene sang a song and a group of girls sang Jacky Frost.

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

The following pupils in our room have purchased one or more defense bonds; George Fricker has 7, Gloria Johnson has 4, Dorothy Sagstuen has 3, Darlene and Emery Horien and Robert Johnson each have 2. Those who have one bond each are: Arthur Peterson, Gladys Ness, Keith Movick, Ruth Larson, Amelia Anderson, Alf Movick, Donna Hanson, Amelia Anderson. Alf Movick, Donna Hanson and Evelyn Wegge.

Our Stamp Sale last Wednesday was $28.15.

We saw a movie last Monday about making of cheese.

We have started a two part chorus in which there are seven girls and five boys.

The best spellers last week were Robert Johnson, Betty Mass Verron Reierson, Evelyn Wegge Dorothy Sagstuen and George Fricker.

Seventh, Eighth

The defense stamp sale in our room has increased lately. Cattails seem to be responsible for the extra money in circulation.

We are compiling our project in Arithmetic this week.

We are having our mid-term examination this week.

Skating has not been good due to warm weather.

Our attendance is better. We hope this is a sign that our colds are on their way out.

Mrs. C. O. Larson and children and Mrs. Louis Sagstuen visited at the Manvel Moe home Sunday.

The Rural Youth Committee met at the Fred Voth home Tuesday evening. Marian Larson and Fredrick Voth are members of that committee.

Neighbors and friends gathered at the Augustine-Lubitz home Sunday evening and gave Pvt. and Mrs. Marlan Augustine a party.

Pvt. and Mrs. Marlan Augustine arrived home last week to spend their furlough here with relatives and friends.

The Weather

The fair and warm January weather held with us the past week. Last Thursday the thermometer read 45 above zero and 30 above at midnight. Friday morning it was 25 above. Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday was real warm.

LOOKING AHEAD

BY GEORGE S. BENSON
President-Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

New Assurance

Countless Americans who never have seen Senator Walter Franklin George nor heard his voice have great faith in the Georgian. The name of Georgia has a substantial connotation. It suggests southern colonial architecture, heritage and comfort with not too much leisure. The indelible appelation "George of Georgia" rightly attaches the state's traditional virtues to the man.

Senator George is a tireless worker. For more than twenty years he has distinguished himself as a member of the United States Senate and has been called the greatest mind in Congress. He is now chairman of the Senate's very important committee on Post-War Economic Policy and Planning.

Small-Town Boy.

That's a large assignment for a small-town boy, for such he was. When Senator George was born in Preston, Ga., it had a population of 139. It has risen subsequently to 349. His home is now in Vienna, Ga., population 2,063. I can appreciate the size of these communities because Searcy, Ark., according to the latest census, has only 3,670.

Anyone who is familiar with the full cycles of life, business and politics that run their time within the limits of a small community—such a person has before him patterns to measure proposals of broader and more profound import. I am not worried about his perspective. The chances are that he has seen more sides of life than his city neighbors, who see more passing before their eyes but see it less completely.

He Knows Economy.

Senator George has a clear understanding of national economy. He knows that trouble in one segment means damage to others. He has shown the broadest kind of statesmanship in guiding the work of his committee on Post-War.

The committee has been giving serious study to delicate adjustments that will be necessary when the war ends, especially the quick return of industry to peacetime production. Coming from the agricultural South, he has had many chances to see how farm prosperity is tied closely to high employment in industry.

Need Fixed Policy.

In its recent report, the George Committee declared that although thousands of war contracts have been cancelled already, and that disposal of surplus materials had already begun, there is so far no well-defined government policy on these subjects. The committee rightly urged that congress promptly enact legislation fixing the government's policy on these matters, and especially that machinery be set up for working out all these problems together and for furnishing over-all direction.

In all contract terminations, the committee points out, the factor of continued employment or early return of industrial workers to their jobs is of the most vital concern; also that the largest possible share of funds owing to a contractor should be paid at once. This would make the change-over easier and avoid much financial embarrassment or even bankruptcy. Financial commitments of firms in many industries, such as aviation, have to be so big in comparison to their assets, that even very short delays in contract settlement would leave them flat.

The committee points out also that in getting rid of government-owned war plants and equipment the object should be to do it with the least possible disturbance to private industry, watching out, of course, that nothing is done to encourage monopoly.

This is all good sense. It gives me renewed confidence in America's democratic system to know that such leaders as Senator George of Georgia are in positions of high authority.

The following families visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Peterson on Tuesday helping the latter celebrate her birthday: O. T. Ness, Tony Peterson, Geo. Johnson and Mrs. O. B. Johnson.

Word was received that Lawrence Ring has been promoted to Sergeant. He also has been awarded the Army's Good Conduct Medal for exemplary behavior, efficiency, and fidelity while serving in the Army of the United States, according to reports from Major Pilliod of the 321st Infantry.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Leiran left Tuesday evening for Iowa where they were called because of the serious illness of the latters mother.

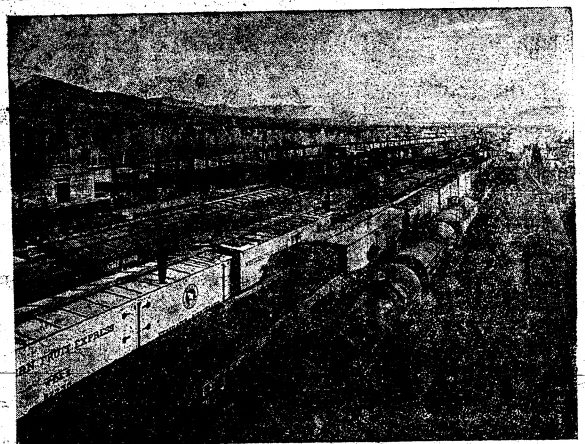
"Trade and Save At CARLSON'S"

Holt, Minnesota. A. W. Carlson, Proprietor



Here is a crowded division terminal "somewhere" along the Great Northern railway. Day and night a procession of long freight trains roll into these terminals from east and west. Trains are inspected, repairs effected, cars regrouped. A carefully groomed engine backs on, and the train resumes its journey with a new crew. Most of the freight is destined to cause many varieties of trouble for Uncle Sam's enemies.

Swollen Profits?

There has been so much talk about wages and profits that perhaps you would be interested in knowing how much money the Great Northern Railway is making out of the war.

Its net income for 1943 will be about 18 million dollars. This amount is less than the railway's net income for 18 of the 20 years from 1911 to 1930, a period which included good years and poor ones and the first World War.

But most surprising is the fact that the Great Northern's business in 1943 was just about double what it was for the average of the years of the first World War and for the average of the 20 years from 1911 to 1930.

War taxes, of course, are the principal reason for the smaller net income. The Great Northern's taxes for 1943 come close to 50 million dollars. That is one-fourth of the railway's gross income for the year. During the first World War, the Great Northern's taxes averaged about 7 million dollars a year.

Besides the smaller net income for the past year, huge expenditures must eventually be made to repair locomotives, cars, tracks and other property that is being worn out by the heavy war-time traffic. These expenditures ordinarily would be made from current earnings, but they have had to be deferred because of the shortage of materials and manpower. Meanwhile the money represented by these deferred expenditures appears as "profit" and is being syphoned off by war-time taxes.

Dividends paid by the Great Northern during the years from 1911 to 1930 averaged $6 per share. During 1943 the owners of the Great Northern received $2 per share, the same as in other recent years. Thus, while the volume of services performed by their railway has doubled, their returns have shrunk to one-third of what they received over the earlier 20-year period.

The Great Northern would like to have these facts known by the people who live in the communities served by its lines, and particularly by those who depend upon its facilities for their transportation requirements and favor it with their patronage.

Mrs. Eckvoll Erickson Passes

Mrs. Eckvoll Erickson passed away at her home on Monday, Jan. 24th after a short illness of one week. With her death passes a pioneer of this community, having lived here 49 years. She possessed the sterling qualities which saw the pioneers through the hardships of the early settlers. The companionship and help of her husband was severed when he passed away 33 years ago.

Mrs. Erickson was born May 11, 1862 in Nyskoga, Varmland, Sweden. She was confirmed in the Lutheran Church there. In 1885 she was united in marriage to Eckvoll Erickson and to this union three children were born. Mr. and Mrs. Erickson immigrated to America and came to Alvarado in 1886. They settled on their farm in the Ringo community in 1895 where they lived until their death.

Left to mourn her passing are: a daughter, Emma Erickson of Los Angeles, Calif.; two sons William and Oscar, of Holt; and 11 grandchildren.

Her husband died in 1911. William has been at home with his mother the past number of years.

Funeral services were conducted from the Ringbo church on Monday afternoon with Rev. Myhrer officiating. Mrs. Kore Myhrer sang a solo. Pall bearers were: Chas. Skoglund, Algot Skoglund, Pete Sorter, Elling Waagedahl, Rude Christenson and Hilmer Swenson. Interment was madein the Ringbo cemetery Carlson Funeral Home had charge of arrangements.

Emma Erickson arrived here Saturday from Los Angeles, Calif., to visit relatives. She was called here because of the death of her mother.

Card of Thanks

We wish to take this means of expressing sincere thanks to neighbors and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and loss of our mother, Especially do we thank Rev, Myhrer for his words of comfort and those who brought flowers.

Friday evening, the following gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ludvig Sagstuen to give the latter a birthday party: Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Moberg, Gerald and Bertha, Mr. and Mrs. H. Peterson and children, Mrs. Mike Leiran, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Ring, Mr. and Mrs. C. Ness, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sagstuen and Marles Peterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fredrickson and twin daughters arrived here Saturday from Los Angeles California. Mr. Fredrickson will enter the Armed Forces and Mrs Fredrickson and daughters will stay at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. A. Bennes.

L. O. L. District Meet In Warren

Cancelled in 1943 because of a sudden blizzard, District 17 of Land O'Lakes Creameries Inc., will again attemp to hold its 1944 district meeting in Warren on March 1, R. E. Melbo, manager of the Warren Coop. Creamery, announces.

The meeting date and the selection of Warren as the place of the meeting were arranged at at the Land O'Lakes meeting in Minneapolis. John Brandt, president of the giant cooperative will attend the session in Warren and will deliver the principal address at the gathering.

The Land O'Lakes convention in one of the larger conventions held in the district during the year and will bring to Warren operators and delegates over a wide area in Northwestern Minnesota comprising District 17. The sessions will be held in the City Auditorium.

A number of young folks were entertained at the Alfred Larson home Thursday evening in honor of Pvt. and Mrs. Augustine. The evening was spent playing games and stunts after which Mrs. Larson served lunch.

Pvt. and Mrs. Augustine left Friday evening for Sacremento, California, where the former is stationed in the Army.

Margaret and Dorothy Weaver students at the A. C. at Crookston, was home over Sunday.

Buy More War Bonds Now

War Bond sales and pledges in Marshall county reached the sum of $485,794.15 or 87 per cent of the $557,500 county quota during the first two weeks of the Fourth War Loan Drive, on a basis of unofficial tabulations as reported Tuesday by Mr. O. M. Mattson, County War Finance committee chairman at Warren.

"While the results during the first two weeks are highly gratifying, it will be neccessary for Marshall County residents to dig deeper and purchase additional bonds if the Fourth War Loan quota is to be met," say members of the county committee.

During the past week several additional communities reported ever-the-top subscriptions, among them being Foldahl township with an even $6,000 against a $6,000 quota; Alvarado village, $9,058.75 against a $8,500 quota; Veldt township, $3,306.25 sales against a $2,000 quota; Thief Lake, $3,637.50 against a quota of $3,000; Newfolden village $10,835 sales, quota $10,000; Oak Park, $25,200 sales, quota $25,000; Parker, $9,712 sales, quota $9,000; Holt township, $5,981.25 sales against a quota of $5,000; East Valley, twp. $3,237.50 sales, quota $3,000. The Village of Holt went over the top in a half day on Monday, January 10th, two weeks before bond the drive opened. The Village had sales of $3,425 against a $3,000 quota.

Sales and pledges in Warren reached over 99 percent or $59,517.50 through Tuesday, R. E. Melbo, city chairman, reported.

"The city will reach its Sixty Thousand dollar goal with ease, within the next few days and should be well over the top when the drive ends on February 15," said the city chairman.

Marshall county has received several sizeable allotments during the past week, these including $10,850 from the Great Northern Railway company and $6,580 from the Soo Line railway company. These allotment were reallocated to municipalities served by these railways on a population basis. The Robertson and Central Lumber companies, both companies operating three yards in the county also made sizeable allotments for each of their yards while the W. G. Woodward Company with main offices in St. Louis, allotted $2,000 for Warren. The State of Minnesota allotted $36,000 to Marshall county, which amount is figured in the county's total subscriptions to date.

On official state tabulations, Marshall county has been dropping far down the list during the past week and on Monday rested in 47th place among the counties of the state with sales totaling only 53.3 per cent of the quota. Top place in the state was reached by Blue Earth with sales of 108.4 per cent of quota. Beltrami, Pennington and Red Lake counties in this section are listed among the top ten counties.

4TH
WAR LOAN

Our United States is truly the Land of the Free. The American system of free enterprise, equal opportunity—based upon free labor and free business—has brought to Americans the most freedom of any nation on earth.

Your electric company—the Interstate Power Company—is one example of this free American system. It is a taxpaying company, managed by experienced business men. Many of the men who manage the Company today were clerks, meter readers and service men, ordinary folks who saw a job to do, rolled up their sleeves and pitched in. Result? Better service at low prices. Yes, they had the initiative, they acquired the know-how, they were allowed to work in freedom.

That's the type of freedom our men and women are fighting for—fighting to keep America the Land of the Free. You, too, can help in this fight. Buy an EXTRA War Bond during the 4th War Loan.

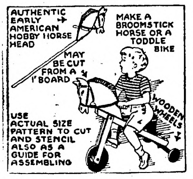
Hobbyhorse Toddle Bike Is Easily Made



AUTHENTIC EARLY AMERICAN HOBBY HORSE HEAD
MAKE A BROOMSTICK HORSE OR A TODDLE BIKE
MAY BE CUT FROM A 1" BOARD
WOODEN WHEELS
USE ACTUAL SIZE PATTERN TO CUT AND STENCIL ALSO AS A GUIDE FOR ASSEMBLING

THIS horse head is a copy of an Early American hobbyhorse. It is full of dash and spirit yet it is so simple that the original craftsman probably cut it out with an ordinary handsaw and a pocket knife.

A toddle bike is more up-to-date than a hobbyhorse because we know now that it is better for tiny tots to learn to use their legs than to get a sense of motion by rocking. The bike is easy to make of scraps of lumber.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared an actual size pattern (No. 257) for this authentic Early American hobbyhorse head and also all the parts of the toddle bike. The pattern includes stencil designs for painting, a color guide, and complete directions. Pattern is 15 cents postpaid. Address:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER
A Wisconsin truck driver recently received a tribute from the Office of the Rubber Director because he risked his life to save the tires on the trailer of a tractor-trailer unit he was driving. The trailer caught fire, but the driver jacked it up and removed the tires while it was ablaze.
The far-reaching influence of the rubber situation will be appreciated when it is known that close to 40% of the motor vehicles ever made in this country were still in service in December, 1941. More than half of them were owned by families with incomes of less than $30 a week.

"NO MORE TROUBLE WITH CONSTIPATION!"
Says Long-Time Sufferer Who Tried Laxative Cereal!
If you, too, are disappointed with pills and purgatives, be sure to read this unsolicited letter!
"For several years I was afflicted with common constipation. I tried various remedies, but got only temporary relief. Several months ago, I started eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN each morning, drinking water freely through the day. I have since never had the slightest trouble with constipation. My gratitude to KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN." Mr. H. M. Riley, 11 E. Division Street, Chicago, Ill.
Scientists say KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN can really "get at" a common cause of constipation—lack of sufficient "cellulosic" elements in the diet — because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements! They work by helping the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative. Doesn't "sweep you out"! It's a gentle-acting, "regulating" food.
If you have constipation of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you, too, don't cheer its welcome relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

House Votes $300 Discharge Bonus; U. S. Bombers Rip Nazi Supply Lines; Red Army Continues Push on Baltic; Peace Rumors Spiked by British Press

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

DISCHARGE PAY:
House Votes $300

Arguing that higher payments would represent a soldier's bonus which should be left for later discussion, the house passed a bill providing for mustering-out pay of $300 to discharged vets with 60 days' service and $100 to those released before 60 days.

With 15,000,000 vets including those already discharged standing to benefit from the measure, total cost of payments was estimated at 3½ billion dollars.

After passage by the house, the bill was sent for approval to the senate, which previously enacted legislation providing for maximum payments ranging from $500 to vets overseas for 18 months or more, to $200 to those with less than 12 months' service in the U. S. Unless the senate okayed the house bill, parliamentary procedure required the two chambers to get together to work out new legislation.

EUROPE:
Pound Supply Lines

U. S. bombers ripped rail lines supplying German troops in southern Italy as American and British forces pressed against the Nazis' winter-line centered on Cassino, key to the road to Rome.

With two of three main rail lines temporarily put out of use, the enemy was forced to route supplies over bomb-pocked highways, some of which were snarled by the wreckage of bridges.

As U. S. artillery laid down a curtain of thunderous fire over German defense emplacements before Cassino preparatory to the infantry's charge forward, British units to the west engaged Nazi troops along the Garigliano river.

Along the Adriatic coast to the east, Canadian forces were held to short gains in hard, close-in fighting.

U. S. HEMP:
Cut Production

Because of the improvement in imports from the Caribbean and Mediterranean areas, the government's hemp-growing program in the Middle West will be cut to one-third of 1943 production, and only 14 of 42 processing plants will be kept in operation.

Raised on contract to the government, farmers found hemp profitable last year, their net yield per acre being larger than from any other crop in the nation, in some cases reaching $200, it was said.

In seeking to relieve a threatened hemp shortage after the outbreak of war, the government undertook construction of processing plants in 42 communities, and arranged for farmers to grow 4,000 acres of the fiber in each of the districts. The plants were erected at an estimated cost of $100,000 each.

Pro and Con

Stimson and Green

While Secretary of War Henry Stimson told a senate committee that a labor draft would equalize soldier and civilian sacrifices, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, headed by William Green, said that the organization would never surrender the basic freedom of the country's workers.

Likening a labor draft as a shot in the arm for the nation's patriotism, Stimson said the first flush of enterprise excited by the Pearl Harbor attack has worn off, and now "the stern voice of law" is needed to "keep up the patriotic emotion."

Declaring that in freedom there is strength, the AFL council asserted that the "amazing speed with which free American workers have won the battle of war production against the enemy within two years upholds the truth of that principle."

Chance for passage of the labor draft dwindled with the house's pigeon-holing of the measure.

PACIFIC FRONT:
MacArthur to Stay

U. S. medium and heavy bombers ranged widely over the Pacific, blasting Jap bases supplying hard pressed enemy troops, and hitting installations and airfields in the strategic Marshall islands.

As U. S. armies were pinning the foe back in the South Pacific area, Secretary of War Henry Stimson announced in Washington, D. C., that General MacArthur would not be retired when he reached the age of 64 on January 29. Retired at his own request in 1937, MacArthur was recalled to active duty following the outbreak of World War II.

In New Guinea, U. S. bombers smashed at the Jap base of Wewak, above American positions at Saidor; and in New Britain, explosives were dropped on the big feeder center of Rabaul, and on barges carrying supplies along the coasts.

RUSSIA:
Baltic Push

Preceded by a thunderous barrage of heavy artillery, Russ infantry pushed into German lines below Leningrad, and cut the enemy's rail communications farther to the south, 70 miles from the Latvian border.

The Reds were reported to have thrown 250,000 men into the battle on a 250 mile front, and units of Russia's Baltic fleet stationed near Leningrad were said to have participated in the bombardment of German positions prior to the big push.

Stiffening German resistance slowed the Reds' progress on other fronts, with the Nazis reporting continuance of Russ efforts to break through in the prewar Polish area of White Russia.

Peace Rumors

With the Allied world still wondering over Russia's semi-official publication of a rumor that two former British statesmen had discussed a separate peace with German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop, Stalin permitted reproduction of a London newspaper's story that Britain had received specific peace terms from Hitler under which the Nazis would withdraw to their 1939 prewar boundaries.

Although Britain remained indignant over the Reds' implication that she was double-dealing, and the U. S. continued puzzled over why Stalin should have allowed publication of the rumor, Russia's man in the street was led to suspect British intentions.

AIRPLANE PROGRAM:
Bigger Types

No. 1 industry of the U. S. today, aircraft plants will set their sights on production of more than 100,000 planes of heavier weight in 1944.

More than 50 per cent of production will be of combat-type planes, with a decrease in output of trainer and obsolete craft. Facilities now being used to turn out the latter two types will be converted to manufacturing parts for other models.

The swing toward heavier planes marks a trend toward production of craft carrying bigger guns and bomb loads. Total weight of planes is expected to approximate 1 billion pounds, compared with 750 million pounds in 1943.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

SPRINGS: Now that the government has released a quantity of steel wire for springs, it is expected that furniture with coils can be coming out of the factories within two or three months.

DEBT: National debt of Great Britain amounted to 77 billion dollars on December 31, the chancellor of the exchequer has reported to the house of commons.

PLASMA: Use of blood plasma has reduced deaths among wounded men to three-tenths of 1 per cent in the Pacific area, a naval surgeon recently returned from the front said.

HOUSING: War ravaged Europe will require construction of at least 100 million homes, it is said. In the United States from 15 to 20 million new housing units will be needed in the next 10 years.

AGRICULTURE:
Hog Permits

With thousands of hogs remaining unsold after marketings, a permit system for shipments was imposed at the Chicago stockyards. Under the procedure, commission firms were allotted weekly quotas based on a percentage of the total volume they handled during the first 11 months of 1943, and farmers were to be advised when to sell.

Through the permit system already in operation in other centers, it is hoped to limit shipments to packers' capacities, cut feed bills, and reduce shrinkage, bruises and death losses.

Drouth

Producer of [illegible] wheat, the great plains area of the Midwest has been suffering from an unheard of seasonal drouth.

Centered in Nebraska, the drouth has extended to the Rocky Mountain and western states, where the storage of snowfall for spring and summer irrigation is much less promising than at this time last year.

Good rains in the late winter and early spring could largely offset the effects of the drouth.

STRONG U. S. A.:
After War

". . . Proposing . . . a realistic point of view, that the tendency to war is inevitable, just as the human tendency to disease is inevitable," War Production Board Vice Chairman Charles E. Wilson called on government and industry to cooperate in promoting a strong armament program after the present conflict.

Said Wilson: "I am convinced that we must begin now to set the machinery in motion, while it is still possible for us to measure the cost of any other course."

Wilson suggested (1) the program should be the government's responsibility; (2) congress must support it; (3) industry's role should be to cooperate; (4) some government-owned plants should be held in reserve, with equipment kept to date.

Outwits Hoodlums

When four 17-year-old hoodlums attempted to rob Seaman Fred Stark of Saginaw, Mich., of his money, he talked them into handing over their gun and letting him join the gang in holding up a tavern. But after they had entered the tavern, Seaman Stark held the hoodlums at bay with the pistol and ordered the bartender to call police to arrest the gang.

MILK SALES:
Bottles or Containers

Chicago's big battle to determine whether milk shall be sold in paper containers as well as glass bottles still has not gotten out of the courts, even though the state Supreme court ruled that paper containers could not be used under the wording of the city's disputed ordinance governing distribution of the product.

At present, Chicago dairies will continue to package the milk in paper containers pending filing of a motion for a state Supreme court rehearing of the case. Since the courts have declared no interest in the sanitary aspects of the question of bottling, but have merely confined themselves to the wording of the city ordinance, a rewriting of the law would permit legal use of paper containers.

BURMA:
Allies Attack

With U. S. bombers blasting a path, American trained Chinese troops under Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell gained ground in mountainous western Burma, while farther to the south units of the British Fourteenth army fought Jap counter-attacks to stall their own offensive.

The Chinese were fighting to clear the way for engineers constructing a new supply route to China, since Jap conquest had closed off the Burma road. To hamper enemy operations, U. S. bombers dropped 20 tons of explosives on a Jap troop encampment in the rear of the battle front.

DRIED MILK

Army quartermaster corps laboratories have developed a method of drying and preserving whole milk so that it will keep for a year even under tropical conditions. Dried milk made by methods now in use will become rancid in the tropics.

In the army formula, the water content of the milk is reduced to 2.25 per cent, and an inert gas is introduced into the airtight container as a preservative. The new method could become a profitable industry, it is said.

Holt School Notes

First, Second and Third

Ione Larson, LaRue Fricker, Marlene Holst and Carol Reierson have had perfect attendance the past six weeks.

Our stamp sale last Wednesday was $10.80.

We had many good laughs at the comic movie last Friday.

LaRue was chosen room leader for the month of February. Each child was assigned a new duty.

Marlehe, Sylvia and Gary had 100 in Spelling test last Friday. They each placed a gold star on our chart.

The first and second graders will get new reading books next week.

In Language Class we wrote stories about Eskimos. We also tried to write poems.

Norma and Ione are absent this week due to illness.

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

We are reading some of our new library books and we like them.

George Fricker and Dorothy Sagstuen had perfect Spelling papers.

We are glad that Emery Horien and Howard Peterson are back in school.

Miss Marian Larson taught last Friday in place of Miss Lee who visited at home with her brother who has just returned Solomon Islands.

Seventh, Eighth

The Eighth grade Arithmetic class is working on porportion problems this week.

Marian Sorum was the first Science pupil to experiment with radio. Marian wired a two-tube set and succeeeed in receiving several stations.

Shirley Larson finished crocheting a rose design pot holder which she started last week.

Our Eight Grade English class debated Wednesday on the topic of "Should strikes be outlawed for the duration".

The following pupils from our room had perfect attendance during the last six weeks period: Lavern Holmos, Earl Ness and Donna Tonnaslen.

High School

This is report card week. Cards will be issued on Friday. The teachers hope that parents will examine the grades carefully with a view to cooperation wherever it is necessary.

We are glad to welcome Rev. Hanson back to our faculty after a two weeks vacation. He will continue to teach the Elementary Algebra and Plane Geometry classes.

Measles is interfering with our percentage of attendance, bringing down the average of some pupils who have had almost perfect records up to date. We hope they will soon be with us again.

The daily average of attendance for the third six-weeks period was about 80 per cent. Fourteen pupils averaged 90 per cent or better, six pupils were in the 80's and the other ten ranged from 19 to 78 per cent. Maxine Olson and Vernice Smith were perfect in attendance for the period. The following pupils ranked above 90 per cent: Eleanor Ueland, Kenneth Rafteseth, Joyce Movick and Sylvia Sandberg.

Next week will be laboratory week for the science classes. Because of slowness in the obtaining of supplies, the classes are behind schedule in the practical part of their science study and a solid week of experiment should bring them up to date.

Grades will be averaged over the week end in order to determine which class is to enjoy a at Mr. Nelson . expense. The Freshmen were ahead at the beginning of the period, but several pupils in the other classes have shown enough improvement to make the final results questionable.

M and O Reports

To you patriotic woodlot farmers and producers who did such a grand job in cutting pulpwood and also to those who are still producing wood to meet the vital needs of war:

1 The crisis which existed in the shortage of poplar wood has been relieved to the point where further production of rough poplar should be curtailed unless producers have a definite outlet for this product.

2 Because of your energetic response to the pulpwood campaign, a growing abundance of poplar has been cut and delivered to the mills. As a result an excess supply of poplar is developing.

3 Pulpwood, other than poplar, still is urgently needed. Therefore, producers and woodlot farmers are asked to devote their efforts to cutting other species than poplar.

4 Our slogan, "A CORD OR A CARLOAD", is still in force, covering SPRUCE, BALSAM and JACK-PINE. We urge producers to divert their efforts toward the production of these species of wood.

HOLT WEEKLY NEWS

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

Volume 33 Number 41

Put Marshall County Over Top

An urgent appeal to Marshall county bond buyers to redeem their pledges given during the Fourth War Loan drive before February 15, was issued today by the Marshall County War Finance committee.

On a basis of unofficial tabulations of pledges made together with several allocations, Marshall county on Tuesday had reached $555,212.25 or better than 97 per cent of its $557,500 quota, O. M. Mattson, county chairman, reported.

However, on official tabulations based purely on sales, the county was far down the list among the Minnesota county reports made on Monday placing Marshall county in 62nd place with sales reaching 74.6 per cent of the quota. In the Fourth region the county placed 15th among 21 counties in the region.

Numerous townships and additional villages reported pledges over the top this week, among them being Vega with sales totaling $25,165.50; Rollis, sales, $8,344.50; East Valley, $3,237.50; Spruce Valley, $10,062.50; Cedar $5,025.00.

Marshall county's Fourth War Loan quota will be comfortably over the top when final tabulations are made and if all county residents redeem their pledges as a result of action taken by the County Board of Commissioners on Tuesday afternoon when they voted to purchase $30,000 worth of bonds from county reserve funds. The county government purchase will be counted to the county as a whole and will not be allocated to any of the townships or villages. This large purchase will bring the county's unofficial total to $585,212 with prospects of reaching an even greater figure as all solicitors have not as yet completed their campaigns.

The village of Stephen with sales of $37,608.75 and the City Warren with sales totaling $62,845.75 were new municipalities surpassing their quotas during the week. Village of Holt increased its sales to $4,306.25 and several other villages increased their sales.

Several villages and townships in the county have not yet reached their quotas, but with solicitors still working hare, indications are that many additional ones will go over the top before the campaign officially closes on Feb. 15.

Unless county residents redeem their pledges within the next few days, there is danger that Marshall county will not reach its quota in the Fourth War Loan which indeed would be a black mark on the patriotic people of this area. "Marshall county has never failed to reach its quota in any War Loan drive conducted during this war and also went over the top in every finance campaign during World War I," said Mr. Mattson. "Remember the eyes of the world are upon us! Marshall county sons are fighting on the land, in the air, on the sea and under the sea in every battle zone in the world. Let's not fail these stallwart sons now, but go to your bank or postoffice today and redeem your pledge today—and buy an additional bond if you feel that you can do so. But, do it now."

2 Million Lbs. of Cattail Fluff

Since the cattail picking harvest ended here about ten days ago, the buyers of surrounding towns have hauled their cattail stocks here to Holt to be stored in connection with the large stock that Mr. Ness has on hand. This was done so that in the near future this stock can be de-stemmed by machinery here and baled and then shipped to the plant at Ashippun, Wisc. for further processing.

W. L. Manning, president of the Burgess Manning Co., and Harold Hamley of the Burgess Battery Company spent the week end here checking the cattail stocks with Mr. Ness and made arrangements for the processing here. Mr. Hamley reports that the company bought over two million pounds of cattails in the northwest corner of Minnesota. This represents a payout to pickers of about $80,000 and commissions to buyers of about $20,000. This one-tenth of a million dollars income in the middle of the winter was a great thing for all concerned.

Mr. Ness reports that according to records so far the take of the Mud Lake National Wildlife refuge east of Holt was about $45,000 worth of fluff. He has bought 356,000 pounds here and has over 200,000 pounds of this stored for processing. He shipped out eight carloads of sacked cattails during the buying season

Food Chain Buys Minn. Wheat

Minnesota wheat contributed heavily to a total of 19,400,000 bushels processed during the past year for the nation's leading baker.

"Millers of the Gopher State have been a principal source of choice flour used in bread production by our bakeries, which have supplied nearly 600,000,000 pounds of bread, over 900,000,000 doughnuts and large quantities of cakes and pateries for one of the leading chain food stores.

This food chain's totat flour purchases in the past year, including family types and prepared mixes as well as the bakery vatrieties, represent the complete output of over 1,250,000 acres of American wheat land.

Significant trends in flour consumption in the United States haye appeared in the smaller volume of home baking as housewives leave their kitchens for war plant jobs; increased reliance on vitamized bread as a basic food, and government-sponsored enrichment of white flour used in commercial baking the food chain reports.

If for any reason you see that we have aged any the past week it may be because we are grandparents at our tender age. Soon 50

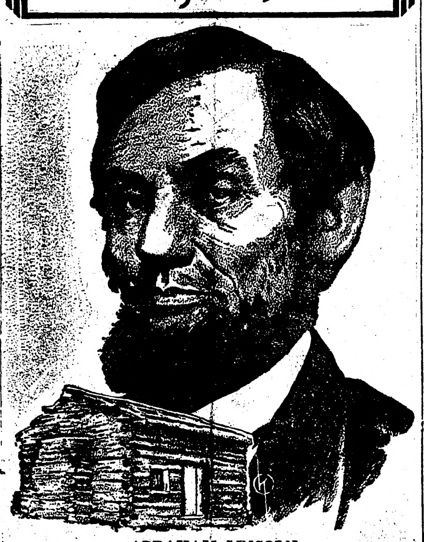
The Martyred Lincoln



ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Across the years, Lincoln's great soul marches on to inspire Americans deeply, ever so deeply, in this year of trouble and sorrow and war.

Made Legal Holiday In 1896

An act passed by the Minnesota legislature early in 1895 and signed by Governor Cloug on February 12 of that year made Lincoln's birthday a legal holiday in Minnesota. According to the contemporary newspaper accounts preserved by the Minnesota Historical society, the North Star state was the first in the Union thus to honor the Great Emancipator.

The act became effective in 1896, and in that year celebrations in honor of Lincoln were held throughout the state. In St. Paul the Minnesota commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion sponsored a reception and banquet at the Ryan hotel. Over four hundred people attended. Other celebrations in the city were arranged by the Lincoln Republican club and the Young Men's Central Republican club.

In Minneapolis five hundred students, members of the political clubs of the University of Minnesota, held a meeting at which Dr. Folwell presided. Governor Clough addressed eight hundred people at a banquet arranged by the Lafayette Papineau club.

Schools and state, municipal, and county offices all over Minnesota were closed for the day, and churches and lodges everywhere conducted memorial programs. Special exercises were held in the state prison at Stillwater, and each inmate was allowed to write an extra letter in honor of the day.

Joyce Sorum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Sorum, was a patient at Mercy hospital at Thief River Falls a few days. She returned home Tuesday and will have to stay in bed several weeks

To the People of this Community

THINK IT OVER

How about doing a little cold turkey thinking after you lay aside this newspaper tonight?

You've got a good job. The chances are there is someone else in your family, perhaps two or three, working. Your son or your brother—may be away at war.

This war must end sometime. Your whole family, your neighbors, are praying it ends soon and those fighting boys of yours will come home safely.

But will you be ready for whatever happens when peace comes? Will you have something laid away? We're all hoping there'll be jobs aplenty, jobs which mean making something for somebody's happiness and not for somebody's sorrow. That's where your War Bonds come into the picture. Sure, Americans own billions of dollars of War Bonds now; and before this 4th War Loan ends they will have put away billions more. But how about you? You're the one that counts. The bigger the pile of War Bonds you have when peace comes, the bigger chance you'll have to slip right into the post-war world you're dreaming about tonight.

So "Let's All Keep on Backing the Attack."

Turn In All Used Tubes Now

Mr. Arvid Carlson, Marshall County Salvage Chairman, this week urged that everyone possessing collaspable tubes which formerly contained tooth paste, shaving cream and other products, turn them in to their local dealers at once.

Mr. Carlson pointed out that after March 1st, it will no longer be necessary for purchasers to exchange tubes. However, there is still a sizeable quantity of used tubes in the public's hands which should be turned in to the dealer by March 1st.

Dealers are instructed to ship all tubes on hand March 1st to the Tin Salvage Institute, 411 Wilson Ave., Newark, New Jersey. These tubes if weighing less than 50 lbs. may be sent Express Collect. If over 50 lbs. they should be shipped freight collect. All shipments should be labled Scrap metal -- second class.

Allied Nations Are Stunned by Stories Of Jap Atrocities to War Prisoners; Reds Surge Forward Below Leningrad; Fifth Army Continues March to Rome

Beauty Parlor—Just like that, T-4 Joseph Drescher of Leavittsburg, Ohio, dropped into this chic little salon on Bougainville in the Solomons for a haircut, shine and manicure.

JAP ATROCITIES:

'Death March'

"Death March on Bataan."

In these four ghastly words, the late Lieut. Col. William Dyess, who led a party of officers and men in escaping from Jap imprisonment, told a still more ghastly story of horror and atrocity committed against the heroic U. S. and Philippine defenders of Bataan by the enemy.

On 85 miles of road leading from Bataan to San Fernando, Colonel Dyess related in a war and navy department release, U. S. and Filipino troops plodded along from dawn to dusk for six days, thirsting under a piercing sun. Sick and delirious were dragged from the straggling columns and cruelly put to death. In one instance, prisoners were forced to bury three Americans and Filipinos alive at bayonet point.

Conditions in prison camps were equally atrocious, the army and navy report revealed. At one camp, the death rate was 20 Americans and 150 Filipinos a day in the first week. In the second week the rate jumped to 50 Americans and 500 Filipinos through starving and overwork.

Strike at Supplies

To make sure that there will not be another Tarawa when doughboys land in the Marshalls astride our supply lines in the mid-Pacific, U. S. bombers continued pounding defense installations in the islands.

On New Britain, Allied bombers struck hard at shipping in the port of Rabaul, which feeds barges supplying Jap troops through coastal depots.

With their bombers striking at enemy supply lines, U. S. troops drove farther inland, both on New Guinea and on Bougainville.

RUSSIA:

Form Trap

Fighting raged on two widely separated sectors of the 800-mile Russian front, with the Reds fanning out below Leningrad in the north, and the Nazis counterattacking to strengthen their position 80 miles from the Rumanian border in the south.

As the Reds surged forward below Leningrad, they chewed two big holes in the Germans' positions on the northern and southern ends of this front, threatening to swing toward each other and throw a loop around the enemy's rear.

Far to the south, the Germans pushed slowly into Russian lines above the Rumanian border, keeping massed Red armies off balance, more than attempting any real breakthrough. In Poland, Nazi resistance stiffened.

Reject Mediation

The U. S. offer to mediate Russia's claim to one-third of prewar Poland was rejected by the Reds, and the situation became even more complicated with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's declaration that Great Britain could not recognize any territorial changes made during the war without consent of the parties concerned.

Russia's rejection of the U. S. mediation bid emphasized Stalin's disposition not to deal with the present Polish government - in - exile, which he has accused of strengthening Germany by its requests that an impartial commission investigate Nazi charges that the Reds slew 10,000 Polish officers near Smolensk.

ITALY:

At Nazis' Rear

With their supply lines leading to Cassino under fire of the Fifth army advancing inland from their invasion beachheads below Rome, the Germans launched a series of counterattacks in the new battle region while their long-range artillery sought to break up Allied troop concentrations.

Near Cassino U. S. and French forces moved through rugged Nazi fortifications to ring that key to the broad highway to Rome on two sides, while farther to the south, British units battered against the right flank of the enemy defense line.

By surging inland after their landings on the sandy beaches below Rome, the Fifth army threatened to cut off an estimated 100,000 German troops in the Cassino area, some of whom were being withdrawn back to counter the new Allied thrust. As the Germans moved back to meet the threat, Allied bombers roared in to machine-gun the columns.

ARGENTINA:

Breaks With Axis

Gen. Ramirez

Declaring that a huge Axis spy ring within Argentina was working to overthrow the country's self-rule which previously had deemed relations with Germany and Japan to its best interests, President General Pedro Ramirez signed a decree breaking off diplomatic ties with Berlin and Tokyo.

Argentina's action followed U. S refusal to recognize the revolutionary government of Bolivia on grounds that the new regime was linked with a subversive movement in South America designed to disturb Allied relations.

Obviously delighted by the turn of events, U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull declared: "It must be assumed . . . that Argentina will now proceed . . . to adopt other measures which all of the American countries have concerted for the security of the continent."

SOLDIER VOTE:

Big Issue

Already a big issue of the present congressional session, the question of soldier voting in 1944 became a bigger issue when President Roosevelt directly appealed to the legislators to provide for federal supervision over service balloting.

Declaring that a system of absentee voting in which states would determine eligibility and print complete ballots would involve too much shipping and time, the President asked that the federal government be allowed to distribute blank ballots on which soldiers would then write in the names of their election choices or merely the name of the political party they favored.

Champions of states rights assailed the President's recommendations, standing firmly for state supervision over registration to assure that each ballot is cast by the registrant himself, and objecting to the services' power to decide the voting time because permission might be given just before or in the midst of a great battle, when soldiers might feel that the country should pull together behind directing leadership.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

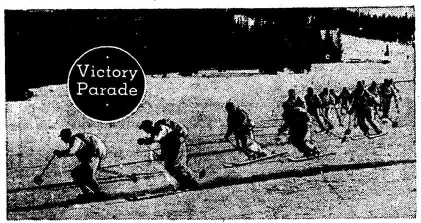
FOXHUNT: Since sporting Englishmen have been too busy with war to conduct the usual foxhunts, with horse and hound, the little animals have increased in boldness and have become a menace to poultry, lambs and game. A party of 500 soldiers and citizens, setting aside sportsmanship for the duration, killed 50 of the little red beasts in a great drive in Kent.

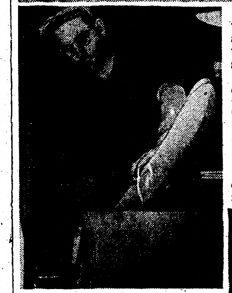
FEATHERS: The war has opened a new market for a domestic product—chicken feathers. They are now used for stuffing pillows and cushions. Before the war, 80 per cent of down feathers came from Europe and China. These were mostly from ducks and geese. New methods of preparing chicken feathers make them more sanitary, and softer than formerly.

Silent Motion for 'Ghost' Troops



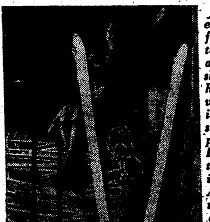
Swift white-clad warriors, who are semi-invisible against snow and who swoop to attack on smooth, silent skis, are aptly described as "ghost" troops. Their means of motion—skis—have risen to the status of a war weapon. Throughout the nation plants are rushing production of this weapon which was once known only to sportsmen.

Top: Ski troopers in action during maneuvers in the Colorado Rockies.



Top: This man, at a Laconia, N. H., ski manufacturing company, is smoothing a ski on a pneumatic drum. Right: With a new ski held in a bracket, this man is sitting on one end to test for flexibility.

Above: Civilian skis are generally given a natural wood finish. But army skis are whitened on the upper side so they will be harder to see against the snow. This worker is spraying a white non-reflecting camouflage paint on the "bedslats." Skis are new in warfare. During the Russian - Finnish war they came into prominence as a silent war was fought in the snowy wilderness where heavy mechanical equipment was stuck.



Left: A plant employee forms a Victory sign with a new pair of skis that may help to bring victory. Originally most skis were imported from Europe where the sport originated. Today American manufacturers have developed a ski which is believed to be superior to the European model. The ski pictured a.e cut from hickory boards and laminated. Below: A trooper emerges from his cave home on Mount Rainier, Wash.

A worker stacks "bedslats" on drying racks. Later they will be waxed. Ski harnesses are not attached by workers but by troopers.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Tire life on rough gravel roads is about 40 per cent less than on smooth concrete pavements. This was proved by tests conducted by the Iowa State College.

Soap, it develops, is to be a growing factor in maintaining motor transportation. It has been estimated that 100 million pounds of soap will be required for one year's production of synthetic rubber.

Camelback, which gets its name because it originally had a hump in the center, is a growingly important product of the rubber industry. Over 20 million pounds of camelback are now being made monthly to recap tires.

FAO Draws Up Plans for 'Family of Nations' Buying

Food and Agriculture Organization Aims at Expanded Production, Increased Trade Within Countries Involved.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

When the President introduced his second bill of rights into his State of the Union message to congress and skillfully linked the past and future with it, he set up old arguments among the elite of Washington's cracker-barrel set.

When "Old Dr. New Deal" was set aside as the guardian of American welfare, some folks hereabouts insisted that he had plans for considerably extending his practice later—that his friend, Franklin D., was planning on a "World New Deal."

Like all smoke, it signalizes a fire somewhere.

There is no doubt that even though the realistic Mr. Churchill and the realistic Mr. Stalin didn't see eye to eye on everything as they looked at each other across the green table at Teheran, we have reason to believe that both are pretty well sold on what they each think can be done in the way of a little international "welfare work" which would raise the decibels which measure the hum of business in their respective countries.

The President presented to congress the various human "rights" he visualized, as you recall, and there will be more specific data concerning them which he will submit to the legislators later, either just to keep his hand in in case he contemplates, as the cracker-barrelers suggest, further personal activity later, or merely wants to keep Americans thinking about all these things, come the ides of November.

About Relief

No matter how you look at it (unless you are a 100 per cent "stew-in-their-own-juicer") you have a sort of vague feeling that we ought to do what we can to help out people who are starving or freezing no matter where they are. I say that advisably and for proof turn to the record.

One of the earliest memories of my childhood is tagging up Main Street on my mother's hand and seeing a dishpan in front of the "Silver Dollar" (not the original) filled with dollar bills. My mother dropped in a quarter and hurried past the sinister abode. Passersby tossed in their currency for the sufferers of some Chinese famine or Italian earthquake (perhaps Pompeii and Herculaneum, I don't recall).

America is always willing to go down deep in its pockets for "relief." But it doesn't seem to like it if government runs the show. Nobody on Main Street knew how much of the dishpan's contents reached the quaking Italians or what-have-you and how much never got past the "Silver Dollar's" back room, but nobody cared.

On the other hand, even when the money is triple-checked by the government and investigated by the opposition, if it is taken out of the general kitty, Americans don't like it. That's playing Santa Claus. When they can shell out individually, it's all right—which may be perfectly logical from a psychological viewpoint.

However this may be, your government is going right ahead and preparing a program for taking out the wrinkles and concealing the ribs of a starving world just the same—it is also doing something more, helping the starvers raise more of their own food.

They are trying to organize the job with the same business acumen that a business man would use on it. Believe it or not, the men who are figuring out free lunches and the production programs to make them unnecessary hereafter are doing it scientifically, and even if you don't like the word, on a "businesslike" basis.

Little has been said of this permanent food organization of the United Nations. You hear about UNRRA, which is supposed to take care of what might be called "strategic feeding"—that is, taking care of the peoples in countries the Allies reoccupy (hungry men and women are no help to anyone). The motive is less altruistic than military.

But you may not have heard of the work of the FAO—that's an entirely unofficial abbreviation of the Food and Agriculture organization which Gove Hambidge of the agriculture administration of the department of agriculture made up himself. He was appointed one of the secretaries of the commission appointed at the conference in Hot Springs last May.

Work 'Going Well'

Hambidge says the work of this FAO is going well. It has drawn up the plans for this job of permanent feeding. Not "free" feeding permanently, but a plan for "family buying"—family of nations buying. Naturally there is plenty of chance for differences of opinion but Hambidge puts it this way:

"Pa wants a certain kind of engine. Ma has her eye on the upholstery. Sis prefers a certain body color. Junior—he's thinking about the gadgets on the instrument panel. But the main thing is—they all want a car. They end up by getting one that isn't quite what anybody expected—but one that's durable, and a good buy, and gets them where they want to go.

"In other words, they compromise. Each one gives up his own pet ideas to get a car that will be serviceable for the whole family.

"And that's what will happen," says Hambidge, "with the Food and Agriculture organization. The Interim commission has been working out a constitution—a broad plan of operation, showing what the organization will do and how it will do it, and a general budget, so we'll know what the work will cost. Along about March, probably, they will have these plans ready to submit formally to the 40-odd governments. If there's quick approval — the organization should be set up and ready to go not too long after that."

Two things FAO is aiming at: expanded production within the countries involved, and increased trade between the countries involved.

Some countries, for instance, just can't produce enough of the right kinds of foods to feed their people properly; others can produce certain foods—like wheat, for instance—only at very great cost.

The FAO, its members say, aims to get away from the old isolationist idea that prevailed almost everywhere before the war—with every country trying to meet all its own needs which ended up with a smashing big depression and a whopping big war. What the FAO can do to prevent such world catastrophes, according to Hambidge, remains to be seen.

That is what this very silent committee, or commission or whatever you want to call it, is doing—making an attempt at prophylaxis—an attempt to cure the disease instead of the symptoms.

M and O says:

CUTTING of POPLAR SHOULD STOP

(A Second Report on the Pulpwood Drive)

1 Last week we reported that the crisis which existed in the production of poplar had passed. We can now report that an over-production of poplar exists and strongly urge that all producers cease cutting poplar at once.

2 Storage capacities of some of the mills are taxed to the limit. These mills are finding it necessary to limit shipments to a specified number of cars per week.

3 If producers do not heed the call to "stop cutting poplar" they may find themselves with no market at the end of the season.

4 Other species of wood, namely SPRUCE, BALSAM and JACKPINE, are still in demand.

Redeem Your Bond Pledges

While the completed War Bond Sales in Marshall County during the Fourth War Loan drive up to Tuesday reached only 90.5 per cent of the $557,500 county quota pledges and unassigned allocations have brought the county total to $640,603.75 or 114 per cent of the quota, O. M. Mattson county chairman, reported following a tabulation completed Tuesday afternoon.

"When Marshall county residents redeem their pledges which they must do before February 25 to count in the Fourth War Loan this county, too, will have met its obligation to our fighting sons scattered all over the world," said Mr. Mattson.

The Fourth War Loan officially ended February 15, but the U. S. Treasury department has just granted an extension of time through February 25 for late buyers to complete their purchases. These extra days should give every bond buyer in the county sufficient time to make their purchases at their bank or post office. Only purchases clearing through the Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis before the end of February will count in the quota.

The tabulation this week showed that nearly every village in the county had made their quota. Most of the townships are also coming to the going over point.

Marshall county ranked 74th among the 87 counties of the state in the official tabulations on Tuesday. This county was the lowest ranking county in Northwestern Minnesota.

The state as a whole has reached 116 per cent of its quota or $232,890,000.00 while Series E bond sales have reached $52,100,000.00 or 81 per cent of the quota set for Minnesota buyers.

State War Finance officials stated that they believe the E Bond quota will be made, but were very much concerned about the state individual quota of $104,000,000. This quota which also includes all E Bonds so far is less than 80 per cent subscribed.

Minnesota can establish the finest record of the nation if all quotas are met and every county exceeds its quota.

Farmers Income Tax Meeting

Marshall County farmers interested in practical methods of figuring their farm income and expenses are invited to attend the meeting next Wednesday on farm accounting for income tax purposes, county agent Ray A. Reierson annonnced this week. The meeting will he held over at Stephen on Wednesday, Feb. 23, at 1:30 p. m. The speaker will be J. B. McNulty farm economist from University farm.

The purpose of this meeting, is to help farmers get a clear understanding of what should be included in the farm income and the farm expenses in figuring the "net farm profit" for each farm. Whether a farmer makes out his income tax return himself, or has somone work with him on it, one of the first things he has to establish is how much he made from his farm last year. Knowing what expense items to include as well as how to report income in proper manner may make a substantial difference in the amount of tax that should be paid.

Practical methods of keeping farm records for use with income tax reports will be explained and demonstrated at the meeting.

Holt Gets The Cattail Fluff Plant

It is with great pride that we this week announce that Holt has been selected as the location for the Cattail Fluff Processing Plant for this area of the state.

Mr. O. T. Ness, local buyer and supervisor of the cattail business in the northwestern part of Minnesota for the Burgess-Manning Company of Ashippun, Wisconsin, this week announced that the machinery for the processing of cattail fluff has been shipped from the main plant and will arrive here shortly to be set up for the purpose of the first process of the fluff.

Mr. W. L. Manning, President of the Burgess-Manning Co. and, Mr. Harold Hamley of the Burgess Battery Co. were here several days early last week and made all arrangements with Mr. Ness to take over the supervising and processing of the fluff here for them. Most of the cattails picked here were of the solid head variety and are quite bulky. These will now be processed so that the center core of the heads and all other foreign materials will be eliminated to save shipping costs as well as storage room at the main plant after the large supply of fluff arrives there. After the processing is done the clean fluff will be baled and the hundreds of pounds of seeds sacked and, all will be shipped out as soon as it can be taken care at the main plant at Ashippun, where the final manufacturing is done and where most of it goes into life preservers for the Army.

Mr. Ness has over a half million pounds of cattails stored here for processing which will require quite a crew of men and time to make into fluff and bale for shipping. Cattails bought by buyers at Roseau, Badger, Greenbush, Middle River, Newfolden, Gatzke and Thief River Falls have been hauled in here for processing. Mr. Ness has over 200,000 pounds of the 500,000 pounds now here, left over from the 356,000 pounds he bought here during the picking season. He shipped out 150,000 pounds at that time.

On Saturday, January 29th the World's Mightiest battleship was launched at the Brooklyn Navy Yards when the USS Missouri slid into the water. In a brief, swift-moving ceremony, the mighty ship was launced with the express hope she would "be an avenger to the barbarian who wantonly slaughtered the heroes of Bataan".

The chicken raising business will again be a big thing here the coming summer according to reports from farmers who are already receiving thousands of the young birds.

Many farmers are talking about going to the Income Tax meeting at Stephen next Wednesday.

Mrs. Karen Knutson Passes

A message was received here from Superior, Wisconsin stating the death of Mrs. Karen Knutson which occured on Sunday, Jan. 30th, after a few weeks illness.

Mrs. Knutson was born in Norway Oct. 7, 1861. She leaves to mourn her death, one brother, S. G. Moe of Agdar township and, a large number of nephews and neices besides other relatives and friends.

Mrs. Knutson was well known to many here having lived for several years in Mud Lake. The past few years she had made her home with a nephew in Superior.

The following relatives from here attended the funeral of their aunt which was held Wed. Feb. 2nd in Superior: Mr. and Mrs. Art Moe and daughter Manvel Moe, Mrs. C. O. Larson, and Mrs. L. M. Larson. They also visited with their brothers and other relatives in Superior and Duluth.

A number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Simonson on Wednesday afternoon last week to honor Mr. Simonson on the occasion of his 80th birthday. Lunch was served and a number of birthday presents were left for the guest of honor. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. M. Sandberg, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nohre, O. H. Nohre, Rev. T. C. L. Hanson, Mrs. Glenn T. Peterson and children, Mrs. C. H. Gunheim, Mrs. Alfin Simonson and children, Mrs. Gust Erickson, Mrs. Victor Johnson and Mrs. Guy Anderson and daughter Inez.

Lenten Services Begin Feb. 23

The annual series of Lenten meditations will begin on Ash Wednesday evening, Feb. 23, at 8:00 at Nazareth Lutheran Church, according to Rev. T. C. L. Hanson. The general theme for the series will be: "The Cross and better living." The first mediation will discuss the topic: "The Cross and Human Values" As in previous years it is hoped that these services will be well attended. All desiring to worship in this church are invited to attend. The weekly themes will be announced from time to time. In these days of darkness and chaos when indifference to the Word of God has brought men and women in neo-paganism, the world needs to be brought to the Cross of Christ which is the only hope for life in this world and for the soul of man in eternity.

Minnesota Reached Bond Quota

Minnesota received congratulation on Friday last week from Henry Morganthau Jr. Secretary of the Treasury in Washington upon being the first state in the Nation to exceed its quota in the Fourth War Loan. Minnesota was the first state to go over the top in actual sales.

The achievement was disclosed as O. J. Arnold, Minnesota war finance committee chairman, reported state bond sales had soared to $202,650,000 which is $2,650,000 over the $200,000,000 quota.

Mrs. T. J. Lillevold of Grygla visited at the H. O. Hanson home Friday.

"I WAS CONSTIPATED FOR MANY YEARS!

Now I'm 'Regular' Every Morning!"

Constipated? Then here's an unsolicited letter you'll want to read: "I'd been troubled with common constipation for many years. Was taking laxatives and pills all the time, and feeling very weak and run down. 3 months ago, I began eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. Now, I have a regular, natural movement every morning, which helps me feel my best!" Mr. Samuel D. Blank, 292 Kings Highway, Brooklyn, New York.

What is this seeming magic of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN? Scientists say it's because KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN can really "get at" a common cause of constipation — namely, lack of sufficient "cellulosic" elements in the diet. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements, which help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Doesn't work by "sweeping out." It's a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If you have constipation of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find lasting relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

With synthetic tires about to be in general use, experts emphasize again that speed is important in determining tire mileage. The legal limit of 35 m.p.h. has been found to be the best mileage conserver with synthetics, just as is was with tires of crude rubber.

Tire cords lose elasticity as they grow older, which accounts for many blowouts when a well-worn tire strikes a rough spot in the road.

Wartime regulations are saving nearly 200 million bus miles a year for the country's highway transportation system. Converted into tires, this conserved mileage means a lot to the rubber program.

Two-Way Red Army Offensive Traps German Divisions Southeast of Kiev; 'Bitterest Battle' Wages Near Cassino; Furloughs Likely for Pacific Veterans

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

RUSSIA:

'Molotov's Cocktail'

Vycheslav Molotov

Big international news of the month was Russia's grant of independence in foreign affairs and defense preparations to 16 republics making up the soviet government.

"Molotov's latest cocktail" was the way London's diplomatic circles described the move, which, to all practical purposes would still leave all 16 of the republics under Moscow's control through the Communist party, but at the same time would qualify each one to representation at the peace table.

Announced by Foreign Commissar Vycheslav Molotov, the plan embraced the territories of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, of White Russia in old Poland, and of Karelo-Finland, all of which would be constituted as republics after their annexation by Russia, as a fulfillment of the Atlantic charter's guarantee of self-government for all small nations.

Drive Continues

Driving on the heels of retreating German troops, the Reds crossed into Estonia on the Baltic battlefront, while farther to the south, other Russ forces continued their hammering along the prewar Polish border.

By smashing toward the Baltic at one end of the 250-mile northern front, and pressing their attacks along the prewar Polish border at the other, the Reds threatened a breakthrough that would trap the whole German army in this sector.

Stiffest German resistance was being met near the prewar Polish border, although the Nazis were fighting a strong rear-guard action in the Baltic. As a result of the Baltic drive, the Reds cleared the Nazis from below Leningrad, gaining control of the extensive network of railroads in the vicinity.

"Attrition warfare"—that is, the wearing out of the enemy—continued in the Ukraine, where the Russians went back to the offensive after German counterattacks 80 miles from the Rumanian border.

FURLOUGH:

For Pacific Vets

If the facilities and battle conditions allow, an increasing number of veterans with two years or more service in the Pacific area will be granted furloughs, Com. Gen. Millard F. Harmon declared.

Already a program of replacing vets with fresh troops has been initiated, General Harmon said, but on a limited scale. Availability of shipping and need for troops for the increasing tempo of the Pacific warfare will determine the extent of the furlough program, General Harmon explained.

"Anyone in a responsible position in the army, from General Marshall down, appreciates the desirability of rotating men in the combat zones," General Harmon said. "But they also appreciate the need for winning the war, and you cannot allow rotation of personnel to interfere unduly with that accomplishment."

PACIFIC:

Won't Fight

Again the boastful Japanese fleet refused to come out and fight, and following the heaviest naval bombardment in history which left shore defenses in smoking tatters, U. S. forces overran the Marshall islands in mid-Pacific.

One of the enemy's last outer defensive rims of their main holdings in the Philippine area, the Marshalls, were virtually surrendered by the enemy, without the bitter, last-ditch fight expected. When marines swarmed ashore after a murderous barrage of U. S. naval guns, they met only scattered pillbox opposition, the enemy's own big artillery pieces have been smashed.

Invasion of the Marshalls gave the U. S. a springboard for the next step in the march to Tokyo, now 2,000 miles off, while reports indicated that the Japs were massing planes all through the Philippine and homeland area to meet the push of the greatest naval armada in history, when that day comes.

ITALY:

Bitterest Fighting

Bitterest battle of the bitter Italian campaign was being fought around the Nazis' mountain stronghold of Cassino, with valiant U. S. doughboys working their way into the town behind the rumbling roar of their tanks, while German suicide squads sniped from battered buildings now in rubble.

Forty miles to the north, the enemy rushed in reinforcements to counter the Fifth army operating from its beachhead below Rome, with parachutists, antiaircraft gunners, tankmen and reconnaissance units formed into regular units to fight off the U. S. and British troops moving on the Germans' supply roads under the heavy fire.

Although Cassino itself lay heaped in ruins, the enemy clung stubbornly to dominating heights around the town, and dug firmly into a strong web of concrete machine-gun and mortar pits on the level ground. As doughboys picked their way through the defensive maze, they closed on the main highway leading northward to Rome, over which the enemy was supplying his troops.

SOLDIER VOTING:

Red-Hot Issue

Joining with the almost solid Republican bloc, southern representatives in the nation's Capitol held their ground for state control of soldier voting in opposition to the administration's plan for federal supervision of elections for the offices of President, senator and congressman by means of a blank ballot on which servicemen would write in either the names of their choices or just mark the party they favored.

A compromise between the senate and house loomed, with the senate favoring a bill which would allow use of the federal ballot for soldiers whose states failed to provide for absentee voting by July 1, and the house lined up for a measure directing the distribution of applications for ballots among servicemen and prompt provision of such ballots by states if the application is accepted.

SUPREME COURT:

Changeable Opinions

Justice Roberts

Litigants and lower courts are being left without a basis for settling legal disputes as a result of the Supreme court's tendency to disregard its previous decisions, Justices Roberts and Frankfurter declared.

The two justices expressed their opinion following the Supreme court's award of compensation to a seaman for injuries sustained as a result of the use of defective equipment by the employer, when better facilities were available. The court's action reversed its previous rulings in similar cases.

Said Justices Roberts and Frankfurter: "The evil resulting from overruling earlier considered decisions must be evident . . . Defendants will not know whether to litigate or settle, for they will have no assurance that a declared rule will be followed . . . Respect for tribunals must fall when the bar and public come to understand that nothing that has been said in prior adjudication has any force in a current controversy."

WAR SPENDING:

On Rise

During the first half of the 1944 fiscal year starting last July, U. S. government expenditures totaled 52½ billion dollars, compared with 41½ billion dollars for the same period in 1943, and the increased spending rate was maintained during January.

More than 7½ billion dollars was spent last month, in comparison with about 6½ billion dollars for January, 1943, with the army accounting for 118 million dollars of the increase and the navy 808 million dollars.

Because of the current pay-as-you-go tax deductions from weekly wage envelopes, treasury receipts for January were above last year, thus bringing in-go and out-go into better balance. Bond sales also were up more than 450 million dollars over January, 1943.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

GARTERS: Hope for synthetic rubber for garters, girdles and other garments faded with the announcement that the rubber director has forbidden the use of neoprene except for a few critical civilian items. Plans to make shoe cement, elastic yarns and fabrics had to be set aside. New military demands made the order necessary, the director said.

LITTLE STORES: Sales of independent retailers were 13 per cent higher in 1943 than in the previous year. These figures do not include department stores, which had an increase of 17 per cent in the period.

INVASION: Railroad shops in Britain are hard at work making special cars and locomotives for use on continental railroads for the invasion of western Europe.

Old Eli Took Jenny's Ultimatum Pretty Hard

Old Eli and his wife, Jenny, had enjoyed bickering for over 40 years. But at last Jenny seemed to be really annoyed. For a week she had been harping about Eli drinking his coffee from his saucer. Finally, at supper one night she delivered her ultimatum.

"Eli," she said with dignity, "ef you don't stop a-drinkin' your coffee out'n your saucer, I'm a-goin' t' leave you, that's all!"

Old Eli's jaw dropped. He looked at her, then surveyed his saucer of coffee in sorrow. He pushed away the saucer and spoke with a note of longing in his voice. "Jenny," he said, "I'm a-goin' t' miss you, gal."

When you hear a Marine called a "Leatherneck," it has nothing to do with the epidermis of his neck. Years ago the Marine uniform was equipped with a high stiff leather collar. From that time on, "Leatherneck" has been the word for a Marine. The word for his favorite cigarette is "Camel"—the favorite cigarette also of men in the Army, Navy, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Holt School Notes

High School

The boys of the high school, under the direction of Mr. Meyers have been practicing basketball under quite unfavorable conditions in the hall down town. All of the boys who live in the village together with two or three from out in the country have been faithful in attendance. They have been attempting this play in a hall which has been condemned, so no return games can be scheduled; and the hall has too small a floor space, too poor a floor, too low a ceiling and is too difficult to heat. All the more credit is due to the boys and Mr. Meyers and Mr. Alton Calson who have been coaching them. A game has been scheduled with the B team at Newfolden for Friday evening, Feb. 25th, as a preliminary before the game between Newfolden and Stephen. Plan to attend and to give the boys your wholehearted support.

It has not yet been determined which of the three high school classes is to have the dinner at Mr. Nelson's expeose, as there are still a few incompletes to be made up. These pupils have returned to schol, however, and the tests should be taken within the next few days.

After a week of laboratory work the science classes have again turned to their texts and daily recitations. The Physics class is studying the methods of transmitting heat. The Biology students are studying the anatomy, physiology and hygiene of man, and the class in General Science is concerning itself with construction of airplanes and their operation.

The Freshman class in Introduction to Business is now discussing the important topic of money and credit, and will next consider the equally important topic: thrift.

Arrangements are being made to hold a carnival in the school on the evening of March 3rd. Watch the Holt Weekly News for further details which will be deleloped as time goes on. Plan to devote that particular evening to attendance at the Carnival, for their will be plenty of amusements for young and old.

As a first lesson in Journalism the following items have been written by Joyce Peterson, Delores Engen and Betty Johnson of the Sophomore class. Next week two members will be appointed to write topics on humor and activities.

Sophomore Poetry Class

The Sophomore English class has been studying poetry and interpretations. They have been working on expressions, pronounciation, and enunciaion of words. They have also been memorizing verses of poems by famous poets and writing parapraps on the poets themselves, to be read in class.

The Carnival

This past week there has been something in the air about a High School Carnival. There has not been much said but the rumors are that the Juniors will stage a one act play.

Exercises

If you see anyone walking around with perfect posture and easy movement-well-you ought to know its because the Freshmen and Sophomores girls have been taking exercises during Physical Education period. Mrs. Trost is our supervisor but each girl has a turn leading the class.

Seventh, Eighth

Glenn Peterson built a two tube radio that works well.

Jerome Horien has been absent from school during the past week.

We are looking forward to a school carnival soon. Watch the NEWS for dates.

During the last week, the seventh grade science class has been learning how to develop pictures from negatives. They are making Snap Shot Albums and are putting their own pictures in them.

The movie "Yellowstone Magic" and "Hawaii and Japan" shown Friday was interesting.

Fourth, Fifth, Sixth

In our language classes we have been studying letter writing

We enjoyed our valentine party on Monday. Marlene Larson and Dannie Meyer were the visitors.

The fourth grade bought postage stamps for their valentines during Arithmetic class. They used real money and got practice in making change.

Perfect spelling papers were written by Dorothy, Gloria, Vernon, Evelyn, Gladys, Keith and Betty.

Harold Ness is news reporter.

Staff Seargeant and Mrs. Russell W. Nelson left on Sunday for Berkley, California after spending a week here at the home of Mr. Nelson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Nelson.

CONGRATULATIONS
HOLT
On Going Over The Top!

Perhaps you didn't realize it when you bought your extra War Bond, but you helped to make Minnesota the first state in the Union to go over the top in the Nation's Fourth War Loan Drive. Congratulations, citizens, you did a swell job of bond-selling and bond-buying.
